Two young sisters, are dead. Shoudn't this rouse the public from its customary torpor: Shoudn't we at the very least press for still greater vigilance in this matter of road safety. Shouldn't we, the public for whom, fundamentally, any real reduction of this awful blight on our way of life must lie) examine critically his conduct in this matter?

We are thinking especially of the person who drinks to excess and then drives. Must we tolerate drivers who become killers through a weakness for liquor? Must we tolerate a continuing and serious loss of life, dismissing it as something beyond human correction?

Worth noting is information coming out of the recent meeting in Warren, Vt. of New England governors and Eastern Canadian premiers. Governor Thomas Salmon of Vermont reported that there had been a 41 per cent reduction in traffic accidents in the state as a result of the 55 mph limit imposed during the energy crisis.

A photograph of the Orono crash scenes shows a concentration of gas stations and motels which suggests the need for extra care by motorists — but no more than around countless other complexes of the same kind. Yet even if the highway speed limits were not factors in this latest tragedy, let's heed the Vermont figures indicating the benefits of reduced speed.

Canadian Talent

What great talent Canada can boast of in entertainment. When it comes to "Canadian content" we can really hold our heads high.

Whether it is "light entertainment" or in the realm of theatre, ballet, and opera. we have performers and talent second to none.

A robust group are the Mercey Brothers who were in Belleville last week under the sponsorship of a soft drink firm which has an exclusive deal who is there advertising-wide who can hold a candle to that ace of a man with a fiddle, Al Cherny. And the Allan Sisters, a lovely duo who are regulars on the Tommy Hunter show and on stage combine warm personalities and humor with a rich blend of song.

Look around further in this branch of popular entertainment and we note such talents as Ian and Sylvia, Tom Music and Soul Company, a group of young people of mixed racial origin with great looks and great sound, who appear on television's weekly Jubilee show.

There is Anne Murray, who has carved a special niche of her own. And fine performers such as Catherine McKinnon and Shirley Eckhart. There are others too — all great performers.

Belleville was fortunate in having some of this fine Canadian talent at last week's concert. Let's hope the city can support more of this kind of entertainment.

Nothing Sacred

It is a sad day indeed when our modern breed of political vandals, by a single stroke of lunacy, can deface a great work of art — Rubens' Adoration of the Magi — in Cambridge, England, and shout their senile stupidity displaying their maniacal qualities again by placing a bomb in the historic Westminster Hall in the British parliament buildings. Nothing, literally, is sacred any more.

Brazil Opposes Concept Of 'Zero Population Growth'

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Zero population growth has been one of the big "save-our-society" campaigns of the 1960s. It has had a parallel role in the 1970s and the public mind with ecological threats.

But we don't stop over-population the earth (200 born every minute, which means at least 13,500 that kids while I'm writing this column) food will give out, basic resources won't last, and so on.

However, one of the world's largest countries (in terms of land space)—namely Brazil—is on record as being strongly opposed to such schemes to control population.

Booming and expanding Brazil, which wants to be a world power by about the year 2000, also wants more babies, millions of them to boost a present population of about 120 million.

Brazilians would think Brazilians have it made already with a population of that size, since their country is almost the same size as our own. Where we have a handful of cities with a population in excess of 500,000, the Brazilians have about 50.

Where we can scarcely conceive any forced-draft plan to settle and develop our huge land space of the Arctic, the Brazilians are offering all kinds of incentives to persuade people to move into the opening Amazon region.

A Brazilian population map for the year 1970 shows that those little people (per square mile live only around Recife in the northeast and the sprawling industrial complex of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo in the south, both on the Atlantic coast.

The half dozen huge Amazonian territories had 19 people per square mile by comparison. And the government of Gen. Ernesto Geisel, a Lutheran, not a Roman Catholic by the way, wants to change that.

The Brazilians will be the only important and large nation to oppose new ways to restrict world population at the UN Conference on Population Control in Bucharest, Romania in August.

Even liberal Brazilian Catholic churchmen, including some bishops, who are opposed to the military regime and its civil liberties by the ruling generals, support their population growth program.

The Brazilians in the midst of a 1930s-type boom of the kind the United States experienced 35 years ago with no concern about growing population and ecological worries, are also officially hostile to any ecological restraints being suggested now by the big industrial nations to the north.

U. S. Land-Management Legislation Runs Foul Of Complex Politicking

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The rising fall of land-management legislation is shaping up as a classic example of how politics work in the United States.

Approved in the Senate but defeated in the House of Representatives was a bill calling for $800 million in federal grants to the states.

The money would have helped the states draw up plans leading toward the regulation of land use. Ultimately, the program would encourage growth patterns that would no longer infringe on floodplains, wetlands, rare and valuable ecosystems and scientific areas of natural status.

The bill contained no imperatives—each state would have retained the right to accept or reject its provisions.

President Nixon's administration called and lobbied for legislation its No. 1 environmental priority.

Representative Morris Udall (Dem. Ariz.), in guiding the bill through three years of hearings, said each year over three million acres is irretrievably swallowed up by urban sprawl, parking lots and innumerable other uses. He described land as the most precious resource.

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton spoke out in favor of it.

So how did it die

Udall blames in part the U.S. Chamber of Commerce as well as the John Birch Society and other right-wing conservative groups for charges that the bill would give federal and state governments authority to confiscate private property without compensation.

Other Democrats are blaming "impeachment politics." Since many of the congressmen who expect to support Nixon in any impeachment hearings are the opponents of the land bill. charges have been made that the administration diluted its support on the promise of anti-impeachment votes.

Morton also backed away, despite a follow-up statement regretting that the House rejected the bill without debate.

Some observers speculate that Morton's position was dictated by White House aides.

Many farmers had supported the proposal to preserve agricultural land being swallowed up, which they said would raise the cost of food.

One lumber manufacturer, however, expressed fear the legislation would force up timber prices by cutting down on forest use.

An example of the ambivalence surrounding the question of land management came from the national governors' conference which said Udall:

"Our policy statement in favor of land use planning in no way implies endorsement of your bill or any other specific legislation."

If the bill is dead for now, there are already signs that it may be reborn.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), head of the Senate Interior committee and one of the more powerful figures on Capitol Hill, says he is looking for "a most likely."

Such a bill is one which the president feels is vital. Even though the chosen bill may have nothing to do with the use of land, Jackson plans to tack land management onto it.

Then, if the president wants the main body of the "must bill," he will have to take the land-use provisions along with it.

Jeanne Mance, founder of the Hotel Dieu hospital in Montreal, died 1673 years ago today—at age 67. Montreal was not even founded when Jeanne arrived in Canada in 1641, but she set up the hospital under Jesuit sponsorship, a few months after Maisonneuve proclaimed the new settlement. While raising money in France for the enterprise in 1659, Jeanne was cured of an injured arm by the application of a sacred relic, which has been considered miraculous ever since.

LETTERS

In Support Of The Y And The UCS

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have refrained from commenting on letters in the Editor section by Messrs. Hockley and Reilly appearing regularly in your pages, knowing that very often sigh comment adds undeserved credibility to the attacking correspondents. However, I can hold off no longer, because I fear that the "big lie" approach of these men may already be taking effect.

Mr. Reilly charges "double-dogging", according to the fact that the YMCA and the UCS get funds from more than one source. The "double-dogging" is presented to "organized labor" and to the community as an illustration of the "scandalous" ploys into which these organizations have fallen. Mr. Hockley imputes sinister motives to the small UCS staff who control not only these agencies, but ALL other volunteer agencies. These are nonsensical charges.

What is "double-dipping"? — If it is receiving funds from two sources, then almost every agency in the City, the Red Cross, the "Y", the Red Cross, the NDP Party and the Citizens Bureau depend for their existences on the resources — money, labor, and support — of many persons. No organization expecting to remain viable can survive for long without broad support. This is why, each year, the UCS campaigns on behalf of its member agencies.

The quality of community life depends on the existence of strong, active organizations, which serve everyone — rich and poor, young and old, workers and unemployed. To test the worth of these organizations, weakens the whole community. I sincerely hope that the objective of these correspondents. However, the drift of their remarks leads me to suspect both their aims, and motives.

Mr. Hockley claims that he is a supporter of the "Y", yet launches scurrilous attacks on the local organization. This seems grossly inconsistent.

Mr. Reilly condemns the UCS because it has only one official "labor" representative on its Board and demands, using a threat of legal action as a weapon, that more Labor people be taken on the Board. It seems strange to me, however, that in the best of my knowledge, Mr. Reilly has never communicated these concerns to the UCS. Why has he not come forward with them? Why has he waited until a few weeks before an election to become a critic? Are there no other issues around which he can rally political support? Has he considered the possible destructive consequences of this thinly-veiled political gamesplaying?

I think I speak for most of my friends, who have worked in the Agencies or in the UCS. These hard-working people devote time and effort and energy to develop effective programs which serve their fellow citizens solely for the satisfaction of the task. They are concerned about their community, and they are doing something concrete to build and develop it. Your attacks undercut these people. If you are really concerned about your organizations, join them and start working for whatever it is you think needs improvement.

Parking Situation in Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I noticed a news item in one of your recent issues regarding increased parking fees in the downtown area and hadn't the news confirmed when I parked on one of the streets with the new heads on Saturday last. At that time I received 15 minutes of parking for 5 cents when, until now I had obtained 30 minutes for the same money — a 100 percent increase!

Although the merchants tell you they will pay the charge for parking, they applies if you park in one of the nonetered parking lots which I believe are not always close to where you want to be and neither are there always spaces available in such lots.

Since by accepting the charges for parking in municipal lots, these merchants have acknowledged the fact that it is they who benefit from the provison of parking space, it is my opinion that they should absorb the whole cost of parking. At the present time the same way that merchants in the adjacent malls and plazas do, by bulk levy on their sales or in some other suitable manner.

Why people should pay a levy for the privilege of parking at a shopping downtown is beyond my knowledge, but this is what doing really, is subsidizing these merchants to provide parking for their customers and then pay a fine, if we exceed the time limit, for shopping in their stores where we pay just as high a price for merchandise as we do in an air-conditioned mall which provides parking for their customers.

If the parking authority for the City of Belleville needs more money for their operations let them get it from those who profit, by increasing business taxes on the downtown merchants, and not from the poor expense of parking meters purposely placed, where people would probably get more business.

The Perils Of Sunday Driving

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Spring sunshine, beckons us to the countryside, to relax and enjoy the Sunday drives — and the worst of the traffic problems. Some of us who live between Rosemore and Carrying Place, have a short city journey to appreciate the pleasant drive, and I don't mind a bit when I reach the view — and the road — it's "sharing" — and there's the rub that raises my temper to boiling point and causes my pressure to mimic figures — it's impossible to share the road with these motorized menaces who drive along their countryside in their cars, totally oblivious of such trifles as centre road lines, speed limits, other motorists, pedestrians and most of all the long line of traffic crawling behind.

County and township residents are taxed to maintain these roads, and have the right to have lost the right to property values, to have their homes, their breezeways and living room windows, surely we have the right to drive at the posted speed limit when necessity forces us to drive on the country roads? I cannot believe it is necessary to drive at 10, 15 mph — so a 50 mph zone — is ridiculous in the countryside.

If they really must drive that long and hard, couldn't they pull off onto the shoulder while they stare, thus allowing other motorists to pass? Or must they drive in to the city about 4 p.m. Sunday at a maximum speed of 25 — and spend most of the way at 12-25 mph and then wonder why there is so much since at least a dozen cars preceded me and I was unable to predict safe passage — or count on being able to cut in between the cars creeping along bumper to bumper. The only time I was able to drive the legal limit was when I reached Zwicks Island at which point cars were speeded up and indeed exceeded the legal limit.

The impatient country resident who speeds driving at 15 mph over 10-15 minutes, will really be to blame when the inevitable happens and a shocking accident caused by road-hogs who refuse to bridge the flow of traffic, weave from right shoulder to the left side of the centre line, brake suddenly, tail-gate and stare everywhere but at the road. This exercise in frustration will eventually cause a driver to become irate to the point of losing control and causing injury and perhaps even death.

MARION ANDREWS

Election and Issue of Leadership

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Mr. Stanfield claims the election is all about leadership, a majority in the house and a 60-day wage and price freeze.

On the subject of leadership it is fair to judge leaders in the light of how they act when the chips are down.

In this regard Mr. Stanfield does not come out too well. Remember when the FLQ crisis threatened Canada? Here some positive and immediate leadership and action was necessary. Mr. Trudeau came through by implementing the Emergency Measures Act, unpopular though it might have been to some.

How did Mr. Stanfield react to this crisis? By decrying Prime Minister's action, as this seemed the most public thing to do at the time. What he would have done in those circumstances he was careful not to say.

The Conservative "cowboy" now says he must have a majority if he is elected. Well, how did the Tories react when they did have a big majority in the house? Under the old "clear" rule, whenever they ran up a figure of over 654,000 unemployed, with little hesitancy pressure to cooperate and stood the country on its ear less than five years with its policies.

The Tories masquerade under the banner of Progressive, by this means forward. So, Mr. Stanfield, I will have the Conservative Party and the Citizens Bureau depend for their existences on the resources — money, labor, and support — of many persons. No organization expecting to remain viable can survive for long without broad support. This is why, each year, the UCS campaigns on behalf of its member agencies.

Citizenship

Letter in The Ottawa Journal

The Journal's headline (Apr. 29) reads "Only a few left out 'British subject' status." If this is correct, a great deal will have been designated by Parliament and disappointed of "Mr. M. Pearson's" intentions.

I resent being designated English — non-British subject, English (which I am not). I would regret being deprived even officially of my old British subject status, for I resent having to discover at least Canada does, Mark Orkin knows who I am.

Microwave Ovens May Be Checked

TORONTO (CP) — The health ministry is considering legislation to regulate the operation of microwave ovens, the legislature was told Monday.

John Clement, minister of consumer relations, told Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) that the matter is not in his jurisdiction, but Health Minister Frank Miller is contemplating such legislation.

Mr. Newman raised the matter during the question period, saying that the United States Food and Drug Administration recently issued a warning that some of the ovens emit radiation.

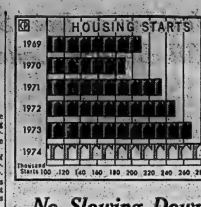
Change Asked

Eddie Sargent introduced a private member's bill Monday in the legislature to rename the new regional municipality of Durham as Peel after the late Leslie Frost, former premier of Ontario.

Mr. Sargent, who represents Grey-Bruce, said the bill would remove the confusion that exists between regional Durham, east of Toronto, and the town of Durham in southwestern Ontario.

Vote Ordered

SUDBURY (CP) — Members of the Northern Ontario Newspaper Guild vote June 24 on whether to decertify the guild as bargaining agent for editorial and other employees at The Star.



The vote was ordered by the Ontario Labor Relations Board after it received a petition from Star employees.

The newspaper, only daily paper here, has not published since guild members went on strike April 17. The guild, certified as bargaining agent at the paper in April, 1973, had been bargaining for its first contract.

Protest

TORONTO (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) has accused the province of showing a "complete disregard" for the welfare of its employees in recent amendments to the Public Service Superannuation Act.

Ronald Morse, CSAO general manager, said Monday in a news release the government did not implement any of the union's pension proposals outlined in a brief last December.

No Slowing Down

Figures released by the central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the first quarter of 1974 show the number of housing starts in Canada were running at an annual rate of 288,200. This is despite the fact that mortgage interest rates have risen about two per cent in the last year. The number of housing starts in 1973 was 209,339. (CP Newsmap)

Housing Starts Drop Is Called 'Minuscule'

TORONTO (CP) — Housing Minister Sidney Handleman said Monday that housing starts in Ontario dropped by about 800 units in May but that this was only a "minuscule" amount.

He said the province would "more than make up for that when we get our housing action program started." He hoped to announce "very soon" the first of a bevy of contracts with municipalities and private industry to get the program under way.

Mr. Lewis said latest figures from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) indicate that the seasonally-adjusted rate of housing for Ontario will be down to 90,375 units in 1974 compared with 115,536 units in 1973.

Mr. Handleman said the CMHC figures indicate that the drop for May was about 800 units, and he blamed the drop on the fact builders were waiting for government plans on the housing action program.

Child at Browndale Costs $21,800 a Year

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller refused Monday to reveal details of financial transactions between the government and Browndale Ontario—a treatment centre for mentally disturbed children.

He told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that it would not be appropriate to table copies of the contracts between Browndale and the ministry of health.

He did say that the organization operates on a per-diem-per-patient basis. The basic cost in the province was $59.25 a day for each patient.

Mr. Miller said that cost is about midway between the highest and lowest per diem rates paid to private operations.

Browndale is a non-profit organization taking care of about 300 children, the minister said.

He said it is difficult to compare the various rates paid to private organizations because the types of treatment differ.

Published reports earlier indicated that Browndale received about $6.5 million a year from the province for its health care services.

May Extend Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The government is considering renewing the present milk incentive program that expires at the end of the month, Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Monday.

Three Parties Contest All Ontario Seats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The three major parties fielded full slates as 394 candidates filed nomination papers for the 88 seats in Ontario—considered by many to be the pivotal province in the July 8 federal election.

There were 340 candidates when the Progressive Conservatives eroded the Liberals' hold on the province in the 1972 general election.

The Conservatives lacked a full slate in 1972 when they chose not to oppose former speaker Lucien Lamoureux in Stormont-Dundas.

Mr. Lamoureux, who was originally elected as a Liberal, announced his retirement before this election.

The Social Credit party, which contested 25 seats in Ontario in 1972, has 39 candidates in the running this election.

The Communist Party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist) nominated 17 candidates and the Communist Party of Canada had 33 standard bearers in Ontario.

A total of 54 women entered the race this time compared with 20 in the last election.

The New Democratic Party is running 16 women candidates in Ontario, more than the Liberals—eight—and Conservatives—three—combined.

Nearly half—16—of the Marxist-Leninist candidates are women and the Communists have eight women in the running.

The Conservatives captured 40 Ontario seats in the last election with the Liberals winning 36 including 11 held by cabinet ministers in the last House. The NDP won 11 and Mr. Lamoureux was the lone independent.

Ontario has three national party leaders running, including David Lewis of the NDP who was York South in 1972 with a plurality of 4,674 votes.

The others are Harold S. Bains of the Marxist-Leninists, who will try to unseat Liberal Attorney Minister Michael Sharp who captured Toronto Spadina by 1,376 votes in 1972, and Communist leader William Kashban who is running in Toronto Trinity held by 194 votes last election by Conservative Paul Hellyer.

Duff Roblin, the former Conservative premier of Manitoba, is opposing Slate Secretary Hugh Faulkner in Peterborough, and Fern Guindon, who resigned as Ontario labor minister, is seeking the Stormont-Dundas seat.

Flora MacDonald is the only woman seeking re-election, and she is being opposed in Kingston and the Islands by two Queen's University teachers.

Other cabinet ministers seeking re-election include Eugene Whelan, agriculture; Essex-Windsor; John Munro, labor, Hamilton East; John Turner, finance, Ottawa Carleton; Robert Andras, manpower and immigration, Port Arthur; Alastair Gillespie, trade, Toronto Etobicoke; Stanley Haidasz, minister of state responsible for multiculturalism, Toronto Parkdale; Donald S. Macdonald, energy, Toronto Rosedale, and Herb Gray, consumer and corporate affairs, Windsor West.

Transit, Milk Policy Topics

By DAVE BLAIKIE
The CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Trudeau announced a multi-million-dollar urban transit program Monday and New Democrat Leader David Lewis gave moral support to economically-pressed dairy farmers as national political leaders began the third-last week of the July 8 federal election campaign.

Mr. Trudeau, addressing an enthusiastic outdoor "rally" of several thousand in Toronto, announced details of the Liberal transportation program, promising if re-elected to spend $775 million to $300 million over the next five years to improve urban transportation systems in large centres such as Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. Lewis, meanwhile, flew to Hazelton, Ont., where he told dairy farmers they are entitled to $18 a hundredweight for industrial milk. They now are guaranteed $8.50 but say they are losing money and may be forced to abandon their farms if prices don't go up.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield took Monday off after completing a trip last week through more than 30 southern Ontario ridings. Today he is in Victoria and Vancouver.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette completed a two-day Maritime visit Monday with an open-line radio appearance in Moncton, N.B., and a news conference in Halifax.

He told listeners in Moncton that the Conservative prices-and-income proposal will not cure inflation. Some other way must be found to increase consumer purchasing power.

He suggested a 25-per-cent retail discount program financed by the government through the Bank of Canada. Under such a plan, the government would reimburse retailers 25 per cent of their costs and prices would be lowered accordingly for consumers.

The prime minister returned to Ottawa after visiting a shipping centre in North Bay and held an evening dinner for ministers attending the NATO conference.

Mr. Lewis flew to the heart of Social Credit country Monday after his stop in Hawkesbury. In a brief visit to Temiscamingue, Que., in the home riding of Mr. Caouette, the NDP leader toured the Tembec paper plant and spoke to a small audience at a local union hall.

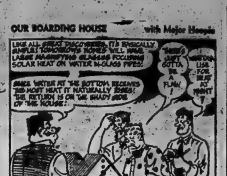
Canada Still Helps Supply Arms for South Vietnam

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canadian and United States officials have confirmed that they are continuing to help Canadian companies ship war and war-related materials to South Vietnam.

The newspaper cites one case in which a federal industry, trade and commercial official offered to help a Montreal firm persuade its consignment through the U.S. to avoid "difficulties that can arise when a Canadian company is asked to bid on a U.S. defence requirement that is to be delivered to Southeast Asia."

It quotes the official, A. D. Hadley, as saying in a letter dated Feb. 21, 1972:

"The difficulties occur because Canadian law requires that an export permit be granted for shipment of defence material to such countries, and in some instances will not be issued.



"For several years this problem has been recognized and the U.S. defence department has instructed its procurement officers that Canadian firms should not be asked to make such shipments.

"Alternative shipping instructions are available from the U.S. Defence Contract Administration Services Office (DCASO) in Ottawa.

"Should your company be asked to respond to such a solicitation, please advise this office and we will endeavor to have the consignment point changed."

The Globe and Mail notes that at the height of the U.S. military involvement in Vietnam, millions of dollars worth of Canadian war materials were shipped through the U.S. to South Vietnam and that Canadian cabinet ministers always disclaimed any responsibility for their ultimate destination.

But it quotes Canadian and U.S. officials as saying Monday the same practice prevails now that the U.S. has ended its military involvement.

World-wide Beef Surplus Will Benefit Consumers

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers are likely to benefit from a worldwide beef surplus during the next two to four years, a spokesman for the Ontario Beef Improvement Association predicted Monday.

"Increased numbers of calves from expanded herds are heading to reach the market, said Gordon Hadley, the association's secretary-manager, in an interview.

"But an imminent threat to cattle producers, said Mr. Hadley, is the possibility that United States cattle—banned for export because they had DES in their systems—may once again be permitted to enter the Canadian market, provided they are certified as being free of the hormone by a U.S. government inspector.

Dave Murray, a provincial agriculture ministry representative at Arthur, Ont., said Monday the threat of U.S. cattle hitting Canadian markets coupled with unusually heavy cattle runs at Ontario stockyards may foreshadow a bleak year for the industry.

Mr. Murray said prices at the Saskatchewan wheat pool stockyards in Talbotville, Ont., were down substantially during the weekend.

"The price decrease was caused by the large number of cattle brought in. Because of it, cattlemen are starting to panic here."

Mr. Hadley said the average weekly run of slaughter cattle at the Toronto public stockyards during 1973 was 8,124 head.

By comparison, 10,494 head were traded last week, 9,126 the week before and 8,598 the previous week, he said.

The over-all average for the last seven weeks at Toronto is 9,753, compared with an average of 8,600 head during the same period in 1973, Mr. Hadley said. The pattern was roughly the same for the 65 to 70 auction sales across the province.

"Cattlemen here now receive between $47 and $49 per hundredweight," Mr. Hadley said.

Top Men Light-fingered Like Ordinary Tourists

BONN (Reuter) — When the annual communique has been signed and the great men depart it is the time to expect the unexpected.

Bonnese silver, irreplaceable porcelain, antique court bonds and other valuables, vases and cutlery have all been missing after the heads of state have gone.

The world owns this distinction of one of the best-kept diplomatic secrets in Bonn when Harold Heinzelmeier von Harnbeck, chief of protocol for the outside Dean, Schloss Gymnich, has had everything that's not in use by the West German government to accommodate and catalogued as a deterrent to any future visitors.

Herr Heinzelmeier, who has been in charge of the host-type diplomatic security in Bonn since 1949, has only on a bigger scale, he views his house philosophically. He has had everything that's not in use by the West German government to accommodate and catalogued as a deterrent to any future visitors.

The 27-year-old bohleman, who used to be in advertising, has been in charge of the host-type diplomatic security in Bonn since 1949, has only on a bigger scale, he views his house philosophically. He has had everything that's not in use by the West German government to accommodate and catalogued as a deterrent to any future visitors.

The heavy inherited the 56-room Schloss Gymnich as a wedding present of nearly 180-century construction from an aunt, Countess Viktoria of Wolf-Metternich.

It was a Luftwaffe combat wing headquarters and after the war Allied troops occupied it.

Mother's Helper

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (CP) — Malcolm Wall, 22 months, decided to do some cleaning at her home here. First she threw her toys out a bedroom window, then her mother's makeup and jewelry and finally Mrs. Wall's purse containing $7 (NZ). When Mrs. Wall discovered Natasha's handiwork an hour later, the money was gone.

ILLITERACY RATE HIGH

LONDON (CP) — Two million persons in Britain are either totally illiterate or lack sufficient reading ability to decipher warnings on medicine bottles or simple recipes, says a newly-issued report by a national welfare association. It says seven per cent of 100 children leave school unable to read or write.

High Price of Steak Hasn't Changed Diet

PORT HARDY, B.C. (CP) — The high price of rolled rump roast or rib steak of the local supermarket hasn't changed the eating habits of Ron Valdock.

Valdock gets all the meat he can eat for just $2—the price of his glass fibre boating hou—and some dogged determination as he stalks game around this community on the northern end of Vancouver Island.

During the last bow-hunting season, which ran from August to December, the 33-year-old ex-fisherman got two deer, keeping him and his family in venison over the winter and spring.

Being a successful bow hunter takes more than the ability to shoot an arrow accurately, said Valdock. It also takes the willingness and ability to stalk an animal, sometimes for hours.

"When you're out in the woods, you're after a live animal," he said. "The whole point in bow hunting is stalking and getting close."

The successful bow hunter always marks his quarry within 40 or 50 yards, Valdock said, and he personally gets within 20 yards before loosing his arrow.

The hunter believes bow shooting is more humane than using a rifle.

"A bullet takes in powder and other chemicals that cause a wound to fester, but a razor-sharp arrowhead produces a clean wound. So if an animal did get away, it would be more likely to live."

The Valdock soldier that he has never had a wounded animal escape.

There are three rules to bow hunting, Valdock said. Keep concealed, keep silent after a hit—hour or two—and have two tips for the beginning bow hunter—avoid those burning bush' patches in the morning the woods and remember that when you shoot an arrow you have to pick it out by hand.

FULL DRESS FOR PATRONS

LONDON (CP) — Pete Yorkshire rugby fans in London for a championship game turned up without ties at a topless restaurant. They were asked to leave by the manager who later said that "while the maitresses might not wear very much we do insist that our patrons be properly dressed." One of the four, invited in a spending diversion, appealed in court and was conditionally discharged.

JEAN ELLIS

Jean Ellis Is Campaign Veteran

The word "politics" never came up when she and Jack Ellis were first married, says Jean Ellis.

"It's all been a surprise," she says.

The political life of the Ellis began when the pair, working in the garden of the Palmer Road home they'd built themselves, were approached by a Sidney Township councilman.

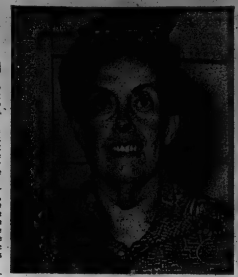
That was more than 20 years ago, and now, after terms on Sidney and Belleville council, two terms as Mayor of Belleville and a brief term as Member of Parliament (Progressive Conservative) for the riding of Hastings, the Ellis' are seeking Jack's election again.

In the intervening years, there have been three children — Faye, 22, now married, Connie, 20, and Ray 14 — and a life for Jean Ellis much like that of any housewife. Once a medical stenographer, she has devoted herself to "looking after the house and the garden and the kids."

A typical housewife except that Mrs. Ellis admits to working extra hard at keeping things "smooth" at home to make life easier for her busy husband.



In addition, there have been the public appearances that go along with campaigning and elected office, a task she has found "tremendously pleasant" because of the fascinating people she meets.

She indulges her own interests — swimming, bowling, hiking and reading — in spare time. Volunteer work — like the hospital auxiliary, church work and membership in the Women's Council of the Progressive Conservative Association — also claims some of her time.

The current campaign — which just slightly steps up the pace of life for the Ellis' — comes easily for Jean Ellis, by now a veteran. But she says she's had to "learn as we went along" — gaining insight with each campaign.

Among the things she says she's learned are patience and a readiness for any last-minute contingency and, most of all, an awareness of the "humanness" of all people.

"It's a most enjoyable life," she adds.

Quiet Women

Marjorie Walker, Volunteer

The Cheshire Home for the handicapped will officially open June 19 and Marjorie Walker, a volunteer worker, is already pleased with how well the home is working.

Mrs. Walker says volunteer work "will be a lifetime thing for me." She was struck with polio 20 years ago and is confined to a wheelchair herself.

"I think this home is wonderful. There should be thousands of them in the world. I has a very homey atmosphere because it is so different from a hospital," she said.

At one point in her life, Mrs. Walker wanted to be a nurse but circumstances caused her to end her schooling at grade 10.

"It just comes natural I guess," Mrs. Walker laughed and added that she had no training for her work. She works ai day and sometimes on into the evening.

Mrs. Walker joined the Quinte Easy Rollers (QER) last year. It is a club for handicapped people from Belleville and Trenton.

"They have meetings on Tuesdays. There is free bowling for us at the Trenton base and," she added, "until I joined I hadn't been bowling in twenty-seven years. I really enjoy it, there is so much we can do there."

Mrs. Walker met Mr. and Mrs. Alec Cunningham at a meeting of QER. When she heard about their son, paralyzed from the shoulders down, she told the couple if she could be of service to let her know. They contacted her a year ago to help care for Sandy.

"Sandy's parents were afraid of the difference in our ages, he is twenty-one and I am fourty-four, but we took an instant liking to each other."

"We all get along well together here," Mrs. Walker said, "they are a great group of people." She also said, "there is always something to do and all of the residents have a little job to do."

Mrs. Walker smiled as she declared, "I love people, that is my only hobby. I want to get involved with handicapped people."

Universal Day Care 'Prohibitively Expensive'

TORONTO (CP) — The government has ruled out a free province-wide universal day-care service as prohibitively expensive, Margaret Birch, social development secretary, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Birch told the legislature the government will take a new direction in day-care services to make such services available to as many persons as possible.

A universal system would cost as much as $1 billion. In addition, such a system did not have the flexibility to give parents a choice of the type of care their children received.

She announced a policy shift to reduce red tape, ease present day-care centre regulations and provide an extra $15 million this year for capital grants and additional to low-income families for day-care services.

In a statement read in the legislature, Mrs. Birch said grants will be available for non-profit groups that wish to expand or establish day-care facilities.

The grants were not intended for large building programs, but for renovation of existing facilities.

Of the extra $15 million available this year, about $10 million will go for capital grantsand $5 million for low-income families.

Mrs. Birch said aid for low-income g rops likely will involve having the family select the day-care centre and the government paying all or part of the fees directly to the centre.

'Dumping Grounds' No Longer the Answer

Many [illegible] Canadians [illegible] institutions" from the other [illegible] Confederation, they are usually referred to [illegible] as "homes" or "hospitals" and their inmates are [illegible] as "residents."

Psychologists say that in fact the word "asylum" is [illegible] to describe a modern mental problem. Self - sufficiency [illegible] are changing.

The Canadian Press

Once, they were "put away" — sent to an institution, for society knew nothing else to do with them.

They were the mentally retarded, persons with arrested development, and mental institutions were designed as places where they could be locked away.

Psychologists now say confinement is not the answer, that too often institutions serve merely as "dumping grounds for society."

They say the vast majority of those afflicted — can be — trained to become useful citizens, to find and hold jobs, to be taxpayers and to marry. Eighty-five per cent of the 300,000 Canadians so handicapped are listed as mildly retarded, considered as educable or trainable.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press for Mental Retardation, Week May 13-18 shows that government and the public, concerned by a major social problem that is neither illness nor disease, are swinging to the view that a new approach is needed.

To the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded (CAMR), the new approach is obvious: Bring the mentally retarded into the community.

The CAMR next week is spurring a drive for $7.4 million in public contributions to finance community-minded cure.

The association is composed of voluntary workers, many of them parents of retarded children, and professionals. It has nine provincial organizations—Newfoundland is an associate member—and 360 local branches.

For 25 years the association has campaigned for public support, often encountering age-old prejudice.

The first battle was to provide education for the retarded, and local associations set to build their own schools. But now school boards have accepted this responsibility almost everywhere.

Today, the associations campaign to set up sheltered workshops and also community residences for those who can no longer live at home.

Most provinces, the CP survey shows, are moving in that direction.

British Columbia has three institutions housing about 1,800 mentally retarded patients. About 4,000 are cared for in community programs.

Dalton Murphy, executive secretary of the B.C. Association for the Mentally Retarded, said in an interview his organization and the provincial government seek to decentralize care for the retarded. Residential and family-support services are being established in many communities. B.C. has 30 sheltered workshops from which trainees are moved into active work.

Alberta also has large institutions—two at Red Deer and Ponoka. In Edmonton there also are small centres for retarded persons with families. Bryden Hall is the Alberta Association for Children Retarded and there is a "definite move for the integration of these people into the community."

For the first time in Canada, the province of Ontario retarded kids society—a project known as Comprehensive Community Services Project (ComServ)—is being tested in Kingston.

The provincial government budgeted $200,000 to start the Kingston program, the ultimate goal of which is to have retarded persons living in normal lives in homes in the community, with people, just getting under way, will make available to the handicapped patterns and services as close as possible to the norms of everyday living.

Saskatchewan also has provincial authorities as being in the process of transition from the concept of housing the mentally retarded in large institutions to maintaining them in small centres.

It has 10 family dwellings, each housing five residents, and 14 sheltered workshops. Where possible, handicapped are put directly into industrial employment and the number of residents in the two large institutions has been cut to fewer than 1,200 so far this year from about 1,400 last year.

Manitoba also is moving from the concept of institutional care for its handicapped residents. In early 1976, there was only one community residence but there will be 30 by the end of 1974. There also are 16 sheltered workshops and CAMR officials said more community effort is needed in this field.

Two of the community residences are operated by Helen Steinkopf, widow of Mailand Steinkopf, a minister in the Duff Roblin Progressive Conservative government.

Nearly 100 sheltered workshops have been established in Ontario, six of them in Toronto where, as in other shops, trainees learn crafts and other skills.

So far, Ontario associations have opened 37 small, homelike residences in their own communities.

Now the CAMR concentrates on opening small residences that blend with the area, housing only four to six residents.

The Quebec Association for the Mentally Retarded assumes the main responsibility in Quebec for providing services to the mentally handicapped. The provincial department of education has set up special classes in schools.

What is described as the first work station in Canada, in a semi-sheltered environment, opened recently in Montreal. It is called Dan's Fashions.

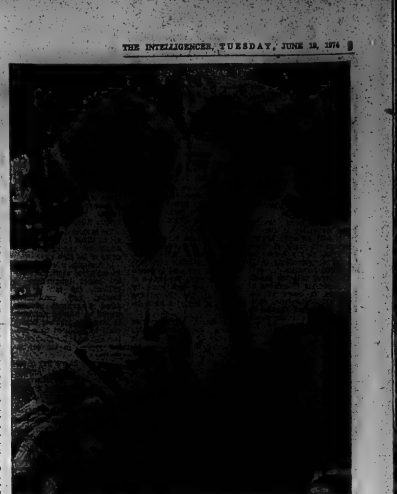
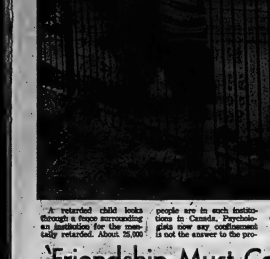
There also are group homes each housing between 50 and 150 residents over the age of 19 and four training centres for severely retarded children under 16. Vocational and life-support skills are taught in 19 adult services centres, similar to sheltered workshops.



New Brunswick cares for about 350 retarded persons in homes or homes and others in special wards in provincial hospitals.

The province also has three community residences, each housing eight to 10 residents, and plans a fourth.



The main institutional unit is in Prince Edward Island is in Charlottetown where a hospital ward houses about 30 severe cases. There also is a 21-bed hospital for young children and 20 more patients going on holiday—may leave their sheltered child. A number of foster homes also operates and there are five sheltered workshops.

In Newfoundland, the mentally retarded are cared for in two government homes in St. John's. About 30 retarded children have been placed in foster homes.

The Newfoundland Association for the Help of Retarded Children, an associate member but not an affiliate of the CAMR, started 19 schools, each housing five residents, and 14 sheltered workshops. Where possible, handicapped are put directly into industrial employment and

'Friendship Must Come First'

Many [illegible] boys need a friend, a Big Brother, to help them through life. So do mentally retarded young adults seeking a place in society.

Here, in the text of three stories on mental retardation, the Citizen Advocacy movement is described.

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

More than anything else, say experts on mental retardation, the mentally retarded young adult trying to make his own way in society needs a friend he can trust implicitly.

Citizen Advocacy, a program of the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded (CAMR), says most retarded person can be integrated into the mainstream of life, given the right understanding and help.

Unpaid volunteers, known as advocates, are paired with mentally retarded adults attempting to make their own way in community life. The pairing is on a person-to-person basis and none of the advocates is a professional social worker.

The CAMR describes the program as "a continuing buddy system for the retarded from young adulthood on." No such "match" would necessarily be for life—"only in rare cases will an MR citizen have the same advocate to call on from birth to the association.

Citizen Advocacy is similar to the Big Brother movement under which a fatherless boy has an adult "pal" to help him over the obstacles of life but the CAMR says the need of a mentally retarded person is even greater.

Dr. Wolf Wolfensberger, a psychologist and authority on mental retardation, which afflicts 650,000 Canadians and millions more throughout the world, started the program in Nebraska in 1968. It now is in operation in New Brunswick and Ontario and is spreading across Canada.

Professional help is needed to ensure suitable pairings and to train volunteers, says the CAMR.

Betty Anne Gibbs of the National Institute on Mental Retardation said in a Toronto interview:

"This helps both non-retarded and retarded people. There are many people whose lives basically are lonely and young people who aren't married yet who really give of themselves, want to give of themselves in some more direct relationship than in a service club.

"Ultimately every community would have an office in which these volunteers can match up with a handicapped person. He's just a friend. But that friendship grows."

Institute Director Dr. G. Allan Roeher, outlining what he called the "exciting concept," said the plan in a given case might mean the difference between whether a mentally retarded young man or woman is able to survive in open society or forced to return to an institution.

"It is important to keep in mind that of the so-called retarded, about 85 per cent are mild," said Dr. Roeher. "They are people that, given an opportunity from early age, will end up getting married and working.

"They may need some kind of support. They may need a friend at times. Their judgment may not be good when it comes to financial and legal and budgetary issues, but they're not people you wouldn't recognize them.

"But we must provide protection—legal, but a friend, but personal.

"You can provide schooling, you can provide sheltered work and you can provide residence and certain things to them, but you must also provide protection."

Dr. Roeher said provincial governments increasingly are taking over the financial burden of programs to train mentally retarded persons into useful members of society but the "real leadership is still with the voluntary movement."

The public attitude towards the affliction of mental retardation has changed dramatically in the last 15 years, said Dr. Roeher.

"It is the same attitude we have towards the poor—sympathy.

"If we press society enough, they agree to increasing their bill to give support to the poor because they need help. It takes a more sophisticated approach to end poverty in terms of helping them to help themselves instead of keeping them down.

"That's exactly the attitude society moves from."

"First of all, rejecting the retarded, pushing them off, the farther you could push them off into some distant, remote institution you sort of satisfied yourself that you had done the right thing.

"Then, as you understood that this wasn't quite right, that they were still maltreated, then society was sympathetic and said, 'Oh, disabled person's allowance, etc.

"When society clearly sees there are alternatives, when we point out that this is a citizen with rights, that given equal opportunity he can enjoy his life though he may be different' (there are lots of differences in society we tolerate), once you begin society around to that point, they react very positively.

"Once you overcome fear and prejudice and ignorance through visible contact, you find that society's attitude changes. . . . "If the public is prepared to listen to fact, the solution to mental retardation is not too far away. There is no shortage of government can do. The miracle is with society."

Successful Living

Turmoil Hard to Take

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I was interested in your column about Art Linkletter and being "in love" or being "in like". I believe most young couples (teen-agers) don't know the difference between loving and liking. We brought this up in class the other day, and it was very interesting.

My parents split when I was nine and now it is hurting me bad. I am starting to go out with guys and when a fellow kisses me I just about cry. How can I get over it?

My parents are both living with other people. When I talked to my Mom about it I felt she didn't understand. She says it is all in life but she did say I really had no father.

Sixteen.

Dear Sixteen: How wonderful that your teacher brought up the subject of like-or-love! This set you to thinking about your own emotional responses. didn't it?

Naturally any contact with a boy stirs you emotionally. If you were not attracted to the other sex then I would think there was something wrong. But when your home situation has caused you to be confused and frightened, the turmoil inside can be mighty hard to take.

Learning to talk this out with that wonderful teacher or a sympathetic aunt or friend helps. Cry if you have to, but get it out.

Dear Doris: My girl has just turned 11 and wants to start wearing a bra. I want to say it is far too soon for her to be acting so grown up. It looks artificial and in bad taste. What do you think?

Good Taste or Bad

Dear Taste: Many a little girl wants to be a big girl too soon. And there are those who think of the wearing of bright nail enamel as the height of good grooming.

But colored fingertips could serve to call attention to unbecoming unkempt hands — which do nothing for a girl's appearance. One father commented, "Nail polish She doesn't even bother to wash her hands clean yet!"

First things first. It takes a surprising five minutes soaping under a running tap to get the degree of cleanliness he's demanding.

Teach your girl to use warm water and a nail brush on her hands; and to scrub.

A young girl can wait a long time to wear nail enamel. If her hands are clean and well manicured she may well postpone the artificial trimmings. Then start with colorless or pale enamel. Don't rush it.

Dear Khaky: I have been to adult-education classes, church council get-togethers, and group dances, company parties, summer resorts, and I've never been in a place you can think of. Dear Quester: Belching is considered a social grace in some countries. In the United States it's not a difficult trick to master. That kid must feel terribly inadequate if the only way he can get people to notice him is to belch. I feel sorry for him.

Don't bother looking for the answer. I'll be at home with a good book—not completely satisfied, but a lot less frustrated.—H.G. of Wis.

Housing Crisis Is Worldwide

LONDON (Reuter) — "All I want is a room somewhere." Oh, wouldn't it be lovely, says the song, echoing the longing of all the world's homeless.

The lyrics sum up a universal need for shelter, for a piece of one's own territory, expressed nowadays in the 3-to-2-Communist - induced world by a growing demand for private property.

But this trend towards home ownership is simultaneous with an acute housing shortage in many of these countries, says a survey by Reuter correspondents in 18 developed countries.

Compared with the appalling conditions of millions of homeless in many of the world's underdeveloped countries, the crisis-all situation in the wealthier countries seems modestly hopeful. Yet many live in shanties amid prosperity.

The survey shows that while governments take action to try to reduce the housing shortage, they are seemingly powerless to curb a rise in dwelling prices.

Fears about the rapid reduction in the value of money make people feel that the safest investment is in bricks and mortar.

For a person wanting to own rather than rent property, the immediate problem is to raise money — not even if a loan or mortgage is obtained, there is a long-term problem: How to afford the repayments and high interest rates.

In West Germany, a striking worker is do-it-yourself building. Large numbers of would-be homeless have building workers at weekends and build their own homes, saving up to 40 per cent.

The country dealt with in the survey are Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Britain, Canada, France, West Germany, Greece, Holland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Mexico, South Africa, Switzerland, Sweden and the United States.

In five of these, at least, there is no over-all housing shortage: Belgium, Greece, Sweden, Switzerland and the U.S.

In Greece, in fact, there is a building boom which the government is trying to curb. Housing loans have been suspended as part of measures to restrict building.

In the U.S., there is no total housing shortage, but the construction of new housing is down, causing economic problems for building and related industries. Many people cannot afford their own homes, especially in some black communities.

In Switzerland, too, there is no over-all shortage and the Swiss have the highest amount of money in the world per head of population—36,000 francs - ($8,350)—invested in home mortgages. Mortgage rates are low.

Yet, even where there is no shortage, there are still homeless. And even where there are not enough homes to go round, luxury flats stand vacant. The homeless cannot afford the rents.

In Britain, high interest rates on loans through house mortgages are becoming almost a bigger issue than rising costs and the shortage of land. The Labor government has become a significant political issue and was beaten in by-elections played in part by bringing the Labor government's record on housing into question last February.

The "problem factor" of the poor homes and the shortage of public works commission of Rio Grande do Sul state assembly.

"Rents take two-thirds of the wages today, which is like the landlord, not the worker. Building materials have gone up by 40 per cent in recent years reducing the chance of buying your own home by half. Only the affluent can dream of buying a home today."

In Israel, single women have been complaining recently at the difficulty in obtaining homes or loan assistance. Some are now banding together to try to improve the situation.

In some countries, like Australia, where 68 per cent of people are home owners, loans are granted only up to certain amounts, depending on the income of the breadwinner. The income of working wives is not taken into consideration.

South African blacks, living and working in the white race are not allowed to buy land in areas designated for whites only. Africans are not allowed to take building loans. They can get loans from government organizations.

Another problem, particularly in parts of Europe, is the large number of homes unfit for habitation, either because of age of lack of amenities.

Belgium has no statistical housing shortage, yet 14 per cent of homes are considered unfit, mainly because of age. In Belgium large families get priority treatment in mortgage; interest rates go down where there are many children.

Latest official estimates in France place the number of "unhealthy homes" or slums at more than four million, with another 9½ million needing restoration. Almost nine per cent of French families live in overcrowded conditions.

In West Germany an estimated two million families live in sub-standard housing. The government's aim is to reaccommodate 300,000 families nearly 5% of the population with the aid of state or local authority financing.

An estimated two to 3½ million Japanese families live in unsuitable housing conditions. The government launched a second five-year program in 1971 with the slogan "a room for each person." It called for the building of 9.5 million houses.

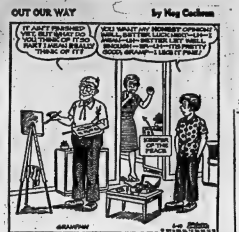
In Argentina, where the Peronist - government has launched a plan to combat an estimated housing shortage of two million units, in a population of 25 million, hundreds of thousands of persons live in shanty towns in the Greater Buenos Aires alone.

Yet in Buenos Aires an estimated 80,000 luxury flats are empty or uncompleted because of the high cost.

In Australia, where there is an estimated shortage of 80,000 homes (population: 13 million), the minister for housing and construction asked a national advisory council on housing standards to investigate whether homes could be produced on a system similar to the production-line method in the car industry.

This may be one way of solving the problem. Another may be in Mexico where the government launched an ambitious low-cost housing program in 1972.

Officials estimate that Mexico, with a population of 56 million, has a shortage of at least 2.5 million urban dwellings. The Workers' Housing Fund Institute (Infonavit), in charge of the housing program, builds the homes some of which cost about $3,018. The demand is so high that applicants must draw lots.



Holland's housing shortage, is caused partly by the post-war population explosion and changing standards of living, exists only for lower-income groups. The Dutch government is moving on plans not only to subsidize building, but also to subsidize people who want to rent.

Italy has a 10-year plan to fight its housing shortage. Most Italians rent rather than buy and the cost of homes has doubled in 13 months.

In Canada, where there is a major housing shortage in big cities, prices have more than doubled in some areas since 1967. To curb speculation, the Ontario government has imposed a 50-per-cent tax on speculative profits from property sales.

Sweden, with no housing shortage and indeed a surplus of empty flats, seems an oasis. Nearly 80 per cent of families live in flats where rents are state-subsidized, taking into account salary, family and special commitments.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran

Psychiatric Study Paints Grim Picture of Arctic Life

TORONTO (CP) — Snan Hunky, an Eskimo resident of the Northwest Territories, recently told a group of federal government officials, with some sadness:

"The Eskimos are no longer the way they used to be. They no longer laugh; they no longer smile."

This view is confirmed by a mental health consultant and treatment team from Toronto's Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, which has just returned from the Arctic.

Members of the team, sponsored by the federal and Northwest Territories governments, included psychiatrists Don Atcheson, Sam Malcolmson and Christine Glenisdenitz- as well as Roth Glenie, who specializes in learning and speech disabilities.

The most visible evidence of the Eskimo's unhappiness, they found, was excessive drinking.

"The Eskimo uses alcohol as a chemical escape from his pressures and problems," Dr. Atcheson said in an interview.

He said the Eskimo has problems assimilating with the white man's customs and language. He is often unemployed and must rely on welfare. Because he feels lost, useless and unworthy, he drinks, thereby multiplying his problems.

In the words of drinking, said Dr. Atcheson, comes violence.

"After heavy drinking, everything becomes unstuck. Aggression is easy to release."

Dr. Atcheson said that recently there has been a wave of physical assault, child abuse, accidents, homicide and suicide. He said in a group of four villages on the Cape Dorset, there were three suicides, which would be equivalent to having 11,000 suicides in Toronto during the same period.

Teams from the Clarke Institute have been visiting the Northwest Territories four times a year since 1966. This allowed government workers which painted a grim picture of mental health in the north.

The mental-health team makes headquarters in the hospital in Frobisher Bay, visiting surrounding settlements. Patients are referred by doctors, nurses, police, social agencies and the school.

Many of the patients were suffering from forms of mental disturbances frequently found in southern Canada, such as manic depression and schizophrenia.

But a distinctive Arctic disease has been named the "Arctic grandmal."

"The patient," said Dr. Atcheson, "becomes mentally disturbed and behaves in a very unpredictable fashion, sometimes to the point of being dangerous to himself and others."

The hypermanic reaction may be touched off, as far as can be determined, by a mild infection or a therapeutic drug.

Dr. Atcheson said not only the Eskimos suffer mental disorders in the North, but non-native people in the north event. Territories are often reluctant to come to them for help.

"When a southern Canadian has a mental breakdown he heads for a southern city for treatment."

Among the whites there was a recurring condition described as "cabin fever" and, typically, the affliction was the wife of a white settler.

The husband is busy with his job and for the most time enjoys hunting, fishing other outdoor activities. But the wife is confined to her home much of the time and responds in the Arctic blackness, silence, isolation and long dark nights with a state of severe depression.

Dr. Brant Brett, an Edmonton psychiatrist, is convinced that as a group, northern whites are less emotionally robust than their southern counterparts.

They suffer more from alcoholism, organic brain disease, and personality disorders, Dr. Brett said. He recommended that white people be "inoculated" to make such should be required to undergo a mental check and counselled if psychiatric casualties be weeded out.

Because of cultural and language difficulties, many Eskimo children are labelled as mentally retarded or suffering with learning disabilities, Mrs. Glenie said.

Some children suspected of being mentally retarded were found to possess forms of poor hearing. The incidences of poor hearing are a result of middle-ear infections which are much more common in the north than elsewhere.

Improved mental health services can make a significant contribution to the well-being of the Eskimo, but much more than that is needed, said Dr. Atcheson.

"In my opinion, unless a regional government can be developed in the northern communities and a reasonable application of our knowledge of the dynamics of cultural change and racial discrimination can be made effective, the major problems of these communities will be ever-increasing violence."

Grand River Flood Inquiry Is Postponed

CAMBRIDGE (CP) — A provincial inquiry into the May 17 flooding of the Grand River was postponed Monday before it began.

Dr. Andrew Booth, chairman, was told more than 250 persons would be present that hearings should be suspended until at least July 9.

He said persons who testify before the inquiry might jeopardize their insurance policies unless evidence is given under oath.

Dr. Booth said he will ask Resources Minister Lee Bernier to put the inquiry under the Public Inquiries Act which would permit witnesses to be subpoenaed and cross examined under oath.

Decision to Use Oil At Lennox Made in '69

TORONTO (CP) — Pierre Genest, legal counsel for Ontario Hydro, said Monday it has been "public knowledge" since December, 1969, that the Lennox generating plant near Kingston will be fuelled by oil rather than coal.

Mr. Genest criticized King Enright and Donald Gold of the Energy Probe utilities consultation for calling for a public investigation at this time into the operations of Hydro as a result of the decision.

Mr. Genest said:

"If these Bobbsey Twins had taken the trouble to ask, instead of a construction kid, but Hydro people, they would have found out that this was a public decision, publicly announced on Dec. 22, 1969."

Error Kept Man in Jail

TORONTO (CP) — Anthony Jones, 19, who hanged himself in jail last April 17, apparently should not have been in prison, a coroner's jury heard Monday.

The records showed that Jones was told he would be released on bond a $200 bond. However, a form made out

David Longstreth, the coroner's clerk who signed the form, signed Judge Michael Cherry told the jury he would not recall the Judge's specific order.

The inquest continues.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 18, 1974.

Cycle Spill Injures Senior Rider

A St. John Ambulance crew encircles Niagara Falls rider Jim Brownell immediately after a 3-motorcycle accident during the annual Ontario Motorcycle Association races at Belleville's Exhibition Raceway Monday. One of the final senior class heats was held up 20 minutes while the track was cleared and Brownell was treated.

Today, Brownell remains in Kingston hospital in stable condition with a compound fracture to the right ankle and an injured arm. Only one of the other riders, Willowdale's Richard Needham, was taken to Belleville hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Hastings System Under Study

More than 80 members of the Ontario Council for Leadership in Educational Administration, 70 of them senior supervisory officials with county boards, attended the meeting. They are in Belleville this week for a chief executive officer's (director's of education) workshop. Completion of interior renovations to the old Queen Alexandra School was a rush to a June 17 deadline to accommodate the workshop that drew executives from as far away as Winnipeg.

Jim Singleton, director of education for Halton county and chairman of the Kellogg Foundation-funded O.C.L.E.A., said the directors are studying the role of the chief executive officer.

"We chose two highly effective administrators with a provincewide reputation, Lincoln county and Hastings county," he said during the public meeting.

Later, Mr. Singleton said that of the five most effective boards in Ontario, Hastings has to be one of them.

Effectiveness he defined in terms of morale and "the ability to cope with their problems."

"Not all boards are equally effective," said Mr. Singleton. "Some because of geography — they have 84 students over a 2,000 square mile radius and there's no way that will ever be effective.

"Some other boards are ineffective because their trustees are politicians. Politicians in the sense that each trustee is trying to score points off the others for each one's own personal gain. They collect headlines. These trustees (in Hastings county) aren't politicians in that sense."

The directors and superintendents in Belleville this week will return to their county boards with the distillation of experience gained in Lincoln and Hastings counties.

"Nothing we do here will benefit Hastings county," said Mr. Singleton. "But what we learn here will benefit other jurisdictions in Ontario."

The OCLEA workshop continues until Thursday evening.

Six Meters Too Close To Corners

Six parking meter spaces in the city's downtown area are too close to street corners or to painted pedestrian crosswalks and meters should be moved.

This is the report of Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie, who some weeks ago was requested by the traffic and light committee to investigate the apparent conflict between certain parking meter zones and regulations which say cars must not be parked within 30 feet of a street corner.

But despite the 30-foot parking regulation at street corners, the city's meter parking bylaw says cars are parked legally if they are entirely within a marked parking space.

The police chief's report was referred to the city manager for consultation with the parking authority regarding meter removal or relocation.

Centennial Damaged

Belleville police are investigating a case in which vandals caused an estimated $150 worth of damage to building at Centennial Secondary School over the weekend.

Custodians at the school employees returned to work to discover that vandals had thrown a rock through the window on top of the automotive mechanics workshop, had broken open a door to the storage shed on the west side of the school and had cracked a window on the school's west side door.

Nothing has been reported missing in the incident.

Service Station Tool Stolen

Thieves stole an air compression impact gun, valued at approximately $150, from Gary Sipe's Shell Service Station on North Front Street some time during the weekend.

Monday morning some of the service station employees returned to the station to discover that the impact gun, which had been left outside, was missing.

Police say that there were no signs of the thieves trying to break into the building.

Voters' List Revisions Under Way

Revising agents began calling Monday on federal voters in Belleville who were missed by enumerators three weeks ago.

Reg. Dunham, Hastings riding returning officer, said there were about 500 names on his list of city residents who were not included in the federal count for the July 8 election voters' list.

Elections Canada procedure calls for revising agents to forward statements collected from missing voters to revising officers for checking. The names then are passed along to the returning officer who must check the names with deputy returning officers in the various polls involved in time for election day.

Enumeration revealed 21,119 voters in the city, 18,320 in the rest of the riding.

Rural enumerators are responsible for their own revisions.

CN Blamed For Holdup

The Canadian National Railways has come in for criticism from an irate motorist who claims he was blocked by a train for 15 minutes at the Carrington Road level crossing while taking his wife to the hospital.

The complaint was made to Mayor Robin Jeffrey and was passed on to Monday's meeting of the city council traffic and light committee.

Members noted that according to regulations, level crossings can not be blocked by trains for more than fifty minutes.

The matter will be taken up with local railway officials.

Executives Meet

Eric Rumacres, left, director of education for the Hastings county board of education, is host this week for a chief executive officer's workshop conducted by the Ontario Council for Leadership in Education Administration. With him last night at the regular board meeting was Jim Singleton, director of education for Halton county and workshop leader. About 20 education executives are observing the operations of public school administration in Hastings county.

Brunelle to Open Cheshire Home

Belleville's Cheshire Home will be officially opened Wednesday at 3 p.m. by Hon. Rene Brunelle, provincial minister of community and social services.

Dr. R.T. Potter, MPP for Hastings and minister of correctional services, will introduce Mr. Brunelle before the ribbon cutting. Also in attendance at the opening of the second Cheshire Home in Canada will be Margaret Birch, provincial secretary for social development and a representative of Rob Basford, federal minister for housing and urban affairs.

Following the ribbon cutting the public is invited to tour the John St. house renovated for a home for handicapped adults. Refreshments will be served in the RCI cafeteria next door to the home.

The Cheshire Home concept was developed after World War II by Group Captain Leonard Cheshire, VC. It offers communal living for handicapped adults, both male and female, in a home atmosphere. In Canada at present, handicapped adults who cannot live at home have to be admitted to institutions for the elderly.

More than 100 Cheshire Homes operate in 20 countries around the world, but Canada has only two, one in Toronto and one in Belleville.

The Belleville home is operated by a board of volunteers from the Quinte district. It is funded by local donations and by government grants. Ten residents will be accommodated when the renovations to the house are completed and the elevator installed.

Vandals Smash Gas Pump

Belleville police are investigating a case of vandalism that occurred during the weekend in which someone smashed a gas pump, valued at approximately $80, and spilt approximately $150 worth of gas on the ground at the Korsan Construction Co. Ltd.'s construction site on University Ave. in Belleville's northeast industrial park.

The case was reported to police Monday morning after company employees returned to work and found the pump destroyed.

$3-million Project
Calvary Temple Plans Senior Citizen Complex

A new church, and a major $3-million senior citizens' housing complex is planned for a 15-acre site on property on Highway 2, just west of Belleville, it was announced by Rev. Charles Benn, Calvary Temple pastor, Monday.

Mr. Benn said Monday the church has been working on the project in conjunction with provincial and federal welfare officials for two years.

Plans are to build the senior citizens' complex in three stages, with the first scheduled for a 1975 construction start. It would contain estimated 100 units in a six or seven storey structure.

"The senior citizens' apartments would be for those who are capable of looking after themselves," said Mr. Benn.

In the project's second stage, the church plans a lodge or hostel development with a common dining room. A minimum of room service will be provided.

The third stage would see construction of a "full fledged nursing home" on the site. Nurses would be on duty 24 hours a day, and a doctor would be on call.

The housing scheme is in its early stages of development. As yet, an architect has not been hired to draw up a preliminary draft of the project.

Mr. Benn estimated total cost could run to $3 million at today's prices. He hopes the entire project could be completed within eight years of a 1977 start date.

Precisely when the project will get under way is dependent on the timing of water and sewer installation in the area.

Partial funding would come from both senior branches of government, Mr. Benn said.

The 15-acre site, bought recently by the church, for $150,000 has 664-foot frontage on Highway 2 and extends down to the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

EVA BAKER

Eva Baker Association Director

One of Hastings county's most important educational officials has finally had her services recognized.

Miss Eva Baker, officer in charge of purchasing for the Hastings county board of education, has been elected a director of the Association of School Business Officials.

Miss Baker, formerly with the Trenton board of education before the amalgamation of board into the county system, was the first woman in Canada to qualify as a Professional Purchasing Agent. She has been in charge of all buying for the county board since its inception in 1969.

Train Whistle Law Moving

Belleville's long awaited bylaw to control train whistling in the city appears finally to be about to get off the ground.

The object of the bylaw would be to eliminate train whistles at protected railway crossings within the city.

But it appears that the bylaw now being drafted will cover only train whistling and not the ringing of locomotive bells.

Monday at the city traffic and light committee meeting a letter from Canadian National Railways was introduced, indicating that the railway would prefer the bylaw cover train whistling only, with reference to the ringing of engine bells being deleted.

The railway said there was a considerable amount of trespassing by pedestrians in the Canniffon Road and Geddes street areas and for this reason it was felt the ringing of engine bells should continue.

CN crossings that would be covered by the whistle control bylaw would be Canniffon Road, Moira Street and Geddes Street.

Protected CPR crossings in the city's south end and east of the Moira River would also be covered by the bylaw.

The usual procedure in evoking out train whistling is that the city passes a bylaw and then makes application to the Railway Transport Committee requesting a covering order.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey recommended that preparation of the bylaw go ahead without reference to engine bells.

It was noted that even with train whistle bylaw, either whistles or bells could still be sounded in an emergency.

Machinery Makers Here

The Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers Association of Canada is holding its annual meeting in the city today.

The Association is a trade association composed of manufacturers whose business is primarily that of manufacturing machinery equipment not including electrical goods.

Stephens-Adamson Division of Allis-Chalmers Canada Ltd. of Belleville will be represented among those in the conveyor manufacturers' section.

Other manufacturing groups represented at the meeting taking place at the Four Seasons Hotel are those from the pulp and paper machinery manufacturers, the packaging machinery manufacturers and the compressed air and gas machinery manufacturers.

Probing Belleville

Five recent graduates from Centennial Secondary School will be spending the summer finding out what are the priorities of people in Belleville. The project which began this week comes about through an Opportunities for Youth grant and is endorsed by the local Chamber of Commerce. Going over the proposed questionaire to be distributed to 1,000 city residents this summer are from left: Drew Gonsolus, Malcolm Jones, Randy Whiteman, Doug Preston and Mark Everard.

Survey to Determine City Needs

Did you ever want to spout out on what this city really needs? Ever want to tell somebody what you think should be done about the downtown area, the harbor or even sidewalks in Belleville?

Well, you'll have a chance to do so this summer as five high school graduates undertake an Opportunities for Youth project called Priorities for People.

The five students undertaking this ten-week project hope to go about this task through questioning a random survey of 1,000 Belleville residents sometime this summer.

Consideration will be given to reaching a broad cross-section of residents of all ages, social and working groups," said Mark Everard, 18, one of the five involved, all graduates this year of Centennial Secondary School.

The other four members of the staff, which began working this week, are Malcolm Jones, 18; Doug Preston, 18; Randy Whiteman, 19 and Drew Gonsolus, 19.

They will be operating out of office space at the Chamber of Commerce on Front Street. The project has been endorsed by the chamber and is financed by a $4,786 federal grant under the Opportunities for Youth program.

The actual contacting of people won't begin until a week or so after the questionnaires have been prepared, which is being done this week. Already five-year teams has compiled a broad list of priorities they hope will get the most response. The list of topics varies from downtown improvement to unsightliness of Belleville through to facilities for recreation and for senior citizens.

The actual method of obtaining this information will involve the use of a city directory so that one occupation or social class won't be overemphasized over another.

From there a student will pay a personal call or interview-survey as Mark prefers to call it, on a resident, explain what they are doing and leave a questionnaire form for them to fill out to be picked up a few days later.

The caller, besides filling out information telling what sex he or she is and the priorities for Belleville, is expected to tell how that problem or priority can best be solved and/or implemented.

From there the written report will be prepared during the final two weeks of the project after all the information has come in. Results will be compiled and published and made available to Belleville residents as well as those who can implement the findings such as the city council.

"We'll concentrate on the municipal level but federal or provincial problems that crop up in this will be useful as this is an election year," said Mark.

While the project already has the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce, it also has the blessing of Mayor Robin Jeffrey, who has told one of the students she was pleased with it.

George Thompson, president of the Chamber of Commerce said he, too, was pleased with the project. "The role of the chamber is changing. It's not trying to get something such as this going for quite a while.

"It's good that the young people can get down to the grass roots because that's what he is thinking, rather than just hear from those who are more outspoken than others," said Mr. Thompson.

Four of the five students involved in the project live in Belleville. The fifth, Randy Whiteman, lives in Stirling.

One of the students involved in the project hopes to enter the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the fall when the test have university aspirations.

Mark Everard hopes to take an electrical engineering course at Wilfrid Laurier University while Malcolm Jones hopes to take a business administration course there.

Randy Whiteman plans to attend York University in the fall, taking Canadian studies, while Drew Gonsolus says he will enter Queen's this fall with the hope of getting into law.

Two Riders Hospitalized

Sehls Hard to Beat

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Nearly 1,500 racing fans hang on the edge of their seats Monday night, totally captivated by the roar of motorcycles as the machines flashed past the grandstand at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

The event was the second leg in the Ontario Motorcycle Championships five-round competition.

With the preeminence of the Belleville races came some of the better North American riders.

Dave's winnings for placing last night totalled $460.

Third in the Senior-Expert Lightweight went to Dave Atherton of White Pidgeon Michigan on a Bultaco and fourth went to Dave McLean of Val Court, Quebec. Canada's camober one rider last year. Dave was on a Bultaco.

Perfect Game For Dixon

Wilkinson gained the win, being touched for eight Intell hits. He struck out eight batters, issuing four walks.

John Edward started for the Intell, going three and one-third innings. He allowed five runs, on seven hits. He fanned one and walked none. Reg Pearson came on in relief, also giving up five runs on four hits. He walked one and struck out none.

Atherton and McLean finished third and fourth, respectively, in the Expert 750cc class as well.

In Junior (360cc) Mike Pair of New Hamburg Ontario finished first on a Bultaco and Peter Grant of Woodbridge came second. Grant was also riding a Bultaco. Third and fourth went to Yvdder Pfaus of Toronto and Robin Boosma of London, respectively. Both were on Yamahas.

The Junior final was delayed for almost half an hour when one of the drivers, Rick Goulding of Woodbridge, Ontario, crashed through the wooden fence after coming out of the third turn. He is in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital.

The Senior 750 was won by Buck Brown of Dundas on a Triumph. After an a Triumph was second place Norm Carr of Hamilton. Bob Dick Wilson of Shakespeare Ontario and Paul Cipioli of Toronto, the third and fourth place finishers respectively, were riding Nortons.

Another rider who was taken to hospital was Jim Brownell from Niagara Falls. Brownell is in Kingston General Hospital with leg and arm injuries. He was competing in the senior class.

Norm Carr (150) leads the pack going into the first turn at Quinte Exhibition Raceway Monday night. Norm qualified for the Senior-Expert 360cc class final with his finish in this preliminary, but was beaten in the final by Dave Sehl on the left (16) and Dave Albertorp on the right. (15). The riders were driving for points and cash in the second round of the Ontario Motorcycle Championships.

Devolin Nips Bardon

Two in Seventh Produce a Tie

Ties seem to be the habit for Howard and Robert Printing of the Quinte Fastball League. After tying Rollins Construction for the Grand Championship of the Belleville Fastball Tournament on the weekend, they turned around to tie Augar Men's Wear 2-2 in the second game of the QFL doubleheader at the Admiralty last night.

In the opening match, Devolin Motors edged Bardon Supplies 3-2.

Augar's scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to force the game into extra frames in the game with the Printers. Larry Mavety opened the inning with a base hit, but was erased by a fielder's choice. George Ferguson remained at first, with Roger Drake following with a single.

After Jim Whyte had flied out, Dave Henry unloaded a three base hit, to score both base runners.

Howard and Robert had scored their pair of runs in the top of the sixth inning. Larry Potter made it on base with an error by Roger Drake, with Scott Reid following with a single hit, and Bob Ekbier a double.

Bob Ekbier went the distance for the Printers, giving up only three hits, walking one and striking 13 down on third strikes.

A three run rally in the bottom of the fifth inning gave Devolin the win over Bardon, their fifth of the year. The loss was the seventh in nine games for the Sappytown.

Designated hitter Lyle Thompson, hitting for Reta Maher opened the uprising in the fifth with a base hit. Tom MacDonald, Ray Lumsden, and Terry Meagher followed with safeties to combine for the scoring.

Bardon scored in the third and fifth innings.

Gary Johnson, the first batter to come up in the third, drew a base on balls and Bob Kerr, Mark Coates, and Bill Harrison cranking successive safeties, to score the Bardon first baseman.

Meagher ran in the fifth came on back to back doubles by Lionel Gorsline and Coates.

Darryl Kramp fired the win for Devolin, allowing seven hits. He fanned three and walked one.

Bill Harrison was the losing chucker, also giving up seven hits, whiffing three, and walking one.

Meagher had two singles for the winners, with Rick Rossbach, John Burnside, Tom MacDonald, Kramp, and Ron Hill all striking base hits.

Coates had a double and single to pace the losers' attack, with Ed Davies contributing a pair of base hits. Others went to Harrison and Kerr.

Olympics Win

The Belleville Olympics picked up their third victory in four starts Sunday as they edged Kingston Canadians 2-1 in Premier Soccer League action.

The Kingston crew drew first blood with a goal arising from a scramble in front of the Belleville net.

The play remained even through the first half with both sides having excellent opportunities to score, but being unable to finish off their respective plays.

The score stayed at 1-0 Kingston for the rest of the opening 45 minutes.

For the first 20 minutes in the second half, the two teams went all out and only excellent goalkeeping kept the ball from going into the net.

Belleville then got the scoreboard with a tally from Peter Keller. Hiller scored on a penalty shot after Nick Delgrosso had been fouled in the penalty area.

Several minutes later, Tom Harvey scored the ball from a free kick to Delgrosso who chipped the ball past the Canadian's goalie.

The Olympics take to the field again Sunday at OSD. Game time is slated for 4 p.m. Belleville's next three starts will be home game at OSD.

Scarborough Wins 11-5

Scarborough took an 11-5 win over Belleville Midgets in South Central Lacrosse Association play Monday night, at Dick Ellis rink.

Colin Arnott had five goals and a pair of assists for the Scarborough squad, with Bob Hurst adding two goals. Others went to Paul Ionson, Vic Pumbersom, and Mike Walker.

Gaylord Does It Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gaylord Perry, the curving Cleveland pitcher, recorded his 12th consecutive victory Monday night with a 4-hitter over the Chicago White Sox in American League baseball action.

Perry wasn't especially overpowering Monday night, but was around at the end to see Jack Brohamer deliver the winning hit in the ninth. It scored Frank Duffy from second.

"I thought that if it was a good throw from the outfield, Duffy would have been out," Perry pointed out. "Then I saw it sailing high and I was relieved."

Other results were: Baltimore Orioles 1, Minnesota Twins 0; Detroit Tigers 5, Texas Rangers 4; New York Yankees 5, California Angels 1; and Oakland A's 3, Boston Red Sox 2.

Perry, 13-1, pitched a five-hitter and struck out nine batters. He made Dick Allen a victim four times.

Baltimore's Mike Cuellar notched his ninth consecutive victory, winning a five-hit, 1-0 decision over Minnesota on a sixth-inning home run by Bobby Grich.

Grich lined his eighth homer of the season into the left field bleachers just after leaper Vic Albury, 3-6, had picked Mark Belanger off first base for the second out of the inning.

Cuellar, 9-3, permitted only three Twins to advance beyond first base.

Al Kaline belted a two-run homer with two out in the 10th inning, giving Detroit its victory over Texas.

Kaline's fourth homer of the season followed a single by Mickey Stanley and provided reliever John Hiller, 7-4, with the victory.

The Rangers had tied the game at 4-4 with a four-run rally in the ninth inning.

Lou Piniella drove in a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Fred Stanley laced a two-run single in the 10th, handing New York over California.

It was the 11th loss in 14 games for the struggling Angels. The Yankees have won seven of nine.

Gene Tenace scored from third base in the ninth inning when Boston catcher Carlton Fisk threw wildly on a pickoff attempt at first, giving Oakland its victory over the Red Sox.

Newcombe, Billie Jean Top Seeds

LONDON (AP) — John Newcombe of Australia and defending champion Billie Jean King of the United States were named singles top seeds Monday for the Wimbledon tennis championship which begins its two-week run next Monday.

Newcombe has won the men's title in 1967, 1970 and 1973. He was unable to play in 1972 because of a dispute between tennis groups and again last year because of a players' strike.

Mrs. King has won the women's crown five times, Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., winner of the French and Italian titles this year, was the women's No. 2 seed.

Ilie Nastase, the fiery Rumanian, was given the No. 2 men's berth.

Reds Thump Expos 12-3

Dodgers' Lead Shrinks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers, the top team in the National League's West Division, had its lead over Cincinnati Reds trimmed to six games for the first time in almost a month Monday night.

The Dodgers, who have lost five of their last seven games, lost 7-3 to Pittsburgh Pirates while the Reds trounced Montreal Expos 12-3 for their 39th victory in 52 games.

Other results were: Philadelphia Phillies 7, Houston Astros 5; San Francisco Giants 3, St. Louis Cardinals 0; Atlanta Braves 8, New York Mets 1; and San Diego Padres 7, Chicago Cubs 5 in 13 innings.

Cincinnati coach Sparky Anderson said after his team's win that the race with Los Angeles will be a tight one.

"I would like to get within 3-4 games by all-star time. We play them four games the first week of July and we have to win three to get that close. We aren't going to sweep them. I don't think so."

Dan Driessen and Tony Perez drove in three runs each and Pete Rose had a 14-hit streak and a trio of four-run uprisings to batter the Expos and Steve Rogers, Fred Norman was the roots for Cincinnati to post his 13th triumph at Riverfront Stadium against three losses.

The Dodgers had problems seeing and finding the ball in Pittsburgh, and six of the Pirates' runs were unearned.

Richie Zisk's single in the second inning got past right fielder Joe Ferguson, allowing Zisk to come all the way around.

An error by shortstop Bill Russell in the fourth opened the gate for four unearned runs, two of which scored when center fielder Jim Wynn lost Richie Hebner's fly ball in the lights. The Pirates got their final run on a passed ball by Steve Yeager.

In Philadelphia's win over Houston, pinch-hitter Tony Taylor slammed his first home run of the season, a tie-breaking two-run shot with two out in the eighth inning.

Dodger Ed Mike Anderson and Steve Carlton and Mike Schmidt's 17th home run gave the Phillies a 6-5 lead, but Houston tied it in the seventh on a two-run single by Lee May.

The victory, coupled with St. Louis' loss to San Francisco, gave the Phils a two-game lead over the Cardinals in the East Division.

Gary Thomasson of San Francisco drove in two runs with singles and Jim Barr scattered eight hits for his second straight shutout.

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta out the country, commissioner Bowie Kuhn said.

Pressure on Brazil

FRANKFURT (AP) — The pressure will be on defending champion Brazil today as it meets Scotland in a crucial World Cup soccer match here.

Mario Zagallo, Brazil's coach, has said he would be happy with a draw but Brazil's millions of soccer fans will accept nothing less than victory.

Defeat would drop the three-time world champions from the tournament as Scotland already leads the Group 2 standings with two points and two goals.

Brazil has only one point from its scoreless opener against Yugoslavia, which was to meet Zaire, the African champions, in Group 7's other match today.

Today's other games are both in Group 1, where East Germany and West Germany top the standings with a victory and two points each.

The West Germans, hot favorites to win the World Cup on their own territory, were to meet Australia at Hamburg and the East Germans were to meet Chile in Berlin.

Quarry Has an Elusive Dream

Frazier — 'Old Smokin' Joe Is Back'

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier bleeded his way back into the heavyweight title picture Monday night and cast a giant shadow over Jerry Quarry's dream of ever wearing the crown.

"I wanted the public to see that I'm going back to being the old Smokin' Joe," Frazier said moments after stopping Quarry at 1:27 of the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

"All the things they said I couldn't do, I did tonight," Frazier said.

He also proved the new Quarry is no more dangerous than the old one who was beaten in seven rounds by Frazier five years ago.

A cut above the left eye, opened by Frazier early in the fifth round, led referee Joe Louis to stop the fight.

"Everything I worked so hard for just didn't work," said Quarry, who needed 15 stitches to close the cut above his left eye and three stitches to bind a smaller wound above his right eye.

"I had a very long, elusive dream," Quarry said of his quest for the heavyweight title. "I'm not sure I can make it now."

Quarry has a string of six knockout losses since being retiredmed, 18 months ago.

Joe Frazier, who weighed 212 pounds to 197½ for Quarry, the victory provided an answer to the critics who said he didn't have it any more.

"I keep telling people that I can box," said Frazier. "They said I can't, but I showed them tonight that I can. They said I can't hit with my right hand—I showed them differently."

Frazier was in command from the start of the bout, witnessed by a crowd of 14,611.

The fight was the first half of a national closed-circuit television doubleheader. In the second bout, Bob Foster successfully defended his light heavyweight title with a draw against Jorge Ahumada in Albuquerque, N.M.

Frazier clearly won the first two rounds despite being hit by hard—but accidental—low blow with 30 seconds to go in the opening round. Frazier grimaced in pain and walked to a corner, but Quarry quickly apologized and Louis motioned for the bout to continue.

The first really decisive punches a of the fight came about 1½ minutes into the third round, when Frazier connected with a right to the body and followed with a left hook to the head that turned Quarry sideways.

Frazier continued to pound away in the fourth round, knocking his opponent down with a mighty left hook to the stomach at the closing bell. Quarry took a count of five before rising.

The fifth round was all Frazier.

JOE FRAZIER

No Sweat for Gray

TORONTO (CP) — Commonwealth champion Clyde Gray dashed Gill King's championship hopes Monday night, scoring a technical knockout over the Akron, Ohio, fighter in the fourth round of their welterweight boxing match.

The bout at Maple Leaf Gardens served as a preliminary to the closed-circuit telecast of the main events, featuring champion Bob Foster and George Ahumada in a world light heavyweight fight from Albuquerque, N.M., and a 15-round heavyweight clash from New York between former champion Joe Frazier and Jerry Quarry.

Gray, who also holds the Canadian welterweight title, dominated the match with King, throwing stiff and severe punches to every one thrown by his opponent.

The native of Three Mile Plains, N.S., who fights out of this city, decked King twice in the third round and three times in the fourth before referee Harry Davis called a halt to the match.

All-Star Forecast — Cloudy

Try Again, Thursday

TORONTO (CP) — While Luster, a linebacker with Montreal.

Ralph Sazio, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, also said at least four veteran players on his team have not resigned. He would like to see them.

No veterans, however, have reported at any of the CFL training camps already open. Most of them have found their own practise facilities.

Ottawa veterans, for example, were given Lansdowne Park as their practice site, the field normally used by the Rough Riders.

The CFL had decided earlier that veterans could no longer use league parks or team equipment, but the Ottawa veterans checked with city hall and found that the Riders' lease on the park ran out Nov. 18 and a new one still is being negotiated.

A park administration official then told the players that since the association has leased the park for the June 26 all-star game, they also should be provided with a practice field.

The CFL decision to refuse veterans the use of fields or equipment has cast a cloud over the all-star game.

Norm Kimball, general manager of the Edmonton Eskimos and chairman of the CFL player relations committee, announced the decision less than two hours after the players' association confirmed the all-star game will go on.

Saskatchewan Roughrider coach John Payne gave the veterans something to think about Monday, after watching his 23 rookies work out on the opening day of training camp.

RALPH SAZIO

JOHN PAYNE

He said "there are "some impressive prospects" among the rookies, and if veterans don't return "it's going to begin to make a difference."

Kimball did not sound optimistic during the weekend that such an agreement is close at hand.

"It is quite clear that the demands of the players and the structure of the Canadian Football League to provide them are somewhat apart," he said.

He said the two sides are "quite clearly apart" in such areas as payment for pre-season games, post-season games, the Grey Cup and the pension plan.

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said both parties should be prepared for a long session. "Even when they agree in principle, it will take time to put it in collective language that will be acceptable."

Several players, however, have contracts stipulating they must attend training camps regardless of the stand taken by the players' association.

Still others do not belong to the association, including Marv-

Canadians in Hunt

TORONTO (CP) — Fears that foreign drivers would run away with the Canadian driving championship this year are proving groundless.

While Bobby Brown of Hicksville, N.Y., leads the championship with 36 points, he's only two ahead of Bruce Jensen of Toronto after three races in the Player's challenge series.

Five other drivers, including Bill Brack of Toronto and Craig Hill of Mississauga, Ont., are within six points of Brown.

Three different drivers have won the first three events. Allan Moffat of Miami, Ont., however won't be around for the rest of the year. The winner of the opening race, in British Columbia, has quit because of business pressure.

The leaders:

1. Bobby Brown, Hicksville, N.Y., 36 points, $2,300; 2. Bruce Jensen, Toronto, 34 points, $2,100; 3. Craig Hill, Mississauga, Ont., 30 points, $2,100; 4. Wilk Bancroft, Costa Mesa, Calif., 30 points, $1,700; 5. Bill Brack, Toronto, 30 points, $1,500; 6. Tom Klenedst, Palestine, Ill., 30 points, $1,500; 7. Alain Lader Gresham, Ore., 30 points, $1,500; 8. Dave Morris, Edmonton, 29 points, $1,250; 9. James King, Santa Ana, Calif., 29 points, $1,250; 10. Peter Fargeon of the year. The winner of the qualifier of the short racing night, Foster had won this event, three times in a row but it was all Gibson who showed the way in a fine display of driving as Foster had to settle for second best.

In the action in the sights, it was Isaac Oosting of Cobourg leading for nine laps but he blew it on the last one and this gave Barry Jones of Picton first prize of the year, with Oosting hanging in for a third place finish despite the fact that he had obvious motor problems.

Bob Prudhomme of Belleville picked up his second win of the year as he found reliefrom Dave Clemenis of Trenton in what was the last race of the night.

Saturday night, a vote is going to be taken, to give Dave McAdams of Oshawa, the driver of car 69 out there again this season. Two weeks ago, he was suspended by the management for one year for unsportsmanlike conduct and for fighting in the pits.

The vote will be among the drivers only and McAdams must have at least 90 per cent in favor before he can run.

The special event this week will be the Mechanic's race

IN MEMORIAM

BRENNON, Ralph — In loving memory of our brother-in-law and friend who died June 18th, 1973.
One year ago today, oh, how our hearts did ache,
When God took you, so quickly, from us, for your loss we grieve,
In the bloom of life, death claimed you.
But the pride of manhood stays,
Where we would give it we could not say,
Still thinking of the same old way,
We have you and your memory,
We have not there to see you die,
To hold your hand or say goodbye,
But each time we see your picture,
We wish you were here,
We cry, I'm only human after all,
And we'll meet again some day.
—Always loved and remembered by brother-in-law Orrin, sister-in-law Ruth and family, Frank and Peggy.

MCKAY — In loving memory of a dear father, Donald G. McKay who passed away one year ago today, June 18th, 1973.
Peacefully resting, resting at last,
Free from pain and sorrow past,
Safe in heaven to gain its prize,
God did call him home to suffer no more,
—Deeply missed by wife Margaret.

KELLAR — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas Kellar who passed away June 18, 1969.
Dad's life was a book, written so dead,
Who wish with to read it more,
Along the path of life we travel,
Dad's memory is our guide,
—Remembered by Barbara.

MCCAFFREY, Norman (Bill) — In loving memory of a dear father who passed away June 18th, 1973.
Time has not lessened our sorrow,
Death one father take away,
But memories of a loving father,
Will be ours to treasure always.
—Always remembered by son Jim.

Opening lead—♠Q

By Oswald and James Jacoby

We are indebted to Jan Wohlin of Stockholm for today's hand. South gets to a good three notrump contract after a Stayman response to his opening notrump bid.

He started out correctly by winning the club lead in his own hand. The next three tricks were taken by his ace and queen of diamonds and dummy's king. A fourth diamond lost to East's jack.

A club was led back to dummy's ace and the fifth diamond cashed. A successful heart finesse gave him his seventh trick, but he was failed to drop under the ace and he had to go down one.

Mr. Wohlin points out that South would have made his contract in spite of the bad break if he just stopped to think when he had cleared out the second diamond. South should simply overtake his queen with dummy's king, take a heart finesse and lead his three of diamonds to dummy's nine.

East would win and lead a club to dummy's ace. South would cash the last two diamonds and then take a second heart finesse.

The whole point would be that South would make the same four diamond tricks but would get one more heart trick.

Police Officers Plead Not Guilty of Assault

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Three police officers pleaded not guilty in county court Monday to a charge of assault causing bodily harm arising from an incident in a Niagara Falls, Ont., motel room Dec. 19.

RCMP constables John Corbum and Floyd Chisholm and Niagara regional police sergeant William Bowie said in statements read as evidence that they were driving home from a party when they saw John LaRonde, 19, of Niagara Falls, Ont., run into his room.

The officers said it their statements they decided to search the room and after finding a syringe, a knife and spoons they wanted to search Mr. LaRonde but he objected and a struggle ensued.

Mr. LaRonde, who told the court he was a drug user, testified the three officers burst into his room and after one of them found a syringe he was "vi-ciously beaten."

He said he was thrown to the floor, repeatedly kicked and a bureau drawer was smashed over his head.

Dr. Gordon Powell of Niagara Falls testified that when he examined Mr. LaRonde about 10 hours after the alleged beating, he found abrasions and small bruises but "the marks I saw were not consistent with a severe beating."

The trial continues today.

Footgear Material Blister Cause?

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our son is 15 and has recurring trouble with blisters on his feet, especially in warm weather.

All clinical tests for fungus, athlete's foot and possible infectious condition of the skin have been negative. And the blisters still come and go.

Since it seems the skin on his feet is supersensitive, can you suggest anything to help him—O.F.P.

One possibility, often overlooked, is a chemical dermatitis due to materials in the shoes. (Or socks—but washing usually removes anything troublesome from socks. You don't wash shoes.)

There are many potential offenders in shoes—glue, cement, rubber, dyes, synthetic materials, so many that I couldn't list them all.

In hot weather, when the feet perspire, moisture can leak more of the irritating chemicals from the shoes, besides which the moist skin is more vulnerable.

My suggestion is to consult a qualified shoe store salesman or special shoes are available for people with this type of trouble.

In addition, pay scrupulous attention to keeping the feet clean and dry. Most powder to help keep them dry); change socks daily; never wear the same shoes two days in succession, and if possible let shoes dry longer than a day between wearings.

A podiatrist or dermatologist (skin specialist) might have other suggestions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have surgical pectoris, and when I take it nitroglycerin tablet it goes away. It is such a relief to be free of discomfort that I find myself reaching for the tablets with more and more frequency at the first twinges instead of waiting for the actual onset of pain.

How frequently can these be taken. Sometimes I take four or five a day.—C.S.

You can take nitroglycerin as often as you need it; it won't harm you and it won't lose effect from repeated use. Your four or five a day is not by any means a large number.

However, here's something you might discuss with your doctor. Long lasting nitro preparations are available which can be taken two or three times a day. The principal advantage is that you don't have to reach for the pill box as frequently.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 45 and for the last year have been bothered with blepharospasm or eyelid twitching. Is there any help for this It is hard to drive, read or watch TV. What about any new drugs, or maybe acupuncture—Mrs. A.H.

The causes that come first to mind are "nerves," irritation of the eye as in conjuctivitis, or a refractive error (meaning you need glasses). Your eye doctor would be the one to make the diagnosis and prescribe treatment. I cannot recommend a drug to control the twitching without first knowing the underlying cause. I haven't heard of acupuncture in relation to this, either.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read recently that dry wine is helpful for high blood pressure and diabetes. I would appreciate an answer.—V.K.

While wine has its social values, and has had them over the centuries, it is not a treatment for either diabetes or blood pressure, and I suggest that you give up readin whatever source offered you that notion.

All Arthritis Victims Have Inherited Antigen

TORONTO (CP) — A[n] ...ic advances in knowledge of ...recently-identified, ...bnormal constituent of the blood pres... last in virtually all sufferers of ...certain types of arthritis was ...described by two researchers — ...one British, the other Ameri...can—to the Pan American Con...gress on Rheumatic Diseases ...Monday.

Dr. D. A. Brewerton of Lon...don and Dr. Rodney Bluestone ...of Los Angeles discovered the ...constituent, called an antigen, ...at about the same time but ...working independently.

Dr. Brewerton said isolating ...the new antigen—36 previously ...were known—may lead to ma...ble used as an important "gen...etic marker." About 1,400 researchers and ...medical specialists from more ...than 30 countries are attending ...the congress and 240 scientific ...papers are to be presented be...fore sessions end Friday.

Prof. M. A. Ogrylo of the ...University of Toronto, congress ...president, said in an interview ...that about 100 diseases gener...ally are defined as rheumatic. ...Characteristically they cause ...inflammation of the joints, re...lated muscles, ligaments and ...bones.

Rheumatoid arthritis, a deg...eration of the joints for which ...there is no known cure, is the ...single most common type, he ...said.

Zhukov Is Dead At 77

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today announced the death of Marshal Georgi Zhukov, the Soviet Union's most famous military commander in the Second World War. He was 77.

The first announcement by that, the government news agency, gave no further information about the marshal's death. But unofficial sources said he died in a Kremlin hospital Tuesday afternoon after a heart attack late last week.

Zhukov, the Soviet army chief of staff, when Hitler invaded Russia, directed the defense of Moscow in 1941, then led the Red Army counteroffensive that threw the Germans back. He commanded the armies of Stalingrad, lifted the siege of Leningrad, captured Berlin in 1945 and received the German surrender on behalf of the Soviet Union May 9, 1945.

Stalin, fearful of Zhukov's popularity, assigned him to an obscure command in Odessa in 1946. After Stalin's death in 1953, he returned to become defence minister but Nikita Khrushchev dismissed him in disgrace in 1957, and he spent the next few years quietly writing his memoirs.

Zhukov was rehabilitated in 1965 and on his 78th birthday in 1971 was awarded the Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet decoration, for the sixth time.

Though Stalin's military aides were considered brilliant, he relied heavily on his country's huge reservoir of manpower.

When Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once asked him how his soldiers dealt with mine fields, Stalin replied: "Simple . . . we cause to a mine field, our infantry attacks as if it were not there. The losses we get from personnel mines we consider equal to those we would have got from machine-guns and artillery if the Germans had opposed us, to defend that particular area."

Pickering Airport Said Not Needed

TORONTO (CP) — A three-month study presented to Toronto's planning board Tuesday can find nothing good to say about the planned airport at nearby Pickering.

The study, costing $30,000 and paid for by the city, said that Toronto International Airport will suffice for the foreseable future, contradicting the opinion of the federal ministry of transport recently presented to an inquiry studying the feasibility of the airport.

"The construction of the proposed airport will only reinforce the tendencies that we have to avoid," the study concluded.

The airport noise at Toronto International is not a problem because manufacturers are making aircraft quieter, the study said.

The study said that as larger aircraft come into service and load factors increase, "there will probably be only a 15-per-cent increase in flights over 1974 figures by 1985. The ministry of transport figures show a 25-per-cent increase by that date."

These reductions make the continuation at Toronto International possible, and at a cost of $250 million compared with a cost of $400 million by 1980 to build at Pickering, the report said.

The study was scheduled to be brought before the city executive committee today.

Supertrains Proposed

PM Plans to Run Passenger Trains

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau added millions more dollars Tuesday to Liberal transportation pledges for the July 8 election, mixing diplomacy with hard-line politics in a busy campaign day.

The prime minister, through Liberal official sources, promised to the voter passenger train services from the CNR and CP Rail and place them under a Crown company that also would get into bus services.

The new corporation, to be called Canada passenger transport corporation, would operate rail services between a number of cities, supplement services between others, and eventually would seek to establish a superfast rail service between cities at speeds of up to 175 miles an hour.

It would be somewhat similar to the Amtrak system in the United States where a government corporation runs all passenger train traffic. But it would be different in that it also would operate bus services between cities, supplementing services either by bus or train.

Liberal officials foresee new government expenditures of $300 million over five years on the system. The figure could be added subsidies for unprofitable passenger services that now cost another $100 million.

The figures come a day after the Liberals announced a new urban transit policy which they said could cost up to $200 million over five years. That makes expenditures of $500 million over five years without considering the cost of the privately-announced first phase of the Liberal transportation policy. It deals with freight rates and other subjects. No cost is include the cost of further announcements Transport Minister Jean Marchand was to make today at an Ottawa news conference.

Liberal officials briefed the press on the rail and bus policy in a bus that left Ottawa in Cornwall, Ont., where Mr. Trudeau made only passing reference to it in a speech.

Officials said the new railway passenger stock of the two railways would be taken over and negotiations, hopefully, would lead to an agreeable transfer of employees from the railways to the new corporation.

There also might be negotiations to take over passenger services such as the British Columbia Railway and the Northern Ontario Railway.

The aim of this and the transit policy of Monday, spokesmen said, is to get cars off the road, shift people into public bus and rail transportation and inject millions of dollars into Canadian industry.

The prime minister and his aides talked of rapid rail transportation—100 to 120 miles an hour—along the highly-populated corridor between Windsor and Quebec City; of high speed trains between Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa; of linking the Quebec City-Windsor corridor with the Atlantic rail system; of service between Edmonton and Calgary, Saskatoon and Regina, Vancouver and Chilliwack, B.C.

All this could happen within two years, they said.

There is no thought of taking over existing bus companies, aides said, but where there are no train or bus services, the gap could be filled by the new corporation, with provincial co-operation.

And "super buses," complete with airline-type stewardesses, could be operated between medium-size cities in conjunction with regular bus services.

These buses would have space and comfort and might cost up to $200,000 each.

Stanfield Skeptical Of Transport Plans

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield visited Victoria and Vancouver Tuesday, lashing out at Liberal housing, transportation and anti-inflation programs.

He said Prime Minister Trudeau is campaigning on "an instant policy."

"All you have to do to make instant policy is to lay it out later, add money and stir," he said.

Prime Minister Trudeau's over-all transportation policy being revealed in stages during the campaign "is the child of desperation, born out of six years of neglect," said Mr. Stanfield.

Earlier in Vancouver, Mr. Stanfield reacted skeptically to the Liberal rail service announcement, telling a radio interviewer it would take the railways "off the hook for passenger services which are not profitable."

"I would like to consider if there isn't some alternative in the government assuming total responsibility for passenger services."

Assessment Freeze Passes Committee

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation to freeze municipal-tax assessment levels for two years received committee approval in the legislature Tuesday night.

The legislature sitting in 4 committee of the whole house, gave the measure clause-by-clause review during which several amendments sponsored by the NDP were defeated.

The first NDP amendment sought to make underground mining equipment and installations subject to assessment. The bill as it stands allows only above-ground installations to be assessed for municipal tax purposes.

Revenue Minister Arthur Meen, sponsor of the bill, said the question of taxing underground machinery and works is difficult because "there is no building there, just a large structure or cavern."

The second amendment would have stricken a clause from the bill allowing appeals on municipal assessments.

A third amendment would have changed the municipal tax assessment standard to the average price of land in the community instead of the average price of the immediate area.

The bill must still receive third reading and royal assent before becoming law.

Beef Dumping Would Reduce Supply Later

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — A spokesman for Canadian cattlemen Tuesday denounced reports that an embargo on U.S. cattle and beef imports is driving prices up in Canada.

Charles Gracey, manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said there is no embargo although the Canadian government has prohibited the sale of beef that has been treated with the growth stimulant DES.

Mr. Gracey said the claim that retail prices would drop substantially if imports were permitted in volume is overstated.

"The decline would be about half of the 30-to 40-cent-drop reported in recent reports, he said.

Mr. Gracey said American cattlemen are losing a lot of money and would like to dump their surplus beef on the Canadian market.

"If this occurs Canadian producers will be forced into the same serious loss position as American producers and, while this may bring short-term benefits to Canadian consumers, it will also discourage future beef production in Canada."

Bodies to Heat Building

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro's new headquarters here will be heated by its lighting and the employees themselves rather than by electricity or any type of fuel. Architect Kenneth Cooper said Tuesday that heat given off by employees' bodies and by electric lights will be gathered in a 3.6-million gallon tank of water, deep in the basement of the semi-circular structure. This energy-storage tank, he said, will store enough heat to keep the building warm even after a long weekend.

NATO Policy Document Seen As Much Ado About Little

OTTAWA (CP) — NATO foreign ministers today take the wraps off a long-awaited document designed to reinvigorate the often-troubled Atlantic alliance. But when the dust settles, the only surprise is likely to be its length.

One source who has followed drafting of the declaration closely said: "I could have written it all on the palm of my hand but the west on and on."

The ministers attending the annual NATO spring meeting here reached agreement late Tuesday on final wording of the document after an accord between the U.S. and France on the question of consultation between the allies.

The compromise is believed to express the intentions of the allies to consult each other on matters of mutual interest but without any legal commitment, something the French had opposed.

Reliable sources say the declaration is a vague re-statement of general principles which have guided the 15-country alliance since its formation 25 years ago.

They say it covers a range of subjects, from defence to detente but, despite its breadth of vision, it offers little or nothing which might be considered a "new initiative."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says a formal signing ceremony set for next Wednesday by heads of government in Brussels during a visit by President Nixon will give the document a "very special character."

Henry Kissinger, U.S. secretary of state, said in an interview: "We've agreed to consult and I think it's satisfactory to everyone."

But despite comments like these, and many similar ones likely to follow today, the way the document was drafted and will be signed has left a bitter taste, in the mouths of a number of delegations, particularly the Canadians.

A number of sources accuse President Nixon both of forcing acceptance of the declaration by watering it down until it was almost meaningless and "could be accepted by everyone and of upstaging the Ottawa conference by insisting on the Brussels signing.

These sources say Mr. Nixon believes that drawing up a new statement of principles on Atlantic relations, backed by some grand-sounding promotional words will help to smother his domestic problems at home over Watergate.

Some of the most bitter insiders say he also hopes to present himself as a kind of international superstar at the Brussels meeting, making the declaration appear as though it were a new treaty, which it is not.

The Canadians have particular cause for grievance. They were among the last to be consulted by Washington on the question of approving the document in Ottawa and delaying the signing until the Brussels summit. It still is unclear whether Canada and several other countries will, in fact, be represented in the Belgian capital by prime ministers, presidents or simply by officials.

In any case, Canada and others successfully opposed a U.S. proposal to keep the whole document secret until its signing, something that would have made a farce of the Ottawa meeting in the view of many observers.

Man Missing In Bancroft Area Park

BANCROFT — Divers from the Belleville provincial police detachment are assisting OPP officers from there in the search for a Trenton man reported missing from his campsite at Lake St. Peter provincial park since early Tuesday.

Police say that Robert Anderson, 20, RR 6 Trenton, was last seen at his campsite sometime Monday. They were called in to search the park around 2 a.m. Tuesday and were unable to find any sign of the man believed to have been camping on his own.

Constables Gaffney Brown and Don Bowry, of Belleville, were sent to the provincial park 30 miles north of here today and were to start searching the bottom of the lake.

Recreation Draws Record Registrations

TRENTON — A record number of young people have registered for Trenton Parks and Recreation Programs this summer.

A recreation department spokesman said Tuesday registrations have increased by more than 25 per cent over last year and most programs are expected to fill with enrolees still being received.

The recreation department is predicting a sellout in the outdoor program which takes young people on weekend canoe trips through the Quinte-north country.

Registrations are still being accepted for most programs.

Gesture for History

Mrs. I. H. Perigoe, Canadian Women's Union past president, unveils plaque at Picton grave of Letitia Youmans Tuesday. Mrs. Youmans was a pioneering founder of the WCTU.

Tribute at Picton

Temperance Pioneer Honored

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A plaque commemorating the contribution of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ontario Tuesday was unveiled in Glenwood Cemetery, Picton, timed with the 97th convention of the WCTU now underway in Belleville.

The plaque honors Mrs. Arthur Letitia Youmans Ontario WCTU organizer and promoter and a pioneer of Canada's White Ribbon Movement. Born at her father's farm in Colborne, Mrs. Youmans moved to Picton as a married woman of 23. She was spurred by "the trumpet call of the Women's Temperance Crusade" and in her autobiography, Campaign Echoes, recalled early temperance work in Ontario and Picton's strong affiliations with the WCTU. Mrs. Youmans was the first president of the Ontario WCTU (1877-82) and of the Dominion organization (1883-89).

"Persistence conquers all," was the motto of the indomitable Mrs. Youmans who insisted, " I am not here to advocate women's rights but to remonstrate against women's wrongs."

Mrs. Youmans argued that all women had a right to a sober husband, decent sons and a comfortable home. To promote this, she formed a Women's Christian Temperance Union in Picton in 1874. She later travelled extensively to organize other unions throughout Canada. She died in Toronto in 1896.

At yesterday's event, Picton mayor James Bird, Glenwood cemetery board chairman described Mrs. Youmans as a woman who emphasized the virtues of clean living.

He noted that in today's "permissive" society everything seems acceptable. There is a philosophy of "drink and be merry" and much of the "drink" is injurious.

Then Bi, a torch and the torch is still carried by a great many people who feel as she did. You must try to hold down the forces of evil," stressed Mayor Bird.

James Taylor MPP Prince Edward-Lennox said he was "proud of the leadership she gave and the principles she stood for."

George Hees, Prince Edward-Hastings MP in the last parliament remarked: "All of us here today admire what she stood for. She was a woman of conviction. The people I admire not only have convictions, they do something about them."

Dr. Roman Vastakas, Archeological and Historic Sites Board, said Mrs. Youmans "maintained an enduring concern for her fellow men and women and the integrity of the family and home.

The ceremony was attended by more than 100 WCTU members attending the Belleville convention. The delegates visited the grave of Mrs. Youmans and flowers were placed on the spot.

More Funds For Mentally Handicapped

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of community and social services, said Tuesday night he is "very optimistic" the province will bear the entire operating costs of new care centres aimed at ending the reliance upon institutional care for the mentally handicapped.

Mr. Brunelle, here to open a new industrial arts building at an adult workshop and training centre for the mentally handicapped, said substantial increases are forthcoming in the funding of shelters, residences and other facilities.

No Test Program in Prince Edward

Council Rejects 4-day Week

PICTON — A proposal for a trial four-day work week for the Prince Edward roads department has been rejected by county council.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce last night questioned the proposal when it appeared as a motion under committee report.

He said the four-day week, if adopted, would mean extended hours for the county roads foreman and county engineer. Neither man would be considered as an hourly paid employee.

"I think this is unfair to our engineer and our road superintendent," he observed.

Reeve Boyce added that a precedent also would be set for other county employees who might request shorter working hours.

Chairman of the roads committee, Hillier deputy-reeve Allan Pettingill, said that the system has been attempted successfully in other counties and was recommended by Prince Edward County engineer Donald Clark and county foreman Ross Bowery.

Deputy-reeve Pettingill said county roads workers would make fewer trips to construction sites under the new proposal and said that Fridays in a "normal county" are lost days for road employees.

"The moment the road department starts, other county employees will want to try it," said Reeve Boyce.

He then moved deletion of the proposal from the road committee's report before its adoption by council. Councillors vote.

Elderly Most to Gain From Freeze Says Hees

TRENTON — Senior citizens and people on fixed incomes have most to gain from the price and wage freeze controls of the Progressive Conservatives, said George Hees, PC encumbent for Prince Edward — Hastings.

Mr. Hees stopped briefly at Trenton Community Gardens Tuesday to meet with members of Quinte area senior citizens gathered for an indoor picnic.

The conservative candidate said "these people have the most to gain because they are the hardest-hit through inflation." Inflation has been described as the prime election issue by the Conservatives.

"The Conservatives have also stated they will increase the old age pension to $200 a month when it is the only source of income. In addition, the wife of an old-age pensioner will also be eligible for pension benefits at 55 years of age.

"When the food prices go up, they (people on fixed incomes) have no set less," said Mr. Hees. "It's a hell of a thing."

Inside Picnic

TRENTON — More than 250 senior citizens gathered in Trenton's Community Gardens Tuesday for an indoor picnic.

The picnic was originally intended for Centennial park but the threat of poor weather forced the festivities indoors.

After a casual lunch and addresses from local civic officials, the 12 participating senior citizen clubs produced skits for entertainment.

The group was taken for a walk around the park and on a tour through the newly-created senior-citizen club house.

Less Work, More Play With Shorter Week?

PICTON — The four-day work week may put romance back in marriage indicates Prince Edward County engineer Donald Clark.

Mr. Clark, who discussed the proposal with county road employees, noted that all but two of the workers favored the idea. One of the men who did not support it was a bachelor who rejected the idea of three days at home ends.

The engineer commented that the three day weekend has been successful in other areas because it offers parents time together while their youngsters are in school.

County councillors discounted romance, however, when they voted against the proposed two-month trial of the four-day week in the county roads department.

Another Crash?

Canadians may ask themselves, in the absence of price and income controls to fight inflation, do they want to see another depression, another crash on the stock market such as columnist Vincent Egan has been talking about of late?

Of course controls themselves could depress the economy, create some unemployment. But this would not be forever. The Conservative party plan is for a 90-day freeze, followed by other measures, including curbs on Government spending. This at least is a policy. But Liberal policy, as yet unstated, thus going by default, would be the same old extravagance, more paper money, inadequate production to balance it and, taken to its logical conclusion, sooner or later — bust!

So these same controls have failed in the United States and Britain. But not altogether; as Canadian Press writer Bruce Levett pointed out in a report from Washington in recent days, the stodgiest of all, and while it failed to halt inflation, it generally is credited with containing explosive wage increases.

The election having been called because of disenchantment with the Liberal government's policies, its unwillingness or inability to do anything to contain inflation, wouldn't it be simply wasting time and effort to sanction at the ballot box a return of the same administration, the same destructive policies?

Trudeau has won twice now, but only narrowly last time and if he should squeak through again we believe the electorate will be acting out some kind of death wish, a perverse desire for further erosion of the economy, paralleling its own penchant for "living grandly beyond our means," and hastening the day which some observers believe could be around the corner — economic collapse.

It is later than you think.

Gold's Lure

Looking to the possibility of another economic collapse resembling the events of 1929, columnist Vincent Egan has quoted Harry Browne's interesting book, "You Can Profit From a Monetary Crisis."

The book, Egan points out, advises people to buy gold, silver, foreign francs, and "trading items" such as medicine, canned foods, gasoline, tools, tobacco, liquor.

It all sounds rather in the style of Dr. Morton Shulman's "Anyone Can Make a Million" Dr. Shulman, former Toronto coroner and a member of the Ontario legislature, believes in the purchase of works of art and suchlike as a cushion against hard times.

However, a recent Washington report noted that leading finance ministers may relegate gold to the background. At the same time the so-called Group of Ten agreed that gold could be used as collateral for international borrowing.

A U.S. Treasury statement cited steps "to phase gold out of a central role in the monetary system and at the same time permit it to be mobilized when there is a need by countries in balance-of-payment difficulties."

All very illuminating. But we are not sure where it leaves the individual who does put his hard-earned money toward purchase of gold. Certainly there has to be something better than money and savings whose value is being eroded daily and which seems to be fast losing ground as a viable means of economic barter.

Summer's Start

Said the Belleville woman, stating gloomily at the sky on her way to work: "Short summer . . . put away my swimsuit."

We had to agree, while allowing it beats the humidity any day. But here we are on the eve of summer's official start — mid-year already and the weather has been nothing to write home about. Still, we can expect a lot of fine summer days to come.

Economics Principal Factor in Next Month's Election

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Commodity Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When you go into the polling booth on July 8, you will vote for a politician — but your will almost certainly have been made on grounds of economics.

The 1974 election marks an era at Canadian public life. For it is the first time that political parties have gone to the country in a debate centred so exclusively on this one topic — call it economics, business, the market system, or just plain money.

Foreign policy has been forgotten (whatever happened to Mackenzie Sharp?). National defence is taken for granted. Public health excites us only when it concerns the Fedhalt hassle.

Why this single-minded concentration? Are today's Canadians just money-grubbers, incapable of rising to ideals such as the concept of defending democracy (a generation ago) or the Imperial connection (two generations ago)?

What seems to have happened is this: The people have lost their blind faith in the system and the experts, and are looking for explanations and answers.

Most of today's working Canadians were children during the 1930s and grew to maturity in the Great Depression that came to believe innately in the post-war doctrine of progress and abundance before, are acquisitive and not nearly so plentiful.

Stock and bond investment, which were once accepted as the prudent way of providing for a trouble-free future, have turned into nothing but trouble.

Three things were not supposed to happen. The economists assured us that; supports had been built into the system.

The public believed that the government would always know what to do in order to keep the economy on an even keel. It was all there in Lord Keynes' theory of governmental counteractivism, wasn't it?

Second but wiser, we have learned that economists and politicians don't know everything.

Third, we have been taught about the droughts and other natural disasters that led to a worldwide food shortage.

They might have known about the impending world crisis in oil and gas, but they chose to ignore it.

And as for Keynes, they were too "practical" to apply anti-inflationary strategies that might have been unpopular and cost votes.

In the 1972 election, Pierre Elliott Trudeau and the Liberals retained office with the help of a slogan — "the land is strong." Soon after the election, Mr. Trudeau said he would assign top priority to the fight against inflation.

Today, politicians are no longer content to praise the strength of the land. And the Liberal government now pleads ignorance. Finance Minister John Turner proposed 1974 budget would not, in the opinion of the Conservatives and New Democrats, have any significant effect (1.7 per cent last month).

The issue of the 1974 campaign is that while Canadians are more eager than ever for answers to the economic problems besetting them the position of their parties, the fear that they might go cold and hungry in the process and throw major party leaders seem to be out of their depth when the irony of economics.

"There's nothing to the background of the election," Tory Leader Robert Stanfield or NDP Leader David Lewis that suggests a real interest in economics. Instead, what is usually called "the dismal science" often seems to bore them."

Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Stanfield, Messrs. Trudeau and Turner are internationalists. As long as they can point to some other country with an inflation rate worse than Canada's, they feel they can defend their record of economic management.

Mr. Stanfield defends gig inflation; the Liberals record and the Conservatives attack the concept of "indexing", a concept borrowed from the Conservative Government of Brazil. In a nutshell, indexing recognizes inflation as inevitable, and then institutionalizes it by taxation, etc.

Mr. Stanfield has long had another plan that is, to break the public's inflationary expectations by freezing incomes (usually misinterpreted by his opponents as "wages") and prices. But he has had little success in selling the public on his term solution, once the inflation psychology had been broken.

Mr. Lewis employs what might be called a Philadelphia Flyers approach — coming on strong, banking every opportunity in sight, and not worrying excessively about the rules of the game. If the figures he uses are wrong — well, denials and corrections rarely catch up.

The socialists may be raising some worthwhile questions about the imperfect market system. But year after year, the answers remain the same (as typified by the NDP plan) to regulate everything except the economy and the voters reject them every time.

This year, with the economics issues more varied and troublesome than before, the NDP is again offering a simple remedy: Freeze prices, and you'll prosper.

Businesses would be allowed to earn a return on capital corresponding roughly to the yield on funds invested in a nearly-cold, like-safe form such as Canada Savings Bonds or guaranteed investment certificates. (Next: Does anybody still believe in the market system?)

Rowdy Campaign Meeting

Reilly Takes It on The Chin in Ottawa West

By RICHARD JACKSON.

OTTAWA — So you think that campaign rally in your neighboring constituency the other night was lively?

Man, you should have been in the Westboro Community Centre at that all-party brawl in Ottawa West, one of the key swing ridings of Ontario, the province where much of the smart money is betting the election will be won or lost.

Ottawa West used to be Carleton, once the riding of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, of Conservative Leader George Drew, and of Richard Bell, one-time national director of the Tory party and a member of former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's cabinet.

It was solid Tory blue territory from 1867, through 23 successive elections and byelections for all of 96 years until 1963 when, in the collapse of the Diefenbaker Government, a Liberal, Lloyd Francis, won by 1,000 votes.

Since then it has switched, Tory, Grit, and back to Tory.

Kidnapped Nurse Is Reported Well

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — The parents of a missionary nurse abducted by Philippine guerrillas said Tuesday they have received encouraging firsthand reports on her condition.

Rev. William Mull of Freehold told The Associated Press he not his wife received a letter from Carl Dortzbach, the husband of their daughter, Deborah, 34, the first they've heard from him since the March 26 abduction.

Mrs. Dortzbach was among two Canadians and four Americans abducted. The two Canadians are Don Webster, 21, of Calgary and Cliff James, 27, of Walkerton, Ont. A third Canadian, helicopter pilot Grant Wyatt, 36, of Calgary, was released by the guerrillas earlier this month.

Mr. Mull also said he has spoken to Dr. Gilbert Den Dulger, a surgeon at the hospital where their daughter was working, who has arrived in the United States.

"The doctor's news surprised us and was gratifying," the minister said. "He told us the mission people have been able to send our daughter some food stuff, including vitamins and calcium, and they are apparently getting through to her in the remote village where she's being held."

The minister said there was no word from either source on when his daughter might be released.

Mrs. Dortzbach is in her fifth month of pregnancy and her parents were concerned about her condition.

Separatist Soldiers Said Under Scrutiny

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Jour says a secret Canadian Forces document indicates that servicemen supporting separatism may be demoted or transferred for supporting separatist parties even though they have the right to back parties seeking change via constitutional means.

The French-language daily says in today's issue, that the document outlines procedures to be followed in investigating servicemen thought to be separatists.

It says the document, dated May 17, was sent to commanding officers and base commanders on June 6 by Gen. J. A. Dextraze, commanding officer of the Canadian Forces.

The newspaper says that although servicemen are permitted to support separatist parties advocating change through constitutional means, but not separatist parties that are communist, fascist or violent, the document goes on to say:

"Nevertheless, since one of the goals of the department of national defence is to contribute to national unity, it would be illogical to have such persons in positions where they could favor the views of a separatist organization."

The newspaper says if an investigation determines that a serviceman is a separatist, he may be demoted or transferred to another posting if he occupies a position of influence or is in a position to supply a separatist party with information.

Tape Raises New Doubts

WASHINGTON (AP — President Nixon's statements that he first learned of the Watergate cover-up March 21, 1973, have been shaken by evidence presented to the House of Representatives judiciary committee.

A taped presidential conversation heard by the committee Tuesday indicated to several members that Nixon was aware at least four days earlier that White House aides might be involved in the cover-up.

They said the apparent discrepancy raises doubts about Nixon's Watergate explanations. He has repeatedly given March 21 as the date he first learned of efforts centred in the White House to contain the spreading scandal.

The tape the committee listened to was an excerpt from one made June 4, 1973, while Nixon was listening to a number of tapes and commenting about them to aides Alexander Haig and Ronald Ziegler.

Members said Nixon comments about a March 17 conversation he had with his former counsel, John Dean, indicated he and Dean discussed the Watergate cover-up then. Members could not hear the tapes Nixon was listening to.

5-acre Hole Sought To Bury Sick Cows

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state agriculture department is looking for a five-acre hole somewhere in Michigan to bury nearly 5,000 cows that probably will have to be slaughtered because of a cattle feed mix-up that poisoned about 48 dairy and beef herds.

Dr. George Whitehead, head of the department's consumer protection division, estimated Tuesday it will take 1,000 truck loads of sand to cover the bodies of the animals in a five-acre hole 15 feet deep.

"If we're lucky at several possible sites," said Whitehead.

State officials, in co-operation with local officials, are looking for a spot in the state where there is a heavy layer of nonporous clay.

Bodies of the animals will have to be spread out on a burial site. If heaped on top of each other they will explode because of a buildup of methane gas, said Whitehead.

Whitehead said it is possible half a dozen or so sites may ultimately be chosen so that the animals are not all buried in one location.

But state officials now seem to agree that sooner or later, about 5,000 cattle will have to be slaughtered.

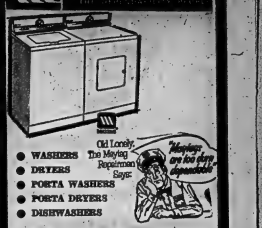
The animals ate cattle feed that contained a poisonous brominе compound mixed accidentally by the Michigan Farm Bureau. A few of the animals died but most simply are sick and scientists say they cannot find a way to get the compound out of the animals' system.

Bomb Threats Ignored

CHATHAM (CP) — Two separate bomb threats failed to intimidate more than 250 shareholders attending the annual meeting of Union Gas Co. Ltd. at a motel here Tuesday.

Most of the shareholders refused to evacuate the meeting room so that it could be searched by police, alerted by threatening calls to Chatham News and the switchboard of the Wheels Motor Inn.

Union Gas, with headquarters in Chatham, serves more than 300,000 customers in many communities in southwestern Ontario and in parts of Hamilton.



About 1,100 employees of Union Gas went on strike Feb. 3 to back demands for a new contract.

Delay Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenu feels the Quebec government should hold off on implementing its proposed legislation making French the province's official language until "firm action" has been taken to improve the teaching of English in French schools.

In an interview with the National Star Mr. Bienvenu said he felt hasty application of some of the legislation's proposals, under existing school conditions, "will have the very bad effect of increasing unilingualism in Quebec."

Bill Kurchak Manages Campaign

Working together comes easy for Marie and Bill Kurchak, candidate and campaign manager for the Liberal party in Hastings.

"We work well together; we like enjoy each other," Bill Kurchak says.

The pair have together produced and directed a documentary on man's future in space and at one time starred in a CBC show "No Dishes Tonight", a review of restaurants and entertainment in Toronto.

Entertainment remains the principal focus of Bill Kurchak's professional life as a freelance television producer and writer while Marie, whom he says "has followed me around in my career during the last six years (of marriage)" has turned to politics as a career.

"It's simply my turn to follow her," he says.

Bill Kurchak's job as campaign manager for his wife has interrupted several projects of his own.

First and foremost is Canzoo, a children's show he hopes to produce.

Peopled by puppets like the Toronzoid and the Halifunk, the program will eventually result, he says, in the construction of a kind of Canadian Disneyland.

"That's really my dream."

The project goes along with a research job he's doing, a study of the use of Canadian historical and geographical material in children's shows.

He's written more than 70 Canadian children's shows like Drop In and Alphabet Soup in the last several years and in 1970 produced his own 60-show series called Oops.

Outside the entertainment field, Bill Kurchak has worked as researcher when he conducted a citizenship participation study for the Secretary of State. For the same agency, he looked at citizenship courts and even spent some time finding private funding for Opportunities for Youth projects which didn't receive government grants.

He also spent a year in a think tank, thinking about the role of the corporation in the social structure for an engineering firm.

Bill Kurchak says it doesn't feel strange at all to be "Number 2", as he puts it, because "I guess I know who I am."

Strawberry Delights

Does anything taste more like summer than the year's first strawberry?

Locally-grown berries ripen the end of June, and their season is brief enough that you should take advantage of every berry-filled moment.

Fresh berries and cream are the sweetest treat, but there are many other ways to enjoy the fruit during its peak. If you can, make jam and wine to store for the winter, when the taste will be even more appreciated.

You can "dress up" fresh berries by serving them on ice cream or meringues, or by soaking them in white wine or liquer (Cointreau or Triple Sec, or even Anisette) during the afternoon before you serve them.

For an easy dessert treat, stew four cups of rhubarb with one cup of sugar over high heat for five minutes. Let this mixture cool slightly and add two cups of sliced berries. Stir and sprinkle with a little lemon juice and a dash or two of cinnamon if you like. Chill, and serve with sponge cake, ice cream, or on its own.

If you grow your own berries and have plenty to spare, try making wine.

Strawberry Wine

4 lbs. strawberries
3 lbs. white sugar
1 gallon (160 oz.) water
1 level tsp. yeast nutrient
1 level tsp. acid blend
2 Campden tablets
½ tsp. pectic enzyme powder
wine yeast

Use only sound ripe berries. Crush fruit and put all ingredients except wine yeast in primary fermentor (plastic garbage can reserved for this purpose). Add the gallon of water (hot) and stir to dissolve sugar. Cover with a plastic sheet. When the must (mixture) is cool (70-75 degrees) add the yeast. Stir daily for five or six days, always recovering the mixture.

Strain out the fruit pulp and press. Siphon the liquid into a gallon jug and attach fermentation lock. Rack in three weeks (siphon into another jug, leaving all sediment behind) and again in three months. When the wine is clear and stable, siphon into bottles, and let the wine age for one year. It will be a dry rose-colored wine with the taste and perfume of sun-ripened berries.

Maple Syrup Mousse With Strawberries

1 envelope unflavored gelatin three-quarters water 1 cup maple syrup
dash of salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
4 tablespoons sugar

Soften gelatin in water over a small saucepan, then stir over low heat until dissolved. Blend gelatin with syrup and salt in a bowl; chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

Fold in whipped cream. Pour into a one-quart serving dish or compote. Chill until set.

Meanwhile combine and chill the berries and three tablespoons of sugar. Serve the mousse topped with the berries and the remaining spoonful of sugar. Makes a delicious dessert for six.

Strawberries and Grapefruit

2 medium grapefruit
3 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 pint strawberries, halved

Cut the grapefruit in half. Section and remove from the shell. Remove the membrane from each piece of grapefruit. Keep the half shells.

Combine the sugar and spices, mixing them together well. Add the berries to this mixture and toss lightly.

Spoon the strawberry mixture into the shells. Garnish with a sprig of mint or a blossom from the garden. Serves four for a refreshing luncheon dessert.

Strawberry Shortcake

No season would be complete without strawberry shortcake. Here's a good recipe from the "Food That Really Schmecks" Mennonite cookbook.

4 cups flour
2 tbsp. baking powder
1 tsp. soda
1 cup sugar
1 tsp salt
1 cup shortening
2 cups sour milk or buttermilk

Mix the dry ingredients and the shortening until the mixture is crumbly. Add the sour milk and mix just enough to make sure the dry part is moistened. Spread the dough out in a greased cake pan — quite a large flat one — or you can use half the recipe and put the batter into a nine-inch-square pan.

Sprinkle a little white sugar over the top and bake in a 400 degree oven for about 20 minutes or a little longer — don't undertake it.

Serve warm and smothered with sugared sliced berries. (Whipped cream is really unnecessary on this one, according to the cookbook's author.)

Strawberry Sherbet

2 tsp. gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 quart fresh berries
¾ cup lemon juice
one and three-quarters cups sugar three-quarter cup sugar
2 egg whites

Soak the gelatin in ¼ cup cold water.

Press the strawberries through a sieve or sieve, and add the lemon juice to them.

Boil the water and sugar together for ten minutes, and then dissolve the gelatin mixture in the hot syrup.

Cool. Then add the berries. Chill this mixture.

Add two stiffly-beaten egg whites, and freeze.

Old Fashioned Strawberry Jam

4 cups halved strawberries
3 cups sugar
Juice of two lemons

Combine berries and sugar and let stand overnight.

Next morning, boil hard, uncovered for five minutes, stirring occasionally. Add lemon juice and boil to the "jam stage" about five more minutes, stirring constantly.

Remove from the heat, and stir for five more minutes.

Strawberries will be ready soon

Keeping Your Old Anniversary Alive

Now many years ago was it? Three or 30, doesn't it just seem like yesterday?

Was it a June wedding, with orange blossom bouquets and frothy chiffon attendants and a ring bearer who giggled all the way up the aisle?

Or did you elope on a warm June night, and say your vows with only a backup hoping your folks wouldn't find out?

Whatever kind of wedding you had, chances are you had it in June, until recently the traditional month of brides. Now weddings take place just as frequently in the fall, and traditions scatter to the air with confetti . . . but those June anniversaries go on just the same.

Your anniversary deserves some sort of celebration, don't you agree?

Even forgetful and unsentimental couples need to stop and look back at how it all started, and think about where it's all going . . .

Going out to dinner, with candlelight and wine, is the typical way to mark an anniversary. And there's a lot to be said for it.

No dishes to wash up after, and a chance for conversation in another setting, seeing each other unhampered by the daily routines of ordinary life . . . remembering why you fell in love in the first place.

Keeping romance alive is one of the best ways to ensure that you'll have scores of anniversaries to look forward to!

Think of all the romantic things you can do.

If you have children, save up your pennies and hire a sitter, or send them off to Grandma's for the weekend. Get to know each other again without talking about Billy's braces or Jane's grades in school or whether Scott should go to camp. Children are great, but honestly, are they romantic?

If you can, rent a hotel room and have breakfast sent up.

Less expensive but just as romantic — pack a picnic and take off to the hills or the lake for an afternoon together. You'll need insect repellent as well as champagne during this season, but citronella candles will only add to the atmosphere!

Go to a baseball game, and out for a beer or a hamburger afterward.

Go to two movies: one his choice and one her choice, and discuss their merits over a milkshake, just as if you were in your teens again.

Go to a pool hall and play snooker together.

Buy a book of the most romantic poetry you can find, and read it to each other. If you try, you could probably write a poem that would make a meaningful anniversary present, even if it doesn't rhyme too well.

Go dancing — if you're too old to feel comfortable at one of the local dancing spots which feature modern music, dig out that Glenn Miller album and roll up the living room rug.

Invite your wedding attendants to a party.

Spend the evening looking over photographs, slides, family journals and souvenirs that mark your married life together.

Write down and read to each other the way you remember your very first meeting. (I know one old couple happily married 50 years who have two distinctly different recollections . . .

"All In The Family" will be a regular column exploring the varied aspects of family living, in both a lighthearted and serious way, depending on the topic.

The column will take a look at our relationships with each other; the way we deal with our children — and parents; the changing roles of the sexes; the kind of work we do and recreation we seek; the choosing of different lifestyles; and the weaknesses and strengths of the modern family unit.

If you have ideas you'd like to see discussed, write to "All In The Family", in care of the Women's Department.

Black Moods Create Tension in Home

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband's black moods just fill the air with tension. He is unreasonably possessive abusive to me and the children, and will not share either of our two cars except on special occasions, "even though I helped to pay for them."

To add salt to old wounds, he charges all car expenses to my account in the bank.

I am a Roman Catholic and a "sofie". I know I can separate, but also know that a man of 50-plus is still sexually active and will need some activity. Then he would be doing wrong if he had another woman; and in my eyes I would be responsible. He will sometimes apologize, but I can no longer accept him.

Fed Up.

Dear Fed Up: You've been a doormat for all these years, doing your share and more. When he spread his first tantrum you should have jumped on him.

Even now, shock treatment might work. You deserve to be treated as an equal by your husband. Tell him exactly how you feel, and that he is driving your daughter from your home. Suggest seeing a marriage counsellor together, and if he continues to be completely unreasonable, see a lawyer.

Forget about feeling guilty if your husband were become involved with another woman. He is responsible for his own actions.

Dear Doris: I recently read a letter signed "Unhappy" by a girl of 17 whose parents were very strict with her.

My parents were the same way with me. As a result, I left home a couple of months before my seventeenth birthday. Because I suddenly had so much freedom and so little experience with dating, I was an unwed mother at 17.

Why can't parents realize that a 16-year-old is no longer a child and allow them some freedom and trust? The stricter the parent, the more the child is likely to rebel.

I'm now 20 and happily married but I sometimes regret missing out on so much, as a teen-ager.

Sympathetic.

Dear Sympathetic: Thank you. Your message is all there for those who will read it and think about it. I haven't a thing to add.

Ann Landers

Friends Work Wonders

Dear Ann Landers: You said you'd like some letters from guys will to express their views about girls they played around with before marriage. I can only speak for myself, but here goes. I'm 19 years old and have been into sex since I was 15.

The girls I respect are the ones who said no. Of all the girls I have had sex with, I wouldn't consider marrying a single one.

I now realize that the easy chicks spoiled any chance for a growing relationship. Real love is possible only when friendship comes first. If a couple hops into the sack on the first or second date, there is no way they will get to know each other. Friendship doesn't develop between the sheets.

I am not saying I would never marry a girl who wasn't a virgin, because I don't think it's fair to expect perfect conduct from a girl when I haven't been so perfect myself, but I am say-ing I would never marry a girl if I found out she had been free and easy with several guys.— One Man's Opinion

Dear Ann: I had my first sexual experience when I was 17. The girl was 18 and had been around a lot. I hate to sound like a heel, but she really talked me into it. I admit I was curious because the guys I ran with talked plenty about the girls they had scored with. Somehow I could never get up the nerve.

When this bird invited me to her house, she told me her folks were going to a party. I suggested she invite another couple and she said, "You gotta be crazy. It's time you and I got much what she had in mind.

I spent about one hour with her and couldn't wait to get out of the house. Everything happened so fast and I felt so cheap I was really ashamed of myself. The next day at school I ducked around behind the lockers when I saw her coming. I never took her out again and big to this day, whenever I see her I feel like a rat.

That experience blocked out any desire to go all the way until my second year of college. Last semester I began to go with a great little woman. We've been seeing each other for four months and I think I'm in love. I'm 20 now, I don't know where this relationship will go, but I hope it leads to marriage. I wouldn't swear on a stack of Bibles that we won't have sex before we marry, because our feelings for each other are very strong. But if we do, it won't be like my first experience because I really care about this dame. And that's the difference.—Mr. Anonymous

Please

Dear Mr. Anonymous: I respect your honesty and wish you and your girl the best of luck.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to help a friend, although she hasn't asked me to. There is nothing wrong. We've both been married 13 years and have two young children. Her three-year-old son is so destructive and unmanageable that I fear for him. He bites himself, hits other children, and tried to hold my son's head under the water when they were in the pool last week. I'm honestly afraid of what that youngster might do.

His father ignores him, calls him a "rotten kid", and his mother says, "He'll outgrow it." I'm afraid the child gets unloved and is screaming for attention. Please, Ann, tell me what I can do to help.—Manzanneck Friend

Dear Mom: You are a friend, I hope they appreciate you. That child needs to be evaluated. He sounds hyperkinetic or emotionally disturbed. He needs counselling and perhaps medication.

The boy's pediatrician should guide the mother and hope she seeks his advice soon.

Eastern Arctic Prisoners Issued Rifles, Knives

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — The new and only prison in the Eastern Arctic consists of five portable classrooms with one door lock.

What's more, prisoners are regularly issued rifles and knives.

But as it makes resident of this community on south Baffin Island feel any safer, the staff outnumbers the prisoners 12 to 9 and the rifles and knives are used to hunt seals.

Hunting is a major part of the Baffin Corrections Centre's attempt to instil a sense of pride and identity in the Eskimos who account for more than 90 per cent of the crime in this alcohol-saturated community.

All the prisoners and most of the staff at the minimum-security prison are Eskimos. Britton, prison superintendent, said Frobisher Bay, with 2,500 predominantly-Eskimo inhabitants, is a classic example of the rapid urbanization of a hard-oriented people and the Eskimos' desperate struggle to adapt.

He said the highest Eskimo people in Frobisher Bay are those who hold down jobs during the week and take off to hunt during the weekend.

The corrections program is based on the concept of giving prisoners a firm footing in both cultures. It aims to prepare them to survive and succeed in the white man's world while simultaneously giving them skill in their own traditional ways.

The land-basking portion of the prisoners' stay is the first stage of the development program. The "members," as the prisoners are called, board snowmobiles with their rifles and knives and roar off with staff members on a 180-mile walrus hunt.

The next phase is acquiring a job in the community. Prisoners are allowed to keep 60 per cent of their wages.

The centre, unofficially referred to as Hookatown, "the place where one seeks help" is trying to fashion a partnership between staff and prisoners rather than the disruptive "us-them" situation.

"We think bars, locks and chains pose a psychological barrier—especially if we're trying to get a 'we' thing going," said Mr. Britton.

In keeping with the philosophy, there are no uniforms in the centre. Everyone wears civilian clothing.

There are those who take a dim view of the liberated jail. Critics say the "members" tag on prisoners, the hunting and the television in the recreation room give the centre a country-club atmosphere.

And a territorial prohibition officer who looks at the hovels many of the offenders come from, and who believes the Baffin Corrections Centre may become an incentive to crime, said: "The only thing you need in this place is a lock on the inside to keep people out."

But Supt. Britton disputed his view.

"No one wants to go to jail," he said. "A prisoner in prison is a prison.

"If you were imprisoned in a palace and you had lived in a hovel, you'd choose to live in the hovel."

Perhaps the answer is to join the other side. Two former prisoners who helped renovate the five classrooms last winter have applied for jobs as staff members in the centre.

Floating Liquor Store Obsolete in Vancouver

ZEBALLOS, B.C. (CP) — Slim Beal's floating liquor store, the celebrated booze boat Chanda Queen, has made her last run from this western Vancouver Island community.

The ship and captain of the Vancouver Island navy of the provincial liquor control board have been rendered obsolete by the approaching opening of a government liquor store in the forest products town of Tahsis.

The store opening will end Tahsis dependence on the liquor outlet at Zeballos, the hub of activity in a community that otherwise has fallen on hard times.

On a float plane, you can get to Tahsis from Zeballos in 12 minutes. But for most of the 21 years Mr. Beal has been carrying on his liquor delivery service, a thirty Tahsis logger without charter money was as isolated from his need as an alcoholic astronaut on the moon.

Mr. Beal has adjusted well to his enforced retirement, said Mrs. Beal.

"In the early years he was making three trips a week, but in the last five years he's cut it down to one trip because they have a cocktail bar in Tahsis now, as well as a beer parlor and a Legion so there isn't the same demand.

"When he started off with the Mary Meade, when it came down the inlet the cry would be 'Here comes the booze boat'.

"All the fellows would line up down at the dock and there was always lots of kibitzing. They called him 'doc' and I wondered why, and Slim said; 'Well, that's because I'm the one that brings the medicine.'

In 21 years, I can only recall him missing two trips and he went out even on days when the waves were about five feet high. They relied on him in Tahsis and he never let them down."

Mr. Beal said that when he arrived in Zeballos in 1938 he worked in the gold mines until they shut down and then in the pilchard processing industry until the pilchards disappeared.

"The first liquor trips were made in 1947 by a fellow named Chuck Harvey and he did it until 1960, I think," Mr. Beal said.

"Then there was another guy who did it for one year and he went broke—I think he was his own best customer. That's how I came to get the boat.

"And it's been a satisfying life. Look at it this way; there are people, tourists, who pay thousands of dollars to cruise the way I do every day, and I'm doing it to make a living."

Since he cut down to one run a week, his bread and butter has been jog salvaging for the Tahsis Co. and Mr. Beal plans to retire to a less remote part of the island, possibly Courtenay on the east coast.

Denturist Law Passed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's controversial denturist legislation became law Tuesday night.

The denial technicians are now allowed to work without the supervision of a dentist when either the upper jaw or lower has no teeth.

But denturists still must work under supervision when designing partial plates.

Opposition members sought to amend the bill to allow denturists to make partial plates, but they were defeated in a clause-by-clause study.

Out of Date

OTTAWA (CP) — Technical methods for handling the thousands of pints of blood collected annually in Canada are 15 to 20 years behind European and American methods, says Dr. Roger Perrault of Toronto, national director of the Red Cross blood transfusion service.

Plants Close

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. shut down three more assembly plants Tuesday, laying off 8,800 workers because of a week-old strike at its Chicago stamping plant.

Few Indexed

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal labor department survey of collective agreements shows that less than 18 per cent of contracts have a provision that ties wages to cost-of-living increases.

Drugs Fatal

TORONTO (CP) — The death of a teen-aged girl Friday at Monport Park was caused by a combination of drugs called angel dust, the doctor in charge of medical services at the park said Tuesday.

Dr. Hugh Scully said the drug was "either morphine or heroin mixed with cocaine" and was being sold for $1 a hit.

JOHN RHODES

Tighten Check

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government plans to tighten requirements for issuing certificates of mechanical fitness for automobiles, Transport Minister John Rhodes said Tuesday.

Pay Sought

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial commission has proposed that the province help pay the election expenses for school trustees in Metropolitan Toronto with an amount of up to four cents per eligible voter in each ward.

The proposal to aid trustees, part-time officials who serve two-year terms, was one of 90 made by the ministerial commission on the organization and financing of the public and secondary school system in Metro.

Snacks Good

TORONTO (CP) — Taking a snack is the trend today and eating five to seven well-planned snacks a day is perhaps better than the traditional three meals, dietician Barbara Hose told the Canadian Dietetic Association Tuesday.

Miss Hose, of Toronto General Hospital, said taking snacks avoids hunger and overeating but snackers do not always get nutritional food.

Education on nutrition is needed.

Mental Patients Want To Get Voting Rights

ORILLIA (CP) — More than 200 residents of mental health centres in Simcoe County will not be allowed to vote in the July 8 federal election unless they present certificates of mental competence to revision officers, returning officer Allan Roach said Tuesday.

Mr. Roach said he has been informed by the administrator of the provincial mental health retraining centre at Edgar, near Barrie, that about 180 residents intend to ask for inclusion on the voters' list by personal appearances at revision offices today.

Three busloads of residents are expected from the Edgar centre and others from the mental health centre at Penetanguishene and the Orillia mental health centre, Mr. Roach added.

Revision officers have been instructed to reject any residents who are accompanied by nurses or counsellors from the centres' staff and who do not have certificates of mental competence signed by medical authorities.

Mr. Roach said the issue was raised after J. K. Maynard, administrator of the ministry of health's psychiatric hospital branch, sent a telegram to Chief Electoral Officer J. M. Hamel in Ottawa complaining of Mr. Roach's action.

Mr. Maynard's telegram said Mr. Roach remains adamant in refusing to enumerate in the mental health centres and will "not permit hospital vehicles to convey patients in groups as advised by you (Mr. Hamel)."

Mr. Roach said he based his refusal to enumerate centre residents on a section of the Canada Election Act that prohibits from voting "every person who is restrained of his liberty of movement or deprived of the management of his property by reason of mental illness."

Pork, Sugar Prices Assailed by Lewis

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Between pork at home and sugar abroad, Tuesday night New Democratic Leader David Lewis exploded the voter suspicion among fiercely crowds in the Northern Ontario centres of North Bay and Kirkland Lake before leaving here Tuesday.

Mr. Lewis's main ammunition during the day-long whirlwind tour was pork prices and his criticism of the Liberal government, which he said was at the mercy of the major sugar companies in Canada.

He challenged the sugar, biscuit and meat-packing companies to justify current pork prices. He said a drop in hog prices after a November-December rise of $20 a month would give people "more than the fat" of current high prices if they were unjustified.

A crowd of more than 300 at a Kirkland Lake meeting broke into cheering when Mr. Lewis asked on the trade sugar agreements in Canada.

He said the price of five pounds of sugar in Thunder Bay, Ont., rose to $1.98 in May this year from 85 cents in October, 1973.

"The Trudeau government has allowed the industry to fatten its profits rather than protect the Canadian consumer," he said.

He also repeated the NDP pledge to set an old-age pension rate of $200 a month without fee rents and to lower the eligible age to 60 from 65 for those who want to retire early. Mr. Lewis noted that he will be eligible for the pension next week on his 55th birthday.

The Lewis cavalcade of buses, accompanied by police cruisers, came to an abrupt stop outside Kirkland Lake when an approaching police car collided with a small truck driven by Lenora Rogick, 74, of Kenogami, Ont.

Mr. Lewis climbed out of the vehicle to comfort Mrs. Rogick jokingly, she took a fighting pose when Mrs. Lewis expressed surprise at her age.

Mr. Lewis was to visit Winnipeg, The Pas and Thompson in Manitoba today.

House Becomes Election Sign

By HOWIE COLLINS
The Canadian Press

When Sidney Tilsonini decided to support the Progressive Conservative candidate in York Centre riding, he painted more than a small cardboard window sign.

Mr. Tilsonini, a Tuscan butcher, painted his entire house Conservative blue, and adorned it with huge red and white letters spelling out STANBURN, the name of the Conservative candidate.

Painting a house for an election might seem a little extreme, but a cross-Canada survey shows that it may be a bit easier—legally speaking—than posting two-foot by four-foot signs in some communities.

Restrictions on signs vary widely from town to town. For instance, in Regina, there are no regulations, but in Victoria and some of the Metropolitan Toronto boroughs bylaws govern when signs can be posted, their size and when they must be taken down.

About the only general rules across the country require permission from owners before signs are posted on private property and limiting sign posts on public property, poles and other public property.

Dob Flemming, a Nord Scotia Ford Corp. salesman, had workmates have been active by signing and hand-lettering the "tack posters" in the Sudbury-East Manitoulin Conservative campaign has prohibited signs on its poles.

Similar rules are enforced by other power companies. But they exclude "commercial" signs, any other potential penalty under the Canada Elections Act.

Aside from these rules, regulations vary so much that the national offices of the Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democrat parties have left signs and posters under control of provincial campaign committees, asking only that they observe local bylaws.

But the NDP also asks that they use common sense and not shower a neighborhood with four-by-eight foot billboards.

On paper, the toughest regulations are in Vancouver where officially no signs are permitted on public or private property. But the rules are best during election campaigns to allow posters.

The city asks politicians to restrict signs to private property and to remove them soon after the election. If the signs are not taken down, a warning is issued and, if necessary, the workers remove the posters, sending bills to the parties.

"Every election, someone gets billed," a city spokesman said. "But it's no big deal."

In Victoria, campaign posters come under a temporary sign bylaw which requires a $1 permit, limits signs to less than 100 square feet in area and requires that they be taken down within 48 hours after the person is elected.

Campaign organizers in Toronto face a variety of regulations in the city's boroughs. The bylaws, which vary from borough to borough, include limits on signs; city poles may not be dug up and litter laws also provide fines of up to $1,000 for failure to comply.

In the borough of Etobicoke, an Etobicoke crew is bent out every day to take down signs on public property. There is no fine, but the candidate is informed of the infraction.

Politicians in Winnipeg have been fined in the past for ignoring a city bylaw prohibiting posting of campaign signs.

They had to pay more than $100 each and the price of repainting damaged utility poles.

Montreal city council refuses permission to post signs on city property, or telephone and hydro poles. Signs on private property must be removed within 30 days after the election.

Most other Quebec towns and cities require permission from councils before signs or banners can be posted, Breaking the regulations can bring a maximum $100 fine.

Family Affair

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the Boylans, the July 8 federal election is a family affair.

Dief Will Travel Campaign Trail

OTTAWA (CP) — Former premiers will be received from across Canada.

He will begin a series of national campaign speeches today with an appearance in Hamilton's Scottish Rite Masonic Temple. Although his itinerary is not yet complete, he will visit at least one riding in Prince Edward Island and will make campaign tours in some British Columbia ridings.

Caouette Will Probe Double Nomination

HALIFAX (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, said Tuesday there will be an investigation into party organizational procedure that allowed two party representatives to register as candidates in the same riding for the July 8 federal elections.

"If I find the least bit of political game in there, someone is going to catch it," he said.

Wilfred Marin and J.Noel Langlois are both officially registered as the Social Credit candidate for Labelle riding in Quebec. Mr. Caouette said he believes Mr. Marin, adding he does not personally know Mr. Langlois.

Charles-Edouard Rochon, returning officer for Labelle, said he had no choice but to list both Mr. Marin and Mr. Langlois as the official Social Credit party candidates.

Record Number Eligible to Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A record 13.5 million voters will be eligible to cast ballots in the July 8 election, Chief Electoral Officer Jean Marc Hamel said Tuesday.

He based this on the 13.35 million names on the preliminary voters list issued last week and which is to be updated in the next week.

The preliminary list's total is up about 250,000 from the official list for the Oct. 30, 1972 election.

The figures were included in a letter of statistics released by the chief electoral officer.

B.C. Response Varies To Stanfield's French

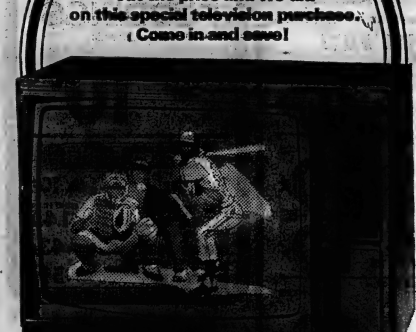
A shout of "forget it," prompting a burst of applause, greeted him when he began a portion of his speech in French.

The Conservative leader paused briefly, then continued in French, getting a scattering of applause when he ended his comments in that language.



Resumption of the address in English brought a hearty round of clapping from the audience.

Mr. Stanfield frequently delivers parts of his election campaign speeches in French.

Muscovites Mustering For Summer Excursion

Once the winter's snow has melted in the Soviet capital, their families, goods and chattels by its usual English translation of "country house", is something within the reach of most Russians from high party officials down to ordinary workers.

With the Soviet Union's growing affluence, road Muscovites crave the city, either to their own private dacha, or more usually to one or two rooms rented from local villagers for anything up to 600 roubles (1000) for the season.

The first step on the trek out is to hire a truck and a driver from one of the 15 agencies in Moscow which specialises in dacha removal services.

At a cost of 20 kopecks (about 25 cents) a mile, the trip can be quite expensive, so the truck is used to the full.

Unless the family is particularly rich and can afford a double, set of everything, the town apartment is stripped bare and tables, beds, refrigerators, television sets and the dog are all piled on board.

Those who are moving now will have booked their trip months ago and anyone who forgot will probably have to wait until mid-June as demand for trucks is heavy.

The problems of dacha life do not, however, end with the successful transfer out of the capital. Itself often a trial, as roads into the forested dacha land around Moscow are notoriously bad and drivers have the right to turn back if they think their overloaded vehicle cannot.

There is an old saying in Russian that "Moscow is downhill from all the Russias: Everything flows into her" and it is just as true now as when it was coined. Supply of food around the capital is rarely enough to satisfy the summer influx of town dwellers.

During the summer the father of the family and probably his wife as well, have to commute between the two homes.

They usually spend the week at their decadent apartment in the capital, finishing work early on Fridays to go to the dacha, where grandmother has been looking after the holidaying children.

New Zealand Railways Reverse Trend From Passenger Trains

This despite the fact the gauge is a narrow three foot six inches and the lines wind 2,982 miles through some of the most rugged terrain.

The company has introduced modern trains and railcars and plans to bring more into service.

The result has been an increase in passenger revenue in the last two years to $7.1 million from $5.8 million.

Last year half of New Zealand's three million population made a train trip.

Flagship of the passenger fleet is the Japanese-built 33-ton Silver Star, described as one of the half-dozen most luxurious trains in the world.

Six nights a week it travels the 427 miles between Auckland and Wellington. There are actually two Silver Stars so that two-way service is provided between the two main North Island cities.

The bright silver trains are towed by big American DX engines and partially sprung carriages largely overcome the swaying problem brought on by the narrow track.

For the $18 fare each passenger has his own overnight compartment. There is even a honeymoon suite with a charge of $54.

Stewards serve breakfast in bed along with a morning newspaper picked up at the last of the seven stops on the route.

A buffet car, an innovation in New Zealand, offers everything from sirloin steaks at $1.85 to cheese and crackers at 45 cents.

The train is fully licensed, again something new in New Zealand, with local beer selling around 50 cents and airline miniature bottles of liquor at about 70 cents. Passengers can be served drinks and snacks in their cabins.

The popularity of the Silver Star was given a boost by the oil crisis and a ban on weekend sales of gasoline. As a result the train's size has been increased to 13 cars from 11.

Running the same route during the day is the Silver Fern railcar, named after New Zealand's national emblem. For $12.30 passengers travel in air-conditioned and soundproofed comfort.

The Silver Fern is also licensed but has no buffet section. Stewardesses serve passengers drinks and snacks in their seats while they view the scenery through extra large windows.

Because of the railcar's popularity, advanced bookings are necessary.

Both the Silver Fern and the Silver Star make their runs in about 12 hours.

The fare is $9.90 for the 369-mile trip through the rugged splendor of the more interesting of this country's two main islands.

This train has day coaches and a buffet car. Stewardesses serve passengers refreshments in their seats on request.

Back in the North Island two recent additions to the passenger fleet make runs to provincial centres.

The Endeavour makes a daily run between Wellington and Napier, 199 miles away on the east coast. The train is named after the ship used by Captain James Cook when he mapped the Napier area in 1769.

The five-hour trip costs $5.25, running through some of the country's richest sheep and cattle producing areas. One highlight is the passage through the Manawatu Gorge.

The line clings to one side of the gorge when a river forging on the east coast cuts through the island's mountain backbone and drains into the sea on the west coast.

Passengers wanting to explore the Napier area must stay overnight. An hour after its arrival in Napier the Endeavour begins its return journey.

Also running from Wellington is the Blue Streak railcar which makes the 251-mile run to New Plymouth on the west coast.

The fare for this trip is $5. The Blue Streak is a modernized railcar with passengers receiving the same service as on the Silver Fern.

The Kingston Flyer, making the 38-mile run between Kingston and Lumsden, is designed to represent a typical train of the early 1920s. It has five old-style passenger cars hauled by an A35-class steam locomotive.

The wooden-bodied rolling stock has had some changes in the interests of comfort. The cars have steel underframes and vinyl-covered foam rubber replaces the leather and horsehair upholstery.

The refreshment car is the only one not built true to period, because refreshments were not served on New Zealand trains in the 1920s.

The car in use was built in 1909 and was used for 25 years by travelling cabinet ministers.

The basic fare for the trip is $2 but special concession tickets are available.

The railways offer an off-season travel pass that gives visitors and residents a chance to see the country at rock-bottom fares.

The $50 pass gives unlimited travel for 14 days on all trains, buses and inter-island ferries and can be extended for a further 14 days at $3.50 a day. It is available between May 1 and Nov. 30.

Famed Cutty Sark Sitting In British Museum Drydock

LONDON Reuter) — Its keel embedded in concrete, an exhibit foundering on dry land, the Cutty Sark—perhaps the greatest clipper of all—has received a challenge to a century-old record from a handful of sleek, ocean-racing yachts and cannot move an inch in reply.

The clipper stands in a dry dock at Greenwich, part of Britain's Maritime Museum. In its shadow, a few yards away, stands Sir Francis Chichester's Gipsy Moth IV, the first boat to be sailed single handed to Australia and back in 1967.

Next year, 25 to 30 racing yachts will attempt to beat the fastest passage times from London to Sydney and back, set 100 years ago by British wool and tea clippers like Cutty Sark, Thermopylae and Fiery Cross. They remain the only unbroken sailing records to challenge modern sea adventurers.

In 1869 the Fairdarch sailed from London to Sydney in 67 days and returned in 66. Cutty Sark took 72 and 73 days for the respective trips.

Chichester failed to wrest the almost legendary record times from the great 19th century clipper ships. It took him 101 days to Sydney and 113 back to England.

On Aug. 20, 1976, the clipper race yachts will sail under the Tower of London and on towards the Cape of Good Hope, on their 14,000-mile journey to Sydney.

Even with centuries of sea faring experience to draw on, terms of modern research on aerodynamics and a wealth of meteorological information to back them up, the entrants are not certain of beating the records.

While the clippers had speeds of up to 20 knots, even the fastest of today's racing ketches have never improved on 16 or 17 knots, said one of the race's organizers, Granville Dodson.

"You must remember that the record times were set up under ideal conditions," he added.

"If those records are never beaten, it will not simply be because the 134-to-21-metre yachts are smaller than the 61 metre clippers were.

The clipper crews did not race for pleasure, but to earn a living for their company employers. Each year the first ship to reach England with its cargo of tea or wool would get the best prices in that year's market. To built a ship that could outrace all rivals was, in those days, money in the bank for the rest of your life.

The Cutty Sark was built on the Clyde in 1869 specifically to beat the Thermopylae home from the west coast of Australia.

Like all clippers she had three tall masts for maximum sail area and was sleek and low in the water for speed.

Her hold was crammed with cargo which also acted as ballast. The crew of 30 took up the minimum of space for sleep, often going none at all when the ship was under full sail in strong winds.

The amateur sailors of 1976 have already submitted entries ranging from steel and glass fibre to one in concrete.

Is the Toshiba electronic microwave oven a luxury, a necessity, or somewhere in between?
Answer our questionnaire and find out for yourself.

- ☐ Have you ever tried to keep a meal hot for someone who didn't show up at dinner-time?
- ☐ Ever been stuck when friends or neighbours dropped in unexpectedly, looking hungry?
- ☐ Ever wished that heated-up left-overs could manage to taste a little less "left over"?
- ☐ Ever felt you were cooking the life out of food, especially vegetables?
- ☐ Ever wished you could cook a roast or a chicken without "cooking" the whole kitchen, too?
- ☐ Ever arm-wrestled a frozen lambchop?
- ☐ Ever wished there really were such a thing as a self-cleaning oven?
- ☐ Ever wished you could skip scouring pots and pans, at least a few nights a week?

If you answered 'yes' to all or most of the above questions, you might just be in the market for a Toshiba electronic oven. Even though the least expensive model does cost $430.

The Toshiba oven is not necessarily a replacement for your conventional oven. You may still need it. But what the Toshiba oven will do is eliminate those little situations above, which don't do much to bring sunshine into your life.

You can get a hot meal ready, for family or guests, in less time than it would take to heat up a skillet. And if it's leftovers you're hosting, they'll taste just as good as they did when they were freshly cooked. You won't be cooking away the flavour, colour or vitamins either. The Toshiba electronic oven is no fast fat-fast.

No, you won't ever heat up your kitchen. The oven doesn't get hot, so how could your kitchen? Because the oven stays cool, food spatters don't burn on, and the oven wipes clean with a damp cloth. That's as close to self-cleaning as you can get. Because the oven stays cool, you can cook on several levels. Eliminates pots and pans.

Toshiba has four models of their electronic oven they'd like you to see, Model ER 537 BT (suggested retail: $439.95), Model ER 633 BT (suggested retail: $449.95), Model ER 726 BT (suggested retail: $549.95, with a fast defrost feature), Model ER 723 BT (suggested retail: $599.95).

All four are easily installed wherever there's a 110-120 volt grounded outlet, and all are portable enough to go where you go, even up to the cottage or out on the boat.

We can't tell you that the Toshiba electronic oven is one of life's necessities. But it's a lot more fun to live with it than without it. Drop in to any Toshiba dealer, and ask for a demonstration you'll not only enjoy watching, but eating, too.

Poland Requires First Drive-in

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS

WARSAW (AP) — A tiny car called the Polski Fiat 126P is what Communist party leader Edward Gierek hopes will help fulfill his promise to get Poland on the road.

The domestically produced, Italian-designed automobiles are beginning to appear on sparsely used roads as they roll off the assembly line in the Silesia where they are produced under license with Fiat of Italy.

Gierek pledged to bring out a "people's car" in announcing a better program for consumers here early this year.

Promoting the four-seater Fiat means fully utilizing controlled television media. Frequently viewers are reminded of the Polski Fiat, either in variety programs, national lottery announcements, or plain advertising.

Most average Poles will find a Polski Fiat too expensive. Average monthly earnings in Poland are about 2,800 zoltys, or $140. The Fiat costs 89,000 zloltys, or $3,450.

Buyers more likely will be bureaucrats, professional people and skilled workers such as miners. Coal diggers earn nearly three times the average national wage.

Early demand for the 126P has not been dramatic. Out of a working population of nearly 17 million, only about 140,000 persons have so far put down deposits for cars.

The total number of privately registered cars in Poland, a country of 33 million people, is 780,000.

This figure obviously will grow once production of the Polski Fiat reaches full swing and Poles no longer have to wait several years for delivery.

So far 5,000 of the cars have hit the road because the giant factory being built at Bielsko Biala with Italian help is not yet fully operational. Construction started two years ago.

Next year 40,000 of the cars will be rolling out and by 1978 the planned target is 300,000.

The car is economical to run. It can travel about 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Parallel with plans to increase the cars' production, Polish authorities are also pressing to improve the country's road services.

The last couple of years has seen an increase in gasoline stations, highway services and motels.

Authorities have awarded contracts to foreign firms. The French company Novotel is building a string of motels on major routes in the cities of Warsaw, Poznan, Katowice, Gdansk, Gdansk and Wroclaw.

Holiday Inns will build a hotel this year in the ancient royal city of Krakow. In the western provinces of Wroclaw, Poland will have its first drive-in movie house for 100 autos.

When the car was first introduced it became the butt of many jokes, mainly due to its small size.

One had Gierek being given a test run. After seeing the little car go through its paces, he asks the driver:

"Not bad, comrade, but why are you all this time driving next to a wall?"

"It's not a wall. It's the curb," the driver replies.

Roving Tailors Service Lagos

LAGOS (Reuter) — Residents of Nigeria's capital no longer need to brave traffic jams searching for a tailor or dressmaker.

A new breed of small businessmen, the roving tailors, have sprung up in Lagos, strolling the streets in search of work with sewing-machines slung across their shoulders or balanced precariously on their heads. They are building up a clientele among house-bound housewives.

The travelling tailors surfaced in Lagos after the 30 month civil war in 1967-70. They are free from the former economically eastern region of Nigeria, once known as Biafra, which is still recovering from the ravages of war.

They are called Oloomas, as the word meaning "the kind hearted" and they have moved into the capital to try to make a living.

They mainly specialize in minor tailoring jobs like mending, but they can run up a dress or a pair of trousers while squatting on a doorstep.

One Olooma, Udume Kalu, said a number of his colleagues were trained tailors, but the war left them jobless and destroyed their shops.

"We have had serious difficulties getting premises, due to lack of capital," he says. "As a result we decided to take to the streets to meet our customers in their respective homes."

In a country where the average monthly minimum wage is less than 30 naira (about $43), some Oloomas are believed to double this.

Kalu says some of his colleagues have done well enough with their door-to-door tailoring that they have been able to pool their new-found money and rent shops on a co-operative basis.

The Oloomas have been welcomed by many people here, especially the low-wage earners who have to save on bus fares. Besides, the roving tailors' charges are moderate, undercutting established tailors and customers get prompt service.

For the Oloomas, meeting the customers often involves walking more than 10 miles a day as they move from street to street hawking their services.

Nearly all of them come from Umuahia province in the Ibo heartland around Beide division—a region famous in folk tales for its fearless warriors, whose descendants it seems have exchanged swords for sewing machines.

"Fine" Music

READING, England (CP) — Sponsors of a scheduled August rock festival face a $100-a-minute fine if groups continue playing music after the midnight deadline set by Reading council. It would be deducted from the £5,000 ($11,500) deposited in advance with the council.

Flood Control Costly

Cost of sandbags has risen more obviously in the past year than the high water of Lake Ontario against which they've been pressed into service.

For one type of bag the price is up nearly 100 per cent, says Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator.

Demand for sandbags rose last year as cottage owners and property holders in Lakeshore areas — including the Bay of Quinte — sought to shore up their holdings as Lake Ontario rose more than two feet.

Mr. Duffy noted manufacturers' price lists last year quoted 7.5-ounce burlap potato bags at $140 a thousand. This year the price is up to $250.

Jute bags, superior in quality for sandbagging purposes were quoted at $165 a thousand in 1973. This year the cost is $330, says Mr. Duffy.

QEMO does not stock sandbags but acts as an information source on where supplies are available.

So far this year, says Mr. Duffy, inquiries have been light. In fact, his office has only had two calls about sandbags.

This contrasts with spring last year when the lake's 30-year cyclical rise began flooding over shorelines. At one point QEMO organized a cleaning house operation stocked by local farmers to help meet emergencies.

The quieter demand for sandbags used to build dikes on shorelines breached by water may mean that property owners intent on taking precautions did so last year. Others may "just be resigned" to waiting for the lake to recede.

Although still about two feet above average, the waterline is slightly below last year's peak. Mr. Duffy believes the high water mark has declined since there has been no increase in depth in the past two weeks.

But much low-lying land around Bay of Quinte Prince Edward County still are backed up, reports the QEMO co-ordinator.

The mean level of the lake in May was 367.15 feet, compared to 367.80 for the same time last year. Mean level for the past 10 years has been 365.36 feet.

Hoping maximize the high water mark, Ontario Hydro and the Upper Great Lakes, says Mr. Duffy, limited new flow rates. Idea was this year was not significantly increased.

Driver Injured, Damage $1,500

A Frankford man was treated for minor facial cuts and bruises and released from Belleville General Hospital late yesterday afternoon after the Volkswagen he was driving collided with a pickup truck at the intersection of Wallbridge Road and the Third Concession, Sidney.

Pc. Dan Hewitt, of the Belleville detachment of the OPP, said that Norman Peel, of RR 2 Frankford was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance after the 4:55 p.m. yesterday after his neighbour, vehicle collided with a truck, driven by Terence McBrien, of 81 Goldale Rd., Belleville.

The McBrien vehicle was south bound on Wallbridge Rd. and was trying to make a left hand turn onto the Third Concession when the accident occurred.

Council Faces Busy Session

Hastings county council will hold a full one-day session next Tuesday June 25, a special session will extend into the evening hours.

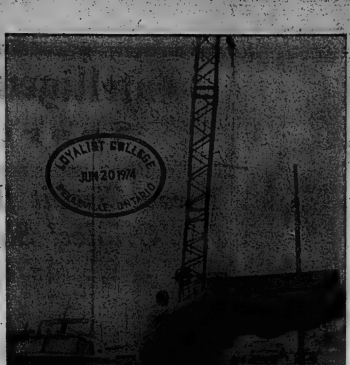
At the session called by Warden Jack McKenzie for 6:30 a.m., amendments to the county's official plan proposed by the county planning board will be up for consideration.

The planning board will also be recommending third reading of the bylaw adopting the county official plan.

At noon county councillors will be treated to a reception and luncheon by the Hastings County Board of Trade. Some time will be allowed for discussion and resolution questions of the board's policies and programs.

Tuesday evening will see presentation of the county waste management study completed by Toronto consultants Gore and Storrie.

The waste management study, dealing in all of the county along with Belleville and Trenton, done during the past year, will be presented to the combined councils of the three municipalities involved.



Loyalist Adds Health Course

Central service aides prepare and process medical and nursing equipment in hospitals. The central service department is sometimes known as the supply and dispatch department.

The 16-week course is open to applicants with grade 10 standing. An advanced program for those already working in the field is being planned for early 1975.

Loyalist already offers several health care courses.

The End Is Near

Mobile crane, operated by Alderman Stu Meeks, hoists one of the last sections of 500 feet of docks being added to Victoria Park boating facilities. The project, assigned the city's Harbor Improvements Committee — which the councillor is chairman — received an assist from voluntary help.

Clendenning Decision Becoming Better Known

KINGSTON — A Kingston lawyer, Katherine Cartwright, said in an interview here Tuesday that Ontario defence counsel are fast becoming aware that some motorists convicted of impaired driving is eligible for a conditional or absolute discharge if his livelihood depends upon his driving of a motor vehicle.

Judge Clendenning said that a motorist convicted of impaired driving is eligible for a conditional or absolute discharge if his livelihood depends upon his driving of a motor vehicle.

In his June 3 decision, Judge Clendenning granted a Belleville truck driver a conditional discharge and placed him on probation for a year after finding him guilty earlier of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath-analysis test.

Miss Cartwright said Judge Clendenning established the precedent for such orders more than a year ago when Le granted a similar discharge but said he has since changed his mind following appealed by the Crown.

The Supreme Court of Ontario upheld the appeal she said, but the Ontario Court of Appeal overruled that decision.

Miss Cartwright said that defence counsel are becoming increasingly aware of the precedent, but many Crown attorneys seem unaware, of it.

She also said that she has not seen any directive about it from the office of the Ontario attorney-general.

Moira Authority Adds to Property

The Moira River Conservation Authority has expanded its recreational use area by an additional 86 acres of which approximately 75 per cent is inside the village of Madoc.

The property purchased by the authority is the Norman Whytock farm east of Highway 62 and south of the Highway 7 bypass north of Madoc.

Deer Creek, which flows through the O'Hara Mill area northwest of the village in Madoc township, runs for close to a half mile through the property on its way to Moira Lake.

Chairman of the authority is to develop the Whytock property as a picnic site and as a trail-er park.

No development is planned for this year, but next year a firm of consultants will be retired to do a planning study which will include channel improvement for Deer Creek.

Negotiations for the purchase of the property have been under way for two months but were only recently completed. The authority will receive a 75 per cent provincial grant on the purchase price.

Included in the purchase is the two-storey brick Whytock house and barn which in recent years has been used by Mr. Whytock to stable show horses.

City Man Elected MEMAC Director

V. L. Lewis, president of Stephens-Adamson Division of Alla Chalmers Canada Ltd. was yesterday chosen one of 15 directors on the Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers' Association of Canada (MEMAC).

Mr. Lewis will serve the current term until June 1975.

MEMAC is an association whose members are in any company manufacturing industrial machinery in Canada. Currently there are 75 member companies which collectively have annual sales of around $500 million and employ over 20,000 people.

Among the companies represented in MEMAC are those dealing with the manufacture of the conveyor system, compressed air and gas machinery, pumps, gears, pulp and paper machinery and packaging machinery.

MEMAC does not include among its members, companies manufacturing agricultural machinery, most types of transportation equipment, electrical apparatus, household, office and store machinery.

Chairman of the group is R.D. Westerborn and vice-chairmen are J. C. Alexander and J.L. Meschino, President and secretary is Brig.-Gen. C. Arnold Peck. Treasurer is Ken Malcolm.

This is the first time the group has met in Belleville.

Parks Plans Postponed

City council's reduction of the 1974 parks development budget will mean that two projects planned for this year will have to be postponed.

Council, at its budget meeting several weeks ago, cut the parks development budget by $80,000 and as a result the program had to be revised.

The parks board, at its regular meeting Tuesday, voted to delete the proposed paving of the exhibition park parking lot adjacent to the Bleecker Auditorium at an estimated cost of $13,000, and also development of the Hale and Victoria school sits at a cost of $10,000.

Other budget revision approved by the board included an increase in consultants' fees for the West Bleecker park to $1,400 from $1,000; an increase of $400 to cover the cost of a survey and legal description for the St. Andrew's Church parkette; an added expenditure of $500 to complete berms in West Park Village, and $1,600 for the erection of a four-foot chain-link fence for the entrance to the Orchard Park park entrance.

It was noted that citizens living on each side of the park entrance had requested the fence and its erection was in keeping with board policy.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1974

Intimidation Charged

A Belleville man has been charged with intimidation by Belleville police following an incident Tuesday morning in which he refused to remove his car from the entrance to a North Front Street car wash after car wash employees told him they could not wash his car.

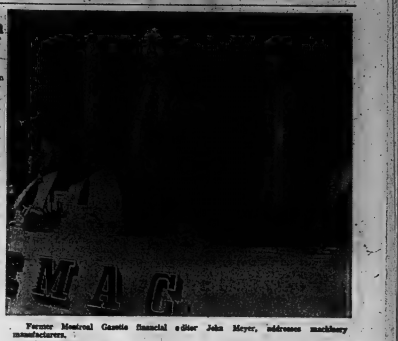
Police say a man had been driving on freshly treated roads in the Belleville area and had gone to the Gulf car wash on North Front Street to have the oily film removed from the body of his car. Attendants at that car wash refused to do the job after explaining to the man that the oil would ruin their equipment and damage cars that followed his along the car wash.

The man then went to the Shell Car Wash and received the same advice from attendants there police said.

Angered by the refusal to wash his car, the man allegedly parked his car in the entrance to the car wash, locked himself inside and rolled up the windows.

Police were called to the scene to try to persuade the man to leave but, after warning him twice that he was liable to arrest, charged him with intimidation and towed his car away.

During the discussion with police the man sat in his car with the windows rolled up eating a sandwich.



Police say that Reuben H. Gilmour, 24, of RR 3 Belleville was arrested around 11:35 a.m. after he refused to remove his car from the entrance to the Bell Car Wash at the intersection of Bell Blvd.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Wednesday:

Tuesday, June 18, 5:09 p.m. service call to stand by for taxi cab with electrical wiring problem on Station Street.

Willingness to Gamble Said Vital to Economy

Investment growth in Canada is being hindered by the by the public's investing habits.

Mr. Meyer was speaking during the annual meeting of the Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers' Association of Canada taking place at the Four Seasons Hotel.

He told the company executives that the government is taking too much money out of the pockets of people in the form of taxes and as a result not enough money is left to be generated for investment growth in Canada.

"The government takes this money and this means that there is less for regenerative purposes. What we begin to live on our capital — on our savings, corporate or individual," he said.

As for tax reform, he said: "We don't have it. A reform implies some kind of improvement and there is anything but an improvement.

"The tax system is set up to punish a way that is going too much money in debt and not in equity," said Mr. Meyer, who is vice-president of Trizec Corporation in Montreal.

His audience consisted of representatives from companies, mostly from Ontario and Quebec, dealing with the manufacture of heavy machinery, pulp and paper machinery, compressed air and gas machinery and gear and pumps among others.

Trying to change habits of investment, he said that not enough risk is being taken in investing.

"What should anyone put money in the stock market when they can put it in a registered retirement savings plan."

He said that removing the chance of taking a risk has wiped out vital investment growth. "Expansion and development involves a risk," said Mr. Meyer.

Mr. Meyer said that people like not having to gamble with something such as a retirement plan but that the money could be better used for investment growth which comes about through gambling.

"People putting their money into institutional pools such as retirement funds or mutual funds are restricting investment growth. This comes about through the money being taken away from the market and denying requirement to generate the rate of growth," said Mr. Meyer.

Speaking about the upcoming election, Mr. Meyer said he thought Robert Stanfield's Progressive Conservative stand on wage and price controls wouldn't work.

He added that no one on any of the hustings has shown any expression of concern for future investment growth. He said we should get up to our representative and tell him or her that the system is being destroyed and we should stop the increase in government spending.

Cement Workers Relocation Done

The biggest single attempt at relocating workers hit by an industrial shutdown in the Belleville area has been carried out — and deemed a success.

Finished work is the manpower adjustment committee organized last year when Canada Cement-Lafarge Ltd. entered the last stage of its Point Anne plant phaseout.

Its success has been credited to the co-ordinated efforts of labor, industry, government and the local community.

The committee was given the task of finding economic alternatives for 104 men still on the checklist when the phaseout, replaced by a high-tech operation, was completed near Bath.

The committee's success was raised at 95 per cent by Jim Staveley, the retired Canada Manpower area consultor called in as project chairman.

Jobs were found for most of the men. Others were also took retraining to skill themselves for other jobs, said Mr. Staveley.

The search for jobs ranged as far afield as Winnipeg and northern Manitoba.

Statistics of the hunt by Mr. Staveley saw him make 1,320 phone calls, and conduct 200 interviews. The oldest man he found a job for was 62. The workers ranged from ex-millwright to unskilled labourer; 35 per cent were under 25 years and 36 per cent over 45 years.

The wide distribution of skills and ages of the jobless made the work search wide-ranging by necessity, says Mr. Staveley. Local industry, although growing, is still relatively small and unable to absorb such a large demand immediately.

The recent crunch "aggravated the situation" later made more difficult by the traditional winter economic slowdown.

Thus an all-out effort was made by government community involvement.

The committee, proposed by Canada Manpower officials, was formed by labor and management representatives from Canada Cement-Lafarge, Bath Steel Boilers and Belleville Industrial Development Committee.

Jobs were found over "the entire spectrum" of the area's economy — in construction, transportation, manufacturing, wholesale and retail outlets, he said.

Garage Sale Coming

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville will hold a garage sale this Saturday and your help is needed in two ways . . . as donators and as buyers. Right now, club members are busy collecting items for the sale, everything from used chairs to a doll house. Chairman of the activity, Fred Smith, left, gets assistance from Kiwanis Club president, Fred Nelles, in getting ready. The sale will be held at the former White's Lumber and now Eastern Business Machines on 14 North Front Street from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Those wishing to donate items may call 968-3448 or 966-3440 during the day or 968-4914 in the evening. Money raised goes into the club's fund for providing community assistance.

Giusti Leaves Bullpen And Wins as Starter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates' starting rotation is a nice place to visit but Dave Giusti wouldn't want to live there.

"I've got used to the pace in the bullpen and it's tough when you have to go out there for more than a few innings," the veteran relief ace said Tuesday night after making his first start since 1970 and blanking Los Angeles Dodgers for seven innings in a 2-0 National League baseball victory.

Houston's Mike Cosgrove would like to follow in Giusti's footsteps or at least down path Giusti made when he made 113 starts for the Astros in 1965-68 before he was traded first to St. Louis and then to Pittsburgh.

"I would like to think I've earned a starting assignment, but I don't think so," the young right-hander said after relieving Dave Roberts with one out in the first inning and holding Philadelphia Phillies to a pair of hunt singles the rest of the way in Houston's 7-0 triumph.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal Expos edged Cincinnati Reds' 3-1, Atlanta Braves' trounced New York Mets 6-1, St. Louis Cardinals blanked San Francisco Giants 3-0 and San Diego Padres topped the Chicago Cubs 9-4.

Giusti, who had made 255 relief appearances since his only Pirate start in 1970, was greeted after the seventh inning Dandy came up with a pulled leg muscle.

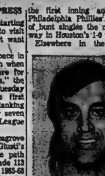
He proceeded to limit the Dodgers to five hits over seven innings as the Pirates scratched their longest winning streak of the season to five games.

Bruce Kison pitched the eighth and then needed help from Daryl Patterson in the ninth. Los Angles' Tommy John, 10-2, had his win streak snapped at five games.

"It's been a long time since I pitched well," said Giusti, who now has a 3-2 record this season. "I've been very sporadic. I'd pitch well in one game and then have two bad outings."

"He'll only start again in an emergency," said Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh.

Cosgrove's shoulder, was relaxing in Houston's bullpen when Roberts pulled a shoulder muscle with runners on first and third and one out in the first inning.



Cosgrove worked out the first-inning jam and allowed only the two hunt hits and walk the rest of the way. The Astros got the game's only run in the second inning on Tommy Helms' homer.

Ian Mureril drove in four runs with a bases-loaded triple and his first home run of the season and Atlanta rolled to its 22ed triumph in the last 31 games behind the six-hit pitching of Rorric Harrison.

Alan Foster pitched a five-hitter and singles by Johnny Bench and Mike Tyson produced runs in the first and fifth innings for Foster, making his first start in three weeks, get his first triumph since April 25.

Pitcher Dave Freisleben of San Diego singled home a run, doubled and scored another and combined with Bill Greif on a seven-hitter. Both homer runs by Chicago's Jose Cardenal. Bill Madlock and Chris Ward.

Extra units of police were called to Hamilton's Ivor Wynne Stadium Tuesday as spectators swarmed onto the field during a National Soccer League contest.

Toronto Homer defeated Hamilton City 3-1 on Anton Ashcanasa's goal with less than five minutes remaining but a Hamilton official said the game will be protested.

At Hamilton, the fracas broke out after an altercation between the Homer coach-manager and a lineman following a disputed call.

The Hamilton spokesman said he would protest the game on the grounds that Homer official grabbed the lineman.

Hamilton's Paul McGee opened the scoring at the 15-minute mark but Riga Thomis tied it before the end of the half.

Three Circuit Blasts For Orioles' Slugger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Against Minnesota Twins, hitting home runs was as easy as one-two-three for Bobby Grich.

"I hope the Twins stay around a while," Grich said after getting three homers and driving in six runs in Baltimore Orioles' 16-1 American League baseball win Tuesday night.

Grich, who beat the Twins with a home run Monday night, hit a three-run homer in the third inning, a bases-empty homer in the fifth and a two-run drive in the seventh Tuesday.

The infielder had a chance to tie the major league record of four in a game, but grounded out in the eighth inning.

"I was going for it," Grich said. "All I had in my mind was to hit as hard as I could."

The three homers gave Grich 11 for the season. A new style in the batter's box has given him new-found power.

"I changed my stance and my swing to hit more home runs here (Baltimore Memorial Stadium)," said Grich. "The alleys are just too far unless you're a Dick Allen or someone like that. You have to pull the ball here if you expect to hit home runs and that's what I'm trying to do."

In other games, Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland Indians 7-3; Kansas City Royals blanked Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader before the second game was rained out; Texas Rangers defeated Detroit Tigers 6-0; California Angels beat New York Yankees 3-0 and Boston Red Sox trimmed Oakland A's 6-1.

Grich's first homer off Joe Decker, 7-3, put the Orioles ahead 3-1. Grich followed that with a line shot off Decker. Then he clouted a two-run homer off Tom Burgmeier in the seventh, giving him four homers in a span of five innings at bat. It was the first time that a Baltimore player has hit three homers in Memorial Stadium.

Jim Kaat, backed by a home runs each from Dick Allen and Jorge Orta, hit his 200th major-league career victory with a nine-hitter in Chicago's victory.

Kaat, 6-6, who spent most of his American League career with the Minnesota Twins, pitched the White Sox in 1973.

The triumph improved his lifetime mark to 200-166.

He gave up his first run of the game in the seventh when Ron Hendrick hit his second homer of the game, a solo smash in the ninth.

Paul Splittorff pitched a two-hitter and Amos Otis and John Mayberry hit home runs to lead Kansas City.

Bob Colucci and Mood Splittorff's first pitch of the game to right field for a single. Splittorff, 7-8, then retired the next 21 Brewers in order until walking Don Money leading off the eighth inning. Rob Ellis collected the Brewers' second hit with a single in the eighth.

Jim Ribby, 10-4, fired a two-hitter for Texas. He struck out seven to bring the Rangers' record for most victories in a season, a mark he now shares with Rich Hand, who was 19-5 in 1972.

The only hit he allowed were a leadoff single by Ben Oglivie in the fifth inning and a leadoff double by Jim Northrup in the eighth.

Jackie Knew How to Win

Learn about the likes of a man who makes a lasting mark on the area sports scene and, immediately, one recalls the days.

Such a man was Jackie Elliot, Sr.

What spoke louder for this former Belleville and District Softball League star with Point Anne Ornestation and Belleville Jones Real Estate teams of a few years back? Just plain excellence at the sport. And an inclination to believe in an exemplary manner, on and off the diamond.

Remember Elliot's days in the old IBDSL and a bout of an era of a come flooding back.

Times were the days when Belleville teams met squads from Madoc, Frankford, Point Anne and the then BOAC as well as Trenton town.

Names of former teammates and softball associates return.

Who can forget the job the late Gerry Alexander did, reporting games as Bobby Hull The Intelligencer?

Many of Jackie's old friends are still active in the game. Bill Shaw, Phil Lott, Pat Mancuso, to name a few, are still making a contribution to the sport.

Elliott played alongside such well known local diamond stars as Bobby Hull, Doug Hall, Dave Jones, Johnny Green, Jackie Wardrobe, Sam Mulholland, Pete Green, Jake Wade and others.

When the latter decided he would concentrate on coaching and leave the play to the younger talent of the day, which included Jackie Elliot, Jr., the guy was still capable of coming on as a pinch-hitter and giving rival pitchers fits.

In the mid-fifties, when Chemile Drakes and Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 110 at Trenton entered a group of three-year-old youngsters in the IBDSL, the squad got its stamps and plenty of them.

But the players were always sure of one thing. After a long day in the office and golf range one of them could count on a handshake or a pat on the back for a job well done. Even Jackie Elliott, Sr.

One of those players was Don Cole. And he'll never forget those early days in the league, and especially the man who was big enough to cross the diamond and say, "nice game fellows".

Said Cole, "He was just great."

We'll miss him.

Athletes Shine At Olympics

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

What started out in December, as a huge undertaking from all ends of the area, has culminated in a fairy tale type ending for the Willem H. Rick team of young athletes who travelled on the weekend to Winnipeg for the Special Olympic Games for the Mentally Retarded.

The 32 athletes who travelled to the Games, sponsored by the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded, all bettered their own personal marks, collecting over 100 medals, and carried 15 medals home to Belleville. The total of 32 made the trip school one of the top teams at the competition, although no official tally was taken.

According to Wally Dever, principal of the school, the local athletes would have been at least in the top five. If team points had been awarded, Calgary would have the meet were from Red Deer, Alberta, and Smiths Falls. Every province was represented with at least one entry.

The top competitor from Belleville, and one of the more accomplished participants at the Games, was Orval Brickman. He was one of only three youngsters to collect five medals. His total of four medals included a gold, two silver and a bronze.

His gold medal efforts came in the 25-yard freestyle and 25-yard backstroke swimming events. He won the 25-yard seconds in the freestyle was more than a full minute, in the backstroke competitions, 48.6 time in 50.0 to 200-yard backstroke was good enough for second, and, proving his worth out of the water as well, he leaped 5'3" in the standing high jump to take fourth medal.

The other gold medal brought back by the local delegation was by Dennis Prescott, who had a 30.4 time in the 220-yard dash.

Linda Reed collected three medals for her efforts, a silver and two bronze, all in swimming events. A mark of five seconds was the closest she was ber time in the 200-yard backstroke...good enough for second place finish, while in the 25-yard freestyle 21.6 was her time. She also clocked in with a 23.3 in the 25-yard backstroke.

Greg Pashkevich, a member of the ABC Industries Workshop of Belleville, added two silver medals to the take with second place finishes in the 25-yard open freestyle and 200-yard freestyle events. His time in the 25-yard was 16.7 seconds, while he came in with a clocking of four minutes, 23 seconds in the 200.

Debbie Bradshaw was the only other double medal winner for the local team, capturing a pair of bronzes, also in swimming events.

Her time of 34 seconds in the 25-yard freestyle earned her one medal, while a 52.4 mark in the 50-yard freestyle got her the second.

Carol Ann Claus had a time of five minutes, 21.8 seconds in the 200-yard freestyle event to earn a bronze medal, with Dale Thompson picking up a bronze with a 36.5 mark in the 25-yard backstroke.

Out of the water for the final medal was Rick Versteeg-Belleville and one of only 173 feat, good for a third place finish and a bronze.

A total of 28 events were held during the three-day period, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with the 15 medals collected by the Rick Team averaging to almost one in every three events.

And while on the subject of totals, the money collected towards the Willem H. Vanneer Association for the finances of the trip, added up to more than $6,000, the official target set by the Association.

Money was received from organizations throughout the Quinte district, from industry and individuals, and included in the total was the proceeds of the Bowl A Club draw for a 1976 Chevy Nova.

The remaining money from this venture will be the start of the fund to send the team to the 1976 Special Olympics, which will be held in Lethbridge, Alberta, two years from now. Planning for the trip and for the team has already begun.

Lacrosse House League

Frankford got four goals and two assists from Rick Roberts in taking their Novice house league encounter with Quinte Mall to start the week in Belleville Minor Lacrosse house league last week, winning the game by a 9-1 scoreline.

Joey Skidd added three and two assist, with Brent Fillmore recording the waterwash in the Frankford tenure.

In another game the Frankford crew was involved in, it wasn't as fortunate, dropping a close 8-7 decision to Dairy Queen, who picked up their second win in as many starts.

Scott Edwardson was a one man team for Dairy Queen, potting seven of his team's markers. Darrell Shiels added the single.

Joe Belanger's marker with only eight minutes to go in the game gave Police Association a 7-6 win over team No. 3 in peewee action. Jim Fleming had two goals for the winners, with Hugh Northey adding the single.

Cornerstone Builders scored an 8-4 decision over Rotary in the only Bantam game played. Danny Duffy was three goal for the winner, with Steve Riddell and Alan Hall each contributing one.

In a rare tie contest, Trenton and Local 182 ended up at two goals each in a midget game. Jamie Kennedy had both goals for the Trenton squad, with Bill Donald, and Dave Drake replying for Local 182.

A and D Esso put R-Go Frankford by an 13-2 count, with Roger Chapman leading the way with six goals and two assists. Gord Male had five tallies and three helpers, with Brent Walmsley contributing two and five assists. Dan Boyce took the shutout in the A and D net.

Rally Produces 4-3 Victory

Juniors Come Through in Seventh

The Ellis Juniors had to pull off some seventh inning heroics to do it, but they managed to come up with their fourth win in nine starts in Quinte Fastball League action last night, edging Devolin Motors 4-3. In the other game in the doubleheader, Rollies Construction dumped Howard and Robert Printing by a 6-1 margin.

Devolin had gone into the bottom of the seventh with a three-run lead, but came out on the short end of the score when the juniors put together four hits and a walk to score four times.

John Romano opened the rally with a single, followed by Ken Vos who did the same. Grant McKenna then drew only the second walk of the night, given up by Devolin pitcher Don Holloway, loading the bases for Wayne Andrews.

Andrews was left looking at a third strike but John Sprackett made no mistake in unloading a double, scoring two runners. Kelvin Pope then went in to run for Ellis hurler.

Holloway got Steve Campbell on strikes, but Dave Harwood, came through with the game winning hit, a double which scored two runs from second.

Devolin scored all three of its runs in the top of the fourth inning, combining five hits for two runs.

Dave Harwood and Rick Rosebush opened the frame with back to back singles, before John Devolin belted in with a three-base hit. Rosebush, however was thrown out at the plate on the play.

Sprackett was the winning hurler, giving up six hits. He fanned a pair and walked only one.

Holloway absorbed the loss, his second of the season, giving up eight hits in the Juniors. He whiffed seven and walked two.

Sprackett also led the winners at the plate with a pair of doubles, with Harwood adding a single to his game winning double. Romano had a pair of safties, with Steve Campbell and Vos contributing the other hits in the win.

Cramp had his circuit blast for the losers, with Rosebush adding a double to his fourth inning hit. Terry Meagher had a triple as well for the Motormen.

In the opener of the twin bill, Ken Denville quieted the Harwood and Robert attack on only four hits in registering his fifth win of the season, the ninth for the Construction men who appear headed for another pennant winning season. They have yet to lose a game in league play this year.

Their rally came in the third frame, with one man out. Doug Dafoe, the ninth man in the order, singled to get the ball rolling, or flying in this case, for the winners. Carl Boomower followed with a base hit, with Glenn Carter drawing a walk to fill the bases.

The Printers scored their only run in the fifth, when Dwight Caldwell, Dave Skelton, and Ken Genereaux teamed up to stroke consecutive base hits, with Rathwell crossing the plate.

Dave Reid was charged with the loss, giving up seven hits to the Construction men. He issued one base on balls, setting three down on strikes.

Duvall led the winners at the plate with a triple and single, with Plane and Denville adding three base hits as well. Doug Dafoe had a pair of hits, with Boomhower rounding out the attack with one.

Generaust, Skelton, Rathwell and Jack Hughes went 1-for-2. RBI: L. DD LUCMW one-hit Printers to reach Denville, all collecting singles.

Lambert Defeats Simpsons-Sears Squad

Robert Lambert Construction unloaded on Simpsons-Sears in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League action Tuesday night, outstaying their opposition 29-19. A twelve way only game scheduled.

Sue Fobert and Nancy Birch combined for the win, giving up 15 hits. They struck out eight and walked seven.

Helen Sinclair and Brenda Sellers were tagged for pair on the Simpsons' mound, walking 12 batters and striking out four.

Birch had a 4-grand slam homer and Lambert, with Margie Scanlan adding a home run and double. Bonnie Goodfellow connected for five base hits.

Sandra Fleming had the win for Purinaeaters, allowing 12 hits. She walked four and served five.

Marie-anne Sills absorbed the loss on the Broadloom mound, giving up 28 hits to the hard hitting Purinaeaters. She fanned four and walked three.

St. Jules, Kerik Play Key Roles

Quotationless and Brooks Buell each scored four runs in their half of the first inning in an Industrial Softball League game Tuesday night, but that was it, as the teams fought to a 4-4 draw, in one of three played.

In the other contests, UIC whipped Stewart Warner, and the Independents doubled the score on CNR, 4-2.

St. Jules gave up four runs on four hits, striking out 10 and not walking a batter. Kerik also allowed four hits, fanning six and walking a pair.

St. Jules and Kerik led their teams at the plate as well.

St. Jules had a triple and single for Buell Const., with Les Rivers and Ron Stanton adding the other hits, both singles.

Kerik had a home run, with Bob Reid adding a double. Ron Mitchell and Jim Thompson each had a safety, to add to the Constellation tallies.

Rick Jubinville fired a three-inning 12 down on third strikes while issuing two free passes.

Grant Collet started for Stewart Warner, going five innings. He allowed nine runs on eight hits, fanning three and walking none. Dave Martin finished the game, giving up six runs on five hits. He struck out one and walked one.

Joe Soulan had a home run and single to pace the winners' attack, with Al Walker stroking four singles. Bill Belyea had a double and single for the winners, with Ron Embury, Joe Clark, and Sully-van rounding out the attack.

Dominic Lendrit had a home run for Stewart Warner, with Eric Powell and Craig Adams each contributing a single.

Perry Soule pitched for Independents attack on two hits, but three errors cost his CNR team the win. Soule fanned three and walked the same number in going the route.

Earl Coken picked up the win, being credited for five hits. He struck out four, walking five.

Mike Fahey and Bob Duvall with doubles, and Rob Mc-Murter, Zane Flumbe, and Soule with singles were the CNR hitters.

NHL Won't Reinforce WHA Team

Best Wishes But No Player Help

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association and owners shared a united front Tuesday, rejecting bids for NHL players to bolster the World Hockey Association in its fall series with the Soviet Union.

Alan Eagleson, NHLPA executive director, said Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and goaltender Bernie Parent of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers had been approached by the WHA to play in the September series.

The NHL was approached in February about reviving the Team Canada '72 concept of international competition in which the NHL stars scraped by the Russians in an eight-game series, winning the final three games to edge ahead in the showdown.

Renewal of the matches in September was rejected, Eagleson said, "because the timing factor was enough" to dismade both the owners and players.

He said Hockey Canada and the various international hockey bodies were advised in February that the only series the players and owners might consider was one structured on a World Cup format in which teams from all the hockey powers could compete.

"We've said before we'd like to play a series on this basis, probably during the 1975-76 season, either midway into or at the end of the season," Eagleson said.

The Russians, he added, have already said not a late-season series, leaving the months of December and January in which to work out an arrangement agreeable to the NHL.

"The (NHL) players and owners feel we are not interested in a September meeting," said Eagleson. "We feel the NHL ... did the job in '72 and can only wish the WHA well this year."

The player representatives did, however, ease their stand on the matter of exhibition games with the WHA beginning in the 1974-75 season.

Among the concessions laid down by Philadelphia Judge A. Sam Higginbotham earlier this year when the WHA withdrew $26 million in lawsuits against the NHL was a series of 15 pre-season games involving teams from both leagues.

Except where NHL and WHA teams were in the same city, the NHLPA refused to endorse the inter-league games. Under the terms of the courtroom declaion, the NHL would pay the WHA $10,000 for each scheduled game the NHL declined to play.

"Now it appears possible these games will be played," said Eagleson, citing a plan mapped out at Tuesday's meeting which the owners' and players' representatives will take to their colleagues for approval.

Asked what financial arrangements had been arrived at the players' executive director said: "It all depends on whose figures you're looking at. We feel it will cost the owners $100,000 a year. They put the figure at close to $200,000."

He said that under the court order by Judge Higginbotham, refusal by the NHL to play the exhibitions would have cost the league $150,000 a year until the games scheduled for this fall were played.

World Cup Soccer

Latin America Still Looking For First Win

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — With Brazil's soccer crown looking sadly tarnished, Latin America sets out again today in search of its first win of the 1974 World Cup series.

Argentina has the toughest task, facing Italy at Stuttgart in Group 4 of the 16-nation tournament. Uruguay takes on Bulgaria at Hanover in Group 3.

Other matches pair the Netherlands against Sweden at Dortmund in Group 3, and Haiti against Poland at Munich in Group 4. All kick off at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

Brazil's 0-0 draw against Scotland Tuesday kept the three-time champions still in the hunt for a fourth world crown, but did nothing to enhance their reputation.

They kept the Scots out only with a display of crunching tackles. Rivelino, Brazil's long-range scoring ace, collected a first-half caution from Dutch referee Arie Van Gemert and was fortunate not to be sent off for a series of second half fouls on Billy Bremner, the captain and midfield star of the Scots.

"Some of their tackles were so crude as to be unbelievable," he said. "I am a great admirer of Rivelino. But after being booked, I reckon he had three other tackles on Scottish players that could have meant the red card ordering off."

Brazil Manager Mario Zagallo countered, "The Scots were the ones who started playing it rough. We could not just stand there and watch them hit us."

Yugoslavia stunned African champion Zaire 9-0, equalling the World Cup record score set by Hungary over South Korea in 1954 and taking the lead in Group 2. Yugoslavia and Scotland each has three points in terms of the group, but the Slavs lead on goals difference.

Brazil follows with two points from two drawn matches. Zaire is last with none. Brazil must beat Zaire by at least 3-0 in its last first round match to be sure of a berth in the second round.

West Germany, the 1954 champion, made sure of advancing to the second round by defeating Australia 3-0 at Hamburg in Group 1.

East Germany and Chile, meanwhile, fought to a 1-1 draw in Berlin, keeping hopes alive for both teams.

The game of the day was between Brazil and Scotland—a nerve-tingling affair of physical contact, rough tackling, goalmouth thrills and feverish atmosphere. More than 18,000 wildly cheering Scots were among the sell-out crowd of 62,000.

Brazil dominated the midfield at first and were technically superior, but in the second half the Scots besieged the Brazilian goal. Brenmer was like a man possessed, setting up one attack after another.

Wolfgang Overath, who has played in the last two World Cups, scored with a spectacular right-foot shot from outside the penalty area in the 12th minute. Bernhard Cullmann headed the second in the 36th minute.

Eight minutes after half time Cappa a goal by Gerd Mueller, top scorer in the World Cup of 1970.

East Germany and Chile were tied 0-0 at halftime. Martin Hoffman shot East Germany into the lead in the 52nd minute, but an angled shot from Sergio Ahumada put Chile on even terms seven minutes later.

Canadian Football Still Up in the Air

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players' Association agreed Tuesday that the teams are within their rights to deny training facilities and equipment to CFL players.

"But I think it would be in team owners' best interest to help them," he said.

The nine CFL clubs Monday decided to withhold facilities and gear from league veterans who voluntarily resigned on training camps on the weekend to avoid attending training camps until a contract dispute is settled.

But in Ottawa, Tuesday, the Rough Riders reversed field and decided to allow veteran players to use club facilities and equipment. The Rough Riders have no lease on Lansdowne Park, their home field, for this season and couldn't prevent the players from practising there.

Fred Doesn't Ask for Much — Just Blood

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fred Sherry, coach-of-the-year in the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he has some surprises for the Stanley Cup-champion Philadelphia Flyers next season.

In an interview prior to his address tonight to a Manitoba Major Junior A Hockey League fund-raising dinner, Sherry said sometime this season he may ask his Flyers for a pint of blood.

It's something he observed at a recent coaching symposium in the Soviet Union, and he's taking a long look at it.

"I'm looking into it with our doctors. It's a program designed to build strength," Sherry said. "Forty days before a big event, the athlete is required to give up a pint of blood, which he regains naturally in 40 days."

Sherry says his team can also expect to be introduced to some new training procedures, such as land drills including the use of tennis balls, weights and the shifting of the body.

In his quest for new techniques for success, the Philadelphia coach said he learned a few other new tricks, "things that I didn't know, even though I've been following the Russians since 1960."

Sherry said his visit to the Soviet Union confirmed his convictions that what he's been doing is right.

"That proper drills can improve an athlete's skills regardless of age."

Commenting on the Team Canada-Soviet Union hockey series that will see the World Hockey Association players play the Russians, Sherry said the WHA "would be better prepared" than the NHL All-Stars were when they played the Russians two years ago.

"They've got a coach (Billy) over there, and his players (Harris) who knows the Russians. He's played and coached ours were at the start.

"They should have a good team if they take the best ours on each WHA team."

London's Gentlemen Lounge a World Away

LONDON (Reuter) — "Foreigners just don't understand this sort of thing," says the secretary of the Athenaeum, the most celebrated of London's gentlemen's clubs.

Few outsiders can hope to plumb the mysteries of the gentleman's club—a world apart with its own language, unwritten laws and intrigues.

The heart of clubland is Pall Mall, close to Trafalgar Square. Every lunchtime, sombre men in dark suits and bowler hats carrying umbrellas disappear into the cavernous palaces that line either side of the street.

Once inside, they become citizens of another world—cloistered safe from the worries of the 20th century.

"In all clubs, perhaps, there is an element of hypocrisy," writes Anthony Sampson in his book, Anatomy of Britain. "Everyone, as he ushers his guest through the mahogany doors, becomes a slightly less real person talks a bit louder, shakes hands a bit more heartily."

Foreigners may not understand the idea of the gentleman's club—but that only adds to the mystique. Businessmen find their American clients love to be taken to lunch at the club.

"Americans are tickled pink by it all," says Gerald Lindow, secretary of the Athenaeum.

The function of the gentleman's club can be easily misunderstood. It is frequently said that "the point of a club is not whom it lets in, but whom it keeps out."

Sampson writes: "The club is based on two ancient British ideas, the segregation of classes and the segregation of sexes. They remain fanatical on keeping people out long after they have stopped wanting to come in."

In fact London clubs have been enjoying something of a revival after going through a slump in the 1950s. The Athenaeum, where fees are 60 ($92) a year, is at its full strength of 2,000 members and has a two-year waiting list.

Most clubs have discarded the notorious blackball system of election, by which members could veto candidates by dropping a black ball in the ballot box. It led to abuses since there were always members willing to blackball anyone.

Now only two of the most aristocratic clubs, Whites and Boodles, use the blackball system. In the Athenaeum, a membership committee considers candidates "who have been proposed by existing members. Rarely do they turn anyone down.

The new system works because members will propose only people with a good chance of getting in—in the case of the Athenaeum, "chaps with an Athenian sort of character."

Lindow defines an Athenian as "a chap with some sort of intellectual interest apart from what he does—apart from biology if he is a biologist for example." He added quickly: "Of course, that doesn't mean we're against biologists."

Each club specializes in its own type of member. Diplomats tend to join the Travellers Club; soldiers, the United Services Club and politicians, the Reform Club. The Athenaeum goes in for bishops, but it also lists the present prime minister, Harold Wilson, among its members.

The clubs are steeped in history. In the library or the Athenaeum is a battered wicker chair on which Charles Dickens sat while writing his novels. An equally tattered notice attached to it warns: "Do not sit on this chair."

But members are allowed to sit on another chair nearby, used by former prime minister Harold Macmillan when he visits the institution.

Many clubmen happily admit that the gentlemen's club is one of the 20th century's anachronisms. The club chairman says: "The real truth is that the club is an institution which is archaic. People belong for prestige reasons."

In fact, it is probably because the clubs are anachronisms that they have managed to survive. Settle down in a creased leather chair, inhaling the smoke-filled atmosphere of a club drawing-room, and you can still believe that all is for the best in the best of all possible worlds—if you are, of course, a man and a member.

Porridge Provides Power

DUNEDIN, N.Z. (CP) — A rolled oats company here is using porridge power to beat the country's electricity crisis.

The company, which manufactures a big percentage of the rolled oats eaten in New Zealand as porridge, uses the husks from the oats to fire a steam-powered generator for its electricity.

At times the generator produces more power than the company needs and this is fed into the national grid to help ease the country's power shortage.

The company needs 140 kilowatts each hour of its working day to run milling and rolling machines.

Thousands of tons of oats go through the machines to make products ranging from porridge to baby foods. About a quarter of the oats are discarded as husks. Each month this adds up to several hundred tons of husks.

Indian Cultural Centre Successful B.C. Project

Signs outside the washrooms translate into crystal-clear, unprintable Anglo-Saxon.

Most signs are multilingual—Chilcotin, Carrier, Shuswap and English.

The Fish Lake Centre, 50 road miles west of Williams Lake and about 200 air miles north of Vancouver, is a centre for Indian cultural matters serving hundreds of square miles of central British Columbia.

About 100 men, women and children live there because when a man decides to return to school on Canada Manpower or other government grants, he brings his family and his wife takes courses too.

Most of the Indians attending are Chilcotin. Almost all speak English as a second language.

Chief Quineld King of Alexis Creek, B.C., has worked on a written Chilcotin language for eight years.

He depends on students more proficient in the oral language and together they work out the problems of putting the language on paper using a typewriter equipped with a few extra characters.

Next year, similar courses and workshops are planned in the Carrier and Shuswap languages.

The centre is more of a community than a school. Its 10 families in the area are supported by well-paid Indian leaders, part of a company called Caribou Indian Enterprises. The company is buying 100,000 acres of land owned by the department of national defence, which deeded logging rights in the area to the Indians 16 years ago.

The 100,000-acre parcel was part of a 1911 trade between the provincial and federal governments for what now is the University of British Columbia endowment land in Vancouver.

In 1963 the federal government built a logging school either in the same building or log siding. Older children continue study with their parents.

The buildings stood empty for three years before Doug Hasen, former Anahim Lake Reserve chief, and other Indians established the school last summer with the help of the Union of B.C. Chiefs.

Three Indian tribal groups run the school with Chilcotin and Shuswap and Carrier Indians represented on the board of directors.

The executive director is David Rose, a non-Indian social worker, who was hired to teach the job to a native Indian—assistant director Irvin Harry, who lives at the centre with his wife and three children.

Students range in age from 3 to 30, often in the same class. The younger ones often skip out of a child care centre in the same building to take sledge. Older children continue study with their parents.

There are courses in Indian band management, electrical wiring and plumbing.

The two-storey main building was only half completed when the Indians took over and surrounding cabins, originally loggers' bunkhouses, are being converted to family cabins. Plumbing and remodelling work is being done by students.

A few of the 23 students enrolled at Fish Lake are there on the recommendation of a parole officer and some others are attending because of family troubles. But school directors say they do not want it to become a half-way house and only a few troubled students are accepted at a time.

Obscure Chilean Sites Notorious Since Coup

SANTIAGO (AP) — Chacabuco, a sun-baked mining camp, and Dawson Island, surrounded by the frigid waters of the Straits of Magellan, have become common names in Chilean conversations.

Eight months ago most people could not even find them on maps.

Then the armed forces ousted Marxist President Salvador Allende in a coup last September and set up detention camps at Chacabuco and Dawson for arrested leftists. The two islands are at the extreme ends of long and narrow Chile, some 2,600 miles apart.

Chacabuco is an abandoned mining town in the Atacama Desert near the northern frontier, where some districts have not had a drop of rain in more than 30 years. Dawson, seven and a half miles off the southern tip of the mainland and it is swept almost daily by chill rains in the summer and snow in the winter.

A small navy base on Dawson became the prison for about 35 regular officials and political leaders in Allende's government along with at least 200 others rounded up by police and military patrols as leftists.

Leaders of the military government announced that the 35 top prisoners will be transferred from Dawson this week, with 29 coming to Santiago to stand trial on treason charges and six others to be tried in the port city of Valparaiso.

The other prisoners, who were separated from the 35 by a tall wall, also are expected to be moved to detention camps on the mainland because of the severe weather on Dawson.

Several local reporters permitted to visit Dawson late last year took photographs showing the prisoners wearing thick overcoats, scarves and gloves even though that was the middle of the summer on Dawson.

They said the prisoners told them they spent most of the time reading or talking, but they also played firewood and some had planted small gardens.

Among the major prisoners are 12 former cabinet ministers, 10 former congressmen, Luis Corvalan, head of the outlawed Communist party, and the other leftists political leaders.

Chacabuco, says government spokesmen, held about 1,100 prisoners during November, but many were freed and it is believed the camp now contains about 400. Many of them are professional men who aligned themselves with Allende's government, including doctors, teachers, reporters, engineers, accountants and architects.

Chacabuco was a thriving nitrate mining town until demand for the mineral ended and it was abandoned 36 years ago. The desert heat preserved most of the buildings, however, and the prison camp has several houses, iron sheds that serve as dormitories, a church, a small theatre, a hospital and a dusty plaza.

Observers permitted to enter the camp in February said the prisoners had formed a "council of elders" to organize activities and consult the army commander in charge.

Chacabuco and Dawson are not the only prison camps, but they have received the most notoriety. Other centres are at the fishing port of Pisagua, 1,250 miles north of Santiago, and Quiriquina Island, 300 miles south of the capital.

Roman Catholic priests working with the prisoners' relatives said leftists arrested after the coup are being held in more than a dozen other locations, including Santiago's boxing stadium and the women's jail.

Spruce Beetles Settle in Park

Referred to by scientists as the eastern spruce beetle but known by its friends as simply the spruce bug, it's destroyed around 1,000 trees in the park to date.

It is black and about a quarter-inch long and has staked out a place in the Lepper Brook area of the park as its home stead.

The beetle lays eggs that become larvae and later bugs that comb the bark of the red tree it stands for nourishment and cover.

Germi van Raalte of the Canadian forestry service, leading the fight against the bug, says the insect "girdles" the tree it inhabits, in effect strangling it.

Once dead, the tree falls and becomes an immediate home for more of the bugs, spawning more young and thus spreading the menace.

Sometimes, however, the insect doesn't win the battle with the tree on the first attack.

Biologists point to "pitch tubes" on the side of an attacked tree as evidence. A pitch tube is formed by a white liquid oozing down the trunk of a tree.

An internal reaction to the invader has set off the flow of the sap liquid and pushed out the insect, as though the tree has given a giant sneeze.

Mr. van Raalte says the effort of the tree to repel the attacker takes a lot of effort, thereby growth weakening it against future attacks.

But for these trees that have been infested and have been unable to expel the raiders, there are very definite telltale signs.

First, the brilliant red leaves turn a mouldy brown and, secondly, are the holes tapped by woodpeckers hunting the bugs.

So far the beetles have made their way to only a small portion of the park in a fairly remote area and Mr. van Raalte says he hopes the proper counter-attacks will contain them.

Mr. van Raalte says the park needs a good cleaning to get rid of the deadwood because the cleaner and tidier the park, the less likely is the spread of the infestation.

But the spruce beetle, like some sinister magician, is always in the wings just waiting for a change. Given the right climate and a sufficiently wide area of wood, it will strike.

The beetle has been a tough customer in the Cape Breton Highlands national park and officials there have given up the unequal struggle.

A forestry department manual says the beetle, which it describes as an "aggressive tree-killing beetle," destroyed some four billion board feet of spruce and pine in Colorado and ate 500 million cubic feet of white spruce in British Columbia during the early 1960s.

Aggressive Drivers Most Likely to Die

CHICAGO (CP) — The "notedly obstreperous" driver, young or old, drinking or non-drinking, is more likely to die in a road accident than one with a more balanced personality, says an article in a psychiatric journal published by the American Medical Association.

The article in Archives of General Psychiatry reports on a study of the records of 50 men who died in traffic accidents in the Baltimore area over a four-year period.

Family and friends of the victims were interviewed to determine their social characteristics and the findings were catalogued on a scale measuring their degree of social adjustment as reflected by their behavior.

The study found that drivers who were belligerent, negativistic, inclined to talk to excess, hyperactive and beset with emotional problems were most likely to die at the time of their fatal traffic accidents.

The victims also had a high record of traffic violations and were more likely to have been drinking at the times of their fatal accident.

The report said alcohol abuse may be associated with social aggressiveness.

The average age of the drivers had been 32. Half had had one or more prior speeding convictions and 23 per cent had been convicted of reckless or drunken driving. Licences of 23 per cent of the drivers had been suspended or revoked.

Some 78 per cent died in single-car accidents. Three-quarters of the victims had some alcohol in their system and more than half had enough alcohol to impair driving ability.

Housefly Develops Immunity

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The common housefly seems to be developing some resistance to chemical solutions used to control it says Prof. Russell Wright, an entomologist with the department of environmental biology at the Ontario Agricultural College.

In many cases, farmers depend entirely on chemicals to eliminate their fly problems," he said.

"As a result, houseflies seem to be developing resistance. Farmers need to set up a total control program, with the emphasis on sanitation and proper timing of chemical application."

Manure, wet bedding and spilled or mouldy feed provide fertile breeding areas for flies and should be removed, he suggested.

"Fly-control chemicals should be applied early in the season before fly populations can build up and generally reapplied periodically for continuous control," he said.

QUEBEC (CP) — Twenty-five years ago, 5,000 asbestos miners in Quebec's Eastern Townships were on strike for nearly five months in a bitter struggle that has come to represent the battle by Quebec labor for social justice against foreign corporations operating in the province.

This year, asbestos unions and other groups in the area are on a campaign lingled more with economic nationalism than the desire for social justice.

And there have been accusations that the Quebec government, like the one led by Maurice Duplessis in 1949, is siding with the foreign interests exploiting one of the world's largest asbestos deposits.

In 1949, the strikers were seeking a 15-cent-an-hour increase to bring them to $1 an hour and the Rand formula for collecting union dues from non-union members in the mines.

Today, the unions, the regional development council in the Townships and other groups are pushing for government action to get more of Quebec's asbestos refined and used in manufacturing in the province.

The seven foreign-controlled corporations working the asbestos lode export, in a raw state, 95 per cent of their annual production of about 1.9 million tons valued at about $220 million.

Excluding the Peoples Republic of China and the Soviet Union, which use most of their output at home, Quebec supplies nearly 70 per cent of the world's asbestos.

The asbestos strike ended July 1, 1949, after violence involving strikers, strike-breakers and police and the reading of the riot act. Monreal Roman Catholic Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau enraged Premier Duplessis by supporting the strike and ordering a special church collection to aid the strikers who were without a strike fund.

The strike is still considered a major turning point for Quebec's labor movement and the 25th anniversary has been marked this spring by articles and analyses.

Some of the spirit of the time has also been recaptured in the play Charbonneau et le Chef, presented by Montreal actor Jean Duceppe and his company, which studies the conflict between the premier and the bishop that eventually transferred out of Quebec.

The main thrust, of the campaign this year is for an asbestos marketing board "to buy asbestos from the producing companies and to sell it throughout the world," said Leo Boucher, president of the miners union in Asbestos, Que., 75 miles southeast of Quebec.

Through incentives and perhaps a two-price system—one for domestic buyers and one for the world—the board would also encourage new industry in the province to transform asbestos into finished products.

The proposal has run into opposition from the natural resources department and the asbestos producers' association but Mr. Boucher said "the board would help create jobs in secondary industry and fight unemployment."

Employment levels in the asbestos industry have remained practically stable since 1945.

Paul Fiteau, director-general of the Quebec Asbestos Mines Association, said "the product containing asbestos that we import cannot be produced here in big enough volume to make it profitable," adding that Canada produces finished products containing asbestos worth $32.8 million a year.

A foreign countries, moreover, charge low tariffs for raw asbestos and high tariffs for finished products, and manufacturers prefer to haul raw asbestos to their markets rather than pay more to haul the heavier finished products, said Mr. Fiteau.

But it is a government report describing the proposed marketing board as unconstitutional that has upset the unions, the regional development council and the Parti Quebecois which supports the proposal.

"Why should it be unconstitutional?" demanded Mr. Boucher. "After they've created so many other boards, they can create one for mining."

The report says establishing a marketing board would be outside the powers of the provincial legislature.

Simon Thibeault, an information agent with the regional development council, said the council obtained the report and released it "to ridicule the minister."

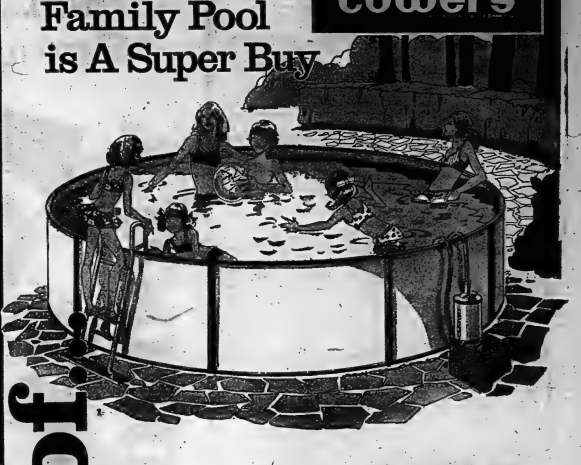
He said the report does not take into account the precedent set by the British Columbia government, which buys and markets all natural gas in the province through the B.C. Petroleum Corp.

Mr. Thibeault also contended that questions dealing with the asbestos industry in a government report on development of the area were replaced by the government after consultation with the asbestos firms but Natural Resource Minister Gilles Masse denied the allegation.

Mr. Masse, whose department is currently studying the province's tax and "royalty" structure to see whether Quebec gets sufficient economic return on resources whose value is constantly increasing, said there would be other problems apart from the constitution in administering the marketing board.

"If it's not constitutional, it's federalism that's stopping us from doing something, so we have to take the means of acting into our hands," said Opposition leader Jacques-Yvan Morin.

"And if it is constitutional, what's stopping us from acting?" added the former professor of constitutional law who told the national assembly.



"I can assure you the author wouldn't pass a constitutional law exam with such a report."

Mr. Masse said his department is studying a number of ways to increase processing and manufacturing of Quebec's mineral resources in the province "and some of these projects pose technical problems."

"That is why, as well as weighing the pros and cons of a marketing board, we are looking at other ways of parallel us to increase processing in Quebec, such as setting up a body to seek new foreign markets and promote establishment of new industries in this sector."

Classes Are Taught By Phone

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ring of a phone has opened new fields of learning for about 500 adults who are taking high-school classes by telephone.

They are enrolled in a pilot program started a year ago by the Los Angeles unified school district. Many are handicapped or are confined to hospitals and rest homes.

Classes are conducted by a teacher sitting at a special telephone console. He phones each student individually but is able to talk to them all at once. The students also can talk with one another through the special phone hookup.

"We're very excited about it," said Lella Mackie, who developed the idea and now runs the program. "If we're successful, we're going to be reaching people we could never reach before, like the elderly and those who can't get out."

Classes cover a wide variety of subjects, including history, government, music, literature, mathematics, astronomy, geology and English for Spanish-speaking adults.

Text books and other class materials, such as rock samples for the geology course, are mailed to the students or can be picked up at the school. Examinations for students taking a class for credit are mailed or conducted over the telephone if the student is home or otherwise unable to take a written test.

Rex Hulett, a 29-year-old blind student working for his high school diploma, said the phone classes are the best instruction he has received.

"It's a lot better, I feel, because I don't have to be under any pressure," he said.

"There's no one to say, 'Sit still, don't do that.' If I have to do something, I can get up and do it and then come back to the phone."

Ontario to Go to Courts If New Tax Not Deductible

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will challenge in the courts any federal ruling that is unfavorable to the 50-per-cent tax on speculative real estate profits, Treasurer John White told a rowdy session of the legislature Tuesday.

The minister said he is confident any unfavorable ruling would be overturned if it is tested in the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Speaker Allan Reuter made repeated pleas for order as the ministers flatly rejected opposition attempts to have the legislation withdrawn or the impact of the tax reduced until the issue has been resolved.

Mr. White was reacting to published reports that said the federal revenue department has ruled that the Ontario tax would not be deductible for federal income tax purposes.

For example, public corporations might pay total taxes of up to 110 per cent on their profits in Ontario real estate transactions.

Mr. White originally calculated—assuming the tax would be deductible—that the highest combined rate would be 87 per cent.

The province's tax does not apply to principal residences.

Mr. White said the reported ruling by federal revenue officials is "simply an interpretation" and not a legal statement.

He criticized federal Finance Minister John Turner for procrastinating on a reply to his letter of April 25 which asked that the speculation tax be eligible as an income tax deduction.

Mr. Turner has said that he would not comment on the tax until it was passed by the legislature. The tax legislation received royal assent two weeks ago.

Mr. White argued that the speculation "is a tax on land — not on income — and therefore it is clearly an item that can be deducted from income tax as a business expense.

He accused the federal government of failing to understand that the tax was introduced to curb rampant speculation in land and properties—not as a money-making device for the province.

Mr. White said the tax is working. There were more listings on the market and the rate of price increase had slowed.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said the government should implement the speculation tax as a reduced rate until the conflict with Ottawa is settled.

Mr. White refused and accused the Liberals of being allied with land speculators.

Mr. Nixon said the accusation was a "gratuitous and stupid comment."

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the tax legislation should be withdrawn because the legislature passed it "largely under false pretenses."

Outside the legislature, Mr. Nixon compared the land speculation to the province's tax on energy which was introduced at the last session of the legislature but withdrawn after public protest.

The opposition leader doubted Mr. White would budge this time because he "now has his feet in the cement of his office."

Mr. White said outside the house that he had no plans to challenge an unfavorable federal ruling on the tax until after the July 8 federal election.

Asked why the matter wasn't resolved before the legislation was brought down or announced in the April 9 budget, Mr. White said this was "a tax on active market and it was impossible for us (Ontario) to broaden our circle of confidentiality."

"We couldn't fool around and take a chance of it leaking out."

Welch Plans Reforms In Jury Selection

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation to change the present jury system, including abolition of grand juries, was introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Robert Welch.

The bill will make juries more representative by shortening the list of occupations exempted from jury duty and by instituting a random selection process for jurors.

Mr. Welch said the legislation will make jury service more convenient by allowing selected jurors to fulfil their duty at a later date if they are unable to serve when originally summoned.

Instead of allowing certain occupations to be totally exempt from jury duty, the new legislation allows individuals to obtain deferrals when circumstances warrant.

The new bill gives absolute exemption from jury duty to elected and appointed legislators, judges, lawyers, law students and those engaged in law enforcement, medical practitioners and veterinarians and all members of religious orders and clergymen.

The wives of exempted persons are also exempt.

The abolition of the grand jury was earlier recommended by the Ontario Law Reform Commission.

Grand juries now study evidence on indictable offences and determine whether evidence exists to warrant sending the accused to trial.

Mr. Welch said amendments to the Criminal Code are required before the grand jury can be abolished.

Preliminary Hearings May Be Eliminated

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the Law Reform Commission of Canada wants preliminary hearings abolished in criminal cases, to be replaced by a system to let the accused know the Crown's case before trial.

The newspaper says the recommendations are contained in a working paper to be released by the commission today for discussion before submission to the federal government.

The commission calls preliminary hearings a cumbersome, expensive method of telling the accused know how strong a case the Crown has.

An accused should be given all possible prosecution evidence before entering a plea, the commission is reported as saying.

Charge Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister John Rhodes angrily denied a suggestion Tuesday that the government receives funds from trucking companies and maintains high freight rates in return.

He told Liberal Eddie Sargent (Grey-Bruce) there is no tie-in between the Conservative party and trucking interests and denied that any funds are paid by transport interests.

Turbo Vapor Injector Is Undergoing Tests

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Research Foundation is testing a gas-saving device marketed by Turbo Vapor Injector to make sure it is as good as the company says, Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, said Tuesday.

He made the statement in the legislature after Stephen Lewis, NDP leader, asked whether the government checked out companies it takes on trade missions to sell Ontario products abroad.

Mr. Lewis said Turbo is being investigated by the Better Business Bureau in Detroit and by the Michigan attorney-general's office for "claims far beyond the apparent capacity."

Mr. Bennett said Turbo did not go on an Ontario trade mission to the United Kingdom last year although Promotional Advertising Bureau Ltd., of which Turbo is a subsidiary, was part of the mission.

However, Turbo went into England two or three days prior to the official commencement of the mission and began selling the device, the minister said.

Mr. Bennett also said Turbo has asked the government if the device might be used on some provincial police cars and other government vehicles and the request is being studied.

Drainage Report Submitted

TORONTO (CP) — A select legislature committee on land drainage presented its final report Tuesday after two years of study and an expenditure of between $800,000 and $750,000.

The committee, led by Lorne Henderson (PC—Lambton), composed of 19 members of the legislature—six Conservatives and two each from the Liberal and New Democratic Party ranks.

The 104-page report, the second tables the committee was instituted in June, 1972, contains a series of recommendations to improve the drainage of agricultural land in the province.

The committee travelled across the province during its two-year study and made side trips to Manitoba, Michigan, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Quebec and Florida to study other approaches to drainage.

The recommendations include proposals to increase the amount of provincial money available to farmers for land drainage improvements, the institution of a land drainage branch in the ministry of agriculture and a committee to study the possibility of placing control of water resources under the conservation authorities.

Mr. Henderson told a news conference the committee feels agriculture production in the province might be almost doubled with the use of proper drainage.

The southwestern area of the province has the best drainage and Eastern Ontario the poorest.

If the committee's recommendations were followed, the province would spend about $16 million annually for 10 years and the province had the best drainage system estimated called for about $6.4 million.

The committee recommended that the province provide interest-free, 10-year loans covering 50 per cent of the cost of farmer's drainage construction.

Now, the province provides 10-year loans at four-per-cent interest covering 75 per cent of drainage costs.

Cost of draining farmland ranges between $200 and $300 an acre, depending on the area, Mr. Henderson said.

The committee, which held 99 meetings with a total attendance of about 1,200, received 94 briefs and submissions and made 139 recommendations for improved drainage legislation.

Fantasy Follows Rabbits On Quest for Peaceful Life

By DAN SLOVITT ... The CANADIAN PRESS

It begins with a vision, a prophecy of imminent death and destruction. And from that arises a fantasy depicting a band of wild rabbits, not entirely satisfied with their present life and security, moving through an adventurous saga that takes them from flood to foe and from periods of relative comfort and peace, to times of sheer terror.

In his first novel, Richard Adams, in Watership Down, takes the rabbits from their warren, ruled by a military dictatorship, in quest of a peaceful and fulfilling life.

He portrays the rabbits almost to the point of giving them human life. But they continue to display the animalistic instinct for bloodand-gut survival and cunning.

The rolling hills and meadows of England provide the setting as Fiver, an undersized rabbit in a world where only the strongest survive, envisions great danger lurking in the warren.

He sees a field covered with blood and is also, because a number of his best visions have proven correct, to convince his older brother Hazel and a handful of the other bucks to the warren that they should flee.

Their first encounter is with the Owsla, the ruling clique and warren police. And throughout the novel, which contains much Lapine, or rabbit terminology, the fleeing buck rabbits continue to fight with the elements and other animal life.

Hazel becomes the hero of the band through his leadership, strength and ability to come back from each encounter with the enemy.

Rabbit folklore is interspersed as they continue their trek towards their new home and a better society.

They devise a plan to steal does from another warren to begin their life in their new home and the ensuing battle nearly brings about the destruction of all.

Finally they reach their destiny in a somewhat safer new world with their offspring assured of a better life to come.

The story is set in the little Long Island resort town of Amity and the terror seems never-ending.

As a young woman takes a midnight swim, she is struck violently and the next morning pieces of her body are found at the water's edge.

One by one, more lives are snuffed out by a rare and fearsome great white shark, a monster that battles even an experienced shark fisherman.

Entwined in the tale of death and destruction are infamous small-town politics, a brief love affair and the agony of Amity police chief Martin Brody.

Chief Brody, expected to uphold law and order and the safety of the citizens of his community, faces constant opposition from the town fathers who decide to cover up the initial shark death. They fear for the summer tourist trade, their lifeline.

Chief Brody is forbidden to close the beaches — the town fathers feel the shark has gone—but the monster remains and kills again and again.

Matt Hooper, a young oceanographer with an interest in sharks, joins Brody and an old shark fisherman in the hunt for the terror of the sea.

But the great white shark—they say he is 25 to 27 feet long—defies their logic and evades them for several days. He attacks first on one side.

Hooper, lowered into the water in a cage to photograph the villain, becomes shaken of his victims and the monster, just before he is finally destroyed, eats the boat.

Author Benchley, who became interested in sharks as a result of summer sharkhunting expeditions from Nantucket, describes the terror of the shark attacks in a spine-tingling manner.

Everything you always wanted to know about the occult-but didn't know whom to ask about is covered in the encyclopedia of the Unexplained, a coffee-table-size compendium of information about magic, occultism and parapsychology.

Edited by Richard Cavendish and with J. B. Rhine as consultant, the book is a mine of information on everything occult from the Abominable Snowman to the Zodiac.

As the editor points out in his preface, universal encyclopedias are concerned with what an informed consensus holds to be the probable truth about the subject. the Unexplained it is necessarily concerned with speculation and the reporting of speculation.

As such, it makes fascinating reading. We learn that the Abominable Snowman, known as Sasquatch in Canada, has a history dating back to the 3rd or 4th century BC. Acupuncture and auras are dealt with, faith healing and flying saucers, astrology, numerology and palmistry, exorcism, meditation and yoga.

Cavendish, the son of an Anglican clergyman, has become known as a leading authority in the field of the occult and edited Man, Myth and Magic, a periodical appearing on Canadian newsstands in the early 1970s.

Prof. Rhine, a pioneer of experimental research in parapsychology at Duke University in North Carolina, is the author of several books on the paranormal, the best known being New Frontiers of the Mind, published in 1937.

Occupational Cancer Labor Meeting Topic

GENEVA (Reuter) — For millions of people throughout the world, occupational cancer is the hidden danger in their workplace.

Hundreds are known to die each year of cancer contracted through substances or processes with which they deal, and the number could be much higher.

Now governments, labor and industry are about to unite their efforts to make life safer for such employees. Delegates to the annual International Labor Conference—main congress of the 125-country International Labor Organization (ILO) — are expected to create a series of standards to reduce the scourge of occupational cancer.

Figures released by the ILO show that employees in certain industrial sectors face high-incancer risks because of the nature of their work.

The rate of lung cancer, among workers at one chromic production plant in the United States was 60 times the standard rate for white and 80 times that for black workers.

Occupational cancers occur mainly where the action of cancer-producing substances (carcinogens) is most intense and prolonged, mostly affecting the skin, lungs and bladder.

Many industrial products and consumer goods hold invisible dangers, containing occupational carcinogens either as impurities or as parts of compounds. These include aniline dyes and rubber antioxidants, which release their cancer-causing component in the body under the influence of metabolic processes.

Many stoconomically important chemicals have also shown carcinogenic properties when introduced into experimental animals, although scientists have yet to find similar evidence related to humans.

Workers engaged in every-day tasks face the risk of cancer, the second most frequent cause of death in the Western world, if precautions are not taken in the workplace, an ILO spokesman said.

Tar, soot, paraffin and mineral oils can attack the skin of petroleum workers and road builders. Chrome, nickel and its compounds can act in the same way on electrolytic platers, causing cancer of the lungs, jaws and nasal regions.

The ILO also said special care is needed in use of reserve in any kind of radiography, of aromatic amines in a wide range of uses including dye manufacture and rubber processing and of arsenical pesticides.

"In addition, new products whose full effects are not yet known are coming into use constantly," the spokesman added.

Delegates to the International Labor Conference, which will meet here June 5-26, will consider a draft text for international standards, drawn up on the basis of replies from 59 countries, which suggests that carcinogenic substances and agents to which workers may be exposed should be replaced as far as possible by less harmful ones.

Protective measures should be prescribed by the competent authorities in each country.

Employees should be medically examined before starting work on a potentially hazardous task and examined regularly afterwards, the draft report said.

The expected new standards will also contain provision for the keeping of medical records for assessment by researchers.

Communism No Longer Dirty Dominican Word

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuter) — Communism is no longer a dirty word in the Dominican Republic.

A law legalizing the Communist party is expected to be passed soon, following President Joaquin Balaguer's virtually unopposed victory in recent general elections.

It is a complete turnabout from 1963 when President Juan Bosch was overthrown by the army for allegedly harboring Communists.

Two years later, left-wing and right-wing forces battled in the streets of Santo Domingo and fears that Communists would take over the country were so strong that United States Marines were dispatched.

Today, taxi drivers still talk about the war as they drive through the narrow, winding streets of the city, pointing out spots where the fighting was heaviest.

Balaguer presented the bill to legalize the Communist party in congress last February, in the midst of the election campaign.

He said the Communist party was made up of young, intellectuals who held Marxist-Leninist ideas-but did nothing that other political parties would not do.

"It is necessary to adopt measures that would permit this political group of intellectuals to act freely instead of clandestinely," he added.

About 300 strong, the Communist party was formed in 1964 together with other left-wing groups following a coup against Bosch. Some of its members come from prominent families.

Despite the political ban, local Communists have been drifting back into public life. Some known Communists have been given government jobs and newspapers have published letters from party officials.

Political observers believe Balaguer's aim is to split the left. He also needs Communist support to carry out his agrarian reforms, opposed by conservative landowners.

The president's desire to give left-wingers a legal forum for voicing their complaints, an alternative to violent protest in the streets, is largely motivated by the growing strength of a radical left-wing group, the Dominican Popular Movement (MPD).

However, Balaguer does not propose to legalize the MPD and other extreme left-wing groups like the Popular Socialist Party, which he dismisses as bands of terrorists and criminals.

The Sting Confidence Comedy

Winner of seven Academy Awards, including best picture, director and musical score, the entertaining film has lived up to early predictions that it premised an "outstanding outlook."

Producer George Roy Hill also teamed up with Newman and Redford in Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid which became a box office smash.

The score, by Marvin Hamlish, uses Scott Joplin piano rags as a period basis which effectively adds to the atmosphere.

Associate Directors Appointed

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Five directors of regional professional theatres have been appointed associate directors of the Stratford Festival.

Robin Phillips, artistic director-designate of the festival, said Monday, the five directors will be brought to Stratford for periodic consultations. They will not receive salaries but their expenses will be paid.

The five representing theatres from coast to coast are: John Wood, newly-appointed head of Neptune Theatre, Halifax; Jean Roberts, director of the National Arts Centre, Ottawa; Bill Glasco, Tarragon Theatre, Toronto; John Neville, Citadel Theatre, Edmonton; and Christopher Newton, Playhouse Theatre Centre, Vancouver.

Miss Roberts and Mr. Newton were named associate directors of the Festival Stage here; Mr. Wood will be associate director of the Avon Stage, and Mr. Wood associate director of the Third Stage.

Mr. Phillips said that while the associate directors will be concerned primarily with the theatre season at their particular stages, they will be consulted on the development of the festival as a whole.

Mr. Phillips recently announced the plans to treat the three festival stages as equals, and not have the Avon Theatre as the main festival stage, secondary to the main Festival Theatre. By bringing in directors from across the country, he hopes to have Stratford become the focus of a national theatre spread across Canada.

In his announcement Monday, Mr. Phillips said the appointment of the five should strengthen both the Stratford Festival and theatre in Canada generally.

"Not only do I look for the support and participation of this group of directors in the new Avon Theatre," Mr. Phillips said, "but we all will be able to offer some valuable assistance to each director's particular area of activity."

The appointments run to October, 1975.

Mr. Phillips, who assumes office later this summer succeeding Jean Gascon as artistic director of the festival, announced earlier he will sit on the advisory groups for each of Avon.

New Departments

OTTAWA — Two new program departments are to be created at the National Arts Centre July 1, deputy director-general Richard Doucette announced Monday.

A dance and variety department to be administered by Ted Demorse, will include all theatrical dance groups and popular entertainment, while a festival department, administered by Andree Gingras, will coordinate the National Arts Centre's contribution to Festival Canada each summer. The Centre's directors of music and theatre, Mario Bernardi, Jean Roberts and Jean Herbert, will also serve as directors of the new festival department to ensure continuity of artistic policy throughout the year, Mr. Doucette said. Miss Gingras will report to Mr. Southern.

Among other changes announced by the Board are the nomination of Bruce Carter as deputy director-General and Richard Doucette as secretary of the National Arts Centre Corporation. Mr. Carter will continue to be responsible for all Centre operational departments. An appointment will soon be made to fill the vacated position of assistant director general, in charge of financial, personnel and administrative questions, Mr. Carter and the new assistant director general will also report directly to Mr. Southern.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, June 20 . . .

Aries (March 21-April 19) You will find domestic problems tend to irritate and frustrate you today more than usual. Don't make it rough on others.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your attitude toward your work and co-workers at the present leaves much to be desired. Harsh words don't help.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Review your careful with your possessions; else you might lose or have something that you prize taken from you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You're apt to make everything you do today a much more difficult task than it really is. Try to be less demanding of others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be flexible or else you're likely to take a position on something that will back you into a corner. You'll have a tough time getting out of it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sep. 22) This is not a day when you will willingly share with one you're closely associated with. A problem over finances is likely.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely tactful as to how you use your authority today. If you're disinterested you can expect negative responses.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your plans are likely to be thwarted today by conditions you have little control over. Dealing with windmills won't help.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be as guard or you could be drawn into another's problems and wind up duping deeply into your purse.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An important association requires diplomatic handling at this time. It's precarious and could easily be tipped off balance.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Place yourself where your work is concerned. Do as much as you can competently, but don't let your deadlines become torrents.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Your fondness for the good things of life may lead to your undoing. Overindulgence is a definite no-no today.

Alewife Fishery A Going Concern

FREDERICTON (CP) — The federal fisheries service is developing a commercial gaspereau fishery in the St. John River at the nearby Mactaquac Dam.

For many years the alewife, or gaspereau as it is known locally, has been fished by gill-net and trap nets along the shores of the St. John and related lakes.

Gaspereau has served as food in the fresh, smoked and salted state; is used as bait in the lobster fishery and, since 1969, used extensively in the pet-food industry.

Recently it also has been pickled, filleted and frozen for the export market.

Catches of Gaspereau in the river system have climbed from just over two million pounds in 1964 to almost 14 million in 1971 before declining to about 5.5 million last season.

Fisheries biologists say the construction of hydro-electric dams has been one of several factors having serious effects on the successful migration and spawning of fish such as the gaspereau and salmon.

For this reason the Mactaquac Dam, built in 1968, included a mechanical fish-lift which depends fish into waiting tank trucks for transportation and release at selected sites above the dam.

Biologists say that reproduction and feeding conditions in the Mactaquac headpond are apparently favorable to the gaspereau and for this reason there has been a 40-fold increase in alewife population.

An estimated 1.4 million fish are involved and scientists have estimated that 500,000 are enough to maintain the species. The fisheries service has served notice that it intends to harvest about 1 million.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Q: I am flying to England at the end of July. Where may I obtain a passport, and what do they cost?

A: Passport application forms are available at Post Offices across Canada. The passports are good for five years and cost $10. You need documentary proof of Canadian citizenship, and two identical passport photographs. It is supposed to take four weeks to get a passport but it sometimes takes a lot longer, so it would be wise to send your application in as soon as possible.

Q: I'm considering purchasing a car in Germany in conjunction with a European holiday and I wondered under what circumstances I could bring back the car to Canada without duty.

A: Persons formerly residents of Canada, who have been absent from Canada for a period of at least 12 months and have owned and used the automobile for six months, may import it duty and tax free for their own personal use.

Q: I am told that on a trip through Virginia, a visit to Fredericksburg is well worth while. Have you any details available.

A: One of the most historic cities in the U.S., Fredericksburg was officially founded and took its present name in 1727. However, settlers had built a fort there as early as 1676.

In a valley at the head of navigation on the Rappahannock River, the city was a port for ocean vessels for many years. Fredericksburg was George Washington's mother's last home and the home of his only sister, Betty Washington Lewis. James Monroe set up his first law office there in 1786.

Between 1861 and 1865 Fredericksburg was an armed camp and on several occasions was the scene of violent battles. By the end of the war it was desolate, its houses torn by shot and shell, the dead buried in its streets and yards.

The Battle of Fredericksburg was fought December 13, 1862. Other pitched battles fought in the vicinity were the Battles of Chancellorsville, The Wilderness and Spotsylvania Court House. After the Battle of Chancellorsville, the city served as a hospital for the Confederate wounded and after the Battle of The Wilderness it did similar service for the Union forces. The four battlefields are now included in the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park.

At the Information Centre, 2800 Princess Anne Street, visitors may obtain free parking passes for the downtown metered zone. Block tickets are also available for admittance to High Mercer apothecary shop, James Monroe law office, Kenmore, Mary Washington house and Rising Sun tavern.

From Fredericksburg state route 3 leads down the historic Northern Neck to such shrines as George Washington's birthplace national monument and Stratford, Robert E. Lee's birthplace, where Lee mansion, considered one of the finest examples of Georgian architecture in the U.S., has been fully restored. Another scenic, historic route is U.S. 17 down the southern side of the Rappahannock River

EAGLE IN THE SKY — Wilbur Smith. . . . . .

This latest novel by Wilbur Smith is set in South Africa and Israel. Young David Morgan, heir to a South African diamond mine against the fire Dave mapped out for him by his family. Determined to live his own life he trains as a test pilot, but after meeting Debra, an attractive young Israeli writer, he is drawn to Jerusalem and takes part in Israel's nerve wracking struggle for survival.

CASSELMARA — Susan Howatch. . . . . .

This is a family saga set in Ireland in the 19th century after the great famine. Lord de Salis has inherited the estate of Casselmara from his father and was determined to make the lot of his tenants better, but this was a time of great political ferment in Ireland Parnell had introduced the Home Rule Bill to the Parliament at Westminster, and everywhere secret societies were springing up. Amidst these changing times, Lord de Salis decided to marry again, and chooses a young American girl many years his junior; the marriage is a happy one, but with the death of Lord de Salis, his son, who is weak and ineffectual in his handling of the estate, almost destroys all his father's hopes and plans. This is a story of a violent period in Irish history and of three generations of an Anglish family who loved Ireland.

THE OLMEC HEAD — David Westheimer. . . . . .

From the author of Von Ryan's Express, we have another suspenseful novel full of action and intrigue. Hired to smuggle out of South America a massive piece of sculpture known as the Olmec Head, Sam Bell sets off on the most harrowing adventure of his life — accompanied by four trucks, eight Mexican drivers and an attractive, business woman who is frustratingly reserved. Waiting for him along the way are breakdowns, accidents, shootouts, treachery, and a determined policeman who plans to stop bem before they reach the border.

THE FRENCH INHERITANCE — Anne Stevenson. . . . . .

When his French mother left him a house in a small town in France, David Hurst decides to go to France to take charge of the property himself. What he found in the house was startling enough, but the reaction of the local people in his visit leads him back thirty years to the dark days of the German occupation, and a tragedy in which David himself is involved. Set amidst the vineyards and farmlands of Southern France where serenity prevails, the past gradually encroaches, bringing with it fear and death.

TIME AND CHANCE — Anna Wilderley. . . . . .

In the moving and dramatic family saga, the author traces the history of an Irish family in the years preceding the creation of the Irish Republic. It is a time of terrible strain; Dorothy Carroll is English, her husband Irish. Helplessly they must watch as their children are drawn into the struggle. As with the novels of R. F. Delderfield, "Time and Chance" re-creates a loving and warm family as real and believable as one's own.

Himalayas Making Pitch for Tourists

BOMBAY - (CP) — The snowy valleys and 1,500-year-old temples of the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal is making a big effort to attract Western tourists.

But Nepal lacks an adequate number of modern hotels. The government has now embarked on a plan to build a network of "travellers' hotels" and "travellers' bungalows" all over the kingdom.

Already, 21 hotels have been completed in Katmandu, the capital, Pokhara, Chitwan and the Everest foothills. Within the next two years the number of hotels is expected to be doubled.

The West German government is helping to beautify the city of Bhaktapur, much of the funds provided by Bonn are being spent on the renovation of ancient temples, one of Nepal's chief attractions for the West-ern tourist.

The flow of tourists to Nepal has been increasing every year. In 1952, less than 300 Western visitors went to the then remote kingdom located between China and India. Last year, their number rose to nearly 70,000.

The number of Canadian tourists who went to Nepal last year is estimated to be more than 1,000. A group of 60 Canadians is currently in Katmandu.

Nepal expects more than 100,000 Westerners next February when one of the most colorful events in the history of the kingdom is scheduled.

This is the coronation of King Birendra, the young Hindu monarch. Officials in Katmandu say the ceremony will be "unforgettably glittering."

Besides tourists, the coronation will be watched by dignitaries from many nations. The Nepalese are hoping that Queen Elizabeth, U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin will be among those traveling to Katmandu for the occasion.

The Nepalese are particularly keen that the Queen should be present at the coronation since Nepal had over the decades formed the British army, with some of its best soldiers.

The new hotels and other projects being built for the coronation will serve as the infrastructure of the growing tourist industry, Nepalese officials say.

The airport at Katmandu is being modernized to accommodate big commercial aircraft.

British Labor Faces New Defeat in House

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's minority Labor government today faces a parliamentary challenge that might plunge the British people into their second election in 1974.

A major policy issue—Labor's plans for state takeovers of private industry—was slated for House of Commons debate today.

Edward Heath's Conservatives and Jeremy Thorpe's Liberals have teamed up to test the government's plans and, together, in the 635-member chamber, they outnumber Labor.

Wilson's chances of averting a damaging defeat, which would call into question his right to continue in office, depend mainly on the still-secret voting intentions of Scottish, Irish and Welsh nationalist groups.

Neither major opposition party is believed ready for a new election, and may arrange for some of their members to stay away when the vote is taken, as they have done more than once since Wilson emerged a surprise winner of Britain's Feb. 28 election with a House of Commons margin of five over the Conservatives.

However, election speculation heightened Wednesday when the government was defeated by a nine-vote margin, 308 to 299, on a move to refund 10 million ($24 million) in taxes to trade unions.

In that debate 13 Liberals, six Scottish nationalists, two Irish legislators and maverick Labor member Dick Taverne voted against the move, ensuring its defeat. Three Irish legislators and two Welsh nationalists backed Labor.

The government's defeat may bolster demands by some Labor members that Wilson have a showdown election this summer.

Employment Secretary Michael Foot declared shortly before the late-night vote that the government was "very eager" for an election.

"We are ready for battle," he said.

However, Wilson is not likely to be stampeded into an election at a time when the British people have their belly full of trouble and strife.

The tragedy of Northern Ireland grinds on. Violence is spilling over into mainland Britain with the bombing of Parliament Monday a grim warning of things that might yet come.

Inflation is roaring toward an annual rate of 20 per cent, a mountain of wage demands is building up from unions with autumn as the target date, and these are only a few of the problems staring Wilson in the face.

Their daunting nature has revived speculation that he may call a new election by next September or October, regardless of the outcome of developments in the House of Commons.

A ballot in the fall, some politicians say, would enable shrewd campaigner Wilson to appeal for a stronger mandate before the full impact of brewing problems soaks into the minds of the voters. Those problems include slumping foreign trade, a countrywide slowdown in business and output and a split among Labor members over key issues of policy, including its pledge to win cheaper terms of Common Market membership.

Convicts Are Captured In Montreal Gun Fight

MONTREAL (CP) — After hijacking a prison laundry van and then a postal truck, three of five escapees from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary were recaptured Wednesday in a dramatic shootout with police.

Police said early today they were still searching for Richard Blass, 23, and Jacques Masse, 31, who escaped Wednesday morning from the penitentiary in nearby Laval with Pierre Longpre, 37, Pierre Vincent, 28, and Roger Rousseli, 28.

Rousseli, the only person injured in the 45-minute gun battle in east-end Montreal, was shot in the thigh. Police said he had been released from hospital.

The five men, all serving long terms for armed robbery, escaped at 9:45 a.m. after overcoming guards, binding them and forcing them into a store room, police said.

The men then hid in a laundry empty being driven into a van. As an inspection at the van was about to begin, guards said the men attacked them, held them as hostages and locked the prison van and forced the driver to drive the vehicle to Montreal.

They found and left once in Montreal, the van was stopped and the five prisoners split up.

Police said Blass and Masse commandeered a car and the other three hijacked a postal truck.

Following a telephone tip, about 50 police converged on a vacant flat in a predominantly French-speaking area of the city, where three of the men were hiding.

As the police, armed with shotguns, tear gas and bullet-proof vests, entered the area, they ordered hundreds of residents sunning themselves on balconies to take cover.

Rousseli was wounded before he and Vincent surrendered.

Appeals by police to Longpre to surrender went unheeded until a tear gas canister was thrown into a shed attached to the rear of his hideout.

He emerged hands held high, and collapsed in the arms of a police.

Although police had suspected the escaped prisoners of using a mock gun of wood in their two hijackings, a spokesman said a .38-calibre firearm was found lying in the apartment where the men had sought refuge.

Police said the three men were being detained in Montreal police headquarters.

Longpre was serving 23 years for armed robbery and attempted murder. Vincent was serving 14 years. Masse 17, Rousseli eight and Blass 11, all for armed robbery.

All except Rousseli have escaped custody before.

Law of Seas Parley Opens

CARACAS (AP) — Most countries were represented today at an historic conference opened to write a new law governing the wealth of the seas. But there was doubt among some leaders whether there would be any immediate progress.

Five thousand delegates and official observers are attending the third United Nations conference on the law of the sea. Conference president H. S. Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka said he was doubtful a comprehensive treaty could be completed at the 2½-month meeting.

"There is so much to do, so little time, and many nations are participating for the first time so they want to express their views," he said.

Only Taiwan and North Vietnam are not participating. Taiwan was not invited in deference to the Chinese government, and North Vietnam refused to attend because the Viet Cong was excluded.

Previous law-of-the-sea conferences were held in 1958 and 1960, but they were on a smaller scale and failed to reach significant accords.

NATO Backs Consultation But U.S. Has Reservations

OTTAWA (CP) — NATO foreign ministers have reaffirmed the need for close consultation on matters of the alliance but U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said the United States reserves the right to unilateral action.

Kissinger told a news conference at the close of a two-day NATO meeting Wednesday that situations may arise under which the U.S., because of its worldwide interests, may have to act alone, "informing our allies as quickly as possible."

Asked whether a new declaration of alliance principles will prevent U.S. forces being placed on alert without alliance consultation as happened during the Middle East war, Kissinger said that kind of action can never be ruled out.

But he said the U.S. will make every effort to co-ordinate its military action with that of the other NATO members. The declaration, he said, "states the aspirations of the alliance."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns both hailed the document, promoted mainly by the U.S., as a major achievement in the development of international goodwill.

But informed observers say it does little more than restate the principles which have guided the alliance since the end of its 25-year history.

The document was given only vocal approval by the ministers Wednesday. The signing, at U.S. insistence, will be held next week when President Nixon stops in Brussels on his way to the Soviet Union.

Sharp also raised the Canadians and some other delegates who feel the Brussels signing is an unwarranted event by designed to boost Mr. Nixon's standing at home. It still is unclear whether Prime Minister Trudeau or Mr. Sharp will attend the ceremony, but several NATO members have indicated they may not send heads of government to the meeting.

Thief Kept Only $35,000 Of $118,500

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Joseph Wells, 34, of Toronto was sentenced Wednesday to 3½ years in jail for a mail theft last November at Toronto International Airport.

Wells, a postal clerk, pleaded guilty to stealing three mailbags containing $118,500 in cash, payroll cheques, a pilot's log of a crashed air craft and other documents and parcels.

He told police he kept about $35,000 for himself, gave $15,000 to $20,000 to a friend and buried the rest in a Barrie, Ont., garden.

He said he burned all the letters and documents he found in the mailbag, as well as an unknown amount of money in bills he thought had been marked. None of the $35,000 he kept has been recovered.

In Hospital 4 Hours, Died Without Doctor

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — Nursing and medical staff at Groves Memorial Community Hospital performed their duties without a feeling of concern for their patients, a five-man coroner's jury investigating the death of a patient at the hospital said Wednesday.

Ethel Giles, 67, who died March 11, was admitted to the hospital at 2:36 a.m. and died about four hours later without being examined by a physician. The jury ruled she died of a heart attack or a stroke.

Evidence presented during the inquest showed that a deterioration of Mrs. Giles' condition had been made known to her doctor during the night.

The jury recommended that telephone conversations between a doctor and a nurse should not be casual when concerning a sick patient and recommended tighter discipline.

It also recommended that nurses should have no reservation about calling in the medical chief of staff to examine patient if the regular physician cannot, or will not, come to the hospital.

A full-time resident should be hired at the hospital to alleviate understaffing on the main medical floor during the night shift, the jury said.

Retaliation About Beef Ban Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said today he is "prepared to recommend more drastic action" if the Canadian government does not reopen its markets to United States beef.

"We have retaliatory action we can take," Butz told the House of Representatives agriculture committee at a hearing into the distressed U.S. livestock situation.

He said he understands the Canadian cabinet is to discuss the situation at a meeting this afternoon.

Two months ago, when the U.S. government lifted a ban on feeding the controversial growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES) to cattle, Canada responded by closing its borders to U.S. beef, amounting to some $140 million annually. Butz has said for a week that agreement on reopening the Canadian border is near.

Nixon's Taxes Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's tax returns are coming before the House of Representatives impeachment inquiry, with investigators especially interested in a $576,000 deduction he claimed for vice-presidential papers given to the government.

The House Judiciary Committee today begins trying to determine whether there was any fraud in the preparation of a deed for the gift, which was not signed and delivered until after a law authorizing such deductions had been repealed.

The deductions, spread over the years 1969-72, have since been disallowed by the Internal Revenue Service, which assessed Nixon $432,787 in back taxes. A similar conclusion was reached by a joint committee on internal revenue taxation, but neither investigation dealt with the question of fraud.

The judiciary committee also is examining Nixon's personal finances to see if any government or election campaign funds were converted to his personal use.

CAS Will Check Truants

Those students, more conspicuous by their absence than their presence, will soon time to be checked up by the Hastings county Family and Children's Service.

The county board of education, like the separate school system, has brought the services of the children's aid to cope with chronic truancy. But it's not satisfied with the service and is conducting a study to find the best solution to the problem.

In the quality of service offered, the children's aid society is tops, federated chairman of education Eric Runacres.

But one social worker in the south and one in the north can't cope with the volume of need.

"There is no consensus in the county about that we're trying to do," said Mr. Runacres about the polls of teachers and principals taken since the children's aid became truant officer for the county.

Trustee Donald Thrush said the root causes of chronic absenteeism are sociological and economic. He doubted that any truant officer, even though he is a social worker, could cope with that problem.

Trustee and former board chairman James Clarke, said the only answer the board has a truant officer is because the law requires it.

"I don't want to go on record as breaking the law," he said, but added that he could not support the present inadequate provisions for troublesome students.

As a stop-gap procedure, the board voted to extend the children's aid service for another year. It will cost a fee of 70.7 cents for every student under 16 or an increase of 15 per cent over last year. The annual cost is about $24,000.

If the county board employed its own social workers to undertake truant work, the cost would be about $6,000 a year for each associate school group, or a minimum of $30,000 a year.

Trustee Mrs. Jean Hutchinson of Trenton asked how many hours a week is spent calling parents to tell them their kids aren't in school.

Superintendent Wally Beaver guessed at about 10 to 15 hours a week of secretaries' time.

Committee Will Report On Quinte Candidates

A report outlining the position on Canadian cultural and economic independence taken by each of the eight Hastings and Prince Edward-Hastings candidates will be made public before July 1, David Leslie, Belleville chapter chairman of the Committee For an Independent Canada (CIC) said Wednesday.

In an interview, he said CIC members have been speaking to candidates from the federal ridings in the past month. Only three candidates remain to be polled.

A fourth year architecture student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, Mr. Leslie said the CIC may endorse a candidate from each riding.

Endorsation will be based on each candidates stand on certain issues. In part they are:

—Cultural domination of Canada by foreign individuals or concerns. (The alleged predominance of foreign born and educated professors in Canadian universities.)

— Land sales, to other nationals.

— Economic control and ownership by foreign-based corporations maintain in this country.

— Transfer of union dues from Canadian workers to international union headquarters outside Canada. Each candidate has been asked the same questions based on the premise that he would gain office in Ottawa.

"We want people in this area to be aware of the candidates' stands," Mr. Leslie said, "A lot of people don't know."

He claimed various candidates have only made "a few Canadian self-ownership, but many more acceptable."

"Never have they offered themselves to make a comprehensive stand," he said.

The CIC, a nation-wide group, was formed in Belleville in 1973 but according to Mr. Leslie, has not been active since then. Plans are in the offing to increase community participation by the 40 local members this year.

ANYONE WHO HANDLES FOOD MUST BE CAREFUL

Food and drink that are not carefully handled and prepared can be a source of food-borne illness. The bacteria spreads easily from hands to food and thus multiply rapidly. Effective hand washing is considered to be the most important single control in fighting this type of infection.

Never handle food with any part of open cut or infected finger. Always wash hands after touching nose, face, or hair. It would also be wise to keep a good anti-bacterial skin cleanser in the kitchen.

Picton Councillor Apologizes

Police Cruiser Incident Allegation Is Withdrawn

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton council-lor John Kinney has offered a public apology for a statement that the town police cruiser was towed from a field in Wellington.

"I am very sorry for the embarrassment I caused. My facts, I believe, now were un-true," he said during a special session of council Wednesday night.

Mr. Kinney, at council's June meeting, had asked what the town cruiser was doing in Wellington and why there was no record of the town bill in the financial state-ment.

His allegations prompted Mayor James Bird to promise a full investigation and a special meeting was called last night to reveal the find-ings.

Chairman of the Picton Police Commission, Jesse Mason, told the meeting that he was "amazed" when he read press reports of Council-lor Kinney's allegations. He said the police chief's monthly report is forwarded to council as a courtesy but "one wonders if it should continue" when such allegations result.

Mr. Mason said that several allegations were made in council, and verbally to Picton Police chief George Pit. He said the police commission "resents them very strongly".

Richard Byers, lawyer representing Picton Police Association, commented the force was concerned with the "impression it leaves in the minds of the public".

He said some person now believes the Picton police department had been up to "some hanky - panky in Wellington". He said this is untrue, but it is difficult for the force to deal with such problems.

Mr. Mason told council that the Ontario Provincial Police cruiser was towed from a field in the Craven crossroad near Wellington.

In a written statement Councillor Kinney said the source of his information wishes to remain unknown. This informant has now changed the version of the incident "so much, that I now find myself doubting the original version".

"I now believe that coun-cil's only proper course to follow is to reject my allegations and accept the results of the investigation conducted by Chief Pit and his staff," Mr. Kinney's statement noted.

The councillor offered "his verbal apology from a seat in the spectators' gallery.

"It takes a big man to say I'm sorry. I believe the easier now can be put to rest," observed Mr. Byers, representative for the police association.

Look Closely

You have to look closely to see the domestic pet of Agnes Enmores, Shannon-ville. It's a Chihuahua and she kept the tiny dog pro-tected in the palm of her hand at Wednesday's senior citizens' picnic at O'Hara's Mill—Among those at event was Jack Ellis, Conserva-tive campaigner in Hast-ings.

Registry Building Is $137,000

PICTON — A $137,000 con-tract has been awarded the J. D. Coad Construction Com-pany Limited of Trenton for construction of a new registry office in Picton.

The contract was awarded through the ministry of go-vernment services and calls for a one-storey building addi-tion to the court house.

The tender submitted by Coad Construction was the lowest of seven, the highest being $207,000, said James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

The new office will replace offices now leased from Prince Edward County. Tar-get date for completion is late January, 1975.

The new facility will feature 3,400 square feet of space di-vided into registry and regis-trar offices, a public area, general office space, filing and storage areas and public and staff washrooms.

Conservation More Than Control

MADOC — Conservation authorities, once totally in-volved with environmental control, now are increasingly including community-oriented projects in their programs.

The expansion of horizons was noted at a typical show-case example near here Wed-nesday by Stu Hamilton, assistant director of the natural resources ministry' eastern Ontario region.

The official was among municipal senior government representatives mingling with members of senior citizens clubs at the O'Hara Mill and pioneer horse-site, two miles northwest of here. The area is a restoration project of the Moira Conservation Authority open to the public.

"The project is typical of the broader thinking of conser-vation authorities, said Mr. Hamilton. Until recent years such groups had concentrated on protection.

"This shows the authorities are involved in the com-munity and its personal, cultural aspects," he told members of clubs for the elderly from Hastings and counties.

Among the visitors were Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, and Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings in the last parliament.

Coincidentally, winner of the traditional prize for the oldest man present at the event, was a founding member of the authority and its one-time chairman, Jim Sprachett of Gilmour, 87, sat on the authority for 27 years until his retirement earlier this year.

Missing Man Drowned

BANCROFT — Provincial police divers discovered the body of Robert Anderson, 39, RR 4, Trenton, along the shore of Lake St. Peter Wed-nesday.

Mr. Anderson had been camping with three friends at the lake's provincial park, 30 miles north of here, and wan-dered away from his campsite about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

He was reported missing shortly after and police searched the park. OPP div-ers from Belleville discovered his body about 10.30 a.m. yes-terday.

Mr. Anderson was a non-swimmer. A post-mortem was to be held in Belleville today.

Forces Day Headliner Will Be Mini Airshow

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A mini air-show headlines attractions scheduled for the June 29 Armed Forces Day celebra-tions at CFB Trenton.

Capt. Bob Burke, base pro-tocol officer, said the air show would not be "massive" and is being played "low key."

While armed forces bases across the country recognize the day, CFB Trenton is per-haps the only base offering a public airshow.

The captain said the armed forces didn't want the cost of flying Air Transport Com-mand planes to all bases, where they were not ordinarily stationed, to perform a show.

The team provides a 15-minute show using seven air-craft. Last year the team per-formed in over 40 air shows, and will be the finale of Tren-ton's show.

Rebuilding Highway 62 Near Bancroft

H. J. McFarland Construc-tion, Picton, has been award-ed the contract for rebuilding 13.2 miles of Highway 62 in the Bancroft area.

Clarke Rollins, MPP Has-tings, said the contractor's ten-der for grading, drainage, granular base and hot mix paving was for $962,761 with construction to commence July 8.

Announcing the Snowbirds will be flypasts by several transport command work air-craft, including the Boeing 707 and Hercules.

Of special interest will be an airdrop where a ramp of supplies is slipped from the rear of the Hercules flying only a few feet off the run-way. No parachute is used for the ramp which lands unda-maged "on a dime," said Capt. Burke.

Local air cadets will begin the airshow at 2 p.m. with a glider demonstration.

Joan Dumoulin with Folk Art Samples

Folk Art Popularity Grows Amid Antiques

Feud With Cottager

MARMORA — There's been another episode in the feud between township council and cottage owner Oscar Hess over the closing of the North Lakeshore Road at Crowe Lake recently.

The disagreement arose over Marmora Lake township council's refusal to allow Mr. Hess to reroute the road away from his cottage. He claims traffic noise and dust is a nuisance.

For several reasons council has refused and Mr. Hess threatened to close the road over his property, preventing others from reaching their cottages along the road.

On June 3 he erected two posts on the road but later removed them.

On June 11, Mr. Hess returned to his cottage and erected a barrier across the road.

Council held a special meeting that night to discuss the issue. A road crew was sent to remove the offending fence.

Sponsored by the Prince Edward Curling Club women, the two-day fair attracts dealers from eastern Ontario and Quebec.

The Dumoulins are showing here for the second time. They began to sell antiques full-time about five years ago and annually visit 20-25 shows. Their shop is located at Ayer's Cliff, near Sher-brooke.

Of the increasing popularity of folk art, Mrs. Dumoulin points to three hand-carved bones in their collection. These wooden animals are priced from $110 to $150, and are dated about 1840. The original finish has been pre-served.

Although the Dumoulins collect and sell a number of period pieces their prime interest is in folk and primitive items.

Feminists on Warpath

It is still a man's world — although the way the feminists are going, and with some justification, we cannot predict how long male dominance will remain the all-encompassing thing it has been since Adam and Eve ate of the forbidden fruit.

We may skip past such boorish examples of male insecurity as the motorist who punched a 51-year-old Cambridge, Ont. woman in the face recently, catching up with her after she had passed his slow-moving car, to consider the prospects for rapists who run afoul of the new breed of avenged womanhood in the world today.

But the word from Australia — birthplace of such celebrated feminists as Germaine Greer (The Female Eunuch) and Helen Reddy (I am Woman) is that an extreme feminist group has taken up the martial arts as part of a plan to terrorize rapists in Sydney.

The Aussie group (numbering at the moment 25 to 30 members) say they plan to strip anyone they find in this category, chain him to a fence in a public place, and leave him there.

The idea, according to a member of the group, is to "make men as they have terrorized women for centuries."

Whether this sort of female extremism will catch on here remains to be seen, but there is certainly room for tougher action against the growing number of male offenders in this regard in Canada.

Meanwhile the National Organization for Women in the United States has declared that one of its top priorities is to create a gender-free society, rather than fight primarily for women to reach equal status with men.

Lawyer-author Karen de Crow, the new president of NOW, which is described as the world's most powerful feminine force, says rather than seeking equality per se, women's role should be to "change the dysfunctional way we live which harms women, men and children."

A topical example — she says instead of girls fighting to enter the little league, they should do away with it. She believes it is a microcosm of stresses on males to compete, achieve, succeed, and be infallible.

Her observations, in an interview, took on bizarre reasoning with the news just afterward, that a 12-year-old Cincinnati boy had hanged himself because of the pressures related to his little league.

Whither the feminists then? Not to mention males everywhere on the defensive? Well men should be able to understand some of what the women deservedly are after; but we would not expect the latter to inspect the old-new sapient approach completely. After all, boys will be boys, indeed boys have to be boys, even if the image suffers some blurring in a variety of ways. And not every kid is going to go to such tragic extremes as the youngster in Cincinnati. In New Jersey too the courts have ruled that a girl of 11 may play baseball with the boys.

Too many people are trying to tear down everything within sight, regardless. In the case of the feminists they show themselves on occasions to go too far, wanting in the place of men mere paper tigers unworthy of the species, incapable of as much as touting a baseball bat.

Local Attraction

Belleville has another Highland Tattoo coming up next weekend. But the Antique Flying Show which shared the same period will not be seen at Mountain View this year.

The flying show, which for two years running was such an innovative happening and drew fair crowds nevertheless fell victim to chancy economics and uncertain weather.

Last year in particular was something of a washout; and even if the weather had been good some of the novelty of the concept which included the use of a transcontinental race for the visiting flyers, was gone anyway.

Perhaps it would be an idea though to keep it in mind for some time in the future. It might do better as an occasional event.

Meanwhile the wall of the pipes and the beat of the drums retain their lure. There is something about the music and the marching of the clans that is irresistible and we're coming our way again.

Job Competition and an Honest Day's Work

Depression Seen as Cold-Shower Cure For Inflation

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The current election campaign is being waged on economic issues almost exclusively.

Voters realize that Canada's economic machine, which has functioned so smoothly during the 1950s and 1960s, is running as rough as an old car on a cold morning.

Canadians obviously are experiencing new doubts and worries about the market system, and fears that we could be as vulnerable to a slump in the 1970s as we were before the Great Depression 45 years ago.

Some economists are saying openly that the only cure for the pervasive sickness of inflation is another Great Depression. They would carry their faith in an unfettered market system to the point at which competition for jobs would bring back "an honest day's work" and somehow stop the erosion of the dollar.

Most reject that cure as being worse than the disease, the inflation now underway economists-talk is to go to the other extreme, to reject the market system altogether, and to try to replace competition with regimentation and regulation wherever possible.

To a considerable extent, anti-market economics have labor hold its government and in the senior ranks of the civil service. This became the basis of election issue helps to illustrate the antipathy and hostility that have arisen between government and business.

Under one reasonable interpretation of the budget's consequences, the combined federal and provincial tax on all company's net production of oil and gas — after deduction of out-of-pocket expenditures on exploration and development — will be almost as great as the revenues themselves.

The budget would also require oil companies to pay federal income tax on the royalties that they now negotiate per cent to the producing provinces. This would mean that the current increase in crude-oil prices to $6.50 a barrel from $3.80 would be more than 100 per cent taxable, according to Jerry McAfee, president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.

"Applying our expected 1974 income-tax rate of 41.7 per cent to the 65 per cent provincial royalty in Alberta, we would be paying out nearly 107 per cent of the increase in that province.

"The 100 per cent Saskatchewan royalty, added to our income tax, would require paying out 143 per cent of the cash flow on all increases."

Some companies, including Texaco Canada Ltd., have announced their exploration and development spending will be curtailed. The $1,000-per-cent-plus tax is a confiscatory one, and larger companies might well move from the oil exploration and production field.

If they did, Canada could soon be in the most serious trouble in its history. Other countries may be able to sustain life with their newly assured supply of fuel for heat and transportation. This country, with its climate and its distances, could not.

The Turner budget would also have placed a 10 per cent corporate surtax on the earnings of a wide range of companies in service-related fields — merchandising, basic trust companies, construction firm and the like.

And the tax-free reserves of financial institutions would have been reduced, thus increasing their tax liabilities. The measure was framed in such a way that its impact would fall chiefly on the five major chartered banks.

Most people would agree that excess profits should be taxed, especially when they are generated by the forces of inflation rather than by productive effort.

It is not so easy, however, to be confident in the wisdom of government policy when economists who (unless appearances are deceiving) are hostile to the market system.

At least part of the blame for today's economic troubles must go to those doctrinaire Ottawa theoreticians, whose tampering with the tax structure could lead to difficulties unforeseen by themselves or by the finance minister.

This year, no one seems worried about unemployment except the unemployed. (There are even some of them who are said to relish their status and their Unemployment Insurance benefits.)

At last count, the jobless rate was framed in such a way that its impact would fall chiefly on the five major chartered banks.

Economic Crisis Facing Italians Viewed As Preliminary To Depression on Global Scale

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The growing Italian economic crisis has many forebodings, both financial and political, which could ultimately affect Europe and even the world.

Some economists see it as the chink in the already very shaky armor of the world economy which could lead to a world depression.

Italy's indebtedness now is so great it cannot help but affect her neighbors within the European Common Market and the international financial community which will have to decide or not to bail her out.

Leonard Silk, the New York Times resident economist and an editorial writer, suggests the Italian economic demise could spread throughout the Mediterranean directly affecting Greece, Spain and Portugal.

The other aspect of the mounting Italian crisis, 36 governments in 31 years, is the political uncertainty of a country which has had a shaky but working democracy since the end of Fascism in 1945.

Now the road ahead is no longer even vaguely certain in a country where every conceivable coalition of the parties has been tried and found wanting.

There are ugly feelings that a totalitarian answer lies ahead. In Canada, rumors now abound from the Italian communities that retired Italian police and army officers now resident here are being asked by Italian police to return home and help out with an anticipated security crisis.

The lingering spectre of Neo-Fascism looms large and less like a spectre, as does the possibility of a Communist attempt at a coup.

In 1946 when Italy was also on the brink of an economic and political crisis like this one, she came within an age of Communist takeover as indeed did France. Since then the Communists have worked with various temporary coalitions.

The Neo-Fascists on the other hand have a mind of a pariah expect to their growing membership.

Then there is the talk about the armed forces taking over as the new familiar fashion of the less-developed countries. It was a technique used in Greece in 1967 but is supposed to be too crude for a modern European state.

But is Italy after nearly 40 years of chaos in government sophisticated in this sense? The armed forces, well-equipped exclusive on NATO's southern flank, are presumably equipped to make such a move though they have never done so since the formation of the modern Italian nation in-1870.

The only European nation which could say "I told you so" if force such a development might be Spain, which has had no democracy since Italy struggled with hers and where the France regime has instituted a strong government with army backing pointing up Italy's present plight as the alternative.

Because of all these implications affecting European and international stability, Italy's immediate uncertain future promises to be a greater crisis than Northern Ireland or the Middle East.

Better Business Bureau Has A Buyer-Seller Mediation Plan

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If you, as a consumer, have a complaint against a business and it can't be resolved, there may be help on the way.

The Better Business Bureau of Canada is setting up a "third-party mediation plan," as a voluntary forum to settle such buyer-seller disputes.

If it works, it will fill the wide gap that now exists between an unsatisfactory business transaction on the one hand and a expensive court case on the other.

The plan is that a local BBB will bring disputing parties together before a mediator or mediator panel drawn from volunteer groups. Proceedings will be voluntary, informal and confidential, and both sides will be asked in advance to accept mediators' recommendations.

"Mediation will be made available to all consumers and all businessmen with minimum cost," say the BBB of Canada. "This is designed to provide a fair, fair and free method of settling disputes after direct discussions have failed and without putting the matter into the courts."

In its present stage or development, however, the mediation plan is just that, a plan rather than a reality.

The decision as to whether to participate will still have to be made individually by the 32 BBB offices across Canada—St. John's, Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Consumers living elsewhere would have to seek mediation through the nearest BBB office—which could be hundreds of miles from their home.

Much will depend, too, on the willingness of businesses to participate in the program. Those who prey on consumers the most would probably be the least willing to submit to mediation.

In that category are a number of rip-off artists who are experts at evading.

Consumers should be wary of these types.

—The discount bulk-meat butcher, who advertises beef at an unbelievably low price. Fat for the bait and he will point to the Grade A label, give it largely fat, and will try to switch you to high-priced meat. He might charge for cutting and wrapping the meat, or fill your order with cuts that you would not normally buy.

—The kitchen-cabinet salesman who will spray your room with "fertilizer and weed killer" that is actually water, or try to sell you bushels of a sawdust-and-oil mixture masquerading as furniture.

—The prefabricated cottage firm that demands full payment before delivery, and then fails to deliver on time, sends inferior materials and "forgets" to include some vital components.

It is usually more economical in the long run to check with a lawyer before you act, or ask for reliable pre-job firm and have the contractor put up the cost.

LETTERS

PCs Have an Alternative

Editor,
The Intelligencer
In a recent letter to this paper, Mr. Stanfield was described as "indecisive and weak." This statement doesn't seem logical. Mr. Stanfield is providing an alternative, to the present do little Liberal policy, to attack the root causes of inflation in his policy of wage and price controls and his policy to reduce government spending wastes.

Furthermore, he is committed to ensuring that those on fixed incomes have enough financial assistance to cope with the spiralling cost of living. An individual has the right to disagree with these or other Progressive Conservative policies, but to say that these policies point to indecision or weakness on Mr. Stanfield's part is not stating truth.

However, I would agree that Mr. Stanfield is a "heavy" politican." He has been told by some of his advisers to become more dynamic and aggressive. But Mr. Stanfield has continually stated he doesn't intend to be someone he isn't. He may not be articulate or a fine orator but he has been consistent in demonstrating stability, a man who listens to listen, an understanding of economic issues and a quiet good nature.

In 1968 Mr. Trudeau was the swinger, in 1972 he was the complacent intellectual and now he appears to be like a spoiled boy after his favorite toy has been taken away, Each situation he has put on a new face. I wonder which is the real Mr. Trudeau?

Mr. Trudeau promised to end pork-barrel politics in 1968. (Mrs. Kurchak in an obvious pickup, condemns pork-barrel politics in a radio advertisement sponsored by Stanley (Liberal) Yet, in the 1972 election Mr. Trudeau rolled out the biggest pork-barrel in Canadian election history. Time magazine commented, "So blatant was the distribution of goodies that they raised the possibilities of Canada's first pork-barrel backlash." In the last Parliament distribution of monies for LIP grants went into Liberal held ridings at a disproportionately higher level than grants allocated to Opposition ridings. From an agostic of the "New Politics" in 1968 Mr. Trudeau has turned into a cynical practitioner of the old-style patronage system.

This cynicism, evident in the Prime Minister of our country, believe, is the root cause of much of the apathy felt toward politics today, especially among my peer group. Mr. Stanfield is not a dynamic leader country needs his honesty, stability and good sense in this crucial period of our history.

DAVE DENT

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I cannot, as an often dissenting, admirer, resist rising to the ball over the "Right and Left" in his "Detente" in Tuesday's issue.

In flawless, esoteric prose the writer assailed those "dentists of the Left," the "sneaking and toiling over their typewriters," and their "cloak and dagger" battle of the Right.

It took something of an effort to get up from my hammock to thread the paper into the typewriter but inspired by the suggestion of seductive activity by the Right I managed to motivate myself.

If the writer's suggestion is to be taken seriously, the task looking ahead with this constantly "turning the other cheek" by the adversary of the Right may well account for their apathy.

That, of course, we have to remember that the Right are so very tired from all that work they've supposed to be doing.

So now I'll loiter back to my hammock and await the inevitable editorial comment.

WILLIAM C HOCKLEY

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Greetings, dear editor, from a denizen of the Left to a denizen of the Right. I've just had under a comfortable rock facing East, in the company of such radicals as George Bernard Shaw, George Orwell, and Frank Harris. The ghouls inhabit the deep shadows of the cave, and they come near me only to advise me about the denizens of the Right. The ghosts are very learned men and seem to inspire me while I sit in circumference of my hammock — my day's work of about 10 hours, and think of ways and means to help the lesser minority of the Right turn the other cheek.

My ghosts tell me, dear friend, that there is a Right, a Center depths of your cave are inhabited by the shadows of Hitler, Mussolini, Dr. Goebbels and Benedict Arnold. These are dangerous ghosts indeed. If I were you, I'd get out of that cave — I would not heed their whispers. While you remain under your typewriter to espouse and justify the activities of the Right, you are a fool to serve in your cave, you are in imminent danger of becoming a victim of your ghosts' pernicious rhetoric.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

June 20, 1944

Belleville's name is now borne by a corvette of the Royal Canadian Navy which was launched at Kingston and christened by Mrs. Gordon Reid Thursday afternoon. The ship was launched by the same lady who launched a corvette of Belleville people attended. More than 600 Belleville boys are serving Canada at sea.

40 YEARS AGO

Speaking at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club held at the Hotel Quinte on Monday, Rev. J. A. Dale, minister of Bridge Street United Church, emphasized to members the importance for the home influence in moulding the character of children and stressed that the home should be the first place to look for the best insurance for world peace and brotherhood.

Caouette Opposes Price Controls

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Social Credit leader Real Caouette said Wednesday that if he holds the balance of power in the next Parliament he will throw Robert Stanfield out of power if a Conservative government attempts to implement the party's price and income policy.

In another close minority situation, he would support either the Liberals or Conservatives according to which was willing to support policies similar to those of Social Credit.

But he would oppose absolutely the Conservative policy of a 90-day price-and-income freeze followed by 18 months to two years of controls. Such a plan would not stop inflation but would merely lead to a black market on which prices would be driven even higher.

The Liberal program of stimulating production to bring prices down also would fail, because inadequate production was not the cause of inflation.

Mr. Caouette, speaking at the Chicoutimi press club, again outlined the Social Credit anti-inflation program of using Bank of Canada credits to subsidize a 25-per-cent. discount on retail prices.

He dismissed Prime Minister Trudeau's announced plans to revamp public transport with nationalized rail passenger service as election promises "that for the most part won't be kept."

He also criticized the separatist Parti Quebecois' advice to its supporters to abstain from voting. Refusing to vote would not exempt separatists from paying their federal income tax.

But, while reaffirming his belief in a united Canada, Mr. Caouette said it is normal that there are separatists in Quebec. "Why didn't he do the same in Columbia or Saskatchewan, which, he said, had nearly-separatist governments.

He attacked Mr. Stanfield for his inconsistency in rejecting the mayor of Moncton, N.B., Leonard Jones, as Conservative candidate because of Mr. Jones's opposition to bilingualism.

"Why didn't he do the same with Jack Horner who is even worse than Jones?" He said the Crowfoot Conservative member has campaigned in the West against French content in Ottawa.

Mr. Caouette also appeared for a television interview in this Saguenay Valley town, 115 miles north of Quebec City, before leaving for his Temiscamingue riding in northwestern Quebec where he campaigns today.

Lewis Backs Strikers Against NDP Regime

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Rebounding from a frustrating delay in Winnipeg, New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis seemed to draw inspiration Wednesday night from an enthusiastic audience, a longfest and a group of striking telephone operators in this northern Manitoba mining community.

Mr. Lewis ripped into the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals in what none observers said was one of his most effective speeches of the campaign. He spoke to about 200 people who filled a local Royal Canadian Legion hall.

Before his attack on Liberal and Conservative programs and economic policies, he offered his support to Manitoba telephone operators on strike to win better wages from the Manitoba NDP government.

The crowd applauded when Mr. Lewis said about 20 strikers lined up along a wall at the rally: "I hope you win."

Although the telephone company is a provincial Crown corporation, he said, employees engaged in the strike were under an NDP government. He said he understands there will be a settlement soon in the province-wide dispute which began last weekend.

Law Reform Group For Pre-trial Change

OTTAWA (CP) — A working paper released Wednesday by the Law Reform Commission of Canada has recommended that rules be adopted to ensure full disclosure to the defence of all relevant prosecutors' evidence in criminal cases.

The report suggested elimination of preliminary hearings, during which Crown evidence against the accused is placed before the court in serious cases such as murder, rape, manslaughter and treason.

The commission was appointed in 1970 to examine laws to see if they are achieving their objectives. Several earlier studies on various aspects of law have been produced.

The paper said that the whole field of pre-trial procedures is badly in need of reform and a process must be found that is fair and just to all concerned.

Lougheed Praised For Oil Agreement

CALGARY (CP) — Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night that the national oil agreement reached last March was negotiated through give-and-take approach that the Progressive Conservatives had been advocating for months.

In an open-air speech to a crowd of about 2,000 at Sheriffs Park in the riding of Calgary South, Mr. Stanfield said the agreement could have been negotiated without the statesmanship shown by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed during federal-provincial energy talks.

Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers hammered out the pact in late March after failing to negotiate a settlement at an earlier energy conference in January.

Mr. Trudeau has cited the agreement frequently during the July 8 election campaign as an example of his government's leadership.

Politics First Business After PM's Formula

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau described politics Wednesday as a game for the young and he said there should be a reversal of the trend that finds people entering politics after they have established themselves in the business world.

"Let's reverse what they used to do," he urged a group of young Liberal candidates after a private meeting at his official residence, 24 Sussex Drive.

At a reception in the garden behind the residence, accompanied by his wife Margaret, he said people should get into politics "fairly young" and then retire to begin another career into which they could take "the wisdom they acquire in politics."

Diefenbaker Enters Election Fray

HAMILTON (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker jumped into battle for the Progressive Conservatives on Wednesday with an attack on Prime Minister Trudeau whom he accused of usurping the powers of Parliament.

In his first speech since he was asked last week by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield to undertake a campaign tour, Mr. Diefenbaker said do overlooking all that he responded to the call "because my country is in danger."

He blasted Mr. Trudeau for raising government spending to $22 billion and for turning Parliament into a "caricature" by forming an "ungrouplous coalition," with the NDP.

"Never in my experience have I known this country to be more deeply concerned than it is now," he said. "There is no longer government by Parliament: there is government by high civil servants."

He charged that the Liberal administration has degraded the position of the Queen in Canadian life, emasculated the Canadian armed forces by compelling them to merge into one service, threatened to break Canada's links with the Commonwealth and aggravated the problem of bilingualism.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister has failed to ada by not condemning pro-power Quebec legislation he said would downgrade the use of English and make French the working language of the province, he said. "Trudeau should have denounced it but he needs the support of the Bourassa government."

Turner Sticks By His Budget

WINNIPEG (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said Wednesday a re-elected Liberal government, even in a minority position, would expect the opposition parties to pass the May budget without major changes.

Rail Workers Approve Move

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Railway Labor Association, representing 18 unions which include about 100,000 workers, welcomed Wednesday the transportation policy announced during the last week by Prime Minister Trudeau and Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

The policy would entail the government taking over passenger services of CP Rail and the Canadian National Railways and would revamp the freight system.

W. C. Y. McGregor, chairman of the group, said after the association meeting that the association was pleased to see the government has made concrete proposals for improvement of a transportation system that Mr. Marchand has said was a "mess."

Marchand Says Transportation Policy Three Months in Making

OTTAWA (CP) — The multi-faceted transportation policy announced by Prime Minister Trudeau during the last week was intended Wednesday by Transport Minister Jean Marchand...

He told a news conference, called to review the three-stage policy, that the policy statements had been in the works for at least two months and are not merely election promises.

"These announcements would have taken place anyhow," he said. "This is not something which has been measured to arrive at this time. . . . It is not cooked up for election purposes; this is not a political gimmick. This is a policy I believe in."

The first part, announced by Mr. Trudeau in Edmonton last Wednesday, is a revamped railway freight system, emphasizing grain transportation and including a government-owned pool of boxcars for surplus periods. It promises an end to discrimination in freight rates.

The second, announced in Toronto Monday, is a plan to spend a total of at least $275 million over the next five years for improved urban public transport.

The third, announced in Cornwall Tuesday, is a sweeping plan to take over the passenger services of Canadian National Railways and CP Rail at an estimated cost of $500 million over eight years.

Although no hard cost figures were available for the first part of the program, Mr. Marchand put the over-all cost to the federal treasury at $1.7 billion in the first five years.

Other parts of the package, announced previously, included improved ferry service in the Maritimes, development of freighter ice-breakers for use in arctic shipping and careful control of vessels that carry out the Canadian coastal steamship trade.

"These changes and these programs are going to move Canada toward world leadership in . . . transportation systems," Mr. Marchand said.

Lead-free Gas Adequate

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday the supply of lead-free gasoline in Canada will match consumer demands this year and in 1975.

The federal minister was commenting on reports that the pollution-reducing fuel might not be readily available across Canada for purchasers of some 1975-model North American cars which will require lead-free gasoline.

Slowdown Noted In Manufacturing

OTTAWA (CP) — Evidence a slowdown in the manufacturing sector appears in Ajax report on the sector from Statistics Canada.

Shipments and inventories were down on a seasonally-adjusted basis while inventory levels rose.

An earlier report from Statistics Canada said real growth in the economy—discounting the effect of inflation—was at an annual rate of 6.8 per cent during the first quarter while most projects of growth for the year

...n the five-per-cent area.

April shipments by manufacturers, adjusted for seasonal variations, were 1.7 per cent less than the March total and new orders were three-tenths of one per cent below March.

The ratio of inventory to shipments was 1.36, the highest since mid-1973. The ratio for March was 1.32.

The inventory-to-shipments ratio has been below historical levels in recent months as strong demand has drained inventories.

Farmers Made Profit

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite sharp rises in food prices last year, farmers still profited from the sale of meat and poultry products, a food prices review board working paper says.

The paper, prepared by board economists R. M. A. Lyons and David J. Clarke, says that feed and protein prices "increased dramatically" between November, 1972, and late 1973.

But the authors add that market prices of each commodity increased at least enough to offset the higher feed prices and left producers in at least as profitable a position as they were when feed prices began to increase in late 1972.

Hospital Employees Unhappy

TORONTO (CP) — Brief s being presented to a govern ment-appointed commission in dicate that hospital employee are generally unhappy with government controls over their jobs.

Some briefs from professional and non-professional workers were submitted here and in Sudbury Wednesday, with the remainder to be presented in the same locations today.

Professional employees argue that their wages are not as high as comparable industry jobs.

The Ontario Dietetic Association's brief said the salary spread between professional dietitians and assistants was too great when the education required is comparable.

The Ontario Nursing Home Association said nursing-home nurses are earning $30 to $90 a week less than nurses in hospitals, and that aspect was partly responsible for a high turnover.

The brief said the wage differences are causing staff discontent and a high turnover.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association suggested that wage levels for hospital employees be expanded so they equal wages in comparable industry jobs.

But it also argued against province-wide uniform wages because of different economic factors in the province.

Leger Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger returned to Ottawa Wednesday after being released from the University of Sherbrooke Medical Centre.

Claim Sands

EDMONTON (CP) — The Indian Association of Alberta will take legal action "within the year" to claim treaty rights to the Athabasca oil sands, the association's president said Wednesday.

Harold Cardinal said in an interview the legal action will demand Indians receive "an adequate share of the resources" through jobs, training and cash payment to a provincial native development fund.

Wife Returns

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Rose Wedderfort, wife of a Canadian helicopter pilot captured by Ethiopian guerrillas three months ago, returned to Canada Wednesday night, shaken but somewhat cheerful and with no real idea of the next step in efforts to obtain his release.

"I've been over there three months and I just can't see staying around much longer doing nothing," she told a reporter after being met at Moncton airport by her parents, who live in Richibucto, N.B.

Report Delayed

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. George Moss, Toronto medical officer of health, came under fire Wednesday for supposedly withholding a report on the extent of lead pollution from two smelter plants here.

Members of the Toronto board of health said they learned that Dr. Moss had the information since Feb. 12, but they did not gain access to it until Wednesday.

Profits Up

OTTAWA (CP) — After-tax profits of industrial corporations were up an estimated 9 per cent, comparing the first quarter of this year with the same period a year ago, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

U.S. Needy Become Hungrier and Poorer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the past three to four years, our nation's needy have become hungrier and poorer, a special committee told the United States Senate's select committee on nutrition Wednesday.

The 26-person panel said this was one of the two key conclusions of its study of "our country's policies and efforts for feeding the most nutritionally vulnerable special group of all—the poor."

The other major finding was that, especially in the last year, "the poor have been affected far more adversely by the inflationary food price spiral than has any other economic class of Americans . . . Inflationary food prices simply devastated the poor."

Ronald Pollack, chairman of the committee, gave the report to the Senate Conference on National Food and Nutrition Policy opened with two simultaneous hearings. The other hearing focused on world food scarcity.

The conference is billed as the most comprehensive study of U.S. and world hunger problems since a 1969 White House conference on the issue.

Senator George McGovern (Dem. S.D.), chairman of the Senate committee, said in opening the conference that the U.S. should establish a Pioneers for Peace program as the "new initiative for the 1970s and beyond."

He said his proposal, superseding the Food for Peace program of the last two decades, would teach the underdeveloped parts of the world how to feed themselves.

Congress Told Help Won't Lead to A-arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials are assuring Congress that President Nixon's offer of nuclear aid to Egypt and Israel cannot lead to nuclear weapons in the Middle East.

Nixon has proposed to provide nuclear fuel and facilities to Egypt and Israel for power production. But some members of Congress have expressed fears that the two countries might use U.S. materials to develop nuclear weapons.

Case Heard

WELLAND (CP) — Provincial court Judge Franklin Griffiths reserved judgment Wednesday until June 25 on a case involving three police officers accused of beating a Niagara Falls, Ont., man in his motel room during a drug search Dec. 19, 1973.

RCMP Constables John Corcum and Floyd Rushton and Niagara regional police Sgt. William Bowie pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Nobody Died

TORONTO (CP) — Officials say there is no indication that any teen-age girl died of an overdose of drugs during the weekend car races at Mosport Park, 50 miles northeast of here.

Dr. Hugh Scully, Toronto surgeon and head of the medical team at the park during the weekend, says:

"There is no evidence of any body and there has not been a death."

Blondina Sanders

Blondina Sanders Not Campaigner

Blondina and Bob Sanders came to Canada with their infant daughter, Yvonne, to find a country kind of like unavailable to them in their native Holland.

Now, nearly 25 years later, the Sanders make their home outside of Shannonville where they raise vegetables and calves and poultry. Living, for the most part, the kind of life they had dreamed about.

"We came here because we thought we'd like to have a farm of our own even though we were both city people," Blondina Sanders says, adding that in Holland, land is scarce and the pair decided to try to make a new life in Canada.

Over the years, they lived and worked on poultry farms and in the end decided that farming alone was not the life for them.

So they've combined outside careers — she's a clerk at the Unemployment Insurance Commission office — with the vocations of raising things on their several-acre property, Bob Sanders, who is a medical social worker at Belleville General Hospital, is currently seeking federal election as the New Democratic Party candidate in Hastings. Daughter Janet, who is also employed at the UIC, lives at home. Yvonne, now married, lives in London, Ontario.

Between her job at the UIC and helping with the large vegetable garden, calves, geese, pheasants and chickens, Blondina Sanders finds little time for hobbies.

Canning produce from the garden is her annual job and, in addition, she bakes all the family's bread with assistance from Janet.

Right now, too, there are the 13 wild ducklings to look after that she rescued when their mother was hit by a car near their home.

A busy schedule and one that doesn't include any campaigning on her husband's behalf.

As a federal employee, Mrs. Sanders says, she's not allowed to campaign for any candidate, even her husband.

People and Events

At the recent meeting of the River Valley Women's Institute Irene Hoyle gave a commentary and acetic slides of her recent visit to Australia. She also displayed souvenirs of her trip.

Books By And About Women

PUTTING FOOD BY ..... Ruth Hertzberg
Beatrice Vaughan
Janet Greene .....

The old and new come together in Putting Food By, a complete manual for the do it yourself home preserver. From freezing tips to the complete how-to of root-cellaring, the book covers a wide range of methods for food keeping.

You can even learn how smoke your own hams in a discarded refrigerator.

In clear and entertaining prose, the authors explain each step and define terms for the novice. For those interested in the more technical aspects of food preservation, there are explanations of everything from PH factors to the anatomy of a pressure cooker. Illustrations and pictures are plentiful.

If you're really a do-it-yourselfer, you can learn to render lard and make soap, make cottage cheese or bologna or waterglass eggs. At the back of the book are home-style recipes like Wash-day Soup and Saturday Night Baked Beans, Applesauce Custard Pie and old Settler Indian Pudding.

Safety and sensibility are high in the authors' priorities and the book makes good reading. It's available at Corby Library.

at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy La Chappelle for the monthly meeting of St. James the Minor Catholic Women's League of Stirling. The meeting was preceded by Mass celebrated by Rev. Father McGarvey.

WCTU Celebrates Centennial

Women's Christian Temperance Union members from across Ontario gathered at Albert College this week to celebrate that group's 100th anniversary in the province.

More than 75 members attended the 97th annual convention which ends today with the election of officers.

This is the fourth convention held in the area; the group met here in 1902-1909 and 1926.

Mrs. James Nelson, Catharines, president of the Canadian WCTU gave the consecration address at the convention which was organized by Mrs. Leon Trupp of Frederic.

One highlight of the convention was the presentation of a gold medal to Reginald Good, of Kitchener, who was also named Christian Youth of the Year. The grand gold medal contest was directed by Mrs. A.E. Ashmore. The 15-year-old won the competition, held only once in five years, with a Bible memorization and a speech on his beliefs.

Local prizewinners in the Scientific Temperance Instruction competitions were Anna Bylsma, RR 6, Belleville; Joyce Kugel, Belleville; the seventh grade class at Belleville District Christian School; Marlene Schaly, Tomboro; Edna Jongenstar, Tomboro and the third grade class, Belleville Christian School.

Marlene Schaly, Anna Bylsma, Joyce Kugel and the third grade Marlene Schaly, Anna Bylsma, Joyce Kugel and the third grade class at Belleville Christian School also won national prizes.

Tuesday, the women heard Mrs. T.S. Armstrong, president of the provincial WCTU, speak on the convention's theme "Praise Ye the Lord."

Mrs. Armstrong told the women that while circumstances and conditions in the world have improved greatly, in customs and habits it appears that mankind is drifting further away from a sense of moral standards, honesty and self-respect. She encouraged them to apply pressure to have restrictive regulations legislated in the sale of alcohol.

She concluded that the group could be thankful for the courage, heroism of those who had worked for abstinence before them and that they should continue their work.

Officers presenting official reports at the convention included Mrs. Walter Denison, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jack Miller treasurer; L. T. L. Brigader, Mrs. A. H. Rawlins and Youth Director Carol Redding. Departmental reports were presented Wednesday by Mrs. A. E. Ashmore, Mrs. Lorne Adams, Mrs. George Charland, Mrs. L. W. Mino, Mrs. Leon Trupp, Mrs. H. Langford, Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Mrs. E. C. Smith, Mrs. W. Bridle, Mrs. W. Holtz and Mrs. Bertha Donovan.

A skit, Past — Present — Future, was presented by Mrs. L. W. Mino, Mrs. Roy Hahn and Mrs. A. H. Rawlins.

At the banquet head table guests included Rev. Lorne Ball and Rev. Frank Hobbs, representatives of the Belleville and Trenton ministerial associations, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hastie, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cox, Chief and Mrs. Douglas Crosbie, and David Reeves, representative of Drug and Alcohol Concerns, formerly Ontario Temperance Union. Twice as Many Women Running This Election

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The mother and daughter contesting the Alberta ridings believed the first such team in federal politics, are sound a record like women who cover nomination papers: Monday for Mrs. Jewett and Sheila Fetcher, Sheila's daughter.

The figure is almost double the 71 women who ran for the last general, vote in 1972. Only 22 women were elected in that contest.

Alene Hall, executive director of the National Farmers Union, is campaigning for Saskatoon-Humboldt. Vancouver is Trudie Oliver, while Labor Lawyer Lorna Hen-nessey is contesting Fraser Valley for the party in Langley Hall.

Only three women — besides the women running in South Shelburne — are contesting the Progressive Conservative Chesley Halburton one of the

Ms. Joan Wallace, is making her first venture in the political area after a stint as president of the Vancouver status of women council. She does press relations work for the B.C. and Yukon division of the Canadian Red Cross. She has two young children.

Columnist and author Sienna Holt, representing the Liberal party in Vancouver-Kingsway in her first attempt at federal office, was an unsuccessful candidate for chief of the Vancouver police force earlier this year. She is on leave from Vancouver where she has worked for 20 years.

Lola Campagnolo, carrying the Liberal banner in Sienna, is sales manager of a Prince Rupert radio station CFPR, a member of the Order of Canada and an alderman since 1972.

Aldi Una Evans, running for the Liberal party in Edmonton East, is making her third foray into federal politics after unsuccessful attempts in Edmonton East in 1972 and a Calgary riding in 1957. Frances Wright, of the Liberal candidate in Calgary, was an unsuccessful candidate for chief of the Vancouver police force earlier this year. She is on leave from Vancouver where she has worked for 20 years.

Ann Landers

Old Geezer Wants 'A Little Fun'

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to the same man for 46 years. He showed me an article in the papers tonight that is causing me plenty of trouble. Why do papers print such stuff?

A Dr. Joseph Potcha made the statement that a new romance for an older person can be "miraculous cures for depression." According to Dr. Potcha, when an older man begins to feel he is losing his ability to function sexually, and a woman past 60 gets to feeling she is no longer attractive to the opposite sex, they go downhill fast, both emotionally and physically. These people develop all sorts of aches and pains. They pester the life out of their doctors, coming back every few weeks with a new complaint.

I have raised seven children. I'm 68 years old and I look every day of it. I've had enough sex in my life (in fact too much), and I don't need any more. My husband is using Dr. Potcha's statement to prove it is my fault that he is in a depressed state of mind these days. Now he wants me to give him permission (for his health's sake) to go out and have a little fun. This old goat is 70 years old. What do you have to say about it, Ann Landers?—Feels Tired

Dear Tired: I know about Dr. Joseph Potcha's theory and you aren't getting the straight story. Dr. Potcha is talking about widows and widowers. Moreover, he emphasizes that a "romance" need not mean a sexual relationship. It can mean companionship, security, someone to talk to and share a thought or a laugh with.

A man who is 70, has been married for 46 years and wants permission to go out and play around? Sorry, I'm not buying that one. Tell him to get down with a counsellor and learn how to spend the rest of your lives together, as friends and companions. Maybe when you get to feeling a little more kindly toward the old geezer, you might let him get a little enthusiastic. A woman of 68 isn't exactly a masseam piece, you know.

Dear Ann Landers: This room which I got from your column is rather with age. It's so beautiful I wish you'd print it again.

Woman was created from the rib of man.

She was not made from his head to top him.

Nor out of his side, to be equal to him.

Under his arm to be protected.

And near his heart, to be loved.

—Ottawa, Canada

Dear Ott: Here it is. Thank you for asking.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a suggestion for that man in Oklahoma who wanted to be buried in his 1937 Dodge.

You said if he could get the OK from the cemetery, you saw nothing wrong with it. And then you reminded him that he might need two or even three plots.

Why doesn't he have himself cremated and put in the ashtray? Then he could have a cremation urn (which is used to compress old cars into scrap metal) removed the rim of his car to save a few cents and have the ashes compressed into little blocks? He would need only one plot, and save a good bit of money—Cold, Me.

Dear Cold: Here's your letter, yours in 1,234 English francs for whatever it's worth. I hope Indians.

Successful Living

'Outsize' Can Still Be Cub

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My 9½ grandson is nine years old, and takes to Woodlawn Day Camp. He joined the Cubs, but because we cannot get him his outsize in a sweater or shirt he is almost continue going.

I have tried at one large mail order house and was informed that they do not make clothes for boys' extra large or the mom's small size. To read that the boy helps said that he had never had a Boy Scout up for a misdemeanour, Sally.

Dear Sally: I talked to a District Scout about this, and where you live and he explained that the scouting movement is open to all boys, regardless of whether or not they can buy a uniform. Scout Cub packs have crippled members who can only wear the tie and the hat.

There is no discrimination at all. I am giving you the name of the District Commissioner to get in touch with. Scouting is great experience for a boy.

If your nine-year-old is actually fat, the time to change his eating habits is right now. Fat children could become a bugbear to interfere with his enjoyment of life as an adult. It is hard to control habits is before they get established.

Dear Doris: Would you have an address where I could write for a list of the value of coins and where I could sell them? Collection

Dear Collection: Look in your local newsstand for booklets giving coin prices. There is one mailed publication which comes out every two weeks with up-to-date information.

The prices you find in books are selling price, though; the dealer has to make a profit. So this means what you get for them from the middleman will be less-sometimes considerably less.

If you have something rare, of course, you may need to get to a coin, shop and talk to a dealer personally.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Service Finds Nannies For Canadian Moms

VANCOUVER (CP) — If anybody in Canada wants a British nanny to look after the children and is willing to pay $425, Deirdre Lehmann, owner of a Montreal company called Anglo-Canadian Staff Ltd., is the woman to call.

But before you get one, you must first prove you are a suitable nanny employer. It's not essential to have a swimming pool, Mrs. Lehmann said, but it helps.

If you pass the test, you must then wait about four weeks for your nanny to arrive from Britain. If you can't afford the $425, mother's helpers and housekeepers are some cheaper, only $325.

"If we do not have exactly what a client requires, we will look for just about anybody," said Mrs. Lehmann. "We have an agency in London which recruits for us."

Mrs. Lehmann also will provide a husband-and-wife team to manage your home, but only if you are rich and have an extravagant house. A couple will cost about $600.

In the busy work of "below stairs" trading, duties are decidedly a fringe item.

Potential employers are also screened but in the final analysis, the girls in England accept or reject the Canadian employer.

Queen Sebeth of Sigana

Spiritual Leader

By BERNARD EDINGER

AYOUNE, Senegal (Reuter). — Queen Sebeth of Sigana regally stepped out of her house, resplendent in all her fine robes and jewelry and paused away a young pig with her bare foot."

The African queen's two daughters, both bare-breasted, sat in the dust nearby and looked on with polite interest as the foreign visitor was introduced.

Told he was from Paris, she replied: "Tell him we were very sorry to hear of the death of King de Gaulle. We're afraid we don't know very much about the new king except that his name sounds like Mobutu's." This was before President Pompidou's death.

Aside from her interest in world affairs, Queen Sebeth's main occupation is that of spiritual leader for the animistic (followers of African traditional religions) people over whose four villages she reigns.

In Ayoune, as in other villages in the area, the visitor can see the fetishes, amulets, scarifications, set bear bolstered wooden lion-like drums and cities close to the entrance of the sacred forests where only the village ruler and council of wise elders can penetrate.

Last year some 30,000 tourists visited Senegal and many more are expected this year, principally in Casamance and in the giant Niokolo Koba nature reserve in east Senegal where lions, elephants, crocodiles and a 500-strong colony of hippopotami live.

To the south of the reserve lies the Conlagne country, reachable by rickety open mini-buses called bush taxis which are elaborately decorated in garish colors and always overcrowded.

The Conlagnis, a warm and friendly people, are mainly noted for their erotic and sometimes painful initiation rituals, particularly the circumcision ceremony for young women to be admitted as adults in the tribe.

Those to be initiated are covered with pearls and medals and the villages women look on chanting and clapping while the operation is carried out.

For those who prefer an island paradise holiday, the French-owned Club Mediterranee has set up a haven at Cape Skirring, with endless miles of beaches of fine white sand on the shores of the south Atlantic. Read by graceful coconut trees and lush vegetation.

One cove on the beach is principally occupied by women in their late 40s and 50s whose main delight seems to be nude sunbathing.

Senegalese authorities, well aware of the wealth brought to the region, turn a blind eye to some of the tourists' activities, but they frown on mid-tam at other beaches open to the general public.

Attempting to explain an apparently contradictory situation, one official said: "Yes, we know the local village women are not bare-breasted, but it is a regional custom. When the Europeans come here we expect them to follow their own customs and don't keep their bathing suits on."

Newfoundland Restoring Transatlantic Cable Site

The link, providing the first fast means of communication between Europe and North America, was dragged on to a beach from the ship Great Eastern July 27, 1866.

A temporary station was set up and the first message to cross mid-Atlantic, each word costing $4, went through.

Eight years later, a one-storey brick building was constructed to house the transmitting and receiving equipment. That building still stands and is being restored.

A spokesman for the government's historic resources division said much of the original equipment will be displayed in the station, including some artifacts which have been returned from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. Those articles had been sent to the Smithsonian prior to 1971 when the 236 of the 2,000-mile journey, government decided to have the cable retrieved with its restoration.

An interpretation room will outline the problems involved in laying the first cables, the spokesman said.

The initial attempt to link the cable that carried the year between Valentia, Ireland, and Heart's Content was completed in 1874.

Use of the station in this small outport continued to grow until it reached a peak during the First World War when 200 men were employed there.

After the war, use of the station began to decline. It was closed in 1965 by Western Union, an American telecommunications company that had obtained ownership earlier in the century.

A third cable between Valentia and Heart's Content was laid in 1894. The original core was retrieved from the ocean floor and brought to Heart's Content.

Newfoundland Fishermen Face Low Cod Prices

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Despite a weakening market in the United States for Canadian-produced cod blocks, the price to Newfoundland fishermen remains high.

The price of cod blocks has fallen eight or 10 cents a pound on the U.S. market and local processors and exporters are keeping their fingers crossed hoping there will be no further reduction.

Less demand and lower prices for finished products from cod blocks are said to be caused by cheaper Japanese blocks, mostly minced pollock, pouring into the U.S. market.

There are at least two reasons for the prices of fresh cod remaining high for Newfoundland fishermen.

A declining cod catch means more competition among processors for the fisherman's pound of fish, and there is a strong demand for salted cod in overseas markets with prices higher than at any time in the island's history.

Since the Canadian Saltfish Corp. started purchasing, processing and marketing cod about four years ago the price to fishermen has been rising. Last year, the corporation opened the season with prices 33 per cent higher than in 1972. Last September the prices were again increased by up to 15 per cent on certain grades, retroactive, to the beginning of the 1973 season.

Recently the corporation announced that 1974 prices to fishermen will be 49 per cent higher than last year's and will bring hearty salted salt bulk to record prices ranging from 16 to 21 cents a pound depending on size. For light salted dry fish, the 1974 prices range from 36 cents to 47 cents a pound.

Last year the percentage of Newfoundland's total cod landings used for salting fell to 30.5 per cent from 51.5 per cent in 1972. The drop from former percentage figures of cod going into salt, but with higher prices and improved facilities for fishermen the 1974 production is expected to rise considerably.

The corporation currently buys fish from 4,000 Newfoundland fishermen and 200 from the North Shore of the St. Lawrence River, Newfoundland and Labrador are the only provinces involved with the corporation.

The main market for Newfoundland's salted fish is Portugal, Puerto Rico, but sales are also made to Portugal, Spain, Brazil, Greece, the United States, Trinidad and other Caribbean islands. Smaller quantities are sold on the local market and limited shipments go to the Canadian mainland.

Paul Kane's House Hidden in Heart of City

TORONTO (CP) — Hidden amidst a red brick church and disappeared... in the heart of downtown, Th Last, spruce, a student, work- ronto has a house that should log for the Toronto Historical ist famous. But for almost 100 Board walked up the lane be- years, everyone but the church side the Evangelical Church of the Dead on Wellesley Street, near Yonge, and discovered the house hidden behind the church. He later proved that this was the original 1850 home of Paul Kane, one of Canada's most fa- mous painters.

Kane painted the Canadian West the way it looked before the white man came. He be- came one of the most inter- nationally acclaimed artists in Canada's history.

Today, few Canadians they can seldom see his works. Many now are in a museum in Texas. The Royal Ontario Museum has some, but because of a lack of display space, the paintings are kept in storage vaults.

Kane was born in Ireland and came to Canada as a child around 1818. His father opened a swine shop in Yonge Street and Paul would sit on the side- Indians who came to visit.

When he grew up, he earned enough money painting por- traits to travel through the United States and Europe, but his greatest ambition was to travel through the parts of Can- ada that few white men had seen.

In 1846 he set out on a two- year journey that took him as far as the Pacific. When he re- turned to Toronto, he married and moved into the house on Wellesley Street.

Today, Kane's paintings sell for $20,000 to $30,000. But in his last 20 years, he found few pa- trons for his works and the only "customer" he was able to make were daily visits to the Toronto Islands. While returning one day in February, 1871, he caught a cold and died in the

Affluent Porter Sorry About Profit

COLCHESTER, England (CP) — A retired railway porter who lived like a recluse has left £61,000 ($146,000) to a charity for persons blinded in war. An- thur Radford, 81 at his death, made his money from sale of an orchard he had cultivated.

LONDON (AP) — London Transport, which is owned by the Greater London Council and runs the subway and buses here, made a profit of £10 mil- lion ($24 million) last year after forecasting a loss of £2 million.

Trudeau Coming?

Pierre Trudeau is "very interested in Hastings-Lennox-Addington" Liberal candidate Marie Kurchak told Wednesday night.

She had just returned from a day in Ottawa with the prime minister, one of the 25 Liberal candidates under 30 with whom Mr. Trudeau met Wednesday. The Liberal party said the largest number of candidates under 30 of all the parties fielding candidates in this election.

"I have hinted that we may be able to get him down here before July 8," Mrs. Kurchak told the audience at a rally at the Belle Theatre.

Safe Drivers Receive Awards

James "Ross" Downey received a special plaque for 25 years of safe driving and Eddie the Quarterdeck Club for the direct System. Robert Collins achieved 21 years of safe driving.

Also receiving awards were: Ed Fitzgibbon and Frank Heffernan for 19 years; Ed Christopher for 18 years; Basil Adams and Howard Storey for 16 years; Vern Craig and Ken Power for 14 years; Ab Alford and Don Treacy for nine years; Don Cress and Cecil Smith for seven years and Doug Thompson for two years.

Bill Cookman, Belleville Terminal manager presented the awards to the Belleville drivers. Robert Burns, congratulated the drivers on their achievements as did David Austin, vice-president of finance for the Direct System.

Cabinet Minister Campaigns

Hugh Faulkner, secretary of state in the last federal cabinet, lent his weight to the Belleville federal campaign in Hastings Wednesday night. With him at the Belle Theatre rally were candidate Marie Kurchak, old-time Liberal and former MP, Frank Follwell and a young admirer, Frank Fus.

Faulkner Hits Stanfield Over Controls Proposal

The root causes of inflation are shortages, and the key to overcoming inflation lies in reinforcing growth, Hugh Faulkner, secretary of state in the last federal cabinet told a Belleville audience Wednesday night.

The Liberal candidate for Peterborough told about 200 listeners at the Belle Theatre that Canada is going through a period of prosperity unequalled in its history.

"I think it's a threat to property, to jobs and to growth. It is that lamebrained idea that you can freeze the wages of 21 million people for 90 days and then sort out the mess," said Mr. Faulkner.

Mr. Faulkner quoted from a 1971 speech of Robert Stanfield, in which the Conservative leader said wage and price controls would cause untold resentment among groups and individuals who were unfairly done by and would result in confrontations.

"He was right in 1971 and dead wrong in 1974 ," said Mr. Faulkner.

Of Hastings Liberal candidate, Marie Kurchak he said, "I am aware of her work in the past in the department of the secretary of state.

"You will be very proud of her when she's representing you in parliament."

Mr. Faulkner emphasized three points: Hastings liberals have an outstanding, young, articulate and positive candidate. Liberals have national policies, applied with equal force across Canada and they have a strong leader who has shown commitment to his country.

Mr. Faulkner said his roots go deep in the Pictons, Stirling and Bellleville area."

Frank Follwell, a former Liberal MP for the riding, told Mr. Faulkner that "your grandfather had a great deal to do with my political life".

Mr. Follwell first became active in politics during the 1934 campaign of Dr. Bert Faulkner, who was previously minister of health from 1934 to 1937. Mr. Faulkner's father was Dr. George Faulkner of Belleville.

Television Wit Chamber Speaker

Suzanne Elizabeth Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, 32 Frank Street, received her Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Physical and Health Education degrees at the June 9 Convocation at Queen's University, Kingston. Suzanne is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School and will attend MacArthur College of Education in Kingston in September.

Noted television performer and columnist, with the Toronto Star, Henry Morgan will be guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting next February.

The visit by Mr. Morgan was confirmed during the last meeting for 1973-74 of the chamber on Wednesday.

Mr. Morgan, now a Canadian resident living in Toronto, was a prominent and witty panel member of the television show I've Got a Secret which ran in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Also brought up at the meeting was the official opening of the tourist booth at the Quinte Mall this Friday, June 21. The centennial of Belleville in 1978 was also discussed and it was emphasized that a series of three public meetings will be held in the fall to obtain public opinion.

The chamber concluded a busy 1973-74 term of office with this meeting, carrying out such activities as the setting up of the centennial committee, the endorsement of an Opportunities for Youth project in which five high school graduates will conduct a survey of the city's priorities and the handling of various matters through its Convention Bureau.

Air Mechanics Accept Offer

A strike by 42 aircraft mechanics in the Belleville Trenton area set for Wednesday night was averted when union members voted to accept the company offer.

The workers, members of Local 2411, International Association of Machinists are employed by Field Aviation Co. Ltd. of Malton (Toronto).

The workers voted Tuesday night to accept the company offer of $1.13 an hour over two years, said a union spokesman. The contract is effective April 1 of this year and ends April 1, 1976. The workers will receive retroactive pay.

The company and the workers have been negotiating since December, said the spokesman.

Also settled was the issue of holidays and fringe benefits.

Store Window Smashed

Belleville police are investigating a smash-and-grab incident in which a man broke the large front window at the Frontier Shop late yesterday evening.

Before he had a man was seen punching the window of the Front Street store around 4:45 p.m. yesterday.

The store's owners were unable to give an accurate estimate of damage caused by the man and would not say what items the assailant was missing from the store.

Police said they discovered a trail of blood leading from the store across the street to a flea shop.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said he thought the man may have been trying to take some hats out of the store's display window.

Miracle on John Street' Is Now Officially Open

"The miracle on John St." was officially opened Wednesday afternoon as Hon. Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of community and social services cut the ribbon to open North America's second Cheshire Home. He was assisted by resident Peter Ramsay.

Wilfred J. Wilkinson, chairman of the Cheshire Homes committee, said the steering committee that began the movement to create a home in Belleville "confined up a dream so beautiful it seemed like a fairy tale."

"As a businessman, I could not believe this dream could become a reality," he said. "To me, 246 John St. is a miracle."

The 100-year-old residence has been converted into a permanent home for 12 handicapped adults, who otherwise would have spent their lives in institutions, said residents, Jeff York, Cheryl Sullivan, Peter Ramsay, Sandy Cunningham and Muriel Fitzgerald, are now living in the home. Five more will move in after the elevator is installed.

Mr. Brunelle said the participation of volunteers from the community is the crucial

Ellis Bill Now Dead

His private member's bill that would suspend driving licences for a all time for persons convicted twice of impaired driving or of impaired driving which causes bodily injury with the dissolution of Parliament, Jack Ellis told members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Wednesday.

Speaking to the group's provincial convention being held at Albert College this week, Mr. Ellis, who described himself as an abstainer, said his private, members' bill would have imposed a sentence of three months to 10 for the impaired driving caused death and that a person convicted of impaired driving causing or their time would perform a yearly duty driving privileges in Canada. First offence of impaired driving would also have that result.

Mr. Ellis said today that he drew the bill, which would amend the Criminal Code, several months ago because it "seemed to me to be something that isn't being tackled very conscientiously.

However he said he put it in the draw, which determines time of debate for private bills, his Bill C-269 came up "way way down" on the list.

The hobby display is an all-day event with crafts, models and collectors' items being shown.

Harder Than It Looks

It seemed an easy skill before it was started. But once begun, tossing paper pie plates into a hoop, proved difficult enough for Lana Doxtator, 13, (from left), Carol Shandrow, Kathy Dafoe, and Debbie Warren, all 13. The four learned skills and games they will teach Thurlow township youngsters this summer. The four girls, along with 21 others, will act as playground supervisors in Thurlow playgrounds. Wednesday's gathering at Harmony Public School was an initial training session.

homes should have 100 per cent provincial funding. The financial contributions of the community guarantee its continuing interest.

The minister presented an Ontario flag to the home.

Ron Basford, secretary of state for urban affairs was represented by Sen. Joseph Sullman, who termed the home a fabulous enterprise.

"We don't have enough of these homes," the said. "I hope this will be the second of many more. Our governments have been slow to get into this. I think it take the initiative of citizens."

Senator Neiman said she was sure the home's sponsor had had to overcome a lot of bureaucratic red tape in bringing the project to completion.

"We will have to learn to be more flexible and listen to the needs of the people," she said of government.

"Those shouldn't be government building that doesn't have facilities for the handicapped, so they can live and work there," she added in applause from the listeners.

She said the sidewalks are a barrier to the handicapped and should be modified so that the handicapped can use the streets.

Total capital cost of the home is about $90,000, including the purchase price of $42,000. However, the renovations costs were mostly for materials. Volunteer labor accomplished most of the renovations, with Harold Vaughan donating his services as general contractor and Paul Flegel as architect.

The ministry of community and social services awarded $12,000 toward capital costs and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation granted the mortgage.

Service clubs have contributed substantial sums toward the home, with the Kinsmen giving the first contribution of $25,000 and the Kinettes $2,000 toward reality.

Following the opening, Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 here Mr. Wilkinson a check for $447, the proceeds of a benefit dance for the home.

Annual operating expenses will be about $43,000, with the provincial government contribution 80 per cent, the residents 20 per cent through their disability pensions and the community 10 per cent through donations.

The Belleville Garden Club landscaped the grounds and prepared the flower beds for the opening.

Margaret McLeod, who started the first Cheshire Home in Canada in Toronto was present at the dedication and brought a card unsigned by all residents of McLeod House.

The concept of communal living for handicapped adults in a home atmosphere was originated by Group Captain Leonard Cheshire, VC, in England after the Second World War. The movement has since spread to 20 countries around the world and more than 100 homes are now in operation.

Mr. Wilkinson said Tuesday that seven or eight additional homes are now in the planning stage in Canada, most of them in Ontario.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey brought greetings from the city of Belleville to the audience assembled in BCI's cafeteria for the opening addresses. The opening was moved from the front yard of the home to BCI because of rain.

Women from St. Andrew's Church provided refreshments.

Rev. Laurie Sutherland dedicated the home and gave the benediction.

Patricia Margaret Barbeau received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Acadia University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Barbeau, Bobcaygeon.

Busby Fires Season's First No-hitter

Perfect Game One Walk Away

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steve Busby of Kansas City Royals pitched the first no-hitter of the 1974 baseball season Wednesday night and missed a perfect game by giving up a walk.

George Scott of Milwaukee Brewers was the other pitcher allowed on base by Busby in the 2-0 American League game.

Busby, who pitched his first no-hitter as a rookie last season against Detroit Tigers, received excellent fielding support.

"I didn't make a whole lot of bad pitches and made them hit the ball," he said.

Two catches by right fielder Al Cowens and a sparkling play by second baseman Cookie Rojas preserved the no-hitter.

With one out in the second inning, Darrell Porter hit a long drive to right centre that Cowens neared on the run. With two out in the fourth, Cowens raced into the same territory to flag down a drive by Scott.

With two out in the eighth, Bob Hansen hit a hard ground ball headed toward right field, but Rojas intercepted it with a diving, whirl-and-throw play.

"That was the play that made the whole game," said Busby. "That was super."

Busby thought Wednesday night's game was better than last year's no-hitter.

"This was the biggest thrill of all, bigger than last year, because this was my type of game," said Busby. "I was more aware of what was going on this time."

In other games Detroit Tigers beat Texas Rangers 4-3 in 11 innings, Baltimore Orioles nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3, Chicago White Sox pounded Cleveland Indians 18-4, New York Yankees trimmed California Angels 5-1, and Boston Red Sox nipped Oakland A's 5-3 in 11 innings.

Busby, 24, relying mostly on fastballs and keeping them low, allowed only five balls to be hit to the outfield.

A crowd of 9,019 watched the first no-hitter to be pitched in Royals Stadium since 1961.

Walters Spahn of the old Milwaukee Braves pitched the last no-hitter at the Milwaukee park when he beat San Francisco Giants 1-0 April 28, 1961.

Ed Brinkman knocked in the tie-breaking run with an 11th-inning double, sparking Detroit over Texas.

A seven-run seventh inning, featured by Dick Allen's two-run homer, powered Chicago over Cleveland. The White Sox had a 5-4 lead when they produced eight consecutive hits in the seventh.

George Medich, 8-5, shackled California on seven hits and Chris Chambliss doubled in drive in the winning run in New York's victory over the Angels.

Bob Montgomery's bases loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th inning gave Boston its victory over Oakland.

Cup's First Round Two-thirds Over

FRANKFURT (AP) — World Cup soccer starts take a rest today with Poland joining West Germany as the second-round while the goal-shy Latin Americans still seek their first victory.

With 18 of the 34 first round matches completed, this is the situation:

Group I: West Germany is through to the second round, whatever the result of its match with East Germany Saturday. East Germany and Chile will take the remaining qualifying place. Australia cannot advance.

Group II: Zaire is out of it. Brazil, Yugoslavia and Scotland will battle Saturday for the two qualifying places.

Group III: Still open, but with Uruguay facing a statistically tougher task than the Netherlands, Sweden and Bulgaria.

Group IV: Poland has qualified, while Haiti cannot advance. Argentina and Italy, beating Haiti Sunday, only if Italy beats to Poland. A draw puts Italy through.

Poland made sure of its second-round place with a 7-0 triumph over Haiti in Munich. Haiti coach Antoine Tassy blamed the defeat on the psychological effect of the suspension of Haiti's best defender, Ernst Jean-Joseph, for doping.

Poland's Andrzej Szarmach scored three goals and Grzegorz Lato two. They tied the over-all tournament scoring list with four apiece.

Argentina, previously beaten 3-2 by Poland, scored both the goals in the 1-1 draw with Italy at Stuttgart.

Sweden and Holland fought out a bruising goalless draw before a capacity crowd at Dortmund, with 30,000 Dutch fans in attendance.

It was the second successive non-scorer for Sweden and the fourth of the tournament.

CONTRACT DROPPED

EDMONTON (CP) — Detroit Wheels of the World Football League have renounced contract rights to Sam Britz of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, Edmonton general manager Norm Kimball said Monday. The Eskimos had started legal action against the Wheels for allegedly inducing Britz, a second-year linebacker in his option year, to breach his contract with Edmonton. Kimball said the Baltimore Bays would not proceed with their claim against the Wheels.

Runners' Nightmare In Two NL Contests

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angels Dodgers and San Francisco Giants gave a new twist to the art of base running Wednesday night.

The Dodgers' display came in a 7-3 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates while the Giants won 5-4 over St. Louis Cardinals.

In other National League baseball games, San Diego Padres rookie Dan Spillner pitched a six-hit victory over Chicago Cubs, Montreal Expos won 4-3 over Cincinnati Reds, Atlanta Braves blanked New York Mets 5-0, and Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston 5-4.

In the first inning at Pittsburgh, Lee Lacy of Los Angeles was on third, Jimmy Wynn on second and Steve Garvey on first. Jerry Reuss fired a two-out, full-count pitch to Joe Fergu-

Strike three? Ferguson thought so. He did ratcher Manny Sanguillen who flipped the ball toward the mound. And Wynn, assuming the ball was lagged toward the Dodgers' dugout.

But umpire Dave Davidson called it ball four.

Wynn, now on third, took off for home. Reuss picked up the ball and threw to Sanguillen, who tagged Wynn. Then Sanguillen relayed the ball to Richie Hebner at third, who touched the bag.

Lacy, a spectator near the dugout during all the suddenly dashed to the plate. Hebner threw to Sanguillen, who tagged Lacy.

"Ye- out!" Davidson signalled.

Players and managers tumbled from both dugouts, arguing with Davidson and chief umpire Ed Sudol.

Sudol finally ruled that Wynn was out when he touched home, not because he was tagged by Lacy.

And Lacy, said Sudol, was entitled to home because of the batter-loaded walk, even though he was near the dugout when Wynn was out.

Moreover, the umpire added, Lacy was immune to a tag. So he scored when he slid home, even though Sanguillen tagged him and even though Wynn had already made it out of line of running.

"I'm just happy that one run didn't make a difference," said Pirates Manager Danny Murtaugh.

Reuss pitched a seven-hitter and Sanguillen drove in a pair of runs, one of them in a decisive four-run fifth that overcame the Dodgers' 3-1 lead.

In St. Louis, Garry Maddox of the Giants was on first with Ed Goodson up. Goodson hit Bob Gibson's pitch to deep centre. Baker Maddox appeared to take the catch at the 410-foot sign, but the ball fell out of his glove over the eight-foot wall.

Maddox stopped at second base then retreated toward first. He thought the ball was caught, but it was thrown back over the wall, as to the playing field, by a stadium attendant.

Goodson passed Maddox between first and second and was called out. Maddox crossed home and Goodson was credited with a run-scoring single.

Bobby Bonds of the Giants and Jose Cruz of the Cardinals traded three-run homers, and Tito Fuentes broke a 4-4 tie with a seventh-inning single to give San Francisco the victory.

Bobby Tolan of San Diego opened the game against Chicago with a base single, was sacrificed to second, took off for third when Dave Winfield flied out, and continued home when shortstop Don Kessinger heaved the ball way over third.

With the Braves leading 2-0 in the sixth inning, New York loaded the bases against Buzz Capra with two away. But Tom House took over, got pinch-hitter Dutty Dyer to ground out to end the inning, then retired the Mets' nine remaining batters in order.

Mike Schmidt had three singles and drove home two runs, the last an inning-ending fifth-inning fly with Phillies' victory over Houston.

Ron Hunt's Single Plates the Winner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ron Hunt broke a 3-3 tie with a bases-loaded single in the fourth inning, leading Montreal Expos to a 4-3 win over Cincinnati Reds in National League baseball action Wednesday.

The Expos' triumph marked starter Don Gullett's first career loss to Montreal after four victories and ended his current winning streak at five games.

The Expos jumped on Gullett, 7-4, with two runs in the first inning. Hal Breeden doubled in Tim Foli, who had gotten to second and went to third when catcher Johnny Bench's throw went into centre field for an error. Ken Singleton then singled across Foli.

The Reds tied it in the third when Pete Rose doubled and scored on Cesar Geronimo's single and Bench singled in Geronimo.

In the fourth, after Singleton and Barry Foote singled, Mike Torrez laid down a sacrifice bunt and was safe at first when Geronimo dropped the ball around. Hunt then delivered his single, scoring Singleton. Foli followed with a sacrifice fly, scoring Foote.

Torrez, 7-4, scattered eight hits before departing with none out in the seventh. Bench led off and induced pinch-hitter Joe Morgan to line out and then struck out Rose and Geronimo.

The victory was Montreal's fourth in six games with the Reds.

Faulkner Has Reason To Be Superstitious

By ALAN TEDWORTH
Sports Reporter

Bill Faulkner is a superstitious type, but it seems he has some reason to be. He believes so-called "bad luck" comes in sets, and a good one at that. The two statements tie in very closely to one another.

The 39-year-old Faulkner has been handling horses for some 30 years, having been around them since he was 14. Born and raised on a farm near Holowsy, he always had a passion for, and appreciated by the racing type.

In the many years of training, he has learned a great deal about the sometimes very individual horses.

Training is a method of trial and error remarks the knowledgeable Faulkner, "but like being on a lightpost either you're on or you're off."

Bill has always liked handling a trotter, rather than a pacer. He says it gives him a bit more of a challenge.

A trotter wears no hobbles, the piece of harness which helps keep the pacers' legs in stride. Since a trotter's legs move independently, hobbles are neither practical nor possible.

"The whole trick with of trotter is with the balance of the horse. If a horse isn't on balance, then it's all over. A trotter is like clockwork in its racing. And there's a lot of laziness that can't tell when a horse has its balance or not."

His superstition has been spurred from a string of bad luck with publicity of his horses, whether he actually owned them or not before they were to race.

One well known example to racing fans in the Quinte area and North America, is Big Yankee Wave.

In the first Richard Ellis Memorial Pace, in 1970, Big Yankee Wean raced as a special entry, to promote harness racing in the Belleville area. The next morning he was dead after winning the race in 2:08.4. The Intelligencer had carried an extensive advance on the race, including a picture only a few days before the race.

It is for this reason that there is no picture accompanying this story on Faulkner and his horses. A four - year-old trotter, Groundhog Hyrhan, has been entered in Friday night's maiden's race at the Quinte track. Of course, the mare is a trotter.

The mare raced as a two-year-old in several stakes races in the United States, although never showing very much. Faulkner picked up the horse as a three-year-old last November in an auction in Delaware, Ohio.

The mare has excellent blood lines on her sire's side. The sire, Speedster, holds a mark of 1:59.4.

Rain Brings Out Best In BQSA Goalkeepers

Wednesday's rain forced postponement of only one of three scheduled Belleville Association matches as Belleville teams earned a pair of wins.

Playing in Brighton, Belleville Parsons blanked he home side 2-0 as Rick Hurst recorded his fifth shutout of the season starts. At the Ontario School for the Deaf pitch, Belleville Parsons blanked Trenton Penalax 2-1, thanks to what one member of the winning team described as "fantastic goalkeeping by Robin Ryan".

So, while playing conditions may have been more suitable for ducks than soccer players, goalkeepers didn't seem to mind the weather.

Trenton Whitby Insurance did not make its scheduled trip to Wallbrook Institution. The match was postponed until Monday, June 24, because reported two league officials, "security personnel at the institution were beefiand to stand and watch in the rain".

"If this is true, we'll have to take steps to see that it does not happen again," commented BQSA president Peter Crowle.

"We can't have the schedule upset in this manner."

There has been another change in the schedule. The June 27 game between Belleville Olympics and Consolidated Haulage of Bayside has been moved up to June 26, at OSD, because of the hard way to Brighton. The team dressed only 13 players for the match.

The final goal of the game came from a scramble in front of the Brighton net. Dave Powell put the ball in.

"We were lucky, very lucky," observed a spokesman for Parsons.

United had to overcome a 1-0 Penalax lead with two unanswered goals in the second half to shade the visitors, at OSD.

Meanwhile, Colin Baillie and Rob Bartner joined Ryan as the leaders of the United cause.

Oshawa's Comeback Sinks Lions Peewees

Oshawa peewees found the going rough with Belleville Lions Club until the third period rolled around, that is.

The visiting Oshawa club blanked Lions in the third to take a 10-5 decision from the Lions in South Central Lacrosse Association action, Tuesday night.

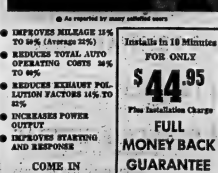
The locals had a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period on goals by Dan Prevost and Paul Hounslow, but that was the last time Belleville was in the lead.

Joey Ronnik fired Oshawa's first marker and their second and their third, their sixth and their ninth. Ronnik also added an assist to his five goal performance.

Dale Degray wasn't far behind Ronnik as he scored four times for Oshawa and was followed by Tim Scriber scored the other Oshawa goal.

For Belleville Jamie Robertson scored once and added an assist and Prevost and Hounslow each scored another. Dan Hounslow and Dave Lewicki picked up two assists each.

Tournament Is Rescheduled



Doc Smith, president of the Belleville Minor Softball Association said today the Ontario Amateur Softball Association peewee tournament originally scheduled for June 22 in Belleville has been set back to August 18.

At least two other peewee tourneys were written in on or near the June 22 date, prompting the rescheduling of the Belleville event.

Talks Go On But Forever?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Representatives of the Canadian Football League owners and the players' association were to sit down at the bargaining table in Winnipeg today for a resumption of talks that broke off last weekend.

At issue are the players' demands for increased payments for training camps, pre-season games and players' games and pension funds.

Most members of the players' association have, in effect, been on strike since the weekend when they voluntarily retired. They plan to end their retirements as soon as the dispute is settled.

Neither side has given much indication of whether they expect an early end to the dispute which would allow the veterans to return to training camps where most clubs' rookies have been working out this week.

The CFL owners, with the exception of Ottawa Rough Riders, have stood firm on their decision to reduce the strikebound veterans' use of training facilities.

In Ottawa, the Rider players are preparing for their June 29 match against the league all-stars at Lansdowne Park. The Riders, who have not yet renewed their leases at Lansdowne, found they couldn't effectively use the veterans from training there.

George Reed of Regina Roughriders, president of the players' association, said earlier this week it would have been in the owners' best interests to allow the players use of facilities.

Most of the more than 370 veteran players who retired last Saturday have been staging light workouts of their own without the benefit of coaches or facilities.

Big M Happy Toro

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros scheduled a news conference today but the news already is out—Frank Mahovlich has signed a contract with the World Hockey Association club.

"I signed for four years and I'm happy," the 36-year-old former National Hockey League star said in an interview Wednesday.

Mahovlich, jumping from Montreal Canadiens, was one of two big names from the NHL to join the WHA Wednesday. Bruce MacGregor, New York Rangers' leading scorer in this year's Stanley Cup playoffs, joined the WHA Edmonton Oilers.

MacGregor, 33, told a news conference in Edmonton he had chosen to join the Oilers "because this is home."

Mahovlich's move had been expected for some time and Montreal left him unprotected in last week's expansion draft.

The Toros apparently will not be announcing the signing of Pete Mahovlich, Frank's younger brother.

"I haven't talked to him for a while but it looks like he won't move," the Big M said of his younger brother.

If the Toros play next season in Maple Leaf Gardens, Mahovlich will be returning to the arena where he won NHL rookie-of-the-year honors in 1957-58.

The Big M, who has a home and two travel agency offices in Toronto, spent 11 seasons with the Leafs before he was traded to Detroit Red Wings in 1968.

His best goal-scoring season came in 1968-69 with the Wings when he scored 49 but his best points production came in 1971-72 with Montreal when he had 43 goals and 53 assists.

Last season, he led the Canadiens with 31 goals and 49 assists.

MacGregor, a former captain of the Edmonton Oil Kings juniors, played 10 seasons with Detroit before he was traded to the Rangers in 1971.

He became the third player to leave the Rangers since the playoffs. Ranger captain Vic Hadfield was traded to Pittsburgh Penguins and Jim Nielsen was allowed to be drafted in a deal involving California Golden Seals and Boston Bruins to which the Bruins gave New York Derek Sanderson.

MacGregor scored only 17 goals last season but was a standout performer for the Rangers in the playoffs with six goals.

Sinden Is Confident Cashman Will Stay

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League are negotiating a new contract for forward Wayne Cashman amid reports he is considering a long-term offer for the new Cincinnati Stingers in the World Hockey Association.

Bruins managing director Harry Sinden said Wednesday he wants to keep Cashman and "I have every confidence that he'll stay here and that we'll be able to negotiate a deal he'll be happy with."

Cashman said Tuesday he would rather stay with the Bruins where he has one year left in his contract.

He would be available for the Stingers' first season, 1975-76.

Sinden said he could not confirm whether Cashman had an offer from Cincinnati but said Cashman's lawyer had told him so.

Leafs Defeat St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Lakeshore Maple Leafs got three-goal performances from three players as they defeated St. Catharines Legionaires 19-12 in the lone Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game Wednesday.

Rick Bennett, Ron Smith and Ted Hopkins each had three goals with Tom Butt, Nino Cipriti and Gary Prelick each adding a pair. Joe Shearan, Ken Lane, Russ McEwen and Lance Bullock got the others.

WORLD BOWL SET

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The World Bowl, the World Football League's first championship game, will be held at Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 29, Commissioner Gary L. Davidson announced Wednesday. The game will be played at the Gator Bowl, home of Jacksonville Sharks of the WFL.

Leaders Improve Positions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league-leading Rochester Griffins and Maryland Arrows bolstered their positions in the National Lacrosse League Wednesday.

The Griffins defeated Syracuse Stingers 14-9 at Syracuse and the Arrows moved into second place and pleaded a home-town crowd of 6,464 at-Land over Mail, with a 21-10 over victory over Montreal Quebecois.

Bill Hocalik's four goals led the Griffins who have a three-point lead over second-place Toronto Tomahawks.

Al Gardenier added three goals for Rochester while Dave Wilfong and Dave Johnston scored hat-tricks. Ken Wright of Syracuse and Brian Kreiger had one goal each.

The teams played to a 17-17 tie in regulation time.

Montreal got four goals from Jim Lynch, three each from Dale McKenzie and John Davis and two each from Gord Oliichuk and Rob McCarthy. Bill Nunn, Gord Floyd, Bill Bradley, Dave Tasker and Rick Rossley contributed one each.

BOSTON SIDELINED

DETROIT (AP) — Left fielder Willie Horton underwent treatment for torn cartilage in his right knee Wednesday, but Detroit Tigers said they hoped he could resume play this week-end. Horton, tied for the American League home run lead with 15, will return to the hospital for further tests.

British Postal Service No Longer Envy of World

LONDON (CP) — The postman's knock is less frequently heard these days as Britain's postal service, once the envy of the world, creaks precariously under a chronic shortage of staff.

Tom Jackson, the postal workers' union leader, says the service is on the verge of collapse, a view shared by many. Wen. End businesses when an overtime ban in the main district sorting office can mean letters take a week or more to travel a mile across town.

Anthony Trollope, who as Surveyor in the post office in the 1860s invented the street pillar-box and gave Britain an unequalled mail service before quitting to write his novels of political and social life, would not recognise his legacy today.

In Trollope's day, there were 13 deliveries daily in London and a lady could drop a note to her suitor by the morning post and have a reply by evening. Without benefit of telephone or telex, the wheels of commerce ran smoothly and utterly reliably.

Even in the late 1930s, with the telephone widely installed in British cities, there were still seven deliveries a day. Receipts, London's deliveries were cut to two from three, and disgruntled, overworked postal employees have just voted to put an end to Saturday delivery.

Complaints about the service have increased since the two-tiers system came into use in 1968.

About 94 per cent of first-class mail reaches its destination within 24 hours—10 per cent down on the post office's target. About the same percentage of second-class or "mail mail" as it is sometimes unkindly dubbed, arrives on its third-day delivery schedule, but delays are increasing.

Postal rates rose by more than 25 per cent in June for first-class mail and even before the new stamps were issued, post office chairman Sir William Ryland was warning of a further increase in 1975. Only a few years ago, the post office was soliciting trade with the much-parodied slogan "Someone, somewhere, wants a letter from you." The volume of mail has varied by only a few hundred thousand since 1939.

The basic problem is pay. Postmen earn slightly more than £30 ($68) for a 45-hour week. As a result, one in three postal jobs in southeast England is vacant, leaving such staff as there is to work crippling overtime to get the mail through.

Postmen started to fall behind in the public service pay race when their nine-week strike in 1971 fizzled with no advantage gained. When the then Labor government turned the post office into a business-style public corporation in 1969, postmen lost the security of the civil service pay procedure—and the post office corporation, far from making a profit as planned, runs a huge deficit.

Some postmen are rumored to take home nearly £90 a week but for that they would probably have to work 120 hours and, as union leader Jackson observes, that is hardly conducive to efficiency.

Mechanization, announced in a 10 million program when the postcode system was unveiled, has ground to a virtual halt because the postal union wants more money for supervising it and also dislikes the impersonality of the clattering machines.

In any case, says the Daily Mail, "there is no way of running a postal service without p o s t m e n"—you can only mechanize the sorting, not the delivery.

In Trollope's time, writes Mail writer Ferdinand Mount, such a well-oiled service rested on a vast network of men prepared to work seven days a week for a farm laborer's wage. Nowadays, Christmas Day and public holiday deliveries are a thing of the past—except for Good Friday.

The Mail article suggests Britain could once again have a postal service as good as that of 100 years ago, but only if it decides future costs of the service (16 cents). It now is 10½ pence and about to rise to 4½ pence and about to rise to 6½. What next year's projected increase will mean, doubters be close to six—but no one is expecting any Trollopean miracles.

So Canadian you can taste it.

So popular you can afford it.

Coffee For Drunk Perilous

TORONTO (CP) — Giving black coffee to a drunk may be unwise, a researcher at Toronto's Addiction Research Foundation believes.

"The stimulant caffeine may change a sleepy, manageable drunk into an active, dangerous being known as a 'wide-awake drunk,'" said Dr. Richard Gilbert, a psychologist who is conducting tests with animals to study the effects of caffeine.

His experiments suggest that coffee may contribute to heavy drinking of alcohol.

"My research indicates that the craving for alcohol becomes particularly strong when caffeine is added to an unbalanced diet," Dr. Gilbert said in an interview.

One of his tests consisted of feeding rats a diet low in protein and high in carbohydrates—the type favored by some teen-agers.

"We found that rats on the teen-age diet drank four times as much alcohol as rats on a balanced diet and when caffeine was added to the teen-age diet, they drank eight times as much alcohol," Dr. Gilbert said.

He also speculated that caffeine may lead to dependency on other drugs: Persons who become restless and edgy because of too much caffeine may resort to tranquillizers, barbiturates or other mood-altering drugs to combat these effects.

Dr. Gilbert said coffee and other foods containing caffeine as possible contributors to heart disease.

"The caffeine constricts the blood vessels and forces the heart to work harder," he said.

GENEVA (AP) — A poll conducted in France, Germany, Italy, Holland and Belgium shows that Switzerland is considered the most trustworthy country in the world. Conducted by Ronald Inglehart of Michigan State University and David Handley, University of Geneva, in co-operation with the European Community Information Centre, the poll shows that Switzerland holds top rank with a trust rating of 78 per cent.

Flank Attack Off

WOOLWICH, England (CP) — As a test of resourcefulness, 21 candidates for promotion to sergeant were ordered to bring back a stripper from the local nightclub. But a senior army officer soon called off the manoeuvre, saying it was "not the sort of thing to be encouraged." Anyway a soldier who went to the club reported that "they only have erotic dancers—not strippers—and they aren't letting us have one."

Maestro Hasn't Made Dime From 60 Years of Conducting

TORONTO (CP) — Success for Walter Kingsley Ottaway has been measured in ways other than money. He has found happiness in making his audience happy.

The only concession he makes to his 87 years is to sit for a short set to lead the orchestra through rehearsals. "Touch of arthritis, you know. Very annoying."

He came to Toronto from England in 1910 at the age of 23. He already could play the violin, trumpet, piano and banjo, as well as the organ. His first job was as an organ tester in Woodstock, Ont.

He still plays the organ every day in his Toronto apartment and often sings to his wife, Lily, whom he married 62 years ago.

After his marriage, Walter had an urge to become a professional musician, but he remembers "in those days you had to be extremely lucky to earn $20 a week as a musician. I'd also become interested in real estate by that time and I stayed with it for the rest of my working life."

During the First World War, Mr. Ottaway enlisted as a trumpeter in the band of the 180th Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. He served as a machine-gunner in France, where he was gassed in a German attack.

In 1917, his band had the honor of being the first to play tunes in Westminster Abbey. The concert was the wish of King George V and Queen Mary to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Confederation of Canada.

When Mr. Ottaway formed his own orchestra in 1933, it was the original octet of 1932. The band, a bunch of us getting together to have some fun," he says. "We played for dances and parties, then for banks and eventually for radio. We had a lot of fun."

Ottaway's orchestra has been in 31 numbers, ranging in age from a 16-year-old flautist to their leader who became 87 in the only survivor of the original octet of 1932. The band, a bunch of us getting together to have some fun," he says. "We played for dances and parties, then for banks and eventually for radio. We had a lot of fun."

U.S. Television Networks Prepare for Fall Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Head to head and toe to toe, the three television networks will slug it out for strength this fall.

Unlike last year, when they dredged into a fall season crippled by a 16-week writers' strike, the networks have strong schedules.

Despite the pessimism CBS carries into the fall because of last season's runaway ratings victory, all networks appear more evenly matched than in recent memory.

Family life will be the dominant theme in the new shows. The concentration of police shows is coming to an end. Six new shows following in the path of The Waltons, while only five of the new series are police shows. Most comedies and several dramatic and adventure shows will emphasize warm relationships and character development.

Even the police show — McMillan and Wife is in the family way. The McMillans will be blessed with a child at about midseason, due to the pregnancy of Rock Hudson's co-star Susan St. James.

As especially strong lineup of specials, original TV movies and recent hit theatrical movies are in the offing.

In the last few months, the networks have discarded 40 series, an unprecedented number. Only five shows introduced last fall—Kojak, Apple's Way, Happy Days, Good Times and The $6 Million Man, are returning.

The new shows last fall were shot through with weaknesses, partly attributable to the writers' strike.

This is not the case for fall. A preview of the new series disclosed them as strong in writing and casting.

The only cloud is the possibility of an actors' strike. The Screen Actors Guild now is negotiating with the producers for a new contract. The present contract expires June 30.

Next fall, only a handful of the returning shows will be in their familiar time slots. Hit shows are being shifted to strengthen weak shots and provide support for the new shows.

For instance, CBS is moving Good Times, M-A-S-H and Kojak to Sunday, which traditionally has been CBS's weakest night. Apple's Way opens the night for CBS and Mannix closes it.

ABC, knocked dead on Saturday night by the CBS comedy block, moves King Fu in at nine o'clock between two new shows, The New Land and Nakia.

The New Land follows the life of Swedish immigrants first portrayed in the movies The Emigrants and The New Land. It's probably the strongest series on the ABC schedule and ABC hopes it will do to All in the Family what The Waltons did to Flip Wilson.

NBC places its new African show, Born Free, from the movie, on Mondays against ABC's The Rookies and CBS's Gunsmoke, entering its 20th year minus Amanda Blake as Kitty Russell. and The Rookies, which starts its third year without Michael Ontkean. Ontkean was dropped when he held out for a higher salary.

Following Gunsmoke, CBS hopes to draw viewers away from NBC's movies and ABC's NFL Football with Maude and Rhoda. Valerie Harper stars in Rhoda, a spinoff from The Mary Tyler Moore Show, in a one-hour episode early in the season she will get married.

LIONS MAMMOTH $1000. BINGO TONIGHT!!
AT 7.45 — BEN BLECKER AUDITORIUM — FAIRGROUNDS

Showbiz Shorts

MONTREAL (CP) — The seventh edition of Man and His World, successor to Expo 67, opens its pavilions today, but possibly the most prized attraction on the fairgrounds are still locked away in a storeroom.

The French government's pavilion, presenting a panorama view of the city of Lyon and artifacts associated with the French national heroine, Joan of Arc, was not ready for opening day. Franck Sauer, commissioner-general, could not say when the show would be ready—possibly a week to 10 days.

France's display was the hoodoo one of four or five which were not finished for the opening of the exposition, which runs on St. Helen's Island until Sept. 2. There were delays in shipping some goods here from France, and then the pavilion construction work rules it had not expected.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Shaw Festival Theatre, in its 13th season, is having its best season yet with box office receipts maintaining a record-breaking pace.

Figures released Wednesday by the Niagara-on-the-Lake festival indicate that with the season barely three weeks old, box office receipts have reached 9% per cent of potential with ticket totalling $96,975.

Total box office potential for the 856-seat theatre is $958,350. During the week ending June 14, the theatre was filled to 96-per-cent capacity.

The festival officially opened Tuesday season with George Bernard Shaw's The Devil's Disciple. It runs until Aug. 30 and is already 66-per-cent sold.

Charley's Aunt, quickly becoming a runaway hit, is already sold 80 per cent in advance. It runs until July 26.

Too Good to Be True, opening Aug. 5 is 55-per-cent sold.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, June 21

Aries (March 21-April 19) Today, you should derive enjoyment from the quieter things. Staying around with one too active will cause disruption you need to do without.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll be better off doing what pleases you, rather than attempting a task that your heart isn't in.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If you don't lock your budget down tight today, you're going to spend some funds frivolously that you've set aside for more practical purposes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This can be a fun day if you don't let an insignificant person overwhelm your thoughts. Treat yourself to something nice.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll spare yourself annoyance if you steer clear of one who always upsets your plans in order to satisfy his own interests.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to cover your present needs with what you have at hand. Don't bank on new sources that may yet to prove they can produce.

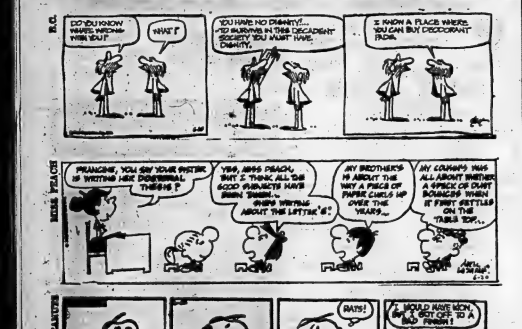
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't make changes at the present where your work or career is concerned. You could be your own worst enemy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll find it hard to be helpful to others today, if those you're involved with let you call the shots.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You'll fare very well if you deal solely with those close to you. Snags with outsiders could be costly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll get all the co-operation you need if you let others know that what you want is not for you alone, but for them as well.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your rewards will come only if you finish what you start. Don't jump from one project to another.



Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're lucky today as long as you bet only on sure things. Taking a chance on something you're not familiar with will prove a flop.

Most Retirements Need Replacement for Pressure

HALIFAX (CP) — Retirement can be fun.

At least that is the opinion of a number of retired Nova Scotians who participated in a recent seminar at Mount St. Vincent university here.

Mark Lear of Dartmouth, retired for 11 years, said he finds time to do odd jobs that he wants to do and which gives him "more enjoyment than work ever gave before."

"The older I get the better I get," he said, but added that it is most important to keep busy.

Lake McCarthy of Dartmouth said that the transition from being busy to being relaxed isn't bad if one can find a replacement for the pressures of industry.

"Naturally, if you sit around you won't have a very good time, but if you can join a club with other people your own age you can't have a better time."

His wife said the freedom from responsibilities to job and family makes life more enjoyable "because you can spend it together." She said retirement and membership in a senior citizens' club "almost takes one back to being a teen-ager."

Marguerite Harinett of Rockingham said most people think a person's life is finished once he has retired.

"If you're young in mind you're never finished," she said. "Besides, retirement doesn't mean one is old and feeble and confined to a rocking chair."

Vera Carter of Dartmouth said that retired people can do things that no other people in the world can do.

"Being in a relaxed group with people your own age is beautiful. You do what you want, when you want, with no one to remind you of your job or family."

Arthur Rosen of Halifax, a man of vitality at 84 years of age, said the means should be set up for retired persons to speak to groups of people who are about to retire.

"If a retiring person is not ready for it, he will lose all motivation, will get tired of doing things and eventually just won't bother to take care of himself."

He also said the retired should be given an opportunity to counsel others.

"We've been through a lot, and we know a lot about trouble and problems. What better sort of person could help a lonely old man or an older couple whose marriage is bad?"

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Dennis Hall has been let out of jail to sing his way out of debt. Hall, who has spent almost half his 26 years behind bars, started to sing while in solitary confinement.

Saskatchewan Medicare Cost Is Almost Doubled

REGINA (CP) — Although the number of persons in Saskatchewan's medical care insurance plan has not increased significantly in 11 years, the cost of providing service to them has almost doubled.

In a statistical survey, the medical care insurance commission has determined that the only cost being kept under control is that of administering the plan.

The Saskatchewan plan was the first government medical care insurance program in Canada and is the first to provide a report for a decade of operation.

G. C. Patchett, executive director of the commission, said the statistics lead to at least one question:

"Don't we need some constraint? Can we go on increasing at this rate?"

The program began operation in July, 1962. At the end of the first year, there were 816,237 persons insured. In 1973 the number was 880,205.

During that time the annual cost of insured medical services more than doubled, from $18.3 million to $42.6 million.

That works out to $23 a person in 1963 and $48 in 1973.

In the first year, 68.4 per cent of those insured visited a doctor at least once. By 1973, the percentage had risen to 80 per cent.

While claims increased from 1.9 million in 1963 to four million in 1973, the number of persons on the MCIC payroll was reduced to 141 from 218.

That meant a significant increase in the number of claims each employee handles and it was achieved, Mr. Patchett said, by improved technology and a more efficient claims-handling system.

The cost of processing each claim has been trimmed to 44 cents from 63 cents in 1963.

Cost of administration, given as a percentage of the money paid by MCIC, was 3.7 per cent in 1963 and 3.7 per cent in 1973.

Another change involving administration is a growth in the percentage of physicians billing the commission directly, rather than through an approved health agency or the patient.

Billing was an issue during the 1962 political crisis over introduction of the program.

In the first year, 21 per cent of billings went directly to the commission, while 68 per cent went to health agencies and 11 per cent to the patient.

$23.70 per case of doctors now send their bills to the commission. The health agencies' business has dropped to 24 per cent, while only three per cent of bills are sent to patients.

As costs rose, more funding came from government and less from the $12 annual premium paid by single persons—$24 for families.

During the first year, the premium paid 24.6 per cent of the total cost. In 1973, premiums covered 11.6 per cent. Premiums were abolished this year.

Last year, premiums were paid by all but those recipients over the age of 65 and covered 7.9 per cent of the cost of insured care.

The survey also shows the effect of governmental "restrictive fees" imposed by the former Liberal government.

Mr. Patchett said:

"The temporary drop in office, consultation, house and emergency visits in 1968 and 1969 may have been primarily caused by deterrent fees which were introduced in 1968 and removed in 1971."

A 1969 drop also is evident in the percentage of beneficiaries making claims. The figure was 71.1 in 1967, dropping to 69 in 1969 and increasing to 76.3 in 1971.

Visits to doctors' offices and consultations with doctors have shown a substantial growth over the 10-year period, from 1.8 million in 1963 to 3.4 million in 1973.

The services provided by physicians, including consultations, office visits, home and emergency calls and laboratory services, have risen an average of 5.9 per cent a year.

There were 534 physicians in 1963, a ratio of one for every 1,509 persons. Now, with 756 physicians, the doctor-patient ratio is one to 1,235.

Doctors received an average of $30,000 each in 1963, of which 25 per cent went to pay their operating costs. In 1973, the figure rose to $49,000, with 39 per cent to overhead.

The figures do not include payments from the cancer commission of the workmen's compensation board. Nor are contractual payments by the hospital services plan and other agencies included.

Quebec Artists Can't Make Killing On English-Canadian Music Market

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec has nurtured a horde of talented musicians and singers in the last decade, many of whom ventured little farther than La Belle Province during their careers.

Several, notably Charlebois and Pagliaro, hammered hard and long on the English-Canadian door to sell their records in moderate volume in other parts of Canada, but a Quebec artist or group has yet to make a killing in this market.

The times may be a-changing, however, with the arrival on the rock music scene of the Ville Emard Blues Band, an extraordinary assembly of 18 polished musicians. In less than a year, they have conquered the Quebec market.

Unlike many of their contemporaries and predecessors, Ville Emard is not prepared to stop at that. Already the band has attracted a rare interest outside the province and indications are that when they take to the road on their Canada-wide tour later this year, audiences will be standing on their seats as the bulk of Ville Emard is slashed on stage.

Word of Ville Emard has also spread to the Unit States where the search something different to set onto the lucrative rock ma has intensified daily.

Ville Emard is inde something different. Acc from the vast array of mu clans playing and singing i th r l l i n g harmony an rhythm, Ville Emard suc ceeds in creating the atmo phere of a musical party in which the audience plays an equal part.

"When we perform a co cert, we invite people to party," says Bill Gagnon, one of three bass guitarists in the band. "It is what we always try to get across. The party feeling is the whole spark of Ville Emard and without it the band would lose its impetus, digress and probably collapse."

Ville Emard recently completed its first major outing, a 30-date tour of Quebec which included a triumphant appearance at the Montreal Forum, long reserved for superstar rock musicians.

That concert marked the culmination of more than six months' hard labor, marked by form, rehearsal and flab. Ville Emard, which, it goes says, "was far from a sealed band to put together, let alone keep together."

The tensions and frustrations still are there as Ville Emard explores and expands its huge spaces of music they are capable of playing. The variety of their current repertoire is mind-boggling.

The Forum concert opened with almost 45 minutes of jumping, punch rock which swung from one set of instruments to another. Backed by a battery of three basses, three guitars, three pianos and three drum sets, Ville Emard lifts off with dynamic performances on trumpets, saxophones, flutes, organs, even congas and other various percussive instruments.

Topping this vast array of sound are several male and female singers who inject bite and listenity into the songs.

The band then splits into several smaller units to demonstrate its versatility. The repertoire includes a complicated jazz arrangement, a gutsy blues melody and a refreshing folk set. Ville Emard then winds up the concert by pooling its resources again to blast into another dynamic rock sound.

"I feel one of the reasons we should appeal to audiences outside Quebec is that our sound is not French," singer Carlyle Miller said. "It's not a North American or English sounds fiber. It's just music."

But far from being disloyal to its French-Canadian ties, Ville Emard hopes that any success it may enjoy outside Quebec will serve to free the flow of musicians between English-speaking and French-speaking Canada.

Quebec forms a vital part of the Canadian music industry. It sells 75 per cent more records than the rest of Canada but because of an inability for the two cultures to cross-communicate a barrier exists.

"Little has been done in the past to promote a French-Canadian band in English Canada because the Quebec market is so lucrative," Miller said.

But with interest in Ville Emard firmly rooted among promoters outside Quebec, the band's forthcoming appearances in Toronto, Vancouver, Ottawa and other English-Canadian music centres may begin to loosen the foundations of the barrier which has hampered the progress of Canadian music for years.

Many Workers Unhappy

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Mental Health Foundation has discovered that there is still unhappiness among employees in places where management has installed wall-to-wall carpeting, Muzak and green plants.

Douglas Carter, executive director of the British Columbia division of the association, says absence of employees because of illness—coal or imagined—cost Canadian industry about $1 billion a year in lost production.

A federal paper on health tabled in the House of Commons during the last parliamentary session estimates that half of all illness is psychological in origin, yet mental health has been neglected for years.

Mr. Carter said firing a worker who repeatedly books off sick is no solution for industry. The solution is to find techniques that motivate workers and enrich the job experience, to match people to jobs and change work situations that are emotionally harmful.

He said management can reduce time lost through emotional illness by learning to recognize problems and meeting them, before they become unmanageable.

"Management can be cold and authoritative and often expects everyone to function in the same way every day. The fact is that people simply don't feel the same way emotionally every day.

"There are times' management should recognize when an employee has personal problems troubling him, and back off instead of placing extra pressure on the worker."

Mr. Carter says management should plan to appoint more qualified senior supervisors who are sensitive to employees' needs and feelings. Wages and working condition are generally good in Canada but workers need an outlet on the job for their creativity and need to be recognized for their special talents.

Millions of dollars are spent to match a worker to the job through training programs but the full potential of the investment will only be realized if bookkeeper also concentrate on looking after the continuing morale of their workers.

Finally, it will become a trend to hire social workers as managerial supervisors to help individuals analyze and resolve their problem.

"Industry is only as good as the morale and mental health of its individual workers."

Rustlers Threaten New Zealand Deer

But with beef prices dropping, their objective is a more valuable commodity—deer meat.

So far, seven have been arrested after threatening forest rangers and raiding part of a New Zealand Forest Service experimen.

The area involved is about 20,000 acres where since 1960 the land has been used to study the effect of certain animals on grazing land.

Red deer were left to multiply in the "very plentiful" level they reached earlier this year when the poaching began to reduce the deer numbers drastically.

"People knew the animals were there and it finally became too much of a temptation," said I. Y. Morris of the Forest Research Institute.

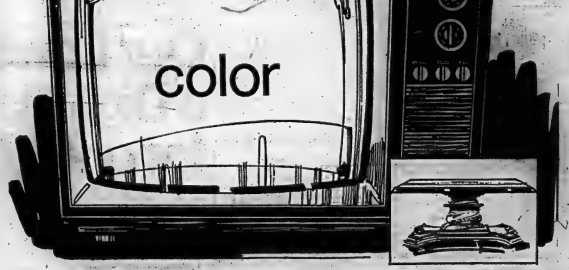
"They reduced the number of deer by between 80 and 90 per cent and cut off the study at about the stage when it was beginning to yield most interest."

Most of the poachers are professionals with jeeps and spotlights, taking their vehicles up tracks on which amateurs refuse to go. They have a thorough knowledge of the country.

They slip quietly into the area at nightfall with all lights switched off to avoid being seen from the Forest Service huts. They hunt by night and hide by day.

For one or two nights of shooting they can earn up to $1,500.

Forest Service rangers have declared war on the poachers and there have been some tense scenes.



A ranger who saw a vehicle leaving the area with deer carcases gave chase, but only drove a short distance before he stopped. His tank had been drained of fuel.

The next day the same ranger and another vehicle. He called for help and gave chase. After a three-hour hunt the poachers were found hiding in the bush.

It was 4 a.m. next day before the poachers finally gave up their weapons. In between, the rangers say they were under a "considerable threat of violence."

U.S. Seeks 12-mile Sea Limits

CARACAS, Venezuela (CP) — The United States has started its campaign at the third United Nations conference on the Law of the Sea to hold the new territorial sea limits of countries to 12 miles.

Chief U.S. delegate John Stevenson told a news conference Thursday the U.S., which now claims the traditional three miles around its shores, is prepared to adopt the 12-mile limit that has been gaining favor, provided this is generally adopted internationally.

Stevenson said the U.S. also would agree to an additional zone over which the adjacent country would control "living and non-living resources" but through which ships could pass freely. He said his government would be "flexible" about the width of this zone.

U.S. May Bar Canadian Eggs

Ottawa Stands Firm On Ban on U.S. Beef

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States threatened Thursday to block imports of Canadian eggs if Canada does not lift its ban against American beef but Ottawa sources said the beef ban will remain in force unless the U.S. complies with inspection demands.

As the two sides expressed stiffening positions, there were indication, however, that some behind-the-scenes negotiations may end with a compromise that would allow some of the huge American beef surplus to reach Canadian tables.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, threatening "retaliatory measures" if Canada does not reopen its border to American beef, suggested the import restrictions on Canadian eggs or other products shipped to the U.S.

The U.S. cabinet member told a new conference that if retaliation became necessary, "the first steps will be to examine areas where their (Canadian) exports to us exceed our exports to them."

Under questioning, he said that Canada "ships three times the amount of eggs to us that we do to them."

Clayton Yeutter, an assistant agriculture secretary, said the United States has "walked the last mile with Canada" in trying to implement Ottawa's demands for government-certified inspection of U.S. beef and cattle.

Canada stopped beef and cattle imports amounting to some $140 million annually two months ago after the U.S. government lifted a ban on the use of diethylstilbestrol (DES).

The compound accelerates growth in cattle but is also a known carcinogen which has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Butz said that even as he spoke to reporters, the Canadian cabinet was studying U.S. proposals for reopening the border.

However, Ottawa sources said the cabinet met on the issue and decided to maintain the ban unless beef entering Canada is certified free of the hormone. The sources added, however, there are indications the two countries may reach a compromise.

Butz said he believed the U.S. had come up with "an arrangement that is practical to us and acceptable to them."

Asked whether the Canadian stand was designed to keep DES-fed cattle out of Canada or merely a barrier to keep all U.S. cattle out and Canadian prices up, the secretary replied he had no doubt there is "some of both" involved.

He said he felt the U.S. "made a mistake" by banning DES in the first place—"Yet I don't see us going back to it because it's an emotional issue."

The secretary maintained "there is no clinical evidence that any human being suffered any ill effects from ingesting DES-fed beef."

Yeutter said the U.S. proposal to Canada is a complicated one, involving a federal government inspector at border points in the case of live cattle and at the packinghouses in the case of meat.

In addition, the U.S. proposed a plan whereby there would be random sampling of DES certificates submitted by cattle owners to make sure the growers were complying with regulations.

The U.S. industry, in a depressed state with a glut of cattle, has appealed for federal aid, which has thrown the spotlight on the fact that Canada had closed off the largest single export market, the U.S., had.

However, one Canadian source said here that when compared with the $22 billion-a-year total slaughter production in the U.S., reopening of the Canadian market would be "infinitesimal, more psychological and morale-boosting than substantive."

In Sherbrooke, Que., Prime Minister Trudeau told a news conference that the cabinet is looking into the possibility of opening the border to United States beef that does not contain DES.

He said an announcement will be made on this, but he did not know if it would answer the complaints of the Americans. He did not say when the announcement will be made.

Government Urged to Sponsor Development Firms

Ontario All-party Committee Wants Moves to Buy Up Foreign Firms Here

TORONTO (CP) — Procedures to provide more risk capital for businesses and action to gain control of foreign-domiciled companies in Ontario were among recommendations contained in an interim report tabled in the legislature Thursday by the select committee on economic and cultural nationalism.

The all-party committee said Ontario's publicly-financed development corporations should have the legal and financial capacity to reacquire enterprises that currently are foreign-owned, if it is determined to be in the public interest.

The corporations also should be in a position to acquire enterprises coming up for sale from foreign owners, for which no Canadian buyer can be found, and acquire on a temporary basis Canadian corporations that otherwise would fall into foreign hands.

The corporations also should provide assistance to Canadians who wish to acquire foreign-owned companies, the report said.

Committee chairman Russell Rowe (PC—Northumberland) said foreign investment provided a major stimulus to economic development in Ontario and Canada in the 1950s and early 1960s, but that over the long term this foreign investment was a major factor in the underdevelopment of capital markets in the country.

To offset this, the committee recommended that the province must sponsor the development of new venture capital firms in Ontario, taking up to a one-third equity interest in these new, regionally-oriented risk capital companies.

Ontario, in co-operation with the federal and other provincial governments, should set up a merchant banking system as another source of funds to aid businesses.

The report said a highly-developed merchant banking system might play a key role in providing support to small and medium-sized companies which show promise of development into full-fledged enterprises.

Merchant banks might be sponsored by governments through new legislation and tax programs and the committee specifically called for a new merchant banking act.

Future Canadian economic strategy should include many programs designed to expand the number of private investors and diversify Canada's and Ontario's sources of foreign capital, the report said.

Tax incentives should be used to encourage share ownership plans for company employees and companies should get tax breaks to make their stock available to their workers.

Labor Regime Defeated Again

LONDON (CP) — The minority Labor government lost another vote in the House of Commons yesterday, increasing pressure on Prime Minister Harold Wilson to call an election.

It was the government's third defeat in Parliament in three days.

Today's vote was on a government amendment reducing the financial scope of a lotteries scheme proposed in a private member's bill.

The Labor party was outvoted 9 to 41. Commons session on Friday are devoted to bills proposed by backbench MPs and are normally sparsely attended. But the government is expected to keep enough supporters on hand to prevent being defeated.

Guaranteed Income Plan Gets Approval

TORONTO (CP) — A government bill to provide a guaranteed annual income for the elderly, the blind and the disabled received approval in principle in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

The bill was given second reading, with all parties approving the measure, although the opposition said it does not go far enough.

The bill proposes a guaranteed annual minimum income of $2,600 for single persons over 65 and for every blind and disabled person receiving provincial social assistance.

The bill, which would cost $68 million in the first year, provides $3,200 for a married couple, over 65.

Both the Liberals and the New Democratic Party supported the measure, but both called for further increases, saying the legislation stops short of a desirable goal.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon repeated his request that the program be indexed to the cost of living to provide for automatic increases to keep pace with inflation.

Two Teachers Retire

Two highly respected separate school teachers began retirement Thursday night in an aura of love and affection generated by 200 people at a testimonial dinner at St. Michael's Academy.

Sister Mary Avila and Carmelita Shannon were honored at the gathering with humourous "this is your life" skits, presentations and tributes. Both were St. Mike's teachers. Sister Avila with 30 years' service in the parish, and Mrs. Shannon with five years at the academy and many previous years at county schools.

Both women began their teaching careers in 1936.

Sister Avila, a native of Smithboro, after teaching a few years in the Napanee district became a sister of Providence. Her career was recalled by Sister Mary Anita and Msgr. J. C. Hanley, both of whom worked with her in Trenton. Sister Mary Noreen, retired principal of St. Joseph's School in Belleville, and Cary Schrieber, a former pupil of Sister's, who played football for Queen's Golden Gaels and Ottawa Rough Riders.

Mrs. Shannon, nee Walsh, a native of Lonsdale, taught in Ottawa, Tyendinaga, Embury School and Point Anne before moving to St. Mike's in 1969. In between, she took time out to raise seven children.

Capt. B. W. McCann son of Mr. and Mrs. T. McCann, Marysville graduated in Economics at the spring convocation at Queens University.

Those paying tribute to her were Mrs. Frank Peddlesden, a childhood friend, Leone Gehan, St. Mike's teacher, once her principal at Point Anne; Leo McKenny, a former pupil in Tyendinaga, now guidance department head at Moira Secondary School and a relative, Msgr. B. J. Walsh, Vice-chairman of the separate school board. Paul Fleming, presented gifts to the retiring teachers on behalf of the board. Msgr. J. P. Sullivan proposed the toast to the teachers. Bill Long arranged and played special music.

Master of ceremonies was Del Gallagher, former St. Mike's pupil, now assistant superintendent of the separate school board.

Brian T. W. Way, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Way, RR 7, Belleville graduated from Queen's University with an Honors Bachelor of Arts degree at the June 1 convocation. Mr. Way, a graduate of R.C.I. will attend the University of Western Ontario in the fall for post-graduate work in English language and literature.

Napanee OPP Constable 4 Millionth Graduate

An Ontario Provincial Police constable from Thurlow, PC Patrick Joseph McCaffrey, has won the unusual distinction of being the 4 millionth person to take the standard first aid course offered by the St. John Ambulance Corps.

PC McCaffrey took the course along with 20 other policemen and OPP members during an April first-aid session at the board offices in the Belleville OPP detachment.

St. John Ambulance officials in Toronto just recently released their annual statistics and noted that their 4 millionth figure has now surpassed the four-million mark.

Mrs. D. V. Gorman, the secretary for the Belleville chapter of the St. John Ambulance Corps, said yesterday that the Belleville organization alone has offered 200 persons first aid instruction since Jan. 1 of this year. Many high school students in the city have also taken the emergency first-aid course she said.

During the summer, only the St. John Ambulance Volunteer Brigade is active, Mrs. Gorman said, but the corps will start offering first aid instruction courses again in September.

When asked what he thought of the courses he had taken from the St. John Ambulance Corps, PC McCaffrey replied that he thought it was "a great course."

"It is not just handy for the type of work I do on my job," he said, "but it comes in handy around the home or when I go camping or boating which I do fairly often. I think it's quite helpful."

Strict Crowd Control For Big Forces' Event

TRENTON — Spectators will be strictly controlled at the June 28 airshow at CFB Trenton, says a base spokesman.

Capt. Bob Burke, base protocol officer, said safety requirements, particularly during the airshow, would be strictly maintained.

Motorists and pedestrians alike must enter the base from the western 3 RD Road where parking facilities will be clearly marked.

From there motors have the option of walking back to the display area or boarding a free bus shuttle service.

"Those who decide to walk will not be allowed to stop in the way but must keep moving to the public area," said the captain.

Spectators will be admitted to the base beginning at 12.30 p.m.

Snow fences, marking off an area 1,000 feet wide on either side of the runway, have been erected to keep spectators away from the tarmac.

No parking will be permitted along either Highway 2 or the 3RD Road, said Cap. Burke. There is no admission charge to the display — designed to "let the public know what we're doing," he said.

Food concessions and washrooms will be installed for the public and will be located in the main display areas near the hangars on the north side of the highway.

Tear-stained Goodbye

It was an emotional final parting at CFB Trenton Thursday night as Belleville host families bade farewell to seven German exchange students. Second before boarding, Erhard Kersting, 17, exchanges a kiss with peer gives Belleville girl Paula Stratton signifying how close friendships between both countries grew during the exchange program.

German Students Bid Hosts Fond Farewell

TRENTON —Thursday night as seven German exchange students filed out to a waiting Boeing 707, Alderman Ben Corke recalled the words of a German mother, who called above the din when Belleville students were coming home from her country.

"A piece of my heart its going with you," he remembered her saying.

In a shoving, pushing scene at CFB Trenton's passenger terminal Belleville host families echoed the woman's words — bidding the seven farewell.

Ald Corke initiated much of the exchange which began a year ago when the first Belleville students left for Lahr, Germany. Each group spent about a year living in foster homes — battling the challenges of language and culture.

For Ald. Corke the first step is over and there will be more he says. "We'll be making a few modifications but the program will continue." Once again local students will leave in August to be replaced in their families by German counterparts.

Talking to the students moments before boarding, they said the most significant change since living in a strange home, speaking a strange language was the awareness of the family unit they had left in Germany. Each said they were keen to be home.

The most obvious change in the students was English chatter — an unpractised art — contrasting sharply with their shy use of the language when they arrived 12 months ago.

"I wouldn't have believed I would get so attached to wouldn't want it to be any less," said a student.

"One year is good. I wouldn't want it to be any less," said a student.

As the Armed Forces jetliner rose off the runway, tearstained eyes followed it above the clouds while others called goodbyes above the roar of engines.

"Some of these kids won't get the full benefit of the trip for maybe five years," said the alderman. "It's been a tremendous period of mental growth — learning about personal relationships," he said, turning to leave the terminal until the next trip.

Tribute to Custodians

MARMORA — "The happiest years of my life" was the way Harry Moffatt described his decade as custodian of Marmora Senior School at a retirement dinner honoring him and his wife Jessie, at the Helm Club recently.

Some 75 his past and present of associates at the school, Hastings County Board of Education, administration staff executive members of Local 1022 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees were present.

After farming for many years in Marmora Township, Harry Moffatt began work in 1963 as a custodian at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc. A year later he transferred to Marmora High School which was turned into an elementary school at the end of that school year. His wife Jessie joined him on the staff and the two worked together keeping Marmora Senior School spotless.

Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt have no definite plans in mind for their retirement which starts June 29 but expect to keep busy as usual.

CFB a Showcase For Services' Day

TRENTON — The active spectrum of Canadian Armed Forces duties will be displayed June 29 at CFB Trenton's Armed Forces Day program.

Though the airshow headlines the day, a wide assortment of ground displays and entertainment has been arranged.

Several in-service and retired aircraft will be parked on the tarmac for close public inspection. A Boeing 707, considered the workhorse of Air Transport Command, will be open for touring.

In addition to the outside exhibits, "all major functions of the base will be shown in display form in several hangars," said Capt. Bob Burke, base protocol officer.

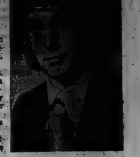
Describing the exhibits, Capt. Burke said many are things that "kids can remodel aircraft, fire and safety equipment, communication devices."

Armed Forces Day "costs nothing really," he says.

"It's designed so it doesn't cost the public anything," he said.

Several bands will be entertaining throughout the day, including the CFB Trenton pipe and brass and reed bands and the CFB Trenton Sing Out group.

Much of the work in organizing the event has been done voluntarily and armed forces personnel "have been asked to give up their Saturday to help out," said Capt. Burke.



All normal base operations will be maintained with scheduled staff.

Gates — off the westside 3RD Road — will open at 11.30 p.m. with the airshow commencing at 4 p.m.

Election Gimmicks

Prime Minister Trudeau's plan for development of passenger train traffic, with a view to taking the burden off the CN and CP, and looking to the long-term needs of the travelling public, looks good on paper.

But as worthy of study that it is, the conclusion is inescapable that this is just one more Liberal election gimmick. Remembering that Transport Minister Marchand not so long ago described the transportation scene in Canada as "a mess," it is only natural that the Government should try to put a better face in things.

Thus we have Mr. Trudeau coming up with more of what Opposition leader Stanfield calls "instant policy." All you have to do to make instant policy, Mr. Stanfield quips wickedly, "is to be in hot water, and money and stir." It is a valid point, given the Roman feast of goodies the Liberals say is in store.

So we have this frantic show of ideas and potential decision-making by the Prime Minister. But we have only to look back to the recent past — to the time when this minority government, a tired and dispirited lot if ever there was one, had neither policy nor public confidence — to realize that this is all very much tie-in-to-the-July stuff.

As we have suggested before, the Trudeau government has pretty well shot its bolt. To vote for a return of the old extravagant ways, the questionable spending of public money, or ideas such as things like "junk art" and bohemian fantasyland via bodies like the Canada Council, not to mention white elephants such as the Food Prices Review Board, would be to vote for a return to never-never land.

Thomas Wolfe said: "You can never go back." This is what Canada will be doing if on July 8 voters call for more of the same. The same old political shit. Who needs it?

Women And Politics

If many women are militant in the cause of equal rights there are some in Canada who are playing the old subversive game of trying to undermine our national and overall security.

Nothing would suit the Communist world better than that the West should drop its guard.

Never mind that the United States and the Soviet Union today are on relatively cosy terms. This could easily change under new leaders or in different circumstances than prevail today.

Only a strong Western stance in Europe, supported by the appropriate weaponry and air power will ensure the security of that part of the world and the defence of the free world generally.

Yet in Ottawa the leftist Voice of Women on occasion has surfaced at the NATO foreign ministers meeting to urge disbandment of the alliance.

What is in this for the Voice of Women? What else but in order to create a serious imbalance in the power structure in Europe and the free world. No mention, let it be noted, of the Warsaw Pact countries who confront those of the West and who would be left in effect with free passage, should NATO dissolve.

Of course this is not going to happen. However, it does not deter groups such as Voice of Women from involving themselves in this kind of propagandist work. This is one activity in which women do this country a disservice.

Petty Thievery

It is sad to note that in the realm of the light-fingered, the target these days in Belleville and, apparently in other communities too, include public flower-beds — rather in the style of souvenir hunters, picking up items from hotels, aircraft, trains or ships in effect though, the removal of these shoots is as much a matter of theft as any grand larceny and those who indulge in it should realize this.

Answers To Inflation Vague While $ Shrinks

(Editor's note: This is the last of three articles on the business-economic background to the current federal election campaign).

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Toronto News Service

Inflation has been with us for the past third of a century.

Until the 1974 election, though, has it been elevated to the rank of Public Issue No. 1.

It was the Liberals' alleged failure to fight it that brought them down before the combined forces of the Conservatives and the New Democrats.

And it is a recurring theme in the charges and counter-charges of the campaign. Each party has a plan to do something about it, and each scoffs at the other's plans.

The New Democrats' plan is simplicity itself. Inflation means rising prices, doesn't it? Then freeze prices. End of inflation. Offer all sorts of bait — business and jobs, too.

The Conservatives seem to think they would freeze prices and incomes just long enough to break the backs of the banks and expecting steady increases. After that? They'll think of something.

The Liberals say it is all the fault of world market forces which no doubt explains why houses, haircuts and hockey tickets are expensive in Brazil.

But it opens up a Pandora's box in a country like Canada, dividing both the value of the individual's savings and the public's will to resist inflation.

The voters who are listening most attentively to the election campaigners are probably those people — often thought of as the average middle-class Canadians — who work steadily, have long-term family responsibilities, believe in the prudence of saving in some combination or day in order to save or invest for tomorrow's needs.

Many such people are genuinely and deeply concerned about the monthly erosion of the dollar — now 1.7 per cent — in their savings, financial markets to function as an anti-inflationary hedge.

But it would be a mistake to suppose that all Canadians are obsessed with inflation. Last year's enormous jump in the price of wheat and some other agricultural commodities has given a big boost to farm per-capita income.

Unsecured fortunes have been made by those who chose their real-estate purchases wisely.

Oil producers have had big windfall gains in earnings, as a result of the squeeze play by the Mid-East producers' cartel.

And anyone who has a long-term debt can look forward to repaying it with dollars that become ever cheaper and cheaper.

It would be courting to suppose that this election campaign, being fought primarily on inflation, will lead to a new and-for-all choice of a public policy — rather "do something" effective about inflation, or to throw in the towel and index everything.

But after the sound and the fury of the current campaign end on July 8, the inflationary process could well remain totally unchanged. The party proposes to offer a program tough enough — more taxes and less government spending, as well as controls — to come to grips with the problem, even if it should win a majority of the 265 seats in the House of Commons.

If another minority government should be formed, the Liberals, especially if it were dependent upon NDP support, then the outlook would be for more of the same — more indexing, more vote-catching budgets, more boards to review prices; more illegal public-service strikes; more pork-barrel spending (such as the blatant plan to blow $2 billion on an unneeded second international airport near Toronto).

This would almost certainly quicken the public's rush to exchange paper money for gold, diamonds, fine art, land — anything of real and lasting value.

Over the past two or three decades of unprecedented prosperity, Canadians came to think of their government as capable of managing the economy successfully.

It has come as a shock to many Canadians to find, in 1974, that politicians and mandarins are also susceptible to the same shortcomings that characterize the rest of us.

Grow still, the experts seem to be out of touch with reality, offering no effective solutions to the pressing problems of economic life.

Some voters especially those not burdened with responsibility for families — and some politicians don't, cure. They find it pleasant enough to drift along on the tide of inflation, to dismiss the goal of growth as oppressive, and to reject the marxist system as irrelevant.

But without business, and without the profit motive, this would seem to be the dangerous economy for which the politicians hope to take credit.

"SOMETIMES I THINK IT SHOULD RAIN FOR 50 DAYS AND 50 NIGHTS!"

Speaker Lamoureux And Wife To Represent Canada in Belgium

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Measure the 12 parliamentary years in the life of the bespectacled Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux and his wife Claire, logging it at an annual 20,000 miles, and it will top a half million.

All often over the 75 miles, most of them on Eastern Ontario's winding two-lane highways, between Parliament Hill and the Lamoureux home in Cornwall, heart city of the Stormont-Dundas riding he has represented since 1962.

An hour and a half each way, on the average of three times a week for each of them in the eight of his 12 Commons years Lucien Lamoureux distinguished himself as what such House veterans as John Diefenbaker and Stanley Knowles say was a "Parliament's finest Speaker."

Ask Claire Lamoureux, now that it is all ending, what she remembers most vividly about those years.

It wasn't the entertaining of what have been recounted thousands, yes, thousands of people, a great many of them from far-flung places, although that was both enjoyable, memorable — and a lot of work.

It wasn't the travelling to 25 countries, representing Canada's Parliament.

It wasn't the fact-of-parliamentary-life that, in all that time, they so seldom enjoyed weekend alone at home it was an event to celebrate like Christmas.

It was the driving.

"I bought a new car last Spring," relates Claire Lamoureux, "and already there are more than 25,000 miles on it."

What really, you wonder, what is so tough about rolling over more than a half million miles of highway?

"For me," recounts Claire Lamoureux, "it was like being Cinderella: Off with the evening gown at the end of the evening's dinner party or reception or whatever, back to Parliament Hill, into a dress or suit, and off to Cornwall no matter what the hour. Have to be up and ready with breakfast for the children."

Of their family of four, still at home are a daughter, Adele, 17, and a son, Claude, 15, attending collegiate.

Claire Lamoureux has made that highway run an average of three times a week.

Although he has living quarters, including a bedchamber, in Parliament Hill, Lucien Lamoureux did like to get home nights, even if it meant driving, after the House adjourned, through all weathers.

There was one night Lucien called me," related Claire Lamoureux, "and I told him not to try driving that the snow was falling so fast in Cornwall it was burying the street.

"But he said it wasn't that bad in Ottawa and so he started driving home. It took him just before five o'clock in the morning."

What about all those weekends spent sitting bleary eyed at boy-jogger, why?

"Cornwall's a small city," explains Claire Lamoureux, "so that really, on Saturday and Sunday, there is only one major event scheduled — the Lions, the Board of Trade, Regional Council dinners, the hospital board, the Kiwanis, you must know what they all are — and Lucien, as MP, had to be there and so are we for weeks.

"He did it so well, too" she adds with pride.

She had to be there too, and of course she had to be on Parliament Hill hostess at all those receptions, dinners, teas and "special" evenings, entertaining parliamentarians and their wives, the diplomatic set, and visiting delegations troop-ing in from all over the world.

Then were garden parties and barbecues, too, at former Prime Minister Mackenzie King's old Farm in Gatineau Park.

Hours — hours nothing, put them all together and they would add up to days — standing in reception lines, smiling and saying "How nice of you to come."

Menus to plan — guests to select — sounds sort of simple except that you have to watch the kind of food people, especially VIPs, prefer — arrange an amiable mix of interests — and do all this, and much, much more on the average of three, and perhaps as many as six times a week, often twice a day.

It was fun, but it was hard work.

And now it is coming to a close with a feeling of relief and regret.

"I feel 10 years younger already," laughs Claire Lamoureux, "and the kids tell me it's too bad I don't look it. Claire Lamoureux is a handsome woman, and on this sunny morning was particularly attractive in a dappling crisp blue and white polka dot summer dress).

Through it all, though, she smiles, never as-sphalesaurs incident nor an unhappy memory.

Asked disarmingly: "How can say thousands" of guests have been impressed, never anyone who drank too much?

Claire Lamoureux won't go that far, but she will say that regardless of their capacities and their possible overdrinking, "the sort of guests you receive on Parliament Hill are not the kind who fall flat on their face."

After those hard, demanding years of Parliament and Commons training, Claire and Lucien Lamoureux should find life in Brussels, as Canada's diplomatic representatives in Belgium and Luxemburg, something of a vacation.

At least the hours should be shorter, the pressures, easier, and if there is much driving to be done — never anything like that annual 50,000 miles — there'll be a chauffeur to do it.

Grit Policy Could Mean Bankruptcy

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The election has been asked. "Is the present up-coming Federal election necessary at this time?" Many people in this country not only believe it to be necessary, but imperative. It is a known fact that the election is going to cost the taxpayers many millions of dollars. But if the governing Liberal party were to continue, the people of this country would be forced to pay even billions of dollars for the performance that would only benefit a few of the people.

If the Liberal administration were managing a corporation there would soon be no dividends to the shareholders and the corporation would surely fall into bankruptcy.

Never in the history of this country have we experienced a Government so lax and so arrogant. With the attitude: "throw them a crust: why give them a loaf." To Mr. Trudeau and his disband followers. I say the Party is Over. No longer will we be Canada's puppet nor trust a Government so insensitive to the needs of the people, to experiment with our lives.

Families today have all they can do in providing the necessities by managing a home. Yet they are told how fortunate they are and the Land is Strong.

Many of our Senior Citizens are barely existing. The land that they cultivated, sacrificed and saved so much for their lives for, should it not now give them the opportunity to spend their remaining years in comfort, where they can retain their dignity and self respect.

Many Canadians have voiced dismay at the so-called political marriage between the Liberal party and the NDP. It should not be too amazing, once you view the facts.

Mr. Trudeau was at one time a member of that so called party and soon discovered he was going nowhere. Because he courted the Liberal party, the very same party he called a bunch of idiots. I am certain that many Liberals today would, after doing some soul searching, agree with Mr. Trudeau's evaluation of the Liberal party.

The Liberal party is fast approaching the Left: the Conservative party are going somewhat Liberal and the NDP are so far out in left field they would turn this country into a helpless, hopeless state.

It is not startling, but somewhat sad to hear people say they have very little faith in politicians of today. We must be aware of the fact that there are men and women in public office who are sincerely interested in serving the people they represent to the best of their abilities. We are not a system wherein we have the privileges to elect the best possible candidates to be our voice and look after our best interests. I have no sympathy for those who constantly complain, yet never exercise their vote.

There is an alternative to the present situation. The Progressive Conservative party led by Robert Stanfield would give to Canada a sound administration made up of some of the most able and conscientious men and women in this country. Mr. Stanfield might have difficulty in assembling an acceptable award for the performing arts, but are we not fed-up with all the acting, especially with the so-called star performer who insists that only his name remain in lights while we sit in the darkness? It is not time to bring down the curtain on this charade? At the present time many people are dubious about politicians, would you not settle for someone who has the integrity, the know-how, and the keen interest in doing a job, where all will benefit? Well! May I suggest you take a closer look at this leader and his Conservative Party his team. Mr. Stanfield does not promise you and I a rose garden, but he does promise, and will deliver, a united effort to govern honestly, openly and effectively.

In short, I reiterate to Mr. Trudeau and all his Socialist oriented cronies — The Party is Over — it is time for a change.

THOMAS A. TUCKER

PC Candidate's Reference To UIC

Editor,
The Intelligencer

Attending a Toronto political rally recently, I was made aware to me, an interesting observation.

The candidates gave their views on various subjects and all spoke well.

However, at one point, Mr. Ellis rose and said he had to refer to the U.I.C. Since the rally was sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Council, I imagine he thought it prudent to ask the U.I.C. representative member in relation to the U.I.C. He said that because of other arrangements for job protection, the U.I.C. was not necessary. A union member and, therefore, by being forced to pay into the fund that member was carrying an unnecessary load, and so, was supporting those in the U.I.C. program.

This little explanation, in my thinking, is absolute nonsense. I have to ask Mr. Ellis a direct question here in the hope that he answers me. Is Mr. Ellis giving this type of thought purposely to impress his electorate or is he doing it in ignorance of the true picture of the U.I.C.? Will he admit my thinking to be right or will he prove me wrong?

I think that the public must be aware that the U.I.C. is simple, is job protection for which each employed person pays a premium. That is the simple concept of the program. No people rose and said he had being made a patsy as is suggested. Certainly there are many ones, in theory, help the unlucky ones. Even the lucky ones have contributed unhappily. Remember, one pays for another in the hope that the hope it is never needed BUT, having paid the premium, he is entitled.

It is not common knowledge that for the past couple of years we have experienced some apparent mighty and mounting deficits in the U.I.C. administration. This was during the transition from manual to computer handling. I cannot excuse those flubs in any way but I can understand how they let it like it was. They should not have happened but they did. Notwithstanding Mr. Ellis' criticism, the U.I.C. administration seems to be approaching the straight track. Mr. Ellis cannot bring this to the attention of the public that is being carried by the other team and to which I am a supporter, would be a political no-no.

Of importance to you and I however, is that the picture isn't being presented to us in the media. Certainly, I think we should question in our minds if this is a deliberate attempt withheld for the purpose of political coming or is it a case of actual ignorance on the part of the present position of the U.I.C. Personally, I think the latter is not forthcoming from Mr. Ellis, then each of us should search his thinking and believe what comes out. I may be wrong but I don't think I am.

With this political stuff going around I feel urged to quote a proverb which is cited in the ancient Chinese. It may not be quoted correctly but it is certainly meaningful. It goes, "Dung is not a SAINT, but it is fain to fall in the miracles."

Department of Highways approval of an additional expenditure of $7,000 for Hastings County road and bridges in 1964, was announced today by County Clerk, Eric Denyes. The County Council during its June session adopted 1964 Roads and Bridges estimate which called for the expenditure of $66,000. The additional amount brings the total of $102,000.

"And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched him were made whole." Mark 6:56

More of His work was done out on the street than in the sanctuary. Perhaps this ought to say something to us. They were everywhere preaching the word.

Ontario Provides Mortgage Money

TORONTO (CP) — A six-pronged housing program including an infusion of $58 million into the mortgage market was outlined in the legislature Thursday by Housing Minister Sidney Handleman.

The mortgage program, another in the series of government commitments to its Ontario Housing Action Program (OHAP), will provide up to $35,000 in first mortgages to people buying homes in OHAP-approved developments and subdivisions.

The minister said the money will be available for the remainder of this fiscal year which ends March 31, 1975, to families whose income is less than $20,000.

The money will be provided at an interest rate of 10¼ per cent which is about two per cent lower than current mortgage interest rates.

The program will be administered by the new Ontario Mortgage Corp.

The minister also announced plan that already bring serviced and planned sites with potential for 30 or more units under the OHAP umbrella.

This program is primarily aimed at apartment and other multi-unit developments that can be built on relatively few sites. Previously, the government's program has concentrated on developing large tracts of land.

The other four new programs are:

—Provincial financing for future schools, sewers and highways is being put into current budgets to speed up and encourage new housing developments.

—Population ceilings high enough to permit accelerated development have been included in population allocations for major urban areas recommended in the Toronto Centred Region Plan.

—The provincial role in processing of housing plans has been streamlined. Mr. Handleman said Ontario has approved sites for more than 90,000 housing units, an increase of 10,000 since May. The land now is awaiting for completion of financial agreements between developers and municipalities.

—Negotiations between the province and Metropolitan Toronto and the regional governments of Durham and York are under way to provide a central servicing system that would release "thousands of serviced lots for the market in the immediate future."

Industrial Milk Price Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — A re-elected Liberal government would move immediately after the July 8 election to raise industrial milk prices high enough to offset increases in dairy production costs, a group of cabinet ministers announced Thursday.

The move could lead to higher costs for such products as skim milk powder, butter, cheese and ice-cream.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said in a statement that "immediately after the election, the government will respond to the representations made by dairy producers to ensure that the commitment of retailer producer returns to the cost of production will be met."

As well, he promised that any action "will also take into account any interim increase in production costs."

Any increase to the country's federally-regulated industrial milk farmers would add to a substantial raise in prices granted by the government March 29.

Then, the government agreed to raise by $1.35 to $8.50 the price milk men are guaranteed for each 100 pounds of milk they sell. The increase was made up of a sharp boost in direct subsidy payments—$2.30 for each 100 pounds from $1.45—together with price increases that raised the average cost of a pound of butter by 6 cents to 65 cents and of a pound of powdered skim milk by 12 and 16 cents to 56 cents.

Taxpayers now pay $200 million a year in subsidies to the country's 110,000 dairy farmers.

The dairy representatives urged the cabinet ministers to grant increases that would raise the guaranteed price of 100 pounds of milk to $10 from the $8.50 granted at the end of March.

They argued that rising production costs have "more than wiped out all the price advances" received 3½ months ago.

Manufacturers' Head Defends Profit Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition party leaders on the federal election trail said Thursday that government statistics showing rapidly-increasing corporate profits back up their policies but a spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association (CMA) said the figures only tell one side of the story.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said in Winnipeg that the figures—showing an average 43.7 per cent rise in corporate profits in the first quarter of 1974 from the similar period in 1973—proved that the time is right for price and income controls.

And New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis, in Yorkton, Sask., said the statistics indicated the NDP was right to oppose government tax concessions to manufacturers.

But W. D. H. Frechette, executive vice-president of the CMA, said it is crucial for manufacturers to make higher profits if the country wanted to avoid higher unemployment levels.

The Statistics Canada figures, released Wednesday, show that estimated after-tax profits for the first three months of 1974 totalled $2.164 billion. That was $979 million more than made in the first three months of 1973.

Of that profit total, $1.15 billion was made by manufacturing firms, which benefited from federal tax cuts just over a year ago. After-tax profits in the manufacturing sector averaged 62.7 per cent, the figures show.

Combined with average increases in sales of 24 per cent and of 22.5 per cent in the manufacturing sector, the figures indicate significant rises in profit margins.

Mr. Frechette said in a statement that the profit has many sides and the figures released from the government agency only told one side.

"The latest increases in manufacturing profits is still only part of the continuing recovery from the all-time low profit margin of three cents on every dollar of goods sold in 1970," he said.

"That level was not enough to sustain employment, as was shown by the higher jobless totals that year. It was absolutely crucial that profits recover to avoid a depressed economy and still worse unemployment," Mr. Frechette added.

Things Can Be Difficult Down in Land of the Free

Suddenly another patrol car appeared behind them and then a sheriff's car shot off a ramp, followed by another patrol car.

Mrs. Lipsett remarked: "Boy! They're really after somebody."

She was right. Police thought the Lipsetts and their friend were Patricia Hearst and her two Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) captors-turned-comrades.

Moments later, terrified and bewildered, the three were lying face down on the pavement, seven policemen holding pistols and rifles on them.

Mrs. Lipsett said they pleaded with the police to explain what was happening but were told, "Be quiet."

The explanation came minutes later.

"We thought you might have been Patty Hearst and Emily and William Harris," a police-man said. Their identities established, the Lipsetts and their friend, Katie Rowland, stood up and brushed off their clothes.

"We were absolutely panicked," Mrs. Lipsett said. "We thought they were going to shoot us."

Other Californians have had similar experiences during the police search for the Hearsts and Miss Hearst, the newspaper heiress who was kidnapped Feb. 4 and now is sought as an SLA terrorist.

Toyota has the lowest priced popular small car:
$2599*

Two thousand five hundred and ninety-nine dollars.

We think that's a lot of money to pay for any car. But we also think it's the best bargain in town. Here's why:

Lowest priced of all popular small cars.
Economy has to begin with price. (But it shouldn't end there.)
And when you compare prices, one fact stands out: of the 10 best selling small cars in Canada, Toyota has the lowest priced model. The Toyota Corolla 1200 KE2000KB.
Now check the dollar difference between Toyota and some of the other popular economy models.

Model	Standard Equipment	Latest Price Sheet Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price	Difference
TOYOTA	1200/KE	$2,599	—
Vega	2300/TS	$2,927	328
Pinto	2000/Y	$2,832	233
Datsun	1200/Y	$2,765	166
VW	1600/sdn	$2,765	166

*Manufacturers' Suggested Retail Price. Excludes freight, taxes and licence.

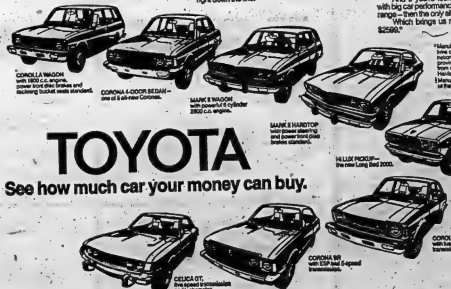
Now consider this:
The Toyota Corolla 1200 is not only the lowest priced model of the popular small cars.
It's also the one that goes the farthest on a gallon of gas.

Small car mileage chart.
Miles per gallon obtained by each manufacturer in cross-par trip, 55 mph.

Make	0 5 10 15 20 25 30 35
Toyota Corolla 1200		32.5 mpg
Datsun 1200		28.5 mpg
Vega Hatchback		26.5 mpg
Pinto		27.4 mpg
Volkswagen (Beetle)		25.5 mpg

These figures are from the Environmental Protection Agency—a U.S. government body that tested 486 different vehicles to determine gas mileage. And in the E.P.A. Gas Mileage Study of '74 models, the Toyota Corolla 1200 averaged 32.5 miles per imperial gallon. The best gas mileage of the 10 best selling small cars in Canada. (Of course your own mileage may vary depending on road conditions and the way you drive.)

Economy. And much more.
Sail not satisfied?
Good.
Because, with today's shrinking dollar, an economy car should offer you a lot more. Not only good price and good gas mileage. But good value right down the line.



That's why even the lowest priced Toyota models come equipped with a wide range of extras ... like front disc brakes, four-on-the-floor transmission, and fully reclining bucket seats.

Where many car manufacturers list these as extra cost options, they're all standard equipment on every Toyota.

22 beautiful ways to save.
At Toyota, the big option is choice.
We give you a wider selection of small cars than any other manufacturer: 22 models in 6 different series.
And they're not only different in size. They're different in character.
Chances are one of them is just right for you.

Change your car. Not your lifestyle.
Now more than ever, the small car is the car of the future.
In the face of rising prices, it's one of the few alternatives left.
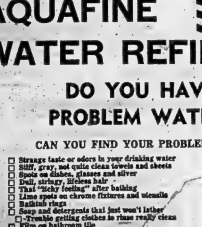
Which brings us right back to the beginning. $2599.*



*Manufacturers' suggested list prices at time of publication. Does not include transportation, and delivery charges, licences and provincial taxes. Because these charges vary from region to region, Toyota Dealers may have to adjust their prices accordingly.

Lang Asks Rape Trial Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Protection of the victim is the main idea of Criminal Code amendments proposed Thursday by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

The first proposal, announced after a cabinet meeting, is designed to prevent the victim's character from being impugned during a rape trial.

Others being considered include one that would facilitate a change of venue—moving the scene of the trial from the victim's hometown—but these will be formulated later.

A prepared statement released during a news conference with Mr. Lang referred only to women as victims of sexual assault, but he told reporters that the revised laws would apply also to victims of homosexual attacks.

"While we must continue to guarantee justice for an accused," he said, "we must strive harder to protect the victim, to protect innocent women from embarrassment.

"... We must protect the women of this country from any unnecessary exposure to public commentary. To do this, we will consider Criminal Code amendments to ensure that the details of any alleged crime and the name of the victim not be used in the press."

Mr. Lang noted that most newspapers and broadcast outlets voluntarily avoid carrying the victim's name and details of the crime, but he felt that supportive legislation might be advisable to control publications that specialize in scandals.

There were "some very serious policy questions," media control among them, that had to be considered carefully before any firm decision.

Schools Weak

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Structural damage in 24 of 36 schools under the jurisdiction of the Waterloo County board of education will cost the board $175,000 this summer in repairs.

Don Foell, superintendent of construction and planning for the board, told trustees Thursday that some would also require re-lath to bring them up to current fire-safety standards.

An investigation which started last December after the demolition of a public school in nearby Elmira was extended to smaller schools in the area when the roof collapsed on Rosedale Public School, he said.

Three of the schools are considered to have serious structural damage, he said.

Mr. Foell said the investigation might not have exposed all the structurally-weak schools in the county because only the oldest ones were examined.

No Market

TORONTO (CP) — Students at Deer Park public school are having difficulty finding a market for the six tons of old telephone books they have collected.

The 41 students collected the books to pay for an archeological and historical field trip they took May 27 to May 31.

The students paid part of the cost of the trip at the time but are short of $200.

Robin Smithies, a Grade 8 student in charge of finding a market for the books, said Thursday that no company would buy them.

Convicted

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Harry Levi Pruner, 47) of Spencerville, Ont., was convicted in Ontario Supreme Court Thursday of manslaughter in the death of his wife, Gwendolyn, 38, and remanded in custody until July 18 for sentencing.

Pruner, originally charged with non-capital murder in the wife's death, was acquitted on a charge of non-capital murder in the death of his 10-year-old son, Timothy.

Pruner told he court his wife had threatened him with a rifle last March 23 and as he struggled to take the gun from her, it discharged and the boy was killed.

He said he managed to get the gun away from his wife and then shot her.

Change Status

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Bernier, natural resources minister, said Thursday the inquiry into the flooding of the Grand River last month will be reconstituted so that witnesses testifying under oath will be protected.

Mr. Bernier made the statement to reporters after announcing in the legislature that he was consulting with the attorney-general as to the legal status of the hearings which were set up as a ministerial inquiry.

Witnesses do not receive the protection of the law on their statements under this form of hearing.

MME. JULES LEGER

Exhibit Held

OTTAWA (CP) — With Gov. Gen. Jules Leger recuperating at Government House from a stroke, Mme. Leger stood in for him Thursday at the National Film Board's summer exhibition of winter photography.

Mme. Leger appeared delighted at the 235 full-color pictures taken by 80 photographers. She described the exhibit as an "explosion of creativity" and pretended to shiver as she looked at snow-covered bonsars standing dcy on steel rails.

Paper Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — The French-language daily Journal de Montreal and two of its reporters were fined a total of $4,000 Thursday after they were found guilty of contempt of court.

Gerald Merckel, 35, must pay $500 within 15 days while Francois Ledoux must pay $300 within the same period. The newspaper was fined $4,000, and also given 15 days to pay.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of Court of Queen's Bench said the newspaper and the reporters wrote stories and headlines in the June 4 edition which resulted in a mistrial in the case of Billy McAllister, charged in the robbery of a Brink's security truck last year.

Mr. Justice Ouimet noted this was the fourth such incident in Montreal this year, and ordered the newspaper to print his eight-page judgment verbatim as a warning to all media.

Plan Program

TORONTO (CP) — The College of Family Physicians of Canada has launched a $2.3-million development program over the next five years designed to influence the direction of general practice in Canada.

Announcing the program, Dr. Donald Rice, executive director of the college, said the money, half of which will come directly from the college's own 3,500 members, will be used for increased continuing education, public education, research into medical manpower and new methods of family practice.

New Rules

TORONTO (CP) — As of September 1, all used cars sold or transferred in the province must have a safety certificate issued by a licensed and registered mechanic, Transport Minister John Rhodes told the legislature Thursday.

Mr. Rhodes, adding to a previous reply, said the new regulations, replacing the present much-abused system of mechanical fitness certificates were contained in a bill passed last December.

Mechanics who issue the new certificates must apply to the ministry for registration, Mr. Rhodes said.

Mr. Rhodes said information on the new regulations has been sent to more than 10,000 garages and service centres.

Remanded

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Dale Buckingham, 16, of Sarnia, charged with non-capital murder in the death of Carol Long, was remanded Thursday to the Mental Health Centre, Penetanguishene, Ont., for a psychiatric examination.

Buckingham had been in Sarnia jail since his arrest for his involvement in the June 2 death of the Sarnia girl.

The girl's body was found in three feet of water several days after she and another girl were forced into a wooded area in Sarnia township. The other girl escaped unharmed.

Oppose Change

TORONTO (CP) — A petition bearing 2,000 names was presented Thursday to the Ontario legislature by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

The petition, sponsored by a group calling itself the Committee in Opposition to Revision in the Day Nurseries Act, asked the government to refrain from implementing proposed changed in day-care policy.

The group asked that the revisions, announced this month by Margaret Birch, provincial secretary for social development, be delayed until they can be studied and submissions made.

There was no immediate government reaction to the petition.

End to Algonquin Logging Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ont Democratic Party, says Ontario government statistics prove that logging operations can be withdrawn from Algonquin Park without damage to the forest industry.

Mr. Lewis told a news conference Thursday that Premier William Davis's government allows logging in Algonquin "on grounds which are seen to be illegitimate and indefensible."

He said information obtained from the ministry of natural resources demonstrates that there is enough high-quality soft-and hard-wood stands within a 50-mile radius of the park to meet the needs of the logging industry.

Mr. Lewis said the government's proposed Algonquin Forestry Authority, which had been promised this year, should direct an orderly withdrawal of logging from the 3,000 square-mile park, about 120 miles north of Toronto.

Algonquin provides an annual harvest of hard and soft woods of 14-million cubic feet for 23 logging firms which employ 2,100. Another 2,000 are employed indirectly from those operations that return about $700,000 a year in royalties to the province.

The authority was to be the centrepiece of a new government policy, unveiled about a year ago, to preserve the park's commercial, recreational and wilderness resources.

The government says the park is large enough to permit controlled logging, but Mr. Lewis's policy statement Thursday rejected this, saying all logging should be eliminated by Dec. 31, 1976 "or sooner if expedient."

Mr. Lewis's statement also said the authority should permit minimal harvesting to prevent forest fires and disease.

Both Mr. Lewis and Jack Stokes, the party's resources critic from Thunder Bay riding, said the cost to industry to move out of Algonquin and relocate within a 50-mile area would be minuscule.

Mr. Lewis said the conifers, or soft woods, grow in abundance throughout Ontario "and need not come from the park at all."

But the hardwoods are not so plentiful. Mr. Lewis agreed that the park has some of the finest stands of yellow birch, a high-quality hard wood.

But he said continuing logging in the park only to extract yellow birch "is too high a price to pay."

Mr. Lewis charged that the natural resources ministry has made assertions, projections and estimates about the park that have proved "to be demonstrably wrong."

Northland Rail Accounts Rapped

TORONTO (CP) — Accounting and cost-control procedures of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) came in for harsh comment in an interim report tabled in the legislature Thursday.

The public accounts committe report, presented by chairman Patrick Reid (L—Rainy River), contained 13 recommendations.

The committee held six sessions on the ONTC over the last two months.

The recommendations call for controls on commission accounting procedures and an audit committee.

The committee also recommended that "a firm policy be laid down in regard to the matter of entertainment expenses."

During hearings, testimony showed that the ONTC's two private railway cars are used as travelling business and settlatment centres.

The cars, fitted with sleeping accommodations and dining areas, used more than $7,300 in supplies last year. In addition, salaries for the stewards and cooks came to about $12,000.

The recommendation said costs incurred in the use of the cars should be charged back to the ministry responsible and a log book be kept on their use.

It also asked the commission to give "serious consideration to whether two business cars are necessary."

The report hit at the operation of a hunting camp in Northern Canada where businessmen were entertained. The report said the practice should be stopped.

During the hearings, the committee was told by ONTC chairman James Jessiman (PC—Fort William) that a $25,000 consultant's fee was paid for services that, in the end, were neither used nor asked for.

The money went to Kenneth Passmore, former managing director of Star Transfer Ltd.—a wholly-owned subsidiary of the ONTC after he resigned last year.

The report referred the matter of Mr. Passmore's payment to the ministry of transport.

Policy guidelines in regard to dismissals, retirements and severance pay at the managerial level should be laid down, the report added.

In discussing the Passmore affair, the report said the explanation about the payment "is deemed inadequate by the committee . . ."

"Some of the committee members felt that the $25,000 payment . . . was overly generous."

The report referred to the resignation of ONTC commissioner John Kennedy who left following a committee allegation that he was in a conflict-of-interest position as a commissioner. He is a major shareholder in a North Bay hotel that did business with the ONTC.

The report recommended that the commission's governing act be amended to provide penalties for conflict of interest.

During the hearings, the committee was told that Mr. Jessiman once used a charter flight from 1969 to travel to Timmins to save time on a business matter.

The committee's report recommended that charter flights be limited to "conditions of extreme emergency."

The report said a number of commission employees receive two paycheques for doing extra work. The committee said the practice should be discontinued and extra work paid for on an invoice or contract basis, with no pension benefits accruing from the second job.

Big Boost Planned In Mining Taxes

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White introduced amendments Thursday which he said would increase Ontario's tax revenue from the mining industry by more than $135 million this year.

The amendments to the Mining Tax Act, introduced in the legislature, will produce $830 million in revenue to the treasury in 1974, compared with $75 million in 1973.

While raising the tax bite on the mining industry, the amendments also contain provisions to encourage processing and development.

The amendments would: Increase the depreciation allowance on new mining assets acquired after April 9, 1974, to 30 from 15 per cent; allow all preproduction expenses as a deduction in computing the tax, and provide a processing allowance when capital works are constructed, thus paralleling capital cost allowance provisions.

It also would provide that mining companies could no longer reduce their tax when processing facilities outside of Canada.

THE OPEN ARMS OF ONTARIO

"... every mile is beautiful ..." — from an Ontario Tourist Council regional map.

Where in Ontario, is an island — "God's Island"; a town is "Where Waters Flow"; or another is "Town built on a curving hillside over a beautiful bay", or a bay is "The Outlet" and "The Barren Hill is . . . ."

But perhaps you've already guessed these are translated Indian names for places on God's Island — Manitoulin.

Where the Barren Hill is Gore Bay now one of the island's beauty spots and "Where the waters flow" none other than Little Current its biggest town.

The ambience that rises from such poetic nomenclature is suggested, hinted by, a three hour ferry ride on the Norgoma from the wharf of Tobermory on the Bruce Peninsula, where its passengers are separated from reality to a world of blue sky above diamond-netted blue water as beautiful white gulls float above as magnificent feathered crafts in the air.

The ferry (fare per car is $8.00 and $4 per person) docks as we did at six p.m. at "The Outlet" known as South Bay, mouth complete with a light house, pines, rocks and a many-windowed white frame motel, where my husband and I stayed over night in a room with a super view ($12.00).

Leaving the next morning around ten, our drives on excellent roads throughout the island, where scenic views remind one of the Scioto Mile gon. We tended to forget this is the largest fresh-water island in the world, being 100 miles long and from three to 64 miles wide. It has 110 lakes and many clear-water streams.

As we leave the island at Little Current we gain a sense of historical vistas that sparkle and cling in the imagination with an awakened depth-in-desire to "know more."

Our adventurous mood suggest driving to Sudbury and from there take the Polar Bear Express to another legend-bearing place Moosonee, on James Bay.

Why not?!

But upon arriving at Timmins, our dream is shattered. For we learn the daily excursion Polar Bear Express is not in operation until June 17 to September 4.

But dreams will keep for another day. As one has said, "To travel hopefully, after all, is better than to arrive."

We leave Timmins Porcupine the next day and twelve hours and three hundred springtime miles later arrive back in Belleville, to relive the little we have seen of this magnificent, fascinating, vast province of beautiful Ontario.

Ann Landers

Changes 'Arctic Ice' Swede For 'Hot Shamrock' Irishman

Dear Ann Landers: I read a busy, exciting, never-a-dull-moment kind of life, but I'm stopping everything to take a few minutes to reaffirm your statement that one should never generalize about ethnic groups. I refer to the letter (full of malarkey) about the Irish being the most aimless of all snakes.

Everyone has heard about "those sexy Swedes." Their born, wild cousins, live-in relationships, highest rate of illegitimate babies, etc.

Well, I was married to a Swede for 20 years and he was as cold as a hunk of ice in the Arctic. I tried everything from black lace nighties to professional counselling. Nothing worked so I gave up and divorced him.

The following year I married an Irishman. He chases me morning, noon and night, and I love every minute of it.

Sexual appetite has absolutely nothing whatever to do with ethnic background and I wish you'd say it again. Just sign me—Love My Hot Shamrock

Dear Love: OK I will say it again. Sexual appetite has absolutely nothing to do with ethnic background. Remember that line, "Latins are lousy lovers"? That's not true either, according to my mail from Caracas.

Dear Ann Landers: While going through my Al-Anon book tonight, I came across something I believe is worth sharing. In fact, I am going to have it printed and framed for my wall so I can see it every morning. Here it is:

Today is mine.
It is unique.
Nobody in the world has one exactly like it.
It holds the sum of all my past experiences and all my future potential.
I can fill it with joyous moments or ruin it with fruitless worry.
If painful recollections of the past come into my mind, or frightening thoughts of the future, I can put them away.
They cannot spoil today for me.—Feeling Thinker ... ..

Dear Thinker: What an uplifting bit of philosophy! We can all use it. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your recent account of "A Happy Kid." He was lucky to have a dad like that.

I'd like to tell you about the thousands of kids who have no dads. They are the most underprivileged youngsters in the world. Who will help them find their places in adult men?

There is help for them. It's an organization called Big Brother. This group is composed of volunteers, men who offer friendship and guidance to one fatherless boy. No fee. No pay. Just friendship.

A Big Brother talks things over, answers questions. He takes "his little pal" with him for the day or the evening. Maybe on a hiking trip, to the circus, a baseball game or to a museum.

Please tell the world about Big Brother. It is listed in the phone book. And please tell them to hurry. Some little kid is waiting.—A B.B.

Dear B.B.: I know of the wonderful work of Big Brothers and I am happy to pass the word.

'Marijuana Changes Brain Waves'

Doris Clark

Did you know that there are abnormal brain waves caused by smoking marijuana? When you put it that way, it seems to me any one of us would say that we do not want anything or anybody brain-washing us. Because that is what is happening, isn't it?

The marijuana - hashish epidemic is spiralling at a terrifying rate in the U.S.A. and abroad. There's a U.S. Senate sub-committee studying problems related to just what various kinds of dope can do to our bodies, minds and general security.

The chairman of the committee says, "There is a militant lobby in the U.S.A. working for the complete legalization of marijuana. There is, however, a large body of scientists of international reputation whose research on marijuana has convinced them that it is a highly dangerous drug."

In May, representatives went to the U.S.A. from Egypt, Sweden, all outstanding authorities on the subject, to talk it all over.

Confidential to Traveller: It's great that you take your children with you when you take off for far-away places. You are making their world broad and helping them to understand other cultures and other ways of living.

When there is some sort of travel sickness, in Europe Mexico or other countries, it is often to be blamed on water supplies. Health authorities and travel agents in Canada counsel people about where water for drinking should be purchased before leaving.

Avoid drinking water in any other form, including ice cubes and in cleaning your teeth. Fresh fruit is often washed (use chlorinated water) before being served, so avoid any fruit which is eaten skin and all.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper about your particular human problems, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

'Hospitals Only for Extremely Ill'

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—A Canadian nurse visiting New Zealand predicted that hospitals of the future will be places for only the extremely ill, with only registered nurses on their staff.

Mary Richmond, former director of nursing at Vancouver General Hospital, visited the country for two months on a travelling scholarship to discuss the nursing service in New Zealand with professionals in the health field.

She said that ultimately, with nursing education swinging away from solely hospital training and towards nursing programs run by polytechnic institutes and other tertiary-education bodies, hospitals will no longer be staffed by student nurses.

With the setting up of community health centres to treat people who were ill but not ill enough to require hospital care, hospitals would be admitting more seriously ill patients so that students would be less and less adequate in the hospital environment.

This would not mean that students in the polytechnic nursing programs would have absolutely no hospital experience at all, she said.

"Half their nursing training would be done in hospitals. We don't want to switch completely the student nurse in the hospital. What we want are hospitals filled with registered nurses."

New Zealand, like Canada, has a problem in keeping nurses in the profession after they graduate, Miss Richmond said.

Community health centres are being established in New Zealand and Canada at about the same rate. These provide an alternative to the hospital for the registered nurse.

Mrs Richmond said she was not in New Zealand to study the nursing education scheme but to talk to people in all fields of health work about their problems."

She visited centres throughout New Zealand and reported her findings to a meeting of the New Zealand Nurses' Association shortly before her return to Canada at the end of May.

Time for Lunch

Another Liberal Joins PC Workers

HULL, Que. (CP) — Joseph Paul-Etienne Theriault, of Aylmer, Que., has become the second Liberal in recent weeks to defect from the party and join the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Theriault, 32, told a news conference in the campaign headquarters of Lucille Hodgins, Progressive Conservative candidate in Hull riding, that the Liberal party "has no place for true liberals who" have a concern for individual freedom and the well-being of all Canadians."

He was leaving to join the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Theriault is a member of the national executive of the Liberal party and national president of the party's youth commission.

A native of Bathurst, N.B., Mr. Theriault is a nephew of New Brunswick Liberal MLA Norbert Theriault.

Earlier this month, Mel McInnis, Ontario campaign director for the Liberals in the last federal election, said he would campaign in the July 8 election for Progressive Conservative Stephen Roman, a candidate in Toronto's York North riding.

Liberals Join PCs In Pension Offer

By DAVE BLAIKIE
The CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberals announced a new election pledge Thursday, promising to extend old age pension benefits to the spouses of some pensioners under 65.

Party officials travelling with Prime Minister Trudeau in Quebec said at a news conference that pensions will be made available i special cases to spouses between 60 and 65.

Those qualifying would have to take a test to show need, they said.

Mr. Trudeau discussed the proposal at a news conference in Sherbrooke, Que., but gave no indication of what the cost would be.

The Progressive Conservatives have advocated pensions for anyone over 50 whose income has ceased. But they not mentioned a means test to qualify. The New Democratic and Social Credit parties want full pension benefits for everyone over 60.

The Liberal pension proposal was included in a general outline of the party's social security program. Spokesmen estimated that the extended pension benefits would cost an additional $85 million to $90 million a year.

Meanwhile, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused the Liberals of confidential screening of public announcements during the election campaign.

He said a memo, made public earlier in the week, instructed senior civil servants to clear public announcements during the campaign with Senator Keith Davey, co-chairman of the national Liberal campaign committee.

"No announcement of public policy may be released . . . unless it has been seen, screened and approved by the senator," Mr. Stanfield said. About 600 people who packed a high school auditorium for a rally at Oakville, Ont.

"In other words, you have to clear it with the Liberals if you can tell it to the Canadian people."

The memo, written by Mr. Trudeau's legislative assistant Gerard Pelletier, was defended by the prime minister in Sherbrooke. What she did "on my behalf" was to extend a system of information co-ordination that has always existed, he said.

"We do this year in year out . . . to get maximum understanding and coverage."

Mr. Trudeau visited a series of Quebec ridings in a full day of campaigning Thursday.

The Oakville rally was the only public event for Mr. Stanfield who started the day with a flight from Winnipeg to Toronto. He spent much of the day fulfilling "media requirements" for the Conservative campaign.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis continued his campaign trip through Western Canada, denouncing both the Liberals and Conservatives for their treatment of farmers.

At a meeting in Sturgis, Sask., he said the government is doing a disservice to farmers and Canadian families by letting some movement of feed grains be handled on the open market rather than by the wheat board.

The result probably will be a big jump in the price of feed grains and a subsequent increase in the cost of meat, poultry and dairy products, he said.

This would benefit "high-roll-ing speculators" on the Winnipeg commodity exchange and work to the detriment of consumers.

Die to Run As Long As Wanted

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker told more than 1,000 cheering residents of this west-central Saskatchewan city Thursday night he will stay in the House of Commons "as long as the people of Prince Albert constituency want me to."

The 79-year-old parliamentary veteran, campaigning for the July 8 federal election, said Liberal government farm policies caused so many fluctuations in the price of pork "the poor hog doesn't know where he's going anymore."

He repeated Progressive Conservative party complaints that the government has done nothing to halt the rise in the cost of living, and criticized Prime Minister Trudeau for first saying he would make no campaign promises and then making one very short day of it.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the domestic feed grains policy announced this spring has already depressed grain prices and will undermine the Canadian wheat board.

The NDP has gone from "a party of principle" to "a puppet of the Liberals through its support of the minority Liberals in the last Parliament, said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Food Firms Said Able To Absorb Cost Boost

WINNIPEG (CP) — James Gillies, Progressive Conservative financial critic, said Thursday that food wholesalers and processors would have to absorb any increases in the price of farm products during his party's proposed 90-day freeze on prices and incomes.

At a news conference, Mr. Gillies said the profit margins of these business are considerable enough to absorb any price increases sought by farmers.

The former professor of business administration, seeking re-election in Toronto Don Valley, was in Winnipeg to attend a luncheon for Sterling Lyon, Conservative candidate in Winnipeg South.

Mr. Gillies said the proposed freeze would not apply to imported commodities, but he said 95 per cent of Canada's inflation is generated within the country.

He said the freeze, followed by a period of selective controls, is only one weapon in the Conservative arsenal available for fighting inflation.

Turner Says Wages Just Chasing Prices

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner says wages are chasing prices in Canada and if both were frozen, wages would head a lower level than cost.

He told about 200 persons at a coffe party Thursday that frozen wages are the reason no working man would accept the Progressive Conservative policy of wage and price controls.

"The issue Canadians have to face is dealing with the cost of living," he said. "The Conservative controls are not the answer because the problem is a matter of supply and demand, not simply costs."

Mr. Turner said that in countries where wage and price controls were used, big increases were thrown into a recession.

Showbiz Shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Screen Actors Guild in the United States is asking its 52,000 members for strike authorization.

Ballots were sent out this week to learn whether guild members are willing to set a July 1 deadline for reaching a contract settlement without a strike.

The AFL-CIO union is asking motion picture and television producers for a 25-per-cent increase in basic minimum scales and "a significant improvement in the way actors are paid for TV reruns."

The guild is asking that actors be paid 100 per cent of their original salary every time a television show is repeated on the three U.S. TV networks during prime time. At present, the first time's show is rerun, actors get 99 per cent of the minimum scale of $483 a week plus 15 per cent of the money they earn above scale. The residuals decrease gradually with each further repetition.

Spokesmen for the union and the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers said Wednesday they are optimistic about reaching a settlement without a strike.

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israel Philharmonic Orchestra decided Wednesday to end its ban on playing the music of Richard Wagner.

The German composer's works had been ruled out by the orchestra on grounds he was an anti-Semite and was idolized by Hitler.

The orchestra, and the Israeli state radio both have banned music by Wagner and Richard Strauss since Israel became independent in 1948, citing the Jewish state's bitter memory of Germany's mass extermination of Jews during the Second World War.

The decision to play a Wagner concert June 26 in Tel Aviv's largest auditorium was a victory for the orchestra's musical director, virtuoso Zubin Mehta, who has pushed for years to remove the ban.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — George Kelly, 87, Pulitzer prize winning playwright, has died.

The last surviving member of a generation of 19 talented Kellys whose short-lived vaudeville days had for both producers and consumers.

The reform was double-pronged. Its aims were to cut down the high increase in the cost of living in Algeria's main cities and improve farmers' income.

The income of farmers had felt the pinch of a rigid price-fixing system which took little notice of world inflation.

What was needed was a fresh look at the distribution system, to reconcile a socialist-oriented agriculture of peasants' property in co-operatives with a somewhat hybrid commercial system making room for private initiative.

Since Algeria's independence in 1962 small business has been allowed to operate freely, although it passed into Algerian hands, while bigger companies were nationalized along with large agricultural estates.

What reform there was in 12 years led to more state-control of free-lance trade, with government bodies selling to private wholesalers who in turn organized distribution, fixed prices—and are alleged to have planned artificial food scarcities to increase prices.

Algerian Housewives Enjoy Price Slashing

ALGIERS (Reuter) — While housewives throughout the world are becoming soaring food prices, Algeria's women-folk are enjoying drastic reductions in the cost of food and vegetables and plentiful supplies.

The prices of fruit and vegetables have been slashed by nearly half virtually overnight. And long-standing lamentations over scarcity have been ended by full markets with ample choice.

The dramatic reduction, at a time of increasing food prices almost everywhere else in the world, are the result of a massive reform of the whole distribution system.

A direct producer-consumer "feed-pipe" was laid by Mary under local council control to replace what an Algerian journalist called a "monster of administration," the state-run Office for Commercialization of Fruit and Vegetables (OFLA), whose short-lived existence was bad for both producers and consumers.

Hutt Synonymous With Stratford

He has appeared regularly at the annual Stratford Festival since it opened in 1953 (when he was paid $90 a week) and is the actor most universally associated with it.

"You ask what my career would have been like had the Stratford Festival not existed?" says Mr. Hutt. "Without Stratford, I'm not sure I would have stayed, just the fact of Stratford inspired, or accelerated, the regional theatre movement in Canada. Stratford has made the legitimate theatre a socially acceptable — and recognizable — business.

Twice he has led the Stratford Company of Actors on foreign tours, as King Lear to Europe and Russia in 1973 and as The Imaginary Invalid to Australia last winter.

In a recent realignment of the festival's administration Mr. Hutt was named associate director in charge of the Festival Theatre Stage.

"I like my new appointment at Stratford," he said. "Specifically, I will be directly responsible for what goes on at the Festival Theatre not in splendid isolation, of course. The arrangement has infinite flexibility.

In more than two decades performing at Stratford, Mr. Hutt has acted in such plays as The Country Wife, Troilus and Cressida, Henry IV Part Two, The Cherry Orchard and Tartuffe.

"When I begin examining a role I'm going to play I try to seek out what is feminine and I don't mean faggy in the role; that is. I know I've been cast in things that need I look for something to soften it. I look for the other character's isolation, for the way in which he is unique from the other characters. I look for silences.

"Onstage too, I never believe in moving unless it improves on stillness. I don't look for what in the character is applicable to me, but the reverse of that, what of myself I can find in the character."

After this summer's Stratford season, Hutt will immerse himself in the festival's future planning, with some interruptions for his own acting career.

THE BERSERK meeting for the second consecutive day Wednesday. This time she wore an outfit of see-through lace, without panties.

She told reporters she had nothing on beneath the creamy lace except stockings and garters.

Linda, 23, went bra-less in a transparent black chiffon top to the opening day of the meeting.

Meanwhile, the film Deep Throat has been banned in Britain by the Customs and Excise, pornography section, it was announced today.

The film was to have been shown at Britain's National Film Theatre next week.

Life-saving Nutrition Decisions Made in Ottawa Office Tower

OTTAWA (CP) — Crucial decisions that might save thousands of lives around the world are being made in a federal government office tower off Confederation Square two blocks from Parliament Hill.

The decision-makers are officers of the government-financed International Development Research Centre (IDRC) which is arming poor countries with the weapons that industrialized the West—science, education, technology.

A top priority is to help the inhabitants of the semi-arid regions of Africa, India, South Asia, Asia and Central America save themselves from malnutrition and starvation.

Canadian agricultural and food-processing scientists and their colleagues in other developed countries have a tight timetable for saving masses of humanity, said Joseph Huise, director of the centre's agriculture, food and nutrition sciences division.

Climate changes and energy shortages have renewed the ancient scourge of famine. Four or five years may tell the story.

The sub-Sahara row of six African countries known as the Sahel region, a semi-arid band at the best of times, is already reeling from the effects of drought.

Climatic specialists said a global cooling trend has lowered the earth's temperature 1 degrees Fahrenheit since 1945 and may spread drought conditions through the semi-arid regions of Asia and South America.

The warning flags of inevitable crisis are up, Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan of the Science Council of Canada, a former meteorologist, said of worldwide agricultural prospects in a recent McGill University convocation address.

To make matters worse the food baskets of the world—Canada, the United States and Australia, the only countries that are in grain exportation—are low on stocks. Global food reserves have their lowest level in two decades.

The research centre is a brainchild of former prime minister Lester Pearson, its first chairman, is modelled somewhat after the Ford and Rockefeller foundations in the United States, except that taxpayers—not industrialists—are the centre's benefactors.

Research financed by the two big American foundations helped launch the so-called green revolution in agriculture several years ago, Mr. Huise said in an interview.

Now, with the food production advances of the green revolution negated by drought, the centre is in the thick of an international effort to develop an agricultural science and food technology to support semi-arid agriculture.

IDRC-supported research—some at Canadian universities and some in the countries affected—is aimed at introducing improved drought-resistant varieties of sorghum, millet and grain legumes, the staple crops of semi-arid countries, and improving techniques for their processing.

The centre has a $19 million budget this year, a dwarf beside the $650 million the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) is authorized to dispense in foreign aid.

But about 30 per cent of CIDA money is in conditional grants, which means the recipient countries must observe restrictions on spending it.

Some "third world" leaders consider such foreign aid as only a slight contribution from the rich countries whose privileges are ensured by the present international order, CIDA president Paul Gerin-Lajoie said recently.

IDRC, in contrast, dispenses its research funds without strings, aiming at such vital aspects of third world development as agriculture, nutrition, family planning and health, requiring from applicants only a detailed program description.

Research is sorely needed, especially for agricultural science in the semi-arid regions, said Mr. Huise.

The present plight has its roots in neglect. Colonists, motivated by the dictates of commerce, did the semi-arid regions no favors, he said.

They looked upon sorghum and millet as subsistence crops from which they weren't going to make any money. Instead, they promoted the development of international crops such as wheat, maize and rice.

The agricultural technology that made possible the green revolution was mainly to perk up production of these crops, Mr. Huise said some misguided specialists have done more harm than good trying to help. They have not understood that a technology can't always be transferred, that what works in one country won't necessarily work in another. Problems of scale, climate, training and culture had to be tackled.

This was why the centre financed mainly applied or practical research in the stricken countries while supporting basic agricultural research in universities here.

The centre has supported more than 200 projects since it was established in 1970.

Two Hurt In Crash

A Belleville woman and a five-year-old boy received minor cuts and bruises in a two-car collision on Station Street shortly before 5 p.m. last night.

Police said that Rita Tuller, 54, of 369 North Park St., and Blaine Bone, 5, of 69 Bleecker Ave., were injured when the cars in which they were riding collided on Station Street in front of the Brewers' Retail Store.

Shane Bone was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Brenda R. Bone, while Rita Tuller was a passenger in a car driven by Alfred Charles Baker, 31, of 238 East Pine Street.

The Baker vehicle was westbound on Station Street at 4:45 p.m. when it stopped to make a left hand turn into the Brewers' Retail parking lot across two lanes of eastbound traffic.

Police say that an unidentified motorist in the passing, eastbound lane, swerved to avoid Baker vehicle across the road.

As the Baker car crossed Station Street, it collided with the Nunn vehicle in the curb lane.

Damage arising from the accident was estimated at $900.

Young Chamber Players Coming to Belleville

Musicians Will Teach As Well As Entertain

Young musicians in Belleville will have the opportunity Monday night to learn more than a few tips and notes from the cream of university chamber music performers.

Chamber Music Canada, an 11-member ensemble funded by an Opportunities for Youth (OFY) grant, will hold a concert-cum-workshop at Centennial Secondary School at 8 p.m. Admission is not charged.

Douglas Hallman, ensemble information officer, said all area musicians are invited to stay after the initial one-hour formal concert. Each is to bring his own instrument — whether he be violin, cello, French horn or flute.

Harpsichord enthusiasts need not bother — one will be provided.

The idea behind the workshop, said Mr. Hallman, is to allow younger musicians to experience and learn to better appreciate chamber music, as played by some of the best university musicians.

Individual ensemble musicians will work with local youth for an hour, or as long as enthusiasm and interest remains, he said.

Musicians will read through a piece of music, discuss the composer, and play through a relatively easy passage.

Where sheet music can be obtained in Canada it will also be discussed.

Operating under an $18,000 OFY grant, the ensemble is slated for 29 workshops and concerts on its tour of eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. A limited number of formal concerts are planned by the McGill University-based group.

All members, says Mr. Hallman, are "on the verge of professional careers".

In 1973, the first year the ensemble received a grant, the then 18 members held workshops that went on for two to three hours.

Mr. Hallman said that, previously, the largest number of workshop participants were 12. These were members of a high school band.

Monday's concert will mark a departure from the originally scheduled eastern Ontario tour. Belleville was not included among the three cities slated for a stopover.

The move to put the city on a metered cab fare system followed a request by the cab owners at the May meeting of the police commission to allow them to install meters in their cars.

The cab companies told the police commissioners that they were requesting a switch to the metered fare system since their operational costs had increased drastically over the past few years.

Grant Devolin, the owner of Central Taxi, told the commission last night that since 1970, the last time the meter system was discussed, his company's gasoline prices alone have jumped as much as 46.6 cents a gallon. In addition to increased gas prices, Mr. Devolin cited increased wages for cab drivers, and rising costs for oil, tires, and cars as factors influencing his request.

In addition to the meter fare system which will be in effect within three miles of the city's limits, the cab companies will charge an hourly waiting charge of $4 an hour.

Cab riders who have a habit of riding in cabs outside the three mile boundary will have to wait until the July meeting of the police commission to find out just how their fares will be adjusted.

The cab companies want to retain the metered system for trips to some towns, such as Trenton, that are situated beyond the three-mile boundary and in other cases will provide riders with a choice of either a metered fare or a flat rate.

The police commission will require the cab companies to have the flat fare rates for areas outside of the city posted in the cabs and riders may be required to sign a form agreeing to either the metered system or the flat rate before they leave the city.

If the cab companies were to use the meter rate for trips to an area such as Picton, the university could $8 could cost as much as $25. The cab companies said they felt that was too high a price and that they would like to set a special flat rate for such trips.

The final arrangements for out-of-town fare rates will be made at the next meeting of the commission.

Comparative figures for cab fares in other cities discussed at last night's meeting include Windsor, where fares are 55 cents for the first sixth of a mile and 10 cents for each additional one-fifth of a mile; Oshawa, where fares are 75 cents for the first of a mile and 10 cents for each additional one-fifth of a mile and Peterborough where fares are 70 cents for the first fifth of a mile and 10 cents for each additional fifth o a mile.

Taxi Fares Going Up

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

Within the next few months taxi cabs in Belleville will be equipped with meters and cab riders will find themselves paying the equivalent of $1.30 for the first mile and 60 cents for every additional mile of their rides.

Last night the Belleville police commission met with the owners of Central Taxi and Checker Taxi and agreed to allow them to install meters in their cabs.

The commission also agreed to set a cab fare meter rate of 70 cents for the first one-sixth of a mile of a trip with an additional charge of 10 cents for every subsequent one-sixth of a mile.

Currently, the cab companies are operating under a zone fare system.

The switch to the metered system is tentatively scheduled to come into effect on August 1, but will be operational no later than Sept. 1.

Hams Will Compete

Quinte Amateur Radio Club will again participate in the international field day competition, slated for this weekend.

The field day is an exercise in international communication under simulated emergency conditions. The Quinte club, along with thousands of others around the world, will set up a complete portable radio station to pass information around the globe.

Points and awards are given for the greatest number of contacts and for the different countries contacted.

The station will be located in a field close to Mountain View Airport.

Old-timer Passing Through

Puffy clouds of white steam and the sonorous wail of the steam locomotive's whistle will lure residents of eastern Ontario into the streets of the past on Saturday.

A 53-year-old coal-burning steam engine, number 1057, will pant and puff her way through Trenton and Belleville between 10:30 and 11 a.m. Saturday.

"The old lady will be running on her own power along the CPR's main line during a one-way excursion trip to Ottawa.

Owned and operated by the Ontario Rail Association, 1057 will find a permanent home in Ottawa area where she will be used in run Sunday excursions. The excursions are expected to begin in July and will end on Labor Day.

Built in December of 1912, 1057 is a class D-3-b locomotive who spent most of her railroad life working for the CPR in the Atlantic District of Northern Ontario. In 1938, however, she did make a short trip to Saskatchewan.

She retired in 1960 and remained idle until 1973 when she was purchased by the Ontario Rail Association, a group of railroad buffs who carefully restored her to original operating condition.

Quinte-area residents who wish to get a closer look at the old girl as she travels to Ottawa may want to travel to Port Hope where she will stop to take on water at 8 a.m.

The old locomotive will not stop in either Trenton or Belleville, but may be seen travelling along CPR main line sometime after 10 a.m. Saturday.

Arts Council Had Double Good Year

The Quinte Arts Council had a successful year both from a financial and a cultural point of view.

At the group's annual meeting Thursday night, it was revealed that the council had gone from a $2,000 deficit position last June to a bank balance of approximately $7,788.

Three sources of funds have been used to achieve this. said Diana Aitken of the finance committee. "The first of these is government grants. The Ontario Arts Council has awarded us a $1,500 outright grant with another conditional portion of up to $1,000 on funds raised by the QCA above the amount of $1,500.

"To date we have raised almost this amount. We therefore feel confident of receiving the full $1,000. We are extremely pleased to have recently acquired $500 from the city of Belleville.

"And business and industry have contributed over $1,000 this year and we are pleased to have nine major Belleville industries as patrons," said Mrs. Aitken in her report.

Culturally, the council was matched in its success. Reports of the various committees revealed that such activities as Artsfest '74 in May, the Art Mart in the winter and productions of the Belleville Theatre Guild were successful both artistically and financially.

Also brought up at the annual meeting attended by about 30 people at Corby Library was the upcoming Canada Day at Centennial Park in Trenton. This event, on July 1 which attracted 15,000 people last year was predicted as drawing even more people this year.

Featured will be such events as parachute jumps, ethnic dancing, sports and band concerts.

Bob Begbie Inspector

Belleville's Police commission last night confirmed the promotion of Detective Sergeant Robert Begbie to the rank of Inspector.

Inspector Begbie's promotion was made retroactive to May 2, 1974.

Acting as head of the criminal investigation bureau is the Belleville police Inspector Begbie's served as the Sergeant of detectives here since 1970. He has been a member of the Belleville police department since 1958.

Inspector Begbie will continue his duties as the head of the CIB unit in the Belleville department.

Other police offers to receive promotions during last night's meeting of the police commission were PC Daryl Wagar and PC Linda Smith. Both constables were promoted to Second Class constables. They have been with the Belleville department since 1972.

Coins Stolen

Thieves stole approximately $46 worth of coins from two coin machines at Belle Cleaners on Coleman Street Wednesday.

Police Chief Douglas Crobie said that his department received word of the incident around 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

The thieves pried open the two machines in the laundry sometime before the coin wash closed Wednesday night, the chief said.

Dirty Bird?

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported today that someone stole a 40-year-old bird bath from in front of a home at 23 Hastings Drive.

The theft was reported to police about 1:30 a.m. yesterday, the Chief said and was believed to have occured sometime during the night of June 19.

The bird bath was valued at $30.

BGH Nurses Talk Contract

Representatives of Belleville General Hospital's administration and nursing staffs have joined colleagues from across Ontario in Toronto to discuss their work contract issues.

BGH is one of 49 hospitals involved in the meeting announced earlier this week by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

Contract negotiations between BGH's 280 nurses and the hospital administration started late last year.

An administration spokesman said the talks were due to go to arbitration June 27.

An RNAO spokesman said earlier this week the association hoped the Toronto discussions — involving spokesmen for 10,000 nurses — would obviate the necessity of arbitration, as only non-monetary issues will be left for resolution on a local basis.

Representatives for the nurses at the meeting were to propose a monetary package which would make standard pay scales across the province.

Deck, Tapes Stolen

A stereo tape deck and five eight track tapes valued at approximately $400 were stolen from a car parked on the parking lot behind the City Hotel late yesterday night.

Police say that the stereo equipments was stolen from the car sometime between 10 p.m. and 10:50 p.m. last night.

UCS Seeking Exposure

The United Community Services of Belleville is considering ways of making its identity clearer in the city.

This was brought up during a meeting Thursday night of the board of directors. One way of going that suggested by UCS president, Virginia O'Rourke would be to take part in the Quinte Exhibition.

The participation could take the form of a booth presenting activities of the 12 agencies helped by the United Appeal. Since the fair takes place early in September, this timing would coincide nicely with the United Appeal campaign in October, said one of the directors.

Mrs. O'Rourke suggested that each of the agencies could present a display and invite public participation such as having the YMCA test the blood pressure of people to see how fit they are.

Also brought up at the meeting were other ways of publicizing the fact that the 12 agencies ranging from the Red Cross to the Victorian Order of Nurses to the Belleville Minor Sports Association are under the blanket of the United Appeal and not the UCS. In fact, the UCS is one of the 12 agencies helped by the United Appeal.

There have been some misconceptions lately about the role of the UCS and we hope to clear this up," said Mrs. O'Rourke at the board meeting. "We would like to make our office a clearing house for information. We would like to have material and brochures available here."

The matter will be referred to the publicity committee for further study.

Also brought up at the meeting was the suggestion that the letters patent dating back about eight years come under a complete review. This matter will go to a committee for review.

A final matter brought up during Thursday's meeting concerned providing office space for the Big Brothers organization recently formed in Belleville.

Mrs. O'Rourke said that the Big Brothers representative contacted the UCS by phone and asked if office space could be made available at their offices on 240 William Street.

Mrs. O'Rourke said this wasn't a formal appeal but said the UCS could work something out with Big Brothers, such as providing space for a limited time of six months and not providing phone service or an answering service as well as use of a typewriter.

Manfred Koechlin Stays Arts Council President

Manfred Koechlin remains as president of the Quinte Arts Council for another term, it was decided last night during the annual meeting of the group.

The executive of the Council remains basically unchanged from the last term with Mary Shipton and Lois Thompson continuing as vice-presidents, Liliane Walton remaining as treasurer and Dianna Aitken as secretary.

Cecil Becker becomes a new member at large joining Joan Young, in that position. Peter Antoncuzzin will serve as visual arts chairman for another term.

Other new members on the executive are Paul Bernard, as the exhibitions committee chairman and Wilma Donald, as chairman of publicity.

Also chosen were 24 directors to sit on the board with one more to be announced. Three people were chosen to sit exofficio with a fourth to be announced.

In his president's remarks, Mr. Koechlin said the council is committed to "a most comprehensive program for the new season."

He said the newly elected Board of Governors at Loyalist College had again endorsed the communication arts theatre centre and this has been told that the application for funds to do a professional visibility and design study for this project had been submitted to the Ontario government.

The secretariat to the consultative committee on national museum policy will again consider a renewed application for such a centre in Belleville," he said.

Mr. Koechlin said that since the Ontario Arts Council, the touring office of the Canada Council and other agencies have recognized the QAC. "a lot is expected of us, so we better deliver."

Proposed Hastings Provincial Riding Changes

Five Peterborough county townships would be added to the present Hastings riding under the proposed electoral boundary changes tabled in the Ontario Legislature on June 7. Added to Hastings riding, to be known as Hastings-Peterborough, would be the townships of Belmont, Methuen, Chandos, Dummer and Asphodel. Present boundaries of the Hastings riding represented by Clarke T. Rollins, are shown on the map on the left, while the new boundaries, taking in the five Peterborough townships is on the right. The Hastings riding now takes in all of the county except Belleville, Trenton, and Sidney township which are in Quinte riding represented by Hon. Dr. R. T. Potter.

Second-guesses Jerry Grote

Koosman Almost Blows Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Koosman learned Thursday night from Mike Schmidt that it isn't always wise to second-guess your catcher.

That out preserved a 2-1 National League baseball victory for New York Mets' ace left Koosman shaking his head.

"I should have made better pitches," said Koosman after giving up 11 hits to the East leaders.

The Phillies had a man on first and second with two out and Schmidt at the plate.

With the count three balls and one strike, New York catcher Jerry Grote called for a fast ball and then a curve, but Koosman decided against both.

The left-hander offered a "knee-high fast ball away" and Schmidt belted it about as far as you can inside Veterans Stadium.

In the only other NL game, Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2.

In the American League, Minnesota Twins trimmed Chicago White Sox 3-2, Boston Brewers blanked Baltimore Orioles 6-0, Texas Rangers turned back California Angels 7-4, and Oakland A's defeated Kansas City Royals 4-0.

Rusty Staub's two-run double in the fifth inning provided Koosman with his winning margin and Philadelphia's NL East lead over idle Montreal Expos shifted to one game.

Home runs by Jose Cardenal and Billy Williams led the Cubs over Pittsburgh, ending the Pirates' victory string at six games.

Cardenal's homer came off starter Doc Ellis in the second inning.

Williams made it 3-0 with his 11th home run of the season in the fifth inning.

Rick Reuschel, 6-4, gave up 12 hits, but preserved the shutout with good fielding support.

Terry Forster, 4-4, was the loser.

Carlton Fisk's two-run homer off Wilbur Wood in the eighth inning, propelled Minnesota past the White Sox.

Milwaukee, powered by John Briggs' first-inning grand-slam homer, whipped Baltimore behind the combined six-hitter of Ed Sprague and Tom Murphy.

Tom Grieve's three-run double highlighted a four-run rally in the eighth and powered Texas over California.

Jeff Burroughs and Jim Sundberg singled in the Texas eighth and both runners moved up when the Angels messed up a random play. Len Randle was intentionally walked, setting up Grieve's game-winning hit.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter ended a three-game losing streak by pitching a five-hitter to pace Oakland over Kansas City.

Hunter, 8-8, outdueled Al Fitzmorris, 6-3, to put the front-running A's 1½ games up on the Royals in the AL West race.

Floyd Takes Giant Step

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "I have more dedication, more devotion to the game of golf," said Ray Floyd, explaining his resurgence on the United States pro tour.

Floyd is trying to play his way out of a five-year slump.

He took a great stride in that direction Thursday with a five-under-par 65—including a course-record 29 on the front side—that gave him a one-shot lead in the $170,000 American Golf Classic.

Floyd held a one-shot lead over Buddy Allin, who birdied two of his last three holes for a 66.

Jerry McGee was another stroke back at 67. Jim Ferrell followed at 68, two under par on the 7,190-yard course.

The group at 69 included former Ferrell, Gay Brewer, Jim Simons, Ed Sneed, Larry Ziegler and host Bobby Nichols.

Arnold Palmer had a 70, Tom Weiskopf 73 and defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia a 72.

George Knudson of Toronto shot 37-34 for a 71 while Ben Kern of London, Ont., had 37-36—73.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Johnny Miller and Hubert Green are not competing.

Floyd, as a 26-year-old, won three times in 1966, including the PGA national championship. He collected $100,000 that season. But he hasn't won since.

Now 31, Floyd began his comeback this season. He has $57,000 and ranks in the top 25 money-winners.

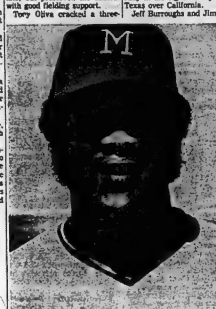
"I could have won two or three times this year," he said, "but when you've been playing so bad so long, it's pretty hard to do. I know I'm playing good enough to win right now. I'm sure if I keep on knocking long enough eventually I'll break through."

Chuck-Li Toronto Leader

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Toronto Tomahawks, paced by the seven-point performance of Chuck Li, handed Philadelphia Wings their first loss at home, 16-14, in a National Lacrosse League game Thursday before 8,851 fans.

Scoring two goals for Toronto were Ziggy Musiol, Jack Kastelan, Brian Wilson and Brian Thompson. Single goals were added by Li, Jack Chisholm, Brian Wilford, Jim Gard, Joe McCrae, Bob Haw, Sandy Lynch and Charley Marlowe.

Larry Lloyd led the Philadelphia attack with four goals. John Grant and Terry Lloyd each added two, with single markers going to Larry Ferguson, Mike Gaida, Brain Robinson, Joe Krazanai, Larry Leimiki and Gerry Sweeney.



The victory gave Toronto 18 points on nine victories and they trail first-place Rochester Griffins by a single point.

Toronto goalie Bob McCready blocked 27 of Wings' 43 shots. He also earned four assists. Wayne Platt for Philadelphia was the target of 50 Toronto drives.

Conservative Player Gets Nod in Quebec

HUDSON HEIGHTS, Que. (CP) — Ben McCallum, host pro at Whitlock Golf and Country Club, says a "conservative type player" will win this year's 54-hole, $20,000 Quebec open golf championship.

The Open, with its $3,800 first prize, begins today over the 6,-980-yard, par-72 course 36 miles west of Montreal.

And if Thursday's qualifying round is any indication, this year's Open will be a good test for the starting field of 150 professional and amateur players.

"I predict the conservative player who concentrates more on not giving up bogeys stands a good chance of finishing at or near the top," McCallum said. "Hundreds of towering pine trees, either standing above or protruding out of heavy bush areas, create the dominant feature of the course."

In Thursday's qualifying round, Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., was the low qualifier with the only sub-par round of the day.

Barr shot a two-under-par 70 to bid for a berth in his first professional tournament. He topped a field of 118.

Three golfers, including Ron Lajtar of Brantford, finished two strokes behind Barr.

DWYER RECALLED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals called up outfielder-first baseman Jim Dwyer on Thursday from their American Association farm club in Tulsa. Dwyer, 24, was hitting .360 for the Oilers. He replaces pitcher Pete Richert, who was placed on waivers Wednesday.

Jauch. – Few Holes to Fill

Young Eskimos Get a Chance

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach Ray Jauch of Edmonton Eskimos saw a silver lining Thursday behind the cloud caused by the Canadian Football League players' strike. Promising young players are getting a better opportunity to show their stuff than they would if the veterans were in camp.

"We're not the best of the situation," Jauch said after a two-hour workout at North American Rugby Club on the about five miles south of the city limits.

Jauch said in an interview that the Eskimos, defending Western Conference champions, may have a slight advantage in that they have few obvious changes to make.

"Maybe because the club is experienced we'll be able to do a few more things earlier," he said. "And maybe the fact that we know some of our players are winners makes it easier to evaluate the competition."

For example, excellence of flanker George McGowan in running pass patterns would help test receivable defensive backs struggling to replace departed veteran Ocasar Beiser.

Jauch and his staff also must replace Canadian defensive backs, Dave Kendrel, traded recently to Winnipeg, and probably must find someone to take over for Sam Britto, outstanding rookie linebacker last season who jumped to Montreal Wheels of the World Football Association.

"We're not counting on Britto," said Jauch, although Edmonton won a court decision that Britto's contract is valid and that he cannot play for the Wheels this season.

"The young man didn't pick up a telphone to let us know what he was doing" said Jauch. "Other young men on this team showed more character than that."

Jauch said about eight Eskimos were approached directly or indirectly by WFL clubs and only Britto did not notify the club of his decision.

"If Britto shows up and if he's much the best of the candidates for a job, then he'll probably play. Otherwise we'll probably go with someone who has shown more character."

Jauch said he still believes Saskatchewan Roughriders are the team to beat in the WFC. "But some people might say we are, especially since we have fewer holes to fill than some other clubs."

Leaders in the struggle to replace Beiser at cornerback are Willie McKahon, who came from Ottawa Rough Riders in a trade for dissatisfied running back Gene Foster; rookie Jodie Carter of Henderson State College and Ray Jones, a 25-year-old veteran who played out his option last season with San Diego Chargers of the National Football League.

"It's early to tell who has the inside track," said Jauch, "but I wouldn't be ashamed to start the season with these players if the strike made it necessary."

More prominent than almost anybody else in the 40-member official camp is Casey Orter, 185-pound quarterback from Hamilton Wings.

He's the only quarterback on the camp roster. Experienced Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman are expected to sign with other veterans in unsupervised practices.

"He's good," Jauch entiused. "He has a strong arm and he's a good leader.

"I don't know what we can do with him, but I know that in 1970, when we had Don Trull, Corey Colehour and Charley Fulton, Orter would have looked awfully good."

Orter has thrown so many passes during the first four days of training camp that his arm is tired. An Edmonton junior he has been conscripted to run plays occasionally while Orter stands aside.

Orter is just one example of players prospering under extra attention.

Rookie wide receiver Al Bowers of Hawaii and running backs Stacy Davis of Southern State, Cordie Pugh of Norfolk State and Leroy Moss of University of Missouri also have impressed Jauch.

"They have a tough job if they hope to beat out Roy Bell or Calvin Harrell," said Jauch, "but they're going to be better football players as a result of all the attention they've been given."

Juniors Edge Augers'

Waite's No Hitter Paces Rollins' 10th Win of Year

Rollins Construction of the Quinte Football League have scored another way to win a ball game. Not that they need any new way, with the defending league champions having already recorded their ninth win before last night's games.

Ted Waite helped them get number 10 in the nightcap of the doubleheader at the Alemite, throwing a no-hitter. The Consecretionmen usually simply outslug their opponents with the most potent batting attack in the six-team loop.

And even that didn't quit last night. The team punched out eight hits in picking up a 6-0 win over Bardon Popsies. In the first game, the Alemite Juniors edged Augers' Mens' Wear 3-2 in an eight-inning contest.

Rollins scored their first two runs in the second inning. Dale Duvall, the hottest hitter in the league this week, led off with a base hit. Wayne McTaggart sacrificed him to second, scoring on an error on Ted Waite's infield hit.

Doug Dafoe, with the first of his three hits of the night drove in Glen Carlton, who had been issued in the preceding for Waite as a designated runner.

They got three more in the fourth, coming as a result of walks given up by Bardon hurler Wayne McConnell. Doug Adams and Waite worried the Bardon right-hander for walks, scoring on Dafoe's three-base hit. Dafoe scored when the throw from the outfield slipped into the dugout.

The sixth and final run in the game came in the fifth, once again after a walk. Ralph Paine got the free pass from McConnell, going to second on Duvall's sacrifice and scoring on McTaggart's single.

Waite put 13 strikeouts with his no-hit gem, allowing two bases on balls.

McConnell could manage only one strikeout in his eight-hitter. He walked four Rollins' batters.

Dafoe had a triple and two singles to pace the winners at the game, while Fred Defellow adding a double. Other hits, all singles, went to Carl Boomhower, Duvall, McTaggart, and Ralph Boomhower.

A key sacrifice by Juniors' Bob Campbell in the bottom of the eighth inning gave the Juniors a man on a scoring position for Ken Vos, singled the end of the game.

Vos streaked into Bob Swan pitch for a double to score John Romano, who had reached on a two-base error, back bit for the Juniors' fifth win of the season in the second of two starts in the week.

The Printers had scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to force the game into the extra frame. Vos started the last ditch rally off, getting on base on a two-base error, charged to Auger second baseman Skip Belch.

Jim Richardson then poked a base hit, followed by Dwight McKenna with a double, scoring both baserunners.

The Trenton-based team pushed both their runs across the plate in the fourth, with two out. on Theriault opened he inning with a base hit, but was erased on a fielder's choice by Belch. Roger Drak's base hit scored him to second, but he also was taken off the baseparths with a fielder's choice on an infield hit by Art Barker.

Dave Henry, the Auger shortstop, made no mistake in getting the ball out of the infield, with a base hit to score the pair of runners remaining.

Bob Swan came on in the seventh with none out. He gave up three hits, striking out none.

Romano and Vos each streaked a double and single for the winners, with Steve Campbell, Dave Dolan, Richardson and McKenna each adding hits.

Overcoming a 4-2 first-half deficit, Cobourg Tony's nabbed the top first place in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) championship standings.

Tony's defeated Bayside 3-1 on a part time basis last night, picking up two crucial points.

But he made it clear his "friends" would have to work for anything they got.

As it turned out, Dolyzer was equal to overtaking the young Cobourg players could muster. He had few tough chances but when called upon, he was there.

Centre forward Ron Berkowski took care of the CFB goals.

The first came in the 40th minute from a scramble in front of the net after Cobourg Porter had sent in a well-placed corner kick.

Late in the game, Berkowski beat Bayside goalie Ken White after a free-for-all.

Terry Murphy took the loss for the Lenders, giving up nine hits. He left ten at the plate, walking two.

All the hits in the game were singles. Vern Wilkins had three for the winners, with Rick May adding two. Tim O'Connell had one, as did Jim Sophe, Bob Young, and Charlie Rowbotham.

Cliff Johnson and Craig Webb each stroked two for the Meads' scrawl, with Larry Perras, Herm VanDaalen, Bob Lloyd, Murphy, and Mark Sheridan all connecting for one.

Meads, Lenders Get BISL Wins

Post Office got right back into the thick of things in the East Division of the Industrial Softball League last night, edging UIC by a 6-5 margin. Mead Johnson helped keep the race tight with a 5-5 win over the Quinte Quints. Leaders, first place holders in the Western Division.

Norm Lockhart fired the win for the Posties, allowing six hits. He walked ten and walked four in recording his sixth win of the year.

Joe Scanlan went the route for the losers, allowing eight hits. He let two batters watching third strikes, leaving bases on balls to seven.

Lockhart helped his own cause at the plate with a double and single, with Soup Campbell, Tom Woods, and Bill Leitch all bagging two base hits. Singles went to Steve Tchorzyk, Randy Burke, Gord St. Louis.

Scanlan had the only extra base hit for the losers, a double, with Bill Healy collecting singles. Clint Halliday, Al Walker and Rick Sullivan each had a single.

Harold Wilkinson started on the Mead Johnson mound, blanking the Leaders' runs. He gave up seven hits, walked and and managed no strikeouts.

Sonny Holoway went the last three and third innings, giving up only two hits. He fanned four batters.

Terry Murphy took the loss for the Lenders, giving up nine hits. He left ten at the plate, walking two.

Wellington Honors Two Provincial Champions

by ALAN SEWORTH
Sports Staff

WELLINGTON—The Wellington Bantam and Juvenile Hockey teams both all-Ontario OMHA Champions in the 1957-74 season, were honored here Thursday with a special awards banquet, put on by the Prince Edward County Council.

More than 180 attended the event held at Consolidated School, in Wellington.

The Bantams, under the sponsorship of Wellington TV, defeated Watford four games to none to take the Bantam D title, in Picton on April 14.

Although they took a little longer to do it, seven games, the Wellington Juveniles, sponsored by Stewart's Sports Shop, also defeated a Watford team in the final series.

The guest speaker, Brian Glennie, defenceman with the Toronto Japle Leafs, talked of his playing days with the Canadian National Team at the Olympics in 1953, as well as his exploits with the Leafs, and of course his stint with Team Canada in 1972.

He related tales of the small things that happened pointedly to Team Canada while in Russia for the last four games of the eight game series. One example was the Soviet's try at separating the players and their wives for off-ice activities, such as a tour of the Kremlin.

But in all of his stories, he emphasized the idea that all players in all age groups should put education first.

He stated that although he had made the National Hockey League and received a good salary, there was nothing like an education, stating that a player could be injured for life in a game.

Without the schooling, one is on the ice without his pants on," he said.

Highlight of the evening was the announcement by master of ceremonies, Bob Boyce, Reeve of the village of Wellington, of the confirmation of a Provincial grant of $75,000 for the new arena.

The original grant expected had been only $20,000 with the remainder, the grant credited by Boyce to Jim Taylor, MPP for the County.

Other speakers at the banquet, including many County reeves, deputy reeves, and County Warden Keith MacDonald were more than enthusiastic about the co-operation shown by the town of Picton towards Wellington after the December 19 meeting when the Wellington Arena burned to the ground.

A special tribute was paid to the Wellington District Minor Hockey Association by Sophiasburgh Township Reeve Gordon Foster. The veteran campaigner, with 15 years and a lifelong resident of the county, said the Association had brought the total number of champions in the village to three.

He saluted the part played in organization, despite the lack of ice time, by the association in bringing the two all-Ontario crowns, not only to the village, but also to the county.

All players, coaches, managers, and trainers were honored with individual trophies, as well as plaques, presented by Jim Taylor on behalf of the Government of Ontario.

West Germany And Poland Have It Made

FRANKFURT (Reuter) — Two Germanies takes place Saturday in the 72,000-capacity Volkspark Stadium, long since sold out, and defeat for East Germany could result in Chile already qualifying.

If East Germany lose 1-0 to West Germany, Chile will qualify if they beat Australia 3-0 in the other Group I match Saturday.

Holland, Uruguay, Sweden and Bulgaria face their Group 3 matches Sunday, all retaining a chance of qualifying. Holland should clinch top place by beating Bulgaria while Sweden will take second place out if it loses 1-0 to Poland on Sunday and Argentina wins 2-0 against Haiti, a combination of possibilities too close for Italian comfort.

The line-up for the two second final round groups could be:

Group A—West Germany, Holland, Brazil, Italy.

Group B—Yugoslavia, Poland, Chile, Sweden.

The winners of these two groups meet in the final on July 7 in Munich.

Scoring Record For Evans

Mississauga led 8-6 after the first period but trailed 16-9 entering the final 20 minutes.

CFL Players' Association Makes Counter-proposal

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Football League Players' Association (CFLPA), during a negotiating session with CFL owners, presented a counter-proposal Thursday night to a league offer made last weekend in Toronto.

Another session is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. CDT today at which the league is expected to reply to the counter-proposal.

Neither side would comment on the contents of the CFLPA's latest offer.

Saskatchewan Roughrider fullback George Reed, president of the CFLPA, told reporters the counter-proposal was a lesser position than first presented to the league.

"What I think has happened is that they (the owners) have got a little more meat on the table and I have always said that when they are willing to do this, then we would be willing to start the negotiation process but it should be."

More than 270 CFL veteran players announced their voluntary retirements Saturday following a breakdown in negotiations in Toronto to back dc, awards for a new two-year contract. However, most have been working out on their own, without the benefit of coaches or facilities.

Norm Kimball of Edmonton Eskimos, chairman of the league's player relations committee, said the CFL had offered in Toronto to give the players a 25-per-cent increase in the areas of conlention in 1974 and a further 30 per cent in the second year of the contract.

Also included in the offer was a training camp per diem of $17 this year and $18 in 1975, increased payments in post-season games by $200 a round and increasing the winner's share of the Grey Cup game to $4,000 a man from $3,000.

League commissioner Jake Gaudaur said that pre-season pay, post-season conference and Grey Cup pay and pre-season subsistence were the areas in which a compromise was needed.

Gaudaur said some progress had been made, but that it would be an overstatement to say that an agreement is near.

Bob Gaudaur and Reed, who addressed a meeting of Winnipeg Blue Bomber veterans prior to the evening session, agreed the talks Thursday were calm.

"I think we had some good frank discussions in a calm atmosphere and I think it makes the outlook a lot brighter than when we last met," said Reed.

He said discussions today would have to adjourn by mid-afternoon to allow CFLPA representatives to travel to Ottawa to prepare for the June 26 all-star game with the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders.

"If we're on the right track, we'll pick it up in Ottawa," he said.

Gaudaur is returning to Montreal today. Unless something drastic happens, we won't reach a settlement," he said.

Montreal Signs McKegney To Multi-year Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Mike McKegney of Sarnia signed a multi-year contract Thursday with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The 24-year-old, left shot winger, along with his lawyer, Jim Roberts of Dallas, met with Red Fisher, Canadiens assistant general manager, to sign the contract in a downtown hotel.

Should he make the Canadiens' lineup, the former Kitchener Rangers player would become the first black in the NHL since 1936-37 when Willie O'Ree played 43 games for Boston Bruins.

"Mike is very happy with the contract and very happy to be with the Montreal organization," said Roberts declining to give the contract length or the contract or the amount of money involved.

He said the contract included a good signing bonus.

The Dallas lawyer, who also is executive director of the World Hockey Association Players' Association, said San Diego of the WHA had also made an offer to McKegney.

"I'm really happy about the contract and I'm happy to be going to Montreal," said McKegney who scored 36 goals and 46 assists with Kitchener in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series last season.

He was 17th among OHA scorers in his third year, at Kitchener.

Asked how he felt about the prospect of trying to crack the star-studded Montreal lineup, McKegney said: "I'll sure give it a try."

Mike, who will be 20 next month, is 6 feet, 180 pounds.

McKegney, Montreal's eighth draft choice, was accompanied by his father, Lowry, a Sarnia chemist, and his 16-year-old brother Tony, who next year will play with Kingston in the OHA Major Junior series.

Another brother, Ian, is a forward with Dallas Black Hawks in the Central Hockey League.

Mahovlich Predicts Strong Show by WHA

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Mahovlich predicted Thursday that "some people are going to be surprised" about the World Hockey Association's ability to handle the Soviet Union's national squad in their exhibition series this fall.

Mahovlich is looking forward to being a member of the WHA team that meets the Soviets in an eight-game series, now that big let winger is officially a member of the WHA Toronto Toros.

Mahovlich had let it be known Wednesday that he had signed a four-year contract with the Toros, after 17 seasons in the National Hockey League with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens.

His signing was announced at news conference Thursday at Maple Leaf Gardens where the Toros plan to play next season.

Mahovlich, whose Toros' deal is reported to bring him about $125,000 a year, was a member of the Team Canada squad of NHL stars who narrowly beat the Soviets in a 1972 clash.

Asked how he thought the comparatively weaker WHA would fare against the Soviets, Mahovlich declined to predict an outcome but said he thought that the WHA could do better than most people expect.

"The last time, we didn't know what to expect and that put us at a disadvantage," Mahovlich told the news conference.

"We know what to expect now and we should be in better condition to meet them.

"Also, we've got a lot of faith in Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe."

Mahovlich confirmed that Harold Ballard, president of the Leafs, had made a serious bid to get him back to the NHL club where he started his career by winning rookie-of-the-year honors in 1957-58.

The Leafs' offer, however, apparently fell far short of the Toros' package.

Teams Tie 1-1

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Srtsja Kitchener battled Toronto Polonia to a 1-1 tie in the Ontario Soccer League game played Thursday.

Zarko Popovic scored for Kitchener, with Joe Sawatski replying for Toronto.

Reed Out of Action

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks announced Thursday that injury-plagued centre Willis Reed, most valuable player in the 1970 and 1973 National Basketball Association playoff series, will not play with the club next season.

The Knicks said that Dr. Donald O'Donoghue and Dr. James Nicholas have concurred that Reed, in order to play with the team next season, would need an operation on his injured right knee.

But Reed, who did not attend the Knicks' news conference, apparently has decided that surgery is unnecessary.

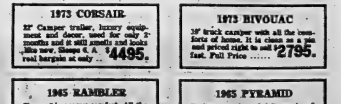
Red Holtzman, the Knicks' coach and general manager, said, "Willis has had numerous injuries and heartbreaks and apparently feels he does not want to undergo another operation."

Reed played only 18 games with the Knicks last season and has played sporadically over the last four seasons because of continuing problems with both knees.

Capitals Get Mohns

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Washington Capitals have purchased the contract of veteran defenseman Doug Mohns from Atlanta Flames, Milt Schmidt, general manager of the new National Hockey League club, announced Thursday.

Mohns, 41, broke into the league as a team-mate of Schmidt on the 1952 Boston Bruins, and later played on Bruins' teams coached by the Caps' general manager.



After 11 season with Boston, he was traded to Chicago Black Hawks. In 1971, he went to Minnesota North Stars and Atlanta drafted him from the North Stars in 1972.

ALL-STAR GAMES SET

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced Thursday that the 1977 National Basketball Association All-Star Game would be played in Milwaukee and the 1978 mid-season contest would be held in Atlanta. The 1976 All-Star Game previously had been awarded to Phoenix and the 1979 game has been set for Philadelphia.

Guilty Plea To Bribery Is Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas lawyer John Jacobsen has agreed tentatively to plead guilty to a reduced charge of bribery in connection with $1,000 he says he offered to former treasury secretary John Connally, informed sources said.

Jacobsen, who once swore that Connally refused the money, is offering to testify that Connally actually took it in two instalments for help he gave Jacobsen's client, Associated Milk Producers Inc., the sources said. Connally has consistently denied taking the money.

In return for a guilty plea and Jacobsen's promise of co-operation, the Watergate special prosecution force has agreed to drop its perjury case against him and to arrange for the justice department to drop an unrelated indictment in a Texas savings-and-loan case.

All told, Jacobsen might receive maximum punishment of up to 40 years and $80,000 in fines if convicted on all counts in the Watergate and Texas cases. Sources said the Watergate prosecutors offered to allow him to plead guilty instead to the least-serious felony charge of bribery, which carries a maximum penalty of two years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Spokesmen for the justice department and the Watergate prosecutors both declined to comment on the reported deal with Jacobsen. Jacobsen also declined comment. Connally could not be reached.

Jacobsen represented the milk producers in 1971 and arranged for his old friend Connally to work within the administration for an increase in federal milk-price supports.

Both Jacobsen and Connally have testified that within a few days of the price increase, Jacobsen offered Connally $10,000.

Both said then that it was not offered as a bribe, but as a fund from which Connally could donate to political candidates.

Jacobsen testified further that he put the money in a Texas bank vault and left it there for 2½ years without touching it, until last November when an FBI agent removed it.

The serial numbers showed that the money could not have been in circulation at the time Jacobsen swore he received it, said an unpublished report by the staff of the SenateWatergate committee. The committee staff said this is conclusive proof that Jacobsen lied about the money.

A Watergate grand jury indicted Jacobsen for perjury and accused him of lying about the cash in the vault. A federal judge threw out the indictment on a technicality, but Jacobsen faces possible reindictment on the same charge, which carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Jacobsen also is charged with conspiracy, misapplication of funds and perjury in connection with a savings-and-loan scandal in San Angelo, Tex. Conviction on all seven counts in that indictment might lead to a maximum of 35 years in jail and $70,000 in fines.

Israel Won't Halt Air Raids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel says its search for peace in the Middle East will not stop its strikes at Arab terrorist groups that kill Israeli citizens.

Israel will "continue its wholehearted efforts for speeding the peacemaking process," said a communique Thursday night from the foreign ministry in Jerusalem. But the communique said Israel also will continue striking against the terrorist organizations responsible for "the murder of Israeli civilians."

The statement was issued on the heels of the fourth and most devastating Israeli air raid this week against Palestinian targets in Lebanon in retaliation for the guerrilla raid on the Shamir kibbutz last week.

The spokesman, Zohair Mohsen of the Syrian backed Saiqa guerrillas, told a news conference that Palestinians are "facing a war of annihilation by Israel, which was instigated by Nixon, that false hero of peace."

He said the joint statement issued by President Nixon and Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin at the conclusion of Nixon's visit to Israel Monday "signalled the green light for the barbaric raids against innocent civilians."

He was referring to a clause in the U.S.-Israeli communique saying every country has a duty to abstain "from organizing or encouraging irregular forces or armed bands including mercenaries from incursion into the territory of another state."

"The United States hasn't given a green light to anybody," said a state department spokesman in Washington. He said the U.S. government declares such Israeli attacks "very, very strongly."

Trade Value Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — The value of foreign trade during May was almost 14 per cent above the April total and trade in raw materials was a major factor.

Statistics Canada reported Friday that the May trade balance was a surplus of $157 million. The monthly surplus has grown steadily larger since February.

Shipments, to countries other than the United States rose mainly in the sectors of wheat, metal ores and other crude materials, the agency report said.

About 70 per cent of the export gain to the U.S. was due to a gain in the value of exports of crude petroleum and lumber.

The gain in the value of exports from last year falls mainly in categories where there have been sharp price increases—petroleum, food commodities and metals.

The preliminary report on May trade valued exports at $2.089 billion, up 13.5 per cent, and imports at $2.233 billion, up 13.8 per cent. Figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

Exports to the U.S. rose by seven per cent and imports by 9.5 per cent. Exports to other countries were up 27 per cent and imports $3.5 per cent.

The actual value of exports during the first five months of the year was $12.43 billion, up 24 per cent over the same period of 1973. Imports grew by 28.3 per cent to $12.26 billion.

Ontario Study Group Urges Saving Resources for Future

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario study group has produced a report which suggests that the provinces take a new look at its natural resources in light of the fact that they are not limitless.

"If accepted as a basis of future policy, it will be one of the first attempts by any jurisdiction anywhere to recognize the limitations of its resources and consider their future preservation," said Environment Minister William Newman, who tabled the report in the legislature Friday.

In 33 proposals, the report advises the province and Canada on approaches to problems of natural resources, prosperity, hunger, traffic, health, garbage and pollution.

The report draws on expertise from almost every government department. It was prepared over 17 months by study group members from 12 ministries, Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Energy Board and headed by W. A. Douglas of the environment ministry.

As Ontario's response to the United Nations Stockholm environment conference of 1972, it will go to a June, 1975, conference organized by provincial and federal deputy environment ministers for study, Ottawa and the other provinces also will submit reports.

Many of man's present environmental problems, particularly in this Western Hemisphere, result from his unwillingness to accept himself as part of nature," the study group said.

At home, the report would require that almost any endeavor, public or private, prove itself against few environmental standards.

The report recommends that Ontario and Canada can best help underdeveloped countries by developing Canadian resources and economies wisely to generate the wealth for aid.

It urges the provincial and federal governments, alone and working together, to expand present programs and start new ones to assess and manage better the resource base of Canadian wealth.

Ontario should complete ecological inventories of an area before any resource extraction starts, the report said.

Federal and provincial governments should consider cutting off contracts, grants and loads to companies convicted of polluting, the study said.

Dealing with energy, the report's main recommendation is efficiency—in products using less power, improved public transportation, more public building designs induced by upgraded building codes, better energy-generating systems and the burning of garbage to make electricity.

Farmland is highlighted as an increasingly important resource. Ontario has had, and accepts as a matter of course, an abundant supply of water, some food. Yet Ontario is a net importer of food, the report said.

The study group urged that "wherever possible" farmlands be saved for food growing.

At the same time the province should ensure that farmers' methods, fertilizers, animal wastes and pesticides are controlled to exert minimal influence on the environment.

Both help for, and limits on, the forest industry are proposed. The study group would try to improve the competitive position of the industry through improved methods, including the use of materials wasted now.

The study group also proposes "increasing" recreation — on the humanizing of urban areas and reduction of growth pressure on metropolitan areas."

Methods would include economic incentives to lure industries to other areas, government assembly and servicing of land banks for reasonably priced housing and decentralization of government services.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Newman said that many of the proposals would be acted upon.

PM Says Lawis And Stanfield Hypocritical

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Ashley, Progressive Conservative member in the last Parliament for St. Paul's riding, says he thinks the RCMP have been indirectly monitoring some of his phone calls.

He said at an all-candidate's meeting during the week that he read a story in Maclean's magazine about wiretapping, and learned that the authors of the story were aided by Walter Lipovshyk of the Privy Council office. Some of his phones were tapped when they were doing research.

"I was talking to those guys on a weekly basis between July and October last year," he said. "I don't think they were after me directly, but indirectly I must have been subject to a tap.

"My first concern is that they tapped a couple of journalists. But I think it is significant that an MP should be involved in a wiretap operation," he said.

Niagara Area Hit by Storm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Streets in St. Catharines and Niagara Falls were reported clear of water Friday night and power had been restored after an earlier thunderstorm caused blackouts and flooding.

Niagara Falls, Ont., received 1.3 inches of rain in the 24 hours up to 8 a.m. Friday as the storm blacked out large areas of the city. Up to three feet of water had been reported in some parts of the city.

In St. Catharines, Ont., three-tenths of an inch of rain fell in 30 minutes and many streets were flooded with up to six inches of water. Large areas were blacked out by lightning strikes.

Quacks Kill More Than Thugs

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Arthritis Foundation said Friday organized quackery, which preys on the old and the sick, kills more people every year than organized crime.

Jerry Walsh of New York who has fought against quack cures for arthritis for the last 19 years, said he estimates such practices take $408 million a year from the pockets of people in the United States alone.

Mr. Walsh said he tried plenty of quack cures himself after he was crippled by arthritis at the age of 18.

"You try them because you're desperate, not because you're stupid," he said.

Mr. Walsh was addressing the final session of the 59th Annual American Congress on Rheumatic Diseases, where for the last week scientists have exchanged knowledge about the causes and treatment of rheumatic diseases.

Mr. Walsh said quackery can harm people by keeping them away from reputable medical care that may help them. It can kill them if it causes them to abruptly discontinue treatment.

He said quacks keep up with the latest headlines. Acupuncture is the latest touted cure and, he said, and hundreds of centres have been set up by totally unskilled operators claiming to cure arthritis by acupuncture at a cost of $20 a time.

Mr. Walsh said it is difficult to prosecute promoters of quack cures. Almost certainly some one will be willing to testify that the remedy cured him, although his disease may merely be in a natural state of remission.

Free Beer Restaurant Closes

TORONTO (CP) — Steve Nechetf, who gave away free beer to persons who ate in his Toronto restaurant, has admitted defeat and closed his business.

Mr. Nechetf said in an interview Friday he is debt-ridden and he just can't fight them any longer.

His one-man protest against Ontario liquor laws began early this month when he decided to give away free beer to persons who bought meals.

Crowds poured into his restaurant, but so did police, who confronted him with 19 charges of serving beer without a licence.

Wilson and Trudeau Exchange Greetings

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Prime Minister Harold Wilson exchanged greetings and quips Friday in a transatlantic conversation which formally inaugurated a new telephone cable between Canada and Britain.

The undersea cable, known as Cantat 3 and built at a cost of about $70 million, runs from Beaver Harbor, near Halifax, to Widemouth Bay, Cornwall, a distance of 2,800 miles.

Sir William Ryland, chairman of the British post office, joined other dignitaries and dozens of journalists on the cable ship Mercury in the River Thames to hear Trudeau, on a campaign visit to Deer Lake, Nfld., chat with Wilson, who was in his constituency of Huyton, near Liverpool.

On hearing that the British leader was back among Huyton voters, Trudeau joked: "You must be politicking or something."

"What's wrong" the Canadian leader added. "Haven't you got a stable government over there?"

Israel Suspends Lebanon Raids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel has suspended air strikes against Lebanon with a demand that Lebanon keep Arab terrorists from crossing into Israel.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, in turn, appealed to President Nixon to restrain the Israelis.

And an Arab League emissary to the United States warned that the Israeli raids are jeopardizing the Syrian-Israeli disengagement agreement.

The warnings and demands followed cessation Friday of four days of Israeli air raids into Lebanon in retaliation for terrorist attacks.

Thirty-one Palestinians and two Lebanese were killed in the Israeli air strikes, while terrorist raids in the last 10 weeks have taken the lives of 49 Israelis.

Shimon Peres, the Israeli defence minister, warned Lebanon to seal its borders against terrorists and said Lebanon must decide between "being an independent state or giving in to terrorist extortion and being pushed into extremism."

The Cairo newspaper Akbar el Youm reported Sadat has asked Nixon to take a "firm stand against Israel's repeated aggression on Lebanon." The newspaper said Nixon replied to Sadat that his message was received with "due attention in Washington."

The Arab League emissary, Clovis Maksoud of Lebanon, said in New York Friday that if Israel is treating its disengagement with Syria and Egypt as an opportunity to hit Palestinian refugee camps and Lebanese towns, "then Israel is definitely putting the whole disengagement in jeopardy."

Peres, in a televised interview Friday, said the objective of the Israeli raids was "to disrupt the terrorists' preparation" for attacks into Israel.

Peres said the Israeli attacks were "directed toward terrorist bases, their headquarters, supply stores and training centres." But he added that some of the guerrilla bases were situated in the populated areas, sometimes even in civilian houses, and as a result, civilians could also have been hurt in these attacks."

Lebanon was reported considering requesting a Security Council meeting to seek a condemnation of the latest Israeli raids. The council voted April 24 to condemn Israel for raiding Lebanese territory in reprisal for a Palestinian strike at Qiriat Shmonah, near the Lebanese border.

Despite the Israeli raids and the war of words surrounding them, the separation of Syrian and Israeli forces continued smoothly Friday.

"The operation proceeded normally in the past 24 hours," said Nadol Rajakhar, the spokesman for the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force.

The Israelis have already withdrawn from most of the bulge of Syrian territory they took in the October, 1973, war.

The whole disengagement is scheduled to end by June 26 with the evacuation by Israel of the town of Quneitra, the war-ravaged capital of the Golan district which has been in Israeli hands since the war of 1967.

TORONTO (CP) — Some workmen's compensation benefits will be increased by as much as 9 per cent under legislation introduced by Labor Minister John MacBeth in the Legislature Friday.

Enterprise Urged

WATERLOO, Ont. Mrs. Birch said she hopes to see more entrepreneurial spirit in sheltered workshops in the future.

Special Privilege

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Toronto's Green Hornets, those responsible for ticketing illegally-parked vehicles, are ignoring cars belonging to police and other Green Hornets that violate parking bylaws. The newspaper says policemen leave their private signs on the dashboard—such things as an arm badge or a copy of the force's bylaws and constitution — to tip off the Green Hornets.

Lead Tests Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto board of health asked the city Friday for funds to establish nine clinics to test the lead level in the blood of 2,700 children under the age of six who live near three smelting firms. The establishment of the clinics is described by the board as a minimum step.

Priest Criticizes Church

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Gregory Baum criticized the Roman Catholic Church in Toronto Thursday night for its "relative silence on the issue of abortion." Father Baum said his church lags far behind the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada in getting involved in such issues as the lead-poisoning debate, housing and the plight of Chilean refugees.

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council has been told it will not receive authority from the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs to ban the operation of body rub parlors in Toronto.

Survey Discounted

TORONTO (CP) — Parents and school trustees want the number of non-teaching professional activities reduced, a random survey conducted by the Ontario ministry of education shows. The ministry is discounting the results "because of misunderstanding of the full scope of professional activities," said Harry Fisher, assistant deputy minister.

Arabs Want Palestine At Law of Sea Parley

CARACAS, Venezuela (CP) — Arab delegates introduced the Middle East conflict into the International law conference Friday, saying they will demand admission of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) at the 16th conference particularly.

A spokesman for the Israeli delegation protested the decision reached by the Arab delegates after Friday's routine general session. They decided to call for PLO's admittance as official observers when the conference resumes after the weekend.

Arab sources said a representative of Yasir Arafat, the PLO leader, was already in Caracas and in contact with other delegates.

"This is a sea conference," the Israeli delegate said. "It's inconceivable that a terrorism movement which through its existence has used the weapon of indiscriminate murder, atrocity and sabotage in pursuit of its objectives should be permitted to take part in the conference and to say how governments should conduct themselves."

The United States is expected to back Israel's opposition to the presence of the Palestinian group.

China, a firm supporter of the Palestinian liberation movement is certain to back the Arab bloc.

The Soviet Union is also expected to support the PLO request.

Delegates were conferring in several private groups today both on the Arab move and on a procedural dispute over how the conference will take its decisions.

ASMARA, Ethiopia (Reuter) — An American nurse kidnapped at gunpoint by the Eritrean Liberation Front (E.L.F.) almost one month ago was set free today, informed sources said here.

They said Deborah Dortbach, 24, of Freehold, N.J., who for 11 months previously was released in the Eritrean port of Massawa. Mrs. Dortbach was kidnapped by the guerrilla organization from a United States missionary hospital in Ghinda near here May 27.

Another nurse, Anna Stickwerda, 55, from the Netherlands, was kidnapped along with Mrs. Dorcabach but was later shot dead by the E.L.F.

Traffic Problems Predicted

PICTON — Traffic and communication difficulties in Prince Edward will g be discussed next month at a joint meeting of county council's road committee and the economic development committee.

A report of these conditions submitted to county council by economic director William Duggan urges the need for advance planning to ensure road communications both east and west of Picton are adequate for constantly growing industrial traffic.

In his opening remarks Mr. Duggan predicts that the road both east and west of town may break down completely unless something is done to improve the road situation for industrial traffic.

Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson termed this statement "hyperbole" and added that it should not be taken seriously.

The deputy-reeve also noted that Picton has no representatives on either of the committees that will meet next month to discuss the report and asked if a town representative might be included. Councillors agreed that Picton reeve Ross Cronkwright and deputy-reeve Richardson should join the meeting.

Mr. Duggan's report details traffic problems in the county and offers several proposals to alleviate them.

Education Pays

Woodmen Executive

The fraternal and insurance organization, the Woodmen of the World, held their annual meeting in Belleville this week at Sun Valley. About 30 members of the 81-year-old organization, a society which provides life insurance at a very economical figure to to members and their children, attended a three-day convention. The new executive was chosen as (left to right) Head Consul Commander, William A. Warren, of Perth; Head Clerk - Head Banker, Gerald D. McGeneghan and Past Head Consul Commander, John S. Clouston.

Youth-Arts Program Off to a Slow Start

Plans for a youth-run arts development organization are still going on despite the recent setback of a lightly attended initial meeting.

Murray Irwin, prime mover in the concept of a youth-run, youth-oriented mini-arts council in the Belleville area, said he was not disappointed in the small turnout last week.

"I didn't know whether to expect anyone," he said Tuesday.

At present a vice-principal of Centennial Secondary School, Mr. Irwin was recently appointed arts co-ordinator by the Hastings County Board of Education. He will assume his new duties in September this year.

Only six people attended the initial meeting. Mr. Irwin hoped a steering committee would result from last week's meeting.

"The kids who were there felt the idea was a good one", Mr. Irwin said. "Those that came said they are going to talk to other kids."

At the initial meeting, the establishment of a permanent youth theatre was suggested.

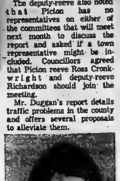
Now, only one youth-oriented theatre group exists in Belleville — Theatre August. However, the company, composed primarily of high school and university students, operates only in the summer.

The concept has not gone by the boards however.

Mr. Irwin said there was general agreement a meeting should be held this fall. But he noted: "I don't think it's something you can rush."

A tentative date of September 17 or 18 has been set.

Prior to that meeting, he said work will definitely be done to contact people individually. The six who attended last week's session will be speaking to friends who have expressed interest in the concept.



This, Mr. Irwin hoped, would ensure a good turnout.

As an added drawing card, he will be seeking a speaker from the Ontario Arts Council, and some form of entertainment.

Information will be sought from the recently established London Youth Theatre.

Any youth-run organization would be an answer to what Mr. Irwin feels is the lack of Quinte Arts Council programs for the community's youth.

"We have nothing to let these kids set up workshops and develop," he has said. "They have to do it on their own."

Barbara Louise Shadley (nee Toushie) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Toushie of Belleville, received a Bachelor of Nursing degree from McGill University (Montreal) May 29, 1974.

A graduate of B.C.I., and Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing (1967), she has accepted a position in teaching of Nursing at John Abbot College, Montreal, beginning the autumn semester of this year.

Province's Plan Raises Objections

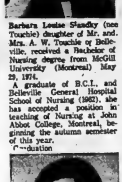
The Belleville city parks board of management and the Moira River Conservation Authority are objecting to the proposed action of the Ontario government to deconditionalize parks assistance grants.

Under the government's proposal, parks assistance grants would be paid directly to the municipalities.

At the request of the city parks board, Mayor Robin Jeffrey has written to Hon. John White, Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs, objecting to the proposal.

And the Moira Authority has concurred in an Ontario Region Authority motion protesting deconditionalization of parks grants.

Also, the Moira Authority has protested "in the strongest terms" the proposal to deconditionalize museum grants and conservation authority administration grants.



In her letter to the provincial treasurer, Mayor Jeffrey said the principle of unconditional grants to the municipalities was agreed with, but it was not agreed that the only major Ontario park development grant, should be the one the provincial government selects.

The letter said that the government reconsider its decision and stated that rather than discouraging municipalities from purchasing and preserving public open space, the province should be encouraging through special assistance grants the purchase of park and recreational lands.

The letter said it was feared municipalities receiving these funds as unconditional grants would be prone to use the funds for other purposes.

EVELYN GRACE KNIGHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Knight, RR 5, Belleville, received her Bachelor of Applied Science in Family Studies degree at the convocation exercises at the University of Guelph on May 22. Miss Knight was the recipient of the Mrs. Fay Stewart Proficiency Award, and is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School, Belleville. She will be continuing her education at the Faculty of Education, University of Toronto this fall.

MARGARET JOY HOWITT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howitt of Belleville, graduated from Carleton University, Ottawa, on June 1, with Honours BA in Psychology. Miss Howitt attended Queen Victoria Public School.

The annual memorial service conducted by Rev. J. H. Thompson, will be held at 2 p.m. Flags will be raised by Oscar Thurston, sergeant at arms, assisted by local veterans and Boy Scouts of the district.

There is no admission charge at the park and lunch will be available.

DONNA LYNN HENRY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Henry, Belleville, received her Bachelor of Arts degree (French and Geography) at convocation exercises held June 1 at Queen's University. Donna will continue her studies at McArthur College of Education in September. She is a graduate of Moira Secondary School.

Sports Activity Is in High Gear

By JACK RASHOTTE

With the summer period on us, sports are the dominant activities of Branch 99.

June golf was held in Picton on June 1 and qualifying to represent the Branch in Peterborough on June 29 for district finals are: Bill Mitchell, Mike Acquafredde, Jack Aselatine, Don Treacy, Norm Bastiaan, Glen Denike, Pat Brown and Stan Keogh.

The Leonard Maxon Memorial Trophy was played for between the Legion and ANAF Unit 201 ladies on June 8 and 15. The first game was Legion 12 and ANAF 18. The second game was tied at 11-11 giving the Legion ladies a total score of 22 to 21 to retain the trophy. The victorious players were: Mary Davis, Freda Mason, Irene Ruthven, Barb Denike, Ruth Taylor, Marie Reynolds, Leigh Wilshire, Daisy Hancock, Iris Loukeberry, Eileen Guyer, Helen McLachlan, Lillian Sweet and Joan Vesterfelt. Both teams are to be congratulated for a display of really great sportsmanship.

Branch 99 sent three teams to Hastings for the mixed darts on June 15 and it appears it was an off day for them with nobody placing as the money. The winner was Havelock with Omemee placing second. On June 12 the sports committee had their first meeting of the new term and decided to have a sports night each Thursday throughout the summer months. To make this a success it must have the support of each member and will start off on June 20 with shuffleboard. June 27 will be darts and cribbage on July 4. Following events will be posted on the sports board in the games room and through this column in advance of each Thursday. On June 22 cribbage open mixed doubles will be on at 7 p.m. Entry fee is $2 with a guaranteed first prize of $100. The Legion Br. 99 has offered up sponsorship of a team in the Thursday soccer League which scored its first victory three days later by a score of 7 to 0 over the 418 Air Wing team.

The Bingo Committee has donated $500 toward sponsorship of the Golden Bat bantam ball tournament to be held on July 5, 6 and 7. Keep in mind accommodation is required for out of town players. Anyone able to assist in this contact Gerry Downes at 968-9630 and Dave Evans at 962-3983. The Committee also donated $140 to send two deaf retarded children from the Prince Edward Heights complex operated by the Ontario Department of Health to the Ontario School for the Deaf at Parry Sound for two weeks' vacation which they would not have been able to enjoy without this financial help.

I am happy to report that the sick list is down to one member, Bruce Walsh in Room 304, Belleville General Hospital. A very good member of Brighton Branch 100 and a friend of most of us in Belleville it in Room 723 c/o Belleville General, namely Frank Kolb, the faithful World War I photographer.

Playing for your dancing pleasure on June 22 will be Hart and Soul.

Trent Canal Busy as Ever

Despite a late opening because of high water, boaters are already flooding down the Trent Canal in near record numbers. Peterborough boaters Doug and Kelley James with their dog Jingles married more than the 100th crew to pass through the locks. A spokesman for the system said the summer schedule of 15-hour working days will begin this weekend, anticipating the rush of traffic once school is out. "We'll be over the record (nearly 2,000) if this traffic keeps up and weekend weather holds fine," said a dock spokesman.

Speedier Rural Mail Plank In 1974 Alkenbrack Platform

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

NAPANEE — In Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, one of the largest ridings in southeastern Ontario, federal election candidates have begun their campaigns toward a trip to Ottawa.

Douglas Alkenbrack, Conservative incumbent, is a veteran campaigner with 22 years of experience in the political field. Mayor of Napanee from 1953 to 1958, Mr. Alkenbrack was first elected MP in 1962 as federal representative of the Prince Edward-Lennox riding. He was re-elected in 1963 and again in 1965 and again in 1967, 1968 and 1972 after the riding was redistributed under its present name. His last win was by 7,600 votes.

The candidate describes himself as "a farmer with an agriculture-business background."

Mr. Alkenbrack says the major issue in the election is inflation and the future of the economy.

"We must combat it or it will ruin us," he warns.

Most effective way to battle inflation is through the Conservative policy of a 90-day freeze on all prices and incomes and using parliament to lay ground rules for "reasonable control of this malady."

"For this we need a Progressive Conservative majority. And I expect on July 8 the people will grant Mr. Stanfield a majority."

Among local issues he talks about are the need for more efficient postal service. The greatest problem is with rural mail. It has taken up to five days to deliver weekly papers 20 miles, he says.

The candidate expressed sharp disagreement with the federal policy of paying the minimum wage to convicts and noted that there are two prisons, Millhaven and Joyceville, in his riding.

"I don't think free, law-abiding citizens should be taxed any further to pay parity wages to prisoners."

Mr. Alkenbrack also is seeking action regarding an abandoned Canadian Pacific rail line from Glenlay to Tweed. The CPR and the government are in default of their obligation to farmers on the line as the fences have not been maintained. Cattle are wandering from the fields and the farmers are "grossly inconvenienced."

Political newcomer, 26-year-old William (Bud) Acton, Bill 7, Napanee, is carrying the NDP banner.

A Queen Elizabeth College and Vocational Institute, Kingston teacher, Mr. Acton says his party is eager to provide constituents with communication lacking from Liberal and Conservative politicians.

"It would be nice to win but we are up against an area that has been Tory for so long that it's a real tough job."

Mr. Acton sees energy as a major national issue as well as the cost of living, pensions and housing.

Mrs. Grace Stalker, Liberal, feels it's "time for a change" from Tory representation and describes Conservatives as "very complacent."

"The Progressive Conservatives don't have to give any special benefits to the riding," she observed, recalling that it has been Tory for almost 100 years.

Mrs. Stalker, 56, is the wife of George Roland Stalker, a Sandhurst farmer. She works as full-time co-ordinator in the campaign headquarters for the Liberal candidate in the last two federal and last provincial campaigns.

She says federal funds for riding offices are available and feels the constituents of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington are entitled to this service.

Inflation is the major election issue, in Mrs. Stalker's opinion, and housewives in particular are concerned. Many are turning to bar with confidence that "a woman might be more "solicitously concerned" than a man.

"I don't run to loss," she says.

Allan Lawrence Pessimistic About 'Immense' Voter Apathy

By COLIN BRUCE

Staff Reporter

"I know precisely what I'm doing," says Northumberland Durham Liberal candidate Allan Beckett, a retired consulting economist.

"I may be just talking to the converted," says Conservative incumbent Allan Lawrence.

"We're growing," says mailman Russ Walker New Democratic Party candidate.

They represent three different approaches in the political jockeying in Northumberland Durham riding where nothing is taken for granted, about the July 8 election outcome.

Mr. Lawrence, previously a top man in the Ontario Cabinet turned federal MP in 1972, is openly pessimistic about this year's contest.

"The apathy of the voters is immense," he said shortly before speaking at a 13-candidate meeting held recently in Brighton.

"It scares me when people put me on the back and say you'll get in," he said. "Nothing is that sure. There's no safe seat."

"These people patting me on the back may just be the converted," he said.

Two years ago voters came out 17,000 strong for the Conservatives, giving Mr. Lawrence a 5,000 — vote edge over the Liberals.

Both the Conservatives and the Liberal intend spending about $20,000 on their campaigns this time around while the NDP say spending will be held down.

Allan Beckett says he knows the rules of the game," referring to his retirement from economics into politics.

"I know precisely what I'm doing and I know what wins," he said.

He said his party people have received a "tremendous response from the riding" and that his party machinery is in "A-1 shape."

Russ Walker who secured 7,000 votes for the NDP last election says "we're always hopeful. I think the people are disenchanted with Lawrence."

"We're steadily working and growing and a breakthrough is coming for us." The NDP have so far failed to have a candidate elected in the riding.

Cost of living and housing are the issues says Mr. Walker.

A side issue might be the campaign spending of the other two parties.

"I'm not happy with the amount of money the others are spending on the campaign but spending is in the rules of the game," he says.

"It could be a real, three-way dog fight," he said.

Gold Cup Races Extended One Day

PICTON — Under the joint sanction of the Canadian Boating Federation and the American Power Boat Association, this year's Prince Edward Gold Cup races at Hayward Long Beach have been extended to a two-day event.

The races, co-sponsored here by the Prince Edward Racing Club and the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, will be held on September 1 and 2.

The program will feature four classes of inboards and six classes of sportcraft competing in 20 heats of racing each day. The prize money, totalling $12,000, is expected to attract the best racing boats on the circuit in what may be the largest race this year in North America.

On Sunday, September 1, in addition to the fourth race in the Belvedere Challenge Cup series, the North American Championship for sportcraft will be held. On September 2, the fifth and final race of the Belvedere Series will be held with trophies presented afterward.

The Prince Edward Racing Club announces that the inboards this year will feature the finest boats in the world, several already have been testing in local waters.

It is expected the Molson's Grande Prix for the Prince Edward Gold Cup this year for $2,000 in prize money will attract more boats than in 1973.

In addition to the 260 class of boats sponsored by Procter-Lewyt, the combined classes 145 and three litres sponsored by Pro Hardware Centre of Picton and 28 and 8K Ski boats sponsored by Baxter Canning Co. Ltd., will complete this final day of racing action.

Race spokesmen state that CTV Wide World of Sports cameras already have announced plans to be at Hayward Long Beach to film the action for national television. Also, radio station CJEQ will announce the race live over its network.

Starting time of the races each day will be 1 p.m. Approximately 10,000 racing fans are expected to attend the two-day event.

What To Read ?

Suddenly a few of the powers that be in Trenton have tumbled to the fact that the bookstores and supermarket paperback shelves offer an extraordinary range of salacious literature.

The works of Xaviera Hollander are still available, but they are as nothing now compared with the flood of cyptolia and other bandwagon artists who are cashing in on the trend.

Compared with some, Miss Hollander's offerings are almost respectable. But the fact remains too that some of these books are well written and are of "redeeming social value," has been argued in legal circles.

One such is a book by Rona Barrett, a star of the media show by Celestial. A former English teacher in upstate New York, Miss Barrett writes of her switch from the life of a housewife and mother to a consuming interest in the New York stage and, in passages that are certain to offend some, her espousal of the freer sexual mores of this day and age.

In any event, it is all out in the open these days, and no more so than in this paperback-and-magazine material. An interesting study is the furtive flipping through the pages as someone decides whether this or that is decent enough to be taken home? Indeed, a lot of the reading done is of this now-you-see-it-now-you-don't variety before leaving the store.

Still, it is debatable how much effect this material may have on people young or old. Actually it has been around long enough to bore even the most avid of readers. Thus, Trenton's seeming over-reaction at this stage, is something like closing the barn door after the horse has fled.

Forget it, on the other hand, and nobody will be any the worse for it.

Special Olympics

It is encouraging to see the enlightened attitudes and programs that more and more are being applied to treatment of the retarded.

Athletics have been in the news lately with news of the successes of the Bridgewater and L'Amable schools at the Special Olympics in Winnipeg.

Each of these Hastings county schools sent five competitors and they brought back no fewer than 17 medals.

Congratulations to the youngsters, and a word of praise also to CFB Trenton which flew them to the Winnipeg meet.

Interesting in this context is an item we observed from our Looking Backward column relating to this time 50 years ago when tennis and a variety of other sports were being enjoyed at the Ontario Hospital in Brockville.

Time the concept of outdoor recreation for the retarded as well as those suffering from a variety of emotional problems such as are to be found in Ontario Hospital complexes, is scarcely new. Perhaps its value is only being tested today with success, as the Special Olympics events have shown.

Returning Health

Governor-General Jules Leger is out of hospital and convalescing, a hopeful sign of returning health following the June 8 stroke he suffered in Sherbrooke.

Prompt medical treatment, as in a host of other cases leading to excellent recoveries, was a factor in Mr. Leger's speedy restoration to health.

Interesting too in this context is a remarkable story of recovery from a heart attack cited in recent days by NBC news. It interviewed a 56-year-old man who in medical terms was believed dead, yet was brought to life again following 20 minutes of heart massage and electric shock treatment.

Tribute was paid in this instance to a policeman who had begun heart massage immediately after the man was stricken and to the ambulance team which continued treatment en route to hospital.

The Last Hurrah

Age and/Or Defeat May Sideline A Party Leader Or Two

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — It looks like the last hurrah for three of the four party leaders.

Very likely, the only one to be sticking around long after the vote counting is all done the night of July 8 next will be the "odd man in".

Age and health will persuade the losers to accept their party's thanks for past services, and a ticket home.

The New Democrats do not talk about it — except perhaps in the privacy of their party caucus — but David Lewis, oldest of the four parliamentary leaders at 64.

Another couple of days — come June 23 — and he will be an old age pensioner.

That takes him across the age of normal retirement, even before the July election votes are in.

And if he is a loser, predictions are that the NDP will take a hard squeezing between the Conservatives now on the attack and the Liberals on the defensive — that hot breath of Robert Stanfield, Tory Parliamentary Turks on the back of his neck will be unpleasant.

Who will follow the leader?

To be regarded by everyone, NDP, Grit and Tory alike, not the universally respected Stanley Knowles, even now one of the widely admired former leader Tommy Douglas.

Leading the pack in pursuit of the leadership are Bill Knight, the tough, young MP for Assiniboia, who has not been the least hesitant to attack the Liberals for mismanagement, government waste and extravagance, and Ed Broadbent, the hard-driving MP from Oshawa — Whitby, his party's leading industrial spokesman.

Then comes there in another neck — and neck — in this election, either Prime Minister Trudeau or Conservative Leader Stanfield — whoever is the loser — will be compelled to contemplate early retirement.

Word from the Liberals for months has been that if what they call the "unthinkable" happens — not to be contemplated because it has only happened twice in 13 elections over 70 years — and they lose this time, Trudeau will vacate the party leadership within months.

Right or wrong, the current opinion is that he just has not the stomach to digest the humiliation of having to lead the Opposition.

And among the leaders, he is the youngster at 54.

For an entirely different reason, Robert Stanfield, the Liberals' once back with a majority, could be retiring.

This is his third election, and if he becomes a three-time loser, he is not too proud a man to walk around until the party expects him to leave, as a request it would.

So he would take his gun leave, head high.

He is 60, and like Trudeau, wealthy and well able to either retire or carve a new career, this time in academe as, most likely, a university president.

This third and almost certainly final campaign confrontation between Trudeau and Stanfield has spawned on a note of bitterness recalling the acidity of the personality duels between Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker in those elections of yesteryear.

Until now, there has been very little sniping between Trudeau and Stanfield, each one playing the elitist role of the philosopher prince, the other that of a quietly unspectacular and no-bum man-of-the-people.

This time, both men are on the mental rack, and possessed of sharp minds, they could be cutting each other up in what just might turn out to be a political blood sport.

The one leader who will not retire — he is a campaigner who has been in the political wars almost as many years as John Diefenbaker and you know how long that is — is Social Credit Leader Real Caouette.

But he is 66, and a tired 66 at that, victim of a diabetic condition which, as it often brings, compounded by injuries sustained last Winter in a snowmobile accident.

Real Caouette is the leader with the fighting heart, over a battler against such odds as none of the other three ever faced—but a compelling, tenacious-to-health might end a career that defeat and disappointment never were able to terminate.

SHALOM

A Case of 'Something for Everybody'

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In Ottawa the foreign ministers of the 15 member-nations of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) have agreed to a "declaration of principles" which will be signed at the forthcoming NATO meeting in Brussels.

This idea was based on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts to achieve a new Atlantic Pact from the Europeans a year ago.

This was just as the Watergate scandal was reaching around President Nixon and before the disappearance through death, electoral defeat and resignation of three powerful European leaders.

These were, of course, Britain's former prime minister Edward Heath, the late president Georges Pompidou of France and West Germany's Willy Brandt who resigned over a spy crisis and personal scandal.

Officially Canada will probably be very pleased with itself following the meeting of the national capital because the declaration called the Ottawa Principles concentrates heavily on the consultative side of NATO in which we strongly believe and in which role we have largely participated.

The other side, the reduction of our NATO military component in 1968, an admittedly injudicious occasion, NATO's 20th birthday, wasn't mentioned.

But the Europeans in particular haven't forgotten it. Before the 1968 shift in our foreign policy priorities which placed European defence at the lower level where it now remains, there were about 10,000 Canadian troops and aircraft in Western Europe. They had a major commitment in the defence of northern Europe, now gone.

The Canadian tanks and CF-104 fighter squadrons were the best in Europe.

The Turks have NATO crisis because they are at present in a mounting dispute with the Greeks over newly-found, under-ocean oil deposits in the Aegean Sea which separates the two countries.

Turkey is the farthest eastern bastion of NATO and a more or less permanent member of it.

The previous uncertainty about Greeks and Turks, not yet resolved by any means, was the prospect of these two NATO nations going to war over their involvement in the Cyprus issue. This has not happened yet in spite of a couple of close calls.

Then there is the NATO concern about the growing Soviet naval presence in the Indian Ocean and an alleged return from a NATO committee to negotiate with South Africa in this regard.

The official NATO position on South Africa and the Indian Ocean Soviet naval threat is to somehow keep the South African informed, but don't involve them because of the intense hostility most NATO countries feel about South Africa's racist stance in Africa.

This would be an impossible anamoly. The South Africans have a tough, modern military establishment geared to sea-going as well as internal protection against various aspects of Soviet and Chinese subversion.

Yet another familiar area a NATO Committee on the Challenges of Modern Society deals with joint proposed actions by the 15 member states on common problems of environmental protection.

All of which activities, (and there are more), recall a line from Canadian political military strategist professor Colin, Gray.

He writes: "NATO's military strategy is sensibly subordinate to its properly subordinate to the peace, crisis and wartime political interests of an alliance that must serve 15 disparate members . . . as one would expect NATO strategy provides something for everybody . . . .

This is the same voice of selfishness that has robbed many a man of earth's true values. It put contempt of life, of reverence with God. You can never out give Him.

Status of Gold Enters New Phase

Gold may soon be phased out of its central role in the international monetary system.

That will be the effect of a decision taken at the mid-June meeting of finance ministers of 20 major nations in Washington.

A final decision on gold's function in future monetary settlements has been left for a later meeting, but an important principle was decided upon:

Gold may be used from now on as collateral for international borrowings between countries, as it also will be agreed upon between the borrower and the lender—rather than (as before) at the "official" price of $42.22 U.S. an ounce.

This is a major advantage for Italy in the midst of its current economic and political crisis—as well as for other countries that are short of official reserves other than gold.

Until this development, gold had become almost immobilized as a means of settling accounts between countries.

Such intergovernmental dealings were based on the $42.22 official price, which is roughly one-quarter of the free market price.

The rules of the International Monetary Fund—to which nearly all the non-Communist nations adhere—do not prohibit governments from buying and selling gold on the free market. But governments on gold's function in future monetary settlements has been left for a later meeting, but an important principle was decided upon:

The loan would be backed by the Italians' gold at something approximating the value, although Italy would be retaining ownership of the bullion rather than selling it.

The Bank of Italy holds more than 2,500 tons of gold, worth $3.5 billion at the "official" rate, but nearly four times as much at the present value.

None of this may have any direct effect on gold-speculators, buyers, tourists, or even most international bankers.

But it could help to stabilize the worldwide market for bullion, and dampen down some of the speculative fever in the metal.

The free price of gold has fluctuated sharply with every rumor of a change in the "official" price and with every suggestion that the large gold-holding countries were about to unload their holdings on the open market.

And the agreement could ease the threat of recession not only in Italy but in other Western European economies that have been hard hit by the sudden sharp increase in the cost of the oil that they must buy from the Arabs' cartel.

Youngsters Hooked on Cigarettes

Brantford Expositor

For some vague reason that is part of growing up, children are smoking at ever younger ages. A spokesman for the Heart respiratory diseases association has said some pupils in Grade 6 are smokers. Whatever smoking means to them, it certainly has not been diluted by anti-smoking advertisements, nor by media efforts to make the habit seem less glamorous.

What is clear from some surveys is that young people do not smoke in ignorance of the health hazards. With youth's overconfidence and experience, they feel the toughness (boys) or sophistication (girls) it gives them outweighs the unlikely effects they think of thinking — possibility that they will ever get lung cancer or heart trouble or emphysema.

Youth is mainly when rash things are done, but the problem with smoking, drinking and similar practices is that they become habits that often are hard to shake. Parents and folk heroes have the greatest influence on whether children take up smoking (usually an older friend gives them their first cigarette, but the current anti-smoking campaign — Group Giving Information Pollution (GASP) — should be given support.

LETTERS

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I find I have to contest in a small way the editorial, "Destroy the Left", which appeared recently.

I can't criticize the basics of the editorial because they must reflect the thinking of the editor and, of course, he is entitled to it.

In my mind, though, I must consider it one of his poorest efforts. We all know there are Leftists and Rightists. This is what makes the system go. Think what you will, this is true. To refer to one group - in this case the Leftists - with uncomplimentary adjectives seems to indicate very narrow thinking in defense of the Rightists.

It should be remembered that just because a person is a Leftist it does not necessarily follow that he or she is a 'do nothing' or 'bleeding' sits at the typewriter dreaming up slanderous attacks upon the Rightists. In making a remark of this nature, one should be bound to include the possibility of some 'misguided' Rightists doing the same.

To each his own thinking. Right or wrong, we are entitled to it.

To be critical of another's thinking is one thing. To be not only critical but also insulting and sarcastic is another thing — then the writing is to no avail because it shows the writer's thinking to be very - narrow - narrow.

CHARLES T. HART

Use of Fluoride in Quinte Area

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I was very interested to read your remarks on the Fluoride Issue. Drive for children in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. I would support the suggestion that a drop of prescribed fluoride in a child's milk will accomplish the same effect.

I wonder whether the citizens of Hastings and Prince Edward counties, or indeed Dr. Dennis A. Warshaw, have heard of an effective alternative method to the fluoridation of water supplies, aimed at children under 12 years of age, to combat tooth decay.

Such a method is the adding of 1 c.p.m. of fluoride to children's milk to be taken at schools, children's clinics or doctor's offices under the supervision of staff or parents. This system enables any child with an allergy or other reasons for not wanting to take fluoride, to opt out of the scheme. It also cuts out the useless imposition of fluoride on an adult population for the rest of their lives.

The Bowden Dental Milk Foundation in England has developed a simple plant for the mixing of the fluoride to the milk. This could easily be installed in existing dairy factories. Their work is based on research carried out over the extensive number of years with excellent results in Switzerland, Italy, U.S.A. and Japan. Anybody interested in this method could write to the Foundation, 7 Bond Street, Stockport, Cheshire, England, for making Trust, for particulars at Pasley Grange, Cowplain, Hants, England.

I am sure everyone would agree that something should be done to improve the dental health of our children and what could be better than a method which not only gives them a preventive of tooth decay but also a body building food.

Copper in Pig Feed Is Frowned Upon Here

KINGSTON (CP) — While has not won favor in the United recent consumer attention has been focused on potential health hazards in electric kettles, agricultural scientists have been studying the effect of copper in pig feed.

Dr. A. G. Castell, a swine nutritionist at the federal research station, Melfort, Sask., says research in several countries since 1956 has confirmed that an increase in the level of copper in diets fed to feeder pigs often will improve their growth rate and efficiency of feed conversion up to market weight.

But, unlike the United Kingdom, where a copper-supplemented diet for pigs has been widely accepted, the method

States and Canada, where different feeds and feeding approaches are used, he said.

In both Canada and the U.S. the use of "growth-promoting" levels of copper is illegal.

In 1970 the Canada Committee on Animal Nutrition co-ordinated an experiment at 19 establishments where copper-enriched diets were fed to swine. There was considerable variation in the results obtained.

"It was apparent to some degree at all units that copper had a relatively greater beneficial effect during the early growth period, prior to 100-pound liveweight, than during the later period," Dr. Castell

At several test stations, pigs receiving the copper diets showed poorer performance during the finishing period than those fed equivalent basa diets.

Dr. Castell said the liver content of pigs on unsupplemented diets ranged between 18 and 727 parts per million, while those fed copper supplements ranged between 29 and 1,875 parts per million.

"As the federal government has set the maximum tolerance for copper in pig liver at a level of approximately 500 parts per million, it is apparent that continuous feeding of high copper diets to market weight can result in levels in the liver exceeding this limit.

"In view of the potential hazards to other farm stock and because the disposal of manure from pigs fed high-copper diets may endanger other animal or plant life, further studies will be necessary to determine the conditions under which the use of copper could benefit the hog producer."

Dairy Products Defended Against Cholesterol Tag

By CARROLLE WRIGHT, MSSc
Food Specialist for the Prince Edward County Milk Producers

Is Oleo fat dangerous? A recent report in Heart's committee dietary fat - related exercises may leave you wondering. For in spite of our preoccupation and warnings concerning low fat diets, the incidence of heart disease has been on the rise.

For many years the public has been bombarded with propaganda from the vegetable oil industry that infers by switching from "saturated fats" like those found in butter to "polyunsaturated" fats like those "found in fish", like corn oil, vegetable oils, our worries about heart disease will be minimized greatly. This idea has been supported by the Heart Association and by the medical profession in general.

A low cholesterol diet does, by it's very spartan nature, produce a weight loss, and weight loss in turn does help to lower high blood pressure. I have often wondered if the word "cholesterol" like "polson" is just a handy scare tactic used by doctors to encourage weight loss in patients with hypertension.

A recent report from the University of Illinois may come as a shock to people who have heeded the margarine message. There is new evidence that lean pork with swine that the fat in margarine may present a greater health risk than various cholesterol containing foods", such as butterfat, beef-tallow and powdered eggs.

These latest findings were explained at the 58th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Dr. Fred Kummerow, University of Illinois Food Chemist. In his research farm as oil the soy bean oil used to make margarine is high in unsaturated fats. In the conversion of the oil to solid margarine however, the process converts a large percentage of these fats to saturated fats.

These converted fats, called "trans" fats, are designed to make the product more stable. It turns out that the "trans" fats in the blood stream causes a higher blood cholesterol level and a greater incidence of atherosclerotic plaque, like denaded atherosclerosis which is responsible for 50 per cent of all heart desease.

During the study, 180 rats were fed on diets divided into ten groups, each fed a different control diet. Although basically the same these diets differed in the source of fat.

After being fed on these diets for 8 months the blood cholesterol levels in the rats were measured. The groups fed the trans-fat had the highest cholesterol level and the largest amount of atherosclerotic involvement. Atherosclerosis appeared in 58 per cent of the pigs fed the margarine, while those fed butterfat and other fats only showed 14 per cent incidence.

Dr. Kummerow concludes that a hydrogenated vegetable oil which contains trans-fatty acids is more atherogenic than butter or other fats. Margarine contains as much as 36 per cent of the trans-form while butter contains only 2 to 4 per cent.

Many dairy foods are indeed fat-free, including skim-milk and cottage cheese. These may be used in a variety of ways to add nourishment and interest to a low calorie diet.

Add one or, more of the following to ¼ cups chilled cottage cheese for a salad that is high in calcium and protein (these are two nutrients found to be lacking in the adult diet during a recent national survey):

celery or caraway seeds finely minced dill pickle
chopped olives, radishes or tomatoes grated sweet carrots
French dressing

Heap the mixture in a lettuce cup or a hollowed-out tomato (you may first like to spread the inside of the tomato with deviled ham). You will find that cottage cheese is a good addition to many of your salads.

Shopping and a Chat

Market gardeners and shoppers enjoy the early morning sunshine and a good chat while stopping to buy their fresh vegetables at the booths on the Market Square. Early this morning, Gordon Rupert, an R.R. 2, Frankford farmer was selling fresh rhubarb, onions and potatoes from his stall in the square. An old friend, Alma MacDonald, of Belleville, was out doing his shopping early also and the two men were joined in friendly conversation by an unidentified woman shopper. The farmers on the market say that they expect to be selling strawberries from their stalls in the near future.

Family Gardening Tradition Goes from Rhubarb to Orchids

LANGLEY, B.C. (CP) — Great-grandfather Koch went to his fur trading post and father Koch was told about strawberries and now Mogens Koch indulges in orchids.

The specialties have changed over the years but the Koch family's gardening tradition has survived.

"Tradition is strong in the old country," said Mr. Koch, referring to his Danish ancestry.

For the fifth generation in the greenhouse business. My great-grandfather was gardener to the King of Denmark. So, you might say I was programmed to be a grower. When there's a family tradition, you don't question it."

Mogens Koch may have influenced him to follow the family occupation, but it doesn't stop Mr. Koch from modernizing and keeping up with the latest growing techniques.

"A greenhouse is a factory," he said. "The romantic aspect of growth gloweon is out.

"Now there's no green thumb to it and no luck. Growing is a science and you have to know what you're doing. You can't afford to be 90 per cent right-you have to be right 100 per cent."

Sixteen years ago, Mogens and Marianne Koch came to Langley and built an eight-by-15-foot plastic greenhouse.

"We lost everything," Mr. Koch said. "Next year we lost again. After that we went ahead."

Now the Kochs have 26 greenhouses which cover 100,-000 square feet. They are one of the main flower growers in the Fraser Valley, with 10 to 12 "crops" that go out to florist shops in B.C. every day.

One of these crops is Mr. Koch's specialty, orchids.

"There's a kind of mystique about growing orchids. It's supposed to be a little bit black magic. Here, we treat them like everything else. Every flower variety gets the same nutritional formula if it doesn't like it, we get rid of it.

"My father sent me 1,000 orchid plants just to try them and we treated them kind of like a stepchild. We fitted them in but didn't take them seriously. And they thrived. My orchids are three years ahead of my father's and they're the first to bloom.

"You can't stick to old ways any more. Things have changed so much. We know so much more even than 18 to 15 years ago.

"I started to break away from family tradition when I was about 20. I studied agriculture in Copenhagen and began to do things my way. It's still trial and error, but you need the courage to try something new.

In the rose house, the air is warm and humid and pleasant with the characteristic smell of roses. The roses are regimented in rows and controlled by wires to keep them growing straight up.

Mr. Koch said roses grow in an eight-week cycle. In summer, when there are many customers, they are pruned right back to prevent them growing to the roof.

The balanced food and water supply flows regularly to roots and the automatic watering takes away the risk of temperature changes that might slow down growth or damage plants.

"What we do is take away the human element, the element of failure. When you're working in a greenhouse, you can't be aware that the temperature might have changed at the other end."

Healthy cones from pipes in the ground and huge plastic overhead tunnels that carry and disperse warm air.

In the begonia house is the blackcloth, a huge black curtain that descends on the plants and deceives them into blooming in the summer.

"This way we can make them bloom any time we want," said Mr. Koch. "Begonias need 13 hours of night to bloom, so in summer we use the blackcloth."

In the potting house, fine spaghetti tubes carry the balanced food supply to each potted plant, like intravenous feeding.

The orchid house is Mr. Koch's pride, his wife said, however offhand he may appear to be about it.

Winners by class were: Mr. Lips and Mr. Brokenshire, medium; and Don Knechtel, Shakespeare, Ont., light.

Good Year Expected

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. CP — Vegetable growers in the Niagara Peninsula are encouraged by a recent warm spell and rains which have saw auger well for a good crop year. Wet and cold April and cool temperature in May had farmers worried, as some planting had to be delayed and early growth was retarded.

Ian Smith, vegetable specialist at the Vineland agricultural station, said today that the plants have taken off well in June.

Mr. Smith said the only side effects expected from the delays and cool weather will be later maturity of some crops.

Onions and cabbage crops were doing well in the cool weather, but peppers, tomatoes, corn and beans have so far been slow developing.

The strawberry harvest is well under way in the peninsula and good quality is reported. The official estimate for sweet and sour cherry crops is as good or better than last year.

There is no estimate on the peach crop, but the pear crop will be up considerably over 1973.

Grape vines are beginning to blossom, and agricultural officials are optimistic that a good crop will result.

Alfalfa Weevil Problems Here

Quite area farmers can expect problems this year from alfalfa weevil damage.

That is the word of T. Wayne Martin, associate agricultural representative for Hastings county, who says that numerous inquiries or inquiries here, been received about the pests, which have been causing concern in the area for several years.

Mr. Martin is also an Agricultural Canada entomologist who has been observed in Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland counties says that this is going to be a serious weevil year.

Their advice to farmers is that to save valuable protein, alfalfa should be cut as soon as possible. Also early regrowth should be checked for continued weevil feeding and application of insecticide is recommended if damage continues.

The associate agricultural representative at Stirling says the key to weevil control is timing based on field inspection.

He says that each alfalfa field should be examined at least twice a week this time of year.

Field areas of about a yard square each should be checked and half of these being near the edges of the field and the remainder scattered about the field.

He agreed that cutting early is one of the best possible methods of control and this should be done when the plant is between late bud and the first flower. The crop should be removed from the field as soon as possible and it is essential to stack regrowth if damage was present in the first cut.

In a year like this, with with wet slow growth, a spray program might be necessary Mr. Martin says.

Further information on weevil control can be obtained from county agricultural offices.

Plants in Storage Are Not Insured

Early prospects for our 1974 crops are best indicated by the following excerpts from the Crop Insurance Commission:

"Because of the threatened trucker's strike, an unusually large number of tomato plants arrived from the south in early to May 15th. Unfortunately, their arrival coincided with two weeks of cool, wet and unsettled weather. Many plants were stored for up to two weeks with little chance of getting them into the ground.

The question is, "What now?" said Mr. Koch. "Begonias need 13 hours of night to bloom, so in summer we use the blackcloth."

In the potting house, fine spaghetti tubes carry the balanced food supply to each potted plant, like intravenous feeding.

The orchid house is Mr. Koch's pride, his wife said, however offhand he may appear to be about it.

"Those which survived the cold spell are now showing signs of stress. Many of the leaves are turning yellow and the plants are not growing. Some of the plants have already died.

"Because of the threatened trucker's strike, an unusually large number of tomato plants arrived from the south early to May 15th. Unfortunately, their arrival coincided with two weeks of cool, wet and unsettled weather. Many plants were stored for up to two weeks with little chance of getting them into the ground.

The question is, "What now?" The answer is—

Hail Insurance does not cover plants in storage.

There is, however, one exception to a grower, because of a weather peril, does not fully plant the acreage he agrees to grow for a processor, crop insurance will pay for any plants purchased for the unplanted acreage.

If a grower plants his acreage he will have production to pay for the plants. If he is not able to plant, crop insurance will pay for the lost plants.

Crop insurance has not offered protection for plants in storage because of the maximum exposure and the concentrated loss. Losses have replaced lost plants, plants in storage may not do a good job of caring for their plants or stored plants refuse to start if the plants are held for any period of time.

Crop insurance as it has been shown this year, many plants may not have been lost if delivieries from the south had followed normal patterns.

Adverse weather conditions generally cool and wet in April and May in recent years, have further hindered planting of crops. Particularly affected are the Green Peas with serious delays being encountered. The long standing practice of scheduled planting has been to obtain a severe blow and we could very well end up with a crop of peas maturing in a relatively short space of time.

She wore a double-tier floor-length veil bordered with matching lace and carried a cascade of yellow, white and mauve daisies.

The matron of honor was Ann Crubb, sister of the bride, who wore a pale green crepe empire-style gown with short sleeves.

The bridesmaids Jacqualine Leonard and Patricia Berry were yellow dresses the same as the matron of honor and carried daisies.

The best man was Dr. Brian Haylock, brother of the groom. The ushers were Howard La Grave, brother of the bride and John Talarowski.

The reception was a dinner a Trinity St. Andrew's United Church in Brighton.

The couple took a wedding trip to Ottawa and will reside in Brantford.

ARE YOU PLANNING A WEDDING?

A wedding day is the most important day of two people's lives. A day of memories. Memories that will be cherished from that day onwards but memories that will be spoiled if the wedding is not perfect.

To avoid the unhappiness of the day, there must also be happiness and quality, and that is where we come in.

If you are planning a wedding, remember when you are choosing your meal, breakfast when you are choosing your meal, breakfast when you are choosing your meal, and remember, the end of the meal is the beginning of the end.

Kids Passengers In Cars, Too

Now that the Consumers' Association of Canada has chosen the automobile as its topic for the year, we're likely to hear lots of complaints about cars from all quarters.

I'd like to kick things off myself with my own pet peeve: why do all car makers and all governments pretend there are no such things as children?

The federal governments of Canada and the United States have, over the last few years, introduced more and more regulations governing the safety of passengers in cars. Seat belts first, then shoulder harnesses, neck rests and the like have all been made mandatory.

And all the regulations assume that all passengers are adults.

While we can't expect manufacturers to take their own initiative in supplying safety devices for children — they've never volunteered before — we can expect the government to legislate on our behalf.

True, you can purchase additional safety devices, but, first, until recently they've been woefully inadequate — even dangerous — and secondly, the extra cost seems adding insult to injury. When you're paying thousands of dollars for a car for your family, it seems unfair that it's not equipped to carry some of the members.

It might be argued that not everyone has children. True. But then some people never use more than one seat belt and they pay for all four. It might also be argued that children outgrow car seats. They do, at age six. If your car lasts six years it would be amazing anyway.

Some exchangeable system of car seats for children shouldn't be beyond the grasp of our government and auto manufacturers.

Sugar is up we're all too fat and a few nutritionists even believe its dangerous.

Refined sugar is a fairly recent addition to the human diet and you won't find it on any food guide. Fact is, we don't need it.

Home canners will be glad to find out, then, that sugar plays no part in preventing spoilage in home canned fruits. Neither does salt, for that matter. You can preserve food without either.

According to the experts, however, sugar helps retain color in home canned fruits. You can, of course, add ascorbic acid instead. Some manuals insist on the addition of sugar as a flavour retainer, but others claim it unnecessary.

Margaret Hawley

Children Are Her Life

Five years of work as a nursing assistant on the paediatrics floor of an Orillia hospital prepared Margaret Hawley for the life she leads now as the mother of Sara, who will be one next week, and the expected mother of a second child to be born in mid-July.

Margaret Hawley who has been married to Floyd Hawley, Social Credit candidate in Hastings for two years, is a woman who believes children need their mother at home and for that reason doesn't plan to go back to work.

Instead, she devotes herself to Sara and learning to flower garden around their Tyendinaga Township home and her embroidery.

Music plays a big role in her life, too, although she claims "I only play sufficiently to satisfy Margaret."

Born near Orillia, Margaret Hawley says she's been "a country girl all my life" and is content at home with their 100 acres where the Hawleys are getting started in farming with rabbits and calves.

Politics, in fact, never interested her at all until she was married.

"But once you've been married to my husband, you can't stay that way long," she says, adding that she's been learning about her husband's party.

Church work plays a particularly important part in Margaret Hawley's life and she recalls the times at home in Orillia when "grandfather would be preaching and my cousin opening the service and my mother playing the piano and there I'd be with my sisters, singing."

A piano dominates the living room of their home even now and Margaret Hawley still sings and plays hymns too. Although husband Floyd "can't carry a tune" Sara seems to take after her mother and joins in the singing, Margaret Hawley says, loving to sit at the piano and plunk away.

John Olaveson at Work

If a Man Answers ...

If a man answers, don't hang up.

He's John Olaveson, 19, and he'll be spending the summer answering when you dial 0.

Belleville's first male operator, John is a second year Trent University student. He's one of 13 students hired by Bell Canada to help out during summer's peak calling period.

When John applied to Bell for a job, during this year's March break, he says he wasn't particularly thinking of becoming an operator. He just wanted a job.

"I looked through the phone book and it said 'business office' so I called and they said 'Come on down' and I did and they hired me."

"I was really lucky," Rhode Fletcher," who manages the operating room at Bell, says it wasn't quite that simple.

"We hired John because he was just the right person. We've had other male applicants but over and above grade qualifications, they just weren't right... you need the right kind of person to fit in."

John she says, just "seemed right for the job."

As for the other operators, they were quite enthused about having a young man join them.

"They're a good bunch," John says.

As for the work itself, John admits there's more to it than he expected.

"I though you just took a number, plugged her in and dialed her up...boy there's a lot more than that to learn."

Like other operators, John took a seven-day training course before settling down to work at the huge switchboard that dominates Bell's second floor operating room.

While he admits to being a little nervous at the job, John says he isn't any more nervous than he would be at any new work.

If Bell employees — and John — are taking the whole thing fairly matter-of-factly, clients are having a few problems adjusting to that male voice.

"I didn't know they had boys down there." is a common reply when he answers and once in a while somebody even hangs up, thinking they've made a mistake.

Occasionally, John's voice prompts an even more bizarre reaction.

"One guy invited me to his cottage for the week-end — as long as I'd bring the other operators."

Ann Landers

Third Wife Discovers Husband's Other Family

Dear Ann Landers: After nine years of marriage, thinking I was his second wife, imagine my shock when I discovered by accident that I am his third.

When I learned that Larry had been married to a woman in Illinois and had two children by her, I was floored. I confronted him with it that very evening and he said it happened 16 years ago and had been such a terrible experience, he wanted to put it completely out of his mind.

I asked how a father could ignore two children for so many years. Larry said his wife was such a monster he was never sure the kids were his. According to him, neither of them looked like him. He just picked up and left town one day when they were very small.

Should I try to contact them and insist that he accept some responsibility for these children? I'm in such a state of shock I don't know what to do. I need some guidance.—Troubled in Texas

Dear T.: You need to talk to your clergyman and take your husband with you. The bare facts of your story are tough enough for me to build any advice on. I urge you to get this settled to your satisfaction or it could be a continuing source of trouble between you and your husband.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure a lot of people must have thought that twenty years of putting you on when he asked whether it was true that pigs were smarter than dogs. He was considering buying a "watch pig."

I have both a watch dog and a watch pig, and I can tell you that the pig does the better job. There is nothing more ramshackled than "Old Porky" when he gets mad. Also, your concern about housebreaking a pig was needless. Our pig was easier to train than our dog.

The only problem with pigs is they get too big to keep in a house. A year-old pig weighs about 300 pounds and they grow fast after that. So, unless you've got a really big house, Ann, better stick to the dog.—From Iowa

Dear Iowa: I have neither a pig nor a dog, and we live in an apartment, but thanks for the advice. If the question comes up I'll know which way to go!

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the 18-year-old virgin who was distressed because the suitors she let her views go clean by be known, no man would take her out the second time.

Your answer that "jumping in bed is no way to be popular" didn't help much. In fact, you evaded the central issue. Her question was, "Is there something wrong with me?"

No one seems to deal with the problem of loneliness. A woman must accept the fact that unless she plays the game the man's way, she is going to be lonely in our society you either put out or sit home.

I was a virgin until I was 21, and although I was interesting and attractive, I had very little male company until I met a man who was willing to settle for my company on my terms. He was the man I married 32 years ago.

So, when a girl asks you how to hand on to her virginity and have an active social life, you should be honest and tell her she'll have to pay a price for her high scruples in terms of being alone a lot, because it's true—blondes and non-virgins do have more fun.—Exhibit A

Dear A.: Sorry, I don't buy any part of it. You and I are about a decade apart in age, but the scene hasn't changed THAT much. I was never a blonde, and I maintained a strict hands-off policy until I was 21 and married, yet nobody had more fun, more fellas and was less lonely than I was. Call me Exhibit B.

Successful Living

Nursing Home Worker Replies

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have worked as a nursing home for 23 years and it's hours how discouraging one can become when you are trying hard to give good care and someone comes complaining especially when you feel that the complaints are unjust.

I agree with "An Aide" that the work is heavy, the pay not so hot and often one does take abuse but I have always felt that the majority of the patients and visitors are understanding and kind.

We can be thankful that the aging, sweating and kicking group are the minority and often the result of senile dementia where they don't realize what they are doing. I hope that the good Lord will keep me from becoming that way.

True, some relatives are unfair in their judgment as sometimes the patient undresses himself and parades and the staff are unable to catch them before a visitor sees them. This is one of the sad parts of becoming old and it is even sadder when those who are caring for them don't realize that they aren't doing these things on purpose. Most of the patients who act this way have been fine people who would be horrified to know that they had become so confused.

It is just as unfair if we who work in nursing homes judge the patients by the way they are now. When one becomes sick, even when younger, the patient sometimes isn't too good but that's because of not being well. The judgment that these patients can't earn the respect of their own wives is also very unfair. It "An Aide" would have known these men when they were younger she would be soon quite a different person. They are in the nursing home because the wives are not able to give them the care they feel they should have. It hurts enough to have to put a loved one in a nursing home without having someone imply that you are rejecting him or her.

These people are not on social aid because of not having done an honest day's work. Most of these people have worked harder than we would dream of working and tried to save enough money for their old age. Now that the day has come, the prices are so high that it doesn't take long for their hard earned savings to dwindle to nothing.

I know that the work is hard, and your patience is tried many times a day; but a smile and a happy attitude can do wonders in a nursing home.

Ons can learn from these older people. They have gone through life in harder times than we have. I am always impressed at the cheerfulness of these people who are crippled and unable to do the things we still take for granted. Sometimes when they become out of sorts it's just their way of fighting against the bad breaks they have experienced.

Please, dear Aides, look around the nursing home you are in and be thankful for the many who are glad to see you come and enjoy them a wee bit of kindness. There are many who never forget to say "Thank you" for the smallest thing you do for them. If some complain and you feel it's justified, try to improve the situation; and if not justified, try to forgive them —they may be having a hard time adjusting.

Belleville Besieged by Police Chiefs for Annual Convention

By PETER GOODSPEED
Intelligencer Reporter

Belleville will be a city besieged by policemen next week as 321 of them and their wives come here to attend the four-day Ontario Police Association of Chiefs of Police convention at the Four Seasons Hotel.

The convention, to be held June 24 Wednesday 27, will see nearly all of Ontario's police chiefs and many of their departments' senior officers meeting at the Four Seasons to discuss a wide variety of topics, the foremost on the list being the recent provincial task force report on Policing in Ontario.

In the task force report, released last February, the provincial government advisers recommended that the government consider reducing the number of local police forces in the Province by switching to an expanded regional policing concept and extending the areas patrolled by the Ontario Provincial Police.

The Task Force Report noted that in 1972, there was a total of 179 local police forces in the province, 93 of which had nine or fewer men. The existence of such a large number of small forces places considerable limitations on the efficiency and effectiveness of the police in Ontario, the report said, and therefore it recommended that many of the smaller forces be absorbed into either regional or county police forces.

The report suggested that in Southern Ontario, the province establish a minimum population of approximately 25,000 people as the basis for retaining separate local police forces.

In Northern Ontario, this suggested minimum would be expanded somewhat to take into account the special problems encountered in policing isolated communities with populations of between 7,000 and 15,000 persons.

If the task force's recommendations for restructuring the policing system in Ontario are seriously considered by the government, then the police chiefs who will meet here next week may have special superintendium of their own since the future of their own departments is at stake.

Other topics slated for discussion at the four-day convention include a series of committee reports on auto theft, liquor laws, traffic, drug abuse, emergency planning, communications, legislation and the Ontario Police College.

There will also be a special presentation on the RCMP Bomb Data Centre and a report on Organized Crime in the province.

For the first time this year, all but the committee meetings are open to the press.

In addition to the committee meetings and discussions of the various committee reports, the police chiefs will participate in an open panel discussion with a panel composed of Ron Atkey, director of the Ontario Police College, and K. Pukacz, general manager of programs and administration for the Ministry of the Attorney General, John Cassells, Q.C., president of the Crown Attorneys' Association, Harold Adamson, Metro Toronto Police Chief, H. B. Coleman, MD, Ontario's Chief Coroner, Elmer D. Bell, Q.C., chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, Dr. Myles Wisenthal of the Attorney-Judiciaire branch of Statistics Canada, and the Hon. George Kerr, Ontario's Solicitor General. Kerr will also address the police chiefs during a special provincial dinner in the Mad Mechanic Lounge on Wednesday night.

Belleville police inspector Ralph Blatchford, the man in charge of making all the arrangements for the Chiefs' Convention here has said that he expects both the Four Seasons and the Sun Valley Motels to be nearly filled to capacity with the police chiefs and their wives during the convention.

The inspector has spent a good portion of the last three months working on the security aspects of the convention, he said, in an interview.

A spokesman for the Four Seasons Hotel said the hotel was expecting a full house since most of the chiefs come into town.

So far, Inspector Blatchford has arranged accommodations in 111 of the hotel's 122 rooms for the policemen and their wives.

The story is much the same at the Sun Valley, where most of that hotel's 108 rooms have been reserved for persons attending the convention.

Ducks Must Move

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A spokesman for the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has dubbed Trenton Public Utilities Commission's decision on the use of Lake Trenor as "a ridiculous situation".

This week the PUC decided to revoke a lease it holds with the authority that allows Lake Trenor to be used as a bird sanctuary.

On the advice of commission chairman Charles Hilton, the commission is giving the authority six months to halt operations at the lake — fearing it would become polluted.

Lake Trenor is a major reservoir of town water, located at Trenton's western outskirts along the Wooler Road.

Since the authority began using the area four years ago only two pairs of Canada Geese and a handful of wood ducks have nested.

Authority secretary Bill Mowen takes the attitude that it may be fine to revoke privileges on paper but "how the hell are we going to get the wildlife out now they're accustomed to the area?"

Mr. Lawson questions whether there is any polluting factor from bird droppings.

"A few droppings — a handful of birds would be taken care of by nature in a few minutes," he said.

He says it is highly unlikely the numbers of birds would increase at the reservoir, "because the birds will not overpopulate an area."

Mr. Lawson added that the lake has a natural filtering system that would take care of bird droppings.

He says there are "thousands of game fish" swimming about the town's water hole, keeping the water clean.

Chairman Hilton called for a stop to the bird sanctuary after hearing of a pollution situation in Vancouver.

Battery Stolen

Police are investigating the theft of a battery valued at $45 from a car hat was parked in front of a Dufferin Avenue home Friday morning.

Police Chief Doglas Crumble reports thieves stole a 12-volt battery from a car that was parked in front of 109 Dufferin Avenue.

The Word Is Music

This group of young musicians is spreading the word about their music project — an Opportunities for Youth program aimed at stimulating interest among the young while entertaining older folk in the community. In rehearsal (from left) are Lance Jeffrey, Martin Brain, Louise Beninger, Oscar Nespoli and Loretto Beninger.

Young Musicians Will Try to Inspire Others

A quintet of young Bellevillians is currently drumming up interest in a project to stimulate interest in music among city students.

As a result, by the summer's end a small host of new musical hopefuls may have expanded their interests to include music participation.

There's also a bonus for the adults. Between now and the young folk, the group will tour various community institutions as entertainers.

And it's for free.

Project Fun and Music is one of the 25 Opportunities For Youth programs approved by the federal government for Hastings County this summer.

The inspiration of 17-year-old Loretto Beninger, it has drawn a $4,200 OFY grant.

Loretto is deeply involved in music. With her sister, Louise, 15, and 10-year-old brother Peter, she forms a musical family trio that plays at various social and community events. Many of her friends are also young musicians.

Fun and Music had its origins in Loreto's belief that many youngsters would be interested in learning music if they had some idea of the medium or what instrument they want to play. There's a second, but equally important consideration. Cost of lessons and instruments can amount to a sizable cash outlay for parents. Understandably they may be reluctant to spend the money over the years unless offspring are certain of their interest in music.

The project works this way: Interested youngsters — eight to 15 — will register initially for a week's course with the young musicians. They will be given a course in basic music and instrument appreciation.

The group offers a fairly versatile range of musical instruments. Housed in Archden's Accordion Academy, where the courses will be held in the mornings, the young teachers will also include Martin Brain, 16, on vibes and guitar; Lance Jeffrey, 17, trumpet; Gordon Spafford, 16, bass. Loretto plays the accordion, her sister Louise piano.

Open for Business

The tourist booth sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce opened for a second year Friday morning. It will remain open all summer to help tourists with directions and information about points of interest. The booth is manned by Nancy Weatherstone, who plans to enter St. Lawrence College in Kingson in the fall, and Jackie Emerson, who enters her third year at the University of Toronto in September.

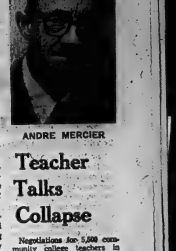
Voters Lists Attacked On Bilingualism Issue

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A French-speaking city resident has complained that voters lists and notices of revision posted in Hastings riding violate federal law because they are in English only.

Andre Mercier said in an interview Friday he plans to bring the matter to the attention of Chief Electoral Officer Jean - Marc Hazel in Ottawa.

The Election Act stipulates that both languages need be used only in bilingual areas where at least five per cent of the voters use the second language. This applies both to voters' lists and notices of revision.



Reginald Dunham, returning officer for Hastings riding, said the notices are in English only because they were copied from specimens sent to the riding from Ottawa.

The originals from Ottawa, show only one language, English, for headings on the voters list and on notices of revision, he said.

Mr. Mercier said the Belleville area has several thousand French-speaking residents, including many servicemen stationed at the Trenton Canadian Forces Base.

The number is more than five per cent of the riding's voting population, he said.

Hastings riding has a voting population of 41,765.

Four Marks Join X for Ballot

X is not the only thing that marks the spot.

You may now vote for the candidate of your choice with one of five different marks, all acceptable for a valid ballot. The traditional X is recommended in the guide for electors published by the chief electoral officer of Canada.

But Hastings returning officer Reg Dunham says four other marks are permitted: a tick mark, a stroke mark, the numeral 1 and a dot.

However, the mark must be entered in the white circle to the right of the candidate's name on the ballot, and each ballot can have only one mark.

Any Canadian citizen 18 years or older is entitled to vote, provided his name is on the voters' list. If you live in an urban area, it's too late to get your name entered on the voters' list if it was omitted. If you live in a polling division with a population under 5,000 you can vote on election day if you are vouched for by another elector who knows you and is on the list for your polling division.

Electors who will be unable to vote on election day can take advantage of the advance polls, open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. June 29 and July 1.

There has been criticism of the timing of the advance polls, scheduled this election for the long July 1 holiday weekend.

However, the dates are set by the Canada Elections Act and advance polls must be held on the ninth and seventh days before polling day.

Location of the advance polls are: Dundas St. Fire Hall, Belleville, for polls 1 to 28; Moira St. Fire Hall for polls 51 to 72A; Queen Victoria School for polls 29 to 50 and 72B to 84A; Mrs. Don Carruthers' residence, RR1, Corbyville; Deseronto Public School; 567 Moira St., to Tweed; Town Hall, Madoc; Royal Hotel, Marmora and Legion Hall, Bancroft.

You must be on the official list of electors for your polling division, rural or urban, to vote at an advance poll.

Car Window Shot Out

Vandals caused an estimated $30 damage Friday when they fired a shot from a pellet gun through the left window of a car hat was parked at the top of Hillcrest Avenue.

Police report that vandals shattered the window of a car owned by Gerald Repkman, of Picton, around 3:40 p.m.

Break-ins Bring Suspended Sentence

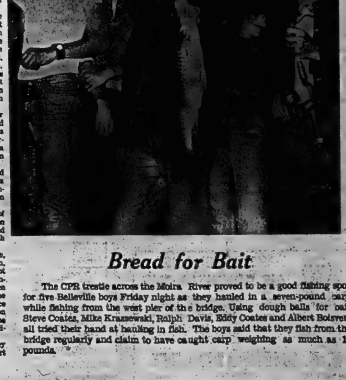
An 18-year-old Trenton man, Raymond Allan Lake, was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years probation in County Court here yesterday after he was convicted of five charges of break enter and theft.

Lake was charged with the five separate offences June 10, 1973 when he was arrested by officers from the Bancroft detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

When he appeared before Judge R. C. Hosey in County Court Judge's Criminal Court yesterday, Lake pleaded guilty to four of the break and enter charges and pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking into a gas station in Maynooth, Ont.

The Maynooth charge arose from an incident on the night of Dec. 31, 1972, in which Lake and a companion broke into the Esso gas station there and stole some soft drinks, a box containing $5 in change, and some cigarettes. Lake was 16 at the time of that incident and drove the car for which he and his companion fled down Highway 62.

The other four charges for which Lake was convicted involved a series of break-ins in the cottage area surrounding Bancroft and a break-in at a storage shed in Dungannon Township.



On Jan. 5, 1973, Lake and another man broke into a storage shed owned by a Bancroft man and stole an oxygen gauge valued at $125.

During May and June of 1973, Lake and a companion broke into three cottages and stole a total of $1,065 worth of goods.

In speaking to sentence, Lake's lawyer, Peter Tickin, told the court that his client was a young man in the company of older, influential men at the time he committed the offences and noted that since Lake had moved to Trenton from the Bancroft area he had managed to be well-behaved.

Assistant Crown Attorney John Woods told the court that in most cases he would ask the court to impose a jail term for five convictions of break and enter, but added that in Lake's case there were special considerations that prevented him from doing so.

Judge Hosey included a stipulation that Lake pay the court $208 as restitution for the goods that were not recovered following the break-ins in the terms of Lake's probation order.

Bread for Bait

The CPR trestle across the Moira River proved to be a good fishing spot for five Belleville boys Friday night as they hauled in a seven-pound carp while fishing from the west pier of the bridge. Using dough balls for bait Steve Coates, Mike Krasowski, Ralph Davis, Eddy Coates and Albert Boisvert all tried their hand at hauling in fish. The boys said that they fish from the bridge regularly and claim to have caught carp weighing as much as 14 pounds.

Teacher Talks Collapse

Negotiations for 5,000 community college teachers in Ontario broke down Tuesday for the second time in three weeks in a dispute centering around teacher work load.

Andy Todd, chief negotiator for the Civil Service Association of Ontario representing teachers at 23 community colleges, said the college of regents' final offer will be put to the membership soon. The bargaining committee will recommend that the membership reject management's final position when the ballot is sent out.

Paul Wall, president of the Loyalist college branch of CSAO, said today that although most college teachers of post secondary subjects will have a dramatic increase in workload, up to 33 per cent, management has refused reasonable assurance of job security. The rate of attrition of college teachers is higher this year than any year since the colleges were initiated, Mr. Wall said. The high attrition rate applies across the province.

Management's latest offer would increase the minimum salary for a teaching master to $19,710 from $18,000.

Rangers Move to Within Half Game of Leading Oakland A's

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Rangers defeated California Angels 12-3, 6-2 Friday night to move to within one-half game of the first-place Oakland A's in the American League's West Division.

The A's rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to edge Kansas City Royals 5-4.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee Brewers burned Baltimore Orioles 14-6, Detroit Tigers nipped New York Yankees 3-2, and Chicago White Sox outlugged Minnesota Twins 11-7. Cleveland and Boston were rained out.

The Rangers' Lenny Randle collected five consecutive hits. Toby Harrah hit two home runs and Cesar Tovar belted a three-run shot, leading a club-record 13-hit attack in the opener. Dave Nelson and pinch-hitter Mike Hargrove each drove in a pair of runs in a four-run fifth inning in the nightcap.

Mac Scarce, Ferguson Jenkins and Steve Hargan turned in a pair of complete games. It was Jenkins' first triumph since May 12.

"Getting all those runs and hits makes it nice for a pitcher who is struggling like I have been for the last month," Jenkins said.

Light-hitting Tim Johnson's two-run single capped a three-run third inning which gave the Brewers a 5-3 lead and chased Baltimore starter Mike Cuellar.

Fergie Jenkins

But the defeat was charged to Wayne Garland and Cuellar's nine-game winning streak remained intact.

Jon Rudd's game-tying two-run single and Angel Mangual's tie-breaking hit highlighted the A's four-run eighth against Bruce Dal Canton. Jim Hoerner and Doug Bird.

Fred Patek tripled two runs across and scored on Jim Wohlford's infield hit. Patek also routed Jim Hunter with four runs in the fourth.

Willie Horton greeted reliever Sparky Lyle with a two-out game-tying pinch single in the ninth inning, and Bill Freehan raced home with the winning run for the Tigers on a throwing error by Yankees' centerfielder Elliott Maddox.

Mickey Lolich held the Yankees to five hits, one of them a two-run homer by Bill Sudakis.

Ken Henderson smashed two home runs and drove in six runs and Carlos May delivered five hits as the White Sox unloaded a 21-hit attack, equalling the record against Minnesota pitching.

Despite being staked to a 7-0 lead after two innings, veteran reliever Ken Tatum, making his second major league start, failed to survive the third. Joe Henderson—no relation to Ken—pitched 4 1-3 hitless innings and struck out seven to record his first major league victory.

Opening Round Draws to Close

4FRANKFURT (AP) — Four soccer matches today and four more Sunday will decide who enters the second round of the World Cup.

Brazil, without a goal so far, has to score at least three in their Dehlenbrinken match Sunday against Zaire in Group 2 to be sure of a second-round place.

The task was expected to be simple. The African champions were demoralized following a 9-0 trouncing by Yugoslavia.

Scotland and Yugoslavia meet at Frankfurt in today's star match.

A telex message from England, claiming to be from the Irish Republican Army, threatened violence against Protestant members of the Scottish team. The message probably was a hoax, but police redoubled their guard on the Scotland camp at Wellnau, 25 miles from Frankfurt.

Scotland has to win to advance to the second round but a draw is good enough for Yugoslavia.

In Group 1, West and East Germany meet for the first time. In a match at Hamburg full of political and professional overtones.

East Germany needs at least a draw to win a second-round place.

West Germany already is sure of advancement.

In Berlin, Chile faces Australia and needs a three-goal win to get through, and even then will advance only if West Germany takes both points in Hamburg.

Sunday is decision day in Groups 2 and 4.

Poland, already through to the second round, meets Italy in Group 4.

Italy needs at least a point to be sure of a second-round place.

Argentina is in the same situation as Chile and Brazil. It has to run up goals against Haiti to have any hope of staying in the hunt. Haiti already is booked for home.

In Group 3, both second-round places are open with Uruguay, the Netherlands, Bulgaria and Sweden in contention.

Pele Disappointed

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — Brazil's all-time football hero, Pele, said Friday that this year's World Cup soccer is the worst he has seen.

Pele said's news conference he is disappointed with the World Cup matches he has seen so far. He compared this with the performance of the South American teams.

"I have noticed a tendency to defensive play and this leads to boring football," Pele said. "From a technical point of view, it has so far been the worst World Cup I have seen."

Pele said in his view the European teams were clearly superior to the South Americans.

NBA Franchise For Toronto?

TORONTO (CP) — The National Basketball Association remains open to prospects to buy who or what group will get the new NBA franchise in Toronto, but Harold Ballard is pretty well committed he will be in Maple Leaf Gardens bid.

"I know the franchise had been promised to Toronto and the Gardens president, "and I believe Maple Leaf Gardens are in the front."

Ballard's mid-town office has been home court for Buffalo Braves for a number of regular-season and exhibition games over the last two years and the Braves have scheduled more games in Toronto next season.

Toronto Maple Leafs will become the league's 18th franchise for the 1975-76 season, playing in the 16,000-plus-seat Gardens.

Ballard said work is already in progress to get the game to Toronto-area sporty fans.

The Gardens is setting up a separate basketball operation, to be known this year as the Maple Leaf Gardens, after Toronto's franchise is in operation, as the Maple Leaf basketball club.

Panasiuk Leads Quebec Open

HUDSON HEIGHTS, Que. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk of Winnipeg, Man., carded a 2-under total of 209—seven under par—should win the Quebec open golf championship Sunday.

Or if his 209 prediction doesn't take the $2,800 first prize in the $20,000 event, it still should result in a fair payday.

"I'll take two for it and still make $2,000," Panasiuk said following Friday's opening round. "I can't see two guys beating 209."

Panasiuk fired a three-under-par 69 on the first 18 to share the lead with Doug Robb, 27, of Chilliwack, B.C.

While Panasiuk was third in money earnings on last year's tour with $4,150, Robb, beginning his third year, earned less than half that amount.

This year's tournament is being played over the heavily wooded 6,688-yard Whitlock Golf and Country club course 35 miles west of Montreal.

Neither of the leaders felt that intermittent rain on already soaked terrain hindered play.

"I find this course is easier to play when it rains," Panasiuk said. "If there is no wind to go with the rain, everything plays the same as you see it."

Robb, who earned half of his $2,000 total earnings in 1973 at the Quebec tournament said he found the course "played easier on me."

"I hit 17 of 18 greens and was never more than 18 feet from the hole," he said. "I haven't been putting that well lately, but I still left four hanging on the lip of the cup."

Twenty-five golfers in the field of 142 managed to better or equal par in the opening round.

Eight golfers were bunched behind Panasiuk and Robb with two-under-par 70s, including Dan Talbot of Bethel, Que., Dudley Jones of Montreal, Bob Smith of Kamloops, B.C., John Morgan of Victoria, John Kinfred of Peterborough, Ont., and Lew Cooper of Hamilton, Ont.

Five golfers were grouped at 71 including Bob Breen of Brampton, Ont., and Ken Trowbridge of Toronto.

Low amateur after Friday's round was Frank Kay of Montreal, who shared fifth place with other golfers who equalled par.

Ray Hoot of Sorel, Que., defending champion, had a two-over-par 74.

DUNCAN A SOUTHERN

MEMPHIS (CP) — Fullback Dunc Duncan, last year with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League, was one of three players whose signings have been announced by officials of Southern end of World Football League. The others were kicker Bob Ritter, previously with Atlanta Falcons of the National League, and Jim Brown from Mississippi State.

Mets Win Anyway In Comedy Of Errors Over Phillies

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mets, the defending National League champions who now reside in the Eastern basement, took on Philadelphia Phillies, who owned the cellar a year ago but now have the keys to the penthouse.

The Mets made five errors—three in one inning—and a dispatch collision in the ninth inning with the game on the line and lost their 4th pitcher. But they still managed to win 3-1 Friday night.

In other games, Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2, Atlanta Braves slipped Cincinnati Reds 1-0, Houston Astros topped San Diego Padres 2-0, Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Francisco Giants 4-3, and St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal Expos 5-1.

The Mets lost starter Tom Seaver because of a back ailment, but they got back Tug McGraw who made his first game-saving appearance since coming off the disabled list 12 days ago.

"I forgot how nervous a guy could get out there," said McGraw, dad of 11 with a muscle spasm in his back.

John Milner of the Mets hit his 10th and 11th homers of the season, solo shots off Steve Carlton in the fourth and sixth innings, and Rusty Staub hit his 10th homer off Mac Scarce in the eighth.

Jerry Morales' game-tying homer in the fourth inning and tie-breaking single in the seventh carried the Cubs past Pittsburgh.

Winner Steve Stone struck out 10 batters—including Willie Stargell three times—before giving way to Oscar Zamora, who gave up Stargell's 14th homer.

Tom Hume, the Braves' relief pitcher, replaced starter Carl Morton with two outs and a run on to the ninth inning and loaded the bases by giving up a walk, gan. But the Reds' shot at a tie died when Johnny Bench flied out.

Henry Aaron doubled in the seventh inning and scored on Frank Tepedino's bases-loaded grounder for the game's only run.

Larry Dierker, 5-3, doubled to set up one of the Astros' runs and teamed with Fred Scherman on a four-hitter that beat San Diego.

The Dodgers, silenced for seven innings by Randy Moffitt, getting his first major league start, scored three runs in the eighth inning to tie San Francisco. Ken Sent the Giants on Bill Buckner's leadoff homer in the 10th.

Ted Simmons drove in three runs, one with a tie-breaking single in the fifth inning, to give Sonny Siebert and the Cards their victory over Montreal and draw St. Louis within half a game of the Phils in the East.

Siebert opened the fifth with a single, advanced on a walk and scored on Simmons' hit. St. Louis put the game away with three runs in the seventh, two on Simmons' single.

CHICAGO (AP) — The former head coach of Chicago Bears filed a $5-million suit Friday against the Southern California Sun and the World Football League. Kitchener Sweeps Hamilton

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The pitching of Wally Dick and Reg Martin carried Hamilton Warriors to a sweep of their doubleheader with Kitchener Eldelgreys in the only Ontario Football League action Friday.

Hamilton won both games by 4-1 scores as Dick and Martin each tossed four-hitters.

Keith Wagler was the losing pitcher in the opener and Terry Galamore took the defeat in the nightcap.

Dick Bosher sparked Hamilton offensively in the first game with three hits in as many plate appearances. Dick helped his own cause by clubbing a two-run double.

Substitute batter Terry Kay did all the Hamilton damage against Kitchener in the second game. On his first appearance, he got a double off Gallamore and later added. In the sixth inning, he hit a three-run homer to break a 1-1 deadlock.

Hamilton now has a 9-9 record while Kitchener is 7-10.

In league action tonight, St. Catharines is at Hamilton in a doubleheader, Newmarket is at London and Niagara Falls plays in Toronto.

Title Bout Thrown Out

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

Much to the dismay of the more than 1,200 wrestling fans who crowded the Memorial Arena Friday night, the featured Mexican Steap Match, for the North American Championship, ended in a draw with both competitors earning disqualifications.

The title, held by Archie The Stomper Gouldie, was retained despite the scourge of last night's fans.

Martiner came into the ring well ahead of the Stomper, bringing the crowd to the edge of their seats with the pre-game show. He earned the fans' cheering, stomping in a Tom Connors style on the ring and most of the partisan spectators joined in the salamanking.

Gouldie made his appearance, apparently stunned by the sound of the stomping throughout the Arena in mockery of his own name.

The first bout of the best two-out-of-three falls lasted in the eighth minute mark of the 16-minute limit. The bout, close all the way, eventually went to the Stomper, after he had drawn blood from the forehead of his opponent. He appeared to have used a weapon, other than his own strength, to inflict the wounds.

With the blood pouring from the face of Martiner, the Stomper pounded him to the fly of the ring and forced him into the corners with stunning blows.

The second fall went in only a little over a minute.

Martiner, still stunned from the beating he absorbed in the first fall, and bleeding even more from further attacks by the champ's concealed weapon, started the round with a dazed walk around the ring.

However, with the fans cheering for him to avenge the first round loss, he suddenly seemed to get an influx of adrenalin. He took the Stomper, threw him to the canvass, and pinned him, in one continuous motion.

The blood really started to pour in the third fall after Martiner opened the face of the Stomper with best bounces to the corner ropes.

Martiner continued to beat the Stomper to the far corner of the ring on two occasions, however, the referee warned him times he threw the champion over the ropes.

Martiner was about to pin the Stomper and take the title, when the unreasoning fan caught the referee in the head. The official had been knocked to the floor by the Stomper in an encounter not scheduled on the program.

Martiner then went to the aid of the referee after not getting the decision due to the official's dazed state, with the Stomper following close behind it.

Martiner was struck on the back of the head with one of the Stompers boots, which he had taken off strictly for that purpose, bringing more blood from the already reddened head of Martiner.

The Stomper then did a victory dance of sorts, indicating his win, although Martiner still had different ideas. He got up, got adrenalin running once again, forcing the Stomper out of the ring, this time to the dressing room in retreat.

However, the referee, still lying prone on the surface of the mat, was just now coming around, and had not witnessed the apparent forfeiture by the Champion. He declared both combatants disqualified and the match a draw.

With the Stomper retreating to the dressing room, Martiner challenged him to a bout with non-escape, Cage Match. He will get his chance at the re-match in two weeks time.

In the other bouts last night, Tony Parise took a decision over the Wildman, Terry Liddle scored the John in the battle of the midgets, Richard Dubois defeated Claudia West in the Ladies' bout. In the tag team of the card, the Love Twins were disqualified after applying a choking tactic to Vic Rossland, who was teamed up with Angelo Mosca.

Hiddleston Homers In Clutch for Intell

The Intelligencer got eight runs in the last three innings at Alemite Park Friday night, including a solo homer in the seventh to defeat The Independents 9-8.

In the second half of the doubleheader at Alemite, Black Diamond edged Constellation 6-4.

Terry Hiddleston was the man with the right stick in the right situation in The Intelligencer victory. Hiddleston led off the bottom of the seventh inning with the score tied 8-8 and pounded a shot to the left centre field fence for a home run and the game winning tally.

Ron Culleton pitched six innings for the winners and then gave way to Dave Prentiss in the final frame. Hiddleston combined to fan two while issuing five walks.

Gerry Lewis and Paul Trumpour were the losing pitchers. They struck out five and walked seven.

In the second half of the doubleheader Ron Bateman went the distance as the mound and his teammates came up with four runs in the final three innings to pick up the 6-4 win.

Bateman put six batters down on third strikes and issued one walk.

The losing pitcher, Ken Kurick, fanned four and walked three.

For the winners, Ross Empey had a double, Gene Francis and Harris Meeks a pair of singles and Bob Henderson, Ralph Francis, Bateman, Bob Nell and Mike MacDonald all had one single.

Now That's Using Your Head

Using his head, although by no choice of his own, is Lutz Martiner, in, or rather out, of last night main bout at the Wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

It's the Stomper putting Martiner's head into play, making sure more blood pours from his opponent's head. The bout was declared a draw after the referee took an unscheduled nap on the mat of the ring in the third of the three falls.

Purinaettes Drop First

The Purinaettes took their first loss in ten games in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League action Thursday night, with their closest rivals, the Belleville Yardmen Benitt Fund the ones to do it. The Yardmen took a tight 4-3 win over the Maple based team in a game played in the northern center.

Sue Morton fired the win on the Y's pitcher, allowing only five hits. She threw third strikes past two batters, walking the same total.

Sandra Fleming took the initial for the Purinaettes, giving up six hits. She struck out two and walked four.

Penny Hughes had a pair of singles for the winners, with Donna Preston, Joyce McFarlane, Sharon Alexander, and Morton all collecting one base hit.

Jane Bettley had a blame run and double to pace the Purinaettes attack, with Margie Bateman, Joan Bailey, and Fleming each contributing one single.

In a game played at Centennial Field, Quinte Laundry shaded Simpsons - Sears 10 - 8. Aileen Barr fired the win for Quinte, allowing five hits. She fanned six and walked eight.

Joanne Garvin went the distance for the losers, who suffered their tenth loss of the year. She walked only two, but failed to fan a batter.

Bonnie McGowen and Barr each had a double and single for the winners, with Liz Reid contributing a double.

Gervin had three of the Simpsons' five hits, with Debbie Barnes, with a double, and Deb Johnson, with a single, the other hitters.

20 TIPS TO BETTER GOLF
by George Knudson
Copyright 1973, Intelligencer Publishing Co. Ltd.

TIP NO. 5 POSTURE

First let's explain that old myth that the shoulders should be parallel to the ground. The fact is that the right shoulder is lower than the left — because the right shoulder is on the club.

To assume the proper posture you must first stand tall and relaxed. Then bend your knees and take the "seat-stick" position. Imagine you are sitting on a seat-stick as you address the ball.

This is a comfortable position and, if taken properly, you should feel loose or hunched. Incorrect posture will force your balance off and your swing will not be consistent.

POSITIVE KEY — Remember the "seat-stick position."

Five Issues Unsettled

Talks Reach Impasse Financially

WINNIPEG (CP) — Five issues were outstanding, all of them monetary, when negotiations between the Canadian Football League Players' Association (CFLPA) and the league's governors reached an impasse Friday.

Further meetings were scheduled for Monday night or Tuesday in Ottawa, site of the June 30 all-star game with the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders.

George Reed, president of the CFLPA, and committee chairman Norm Kimball of Edmonton Eskimos agreed that all non-monetary issues had been resolved in principle, but not finalized, about an early settlement to the contract dispute.

More than 276 CFL veterans voluntarily retired last weekend in support of CFLPA proposals for a new two-year contract, but most have been working out on their own.

"We have reached an impasse in financial areas, and in some areas are pre-season playoffs, Grey Cup and the pension plan," Reed, an all-star fullback with Saskatchewan Roughriders, told reporters at a news conference when the two sides' positions were given. "I'd like to stress that the players have reduced their original demands by one-third and I think we are about $22,000 per team apart—or about $1,000 a man playing in the CFL.

"We have made quite a few concessions but still we haven't been able to come to anything. We have withdrawn some things to try to meet what they (the league) call their financial burden."

He said the outlook is not too encouraging at this time as the committee said the CFL cannot afford to pay its players any more money.

Kimball told a news conference the league's position on areas of pre-season game pay per-diem expenses, playoff and Grey Cup pay and pensions originally was altered in 1969, in excess of existing payments.

What the CFLPA has asked in the counter-proposal adds up to a package for two years, 1974 and 1975, of $2,178,676 inclusive of existing payments based on what the league paid in 1973, he said.

He said the league intends to keep meeting with CFLPA representatives in an effort to determine how the money available in the CFL can be used satisfactorily.

CFL All-Star Game

All-stars May Not Have Edge

OTTAWA (CP) — All-star games have traditionally been the odds on favorite in Canadian professional football, but not this year, says Don Gilbert, fill-in coach of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Riders, defending Grey Cup champions, meet the best players in the Canadian Football League Wednesday. The all-stars have won three of the four previous meetings.

"The club is in much better shape than I thought it would be," said Gilbert who coaches Ottawa University in the Ontario Universities Athletic Association.

He is filling in for Rider coach George Brancale, who has been pushed to the sidelines by the dispute between the CFL clubs and the players' association.

Gilbert has been running the Rider veterans through hard-hitting scrimmages twice a day at Lansdowne Park and he is pleased with the results.

"Usually you'd give the edge to the all-star team, but Riders are in surprisingly good shape and have the discipline and drive to win," he said. "It's going to be a good show."

Gilbert plans to use only about 20 players for the game, a split evenly between offence and running.

"We've been doing a lot of hitting and general workouts up until now, but from now on we'll be concentrating on playmaking and timing."

Blackie Johnson will put the all-stars through their first practice today.

Johnson, former assistant coach of Toronto Argonauts, said he has "the greatest collection of talent on the all-star side ever collected in the history of Canadian football."

He replaces Ray Jauch, coach of Edmonton Eskimos who lost the 1973 Grey Cup to the Riders. Jauch normally would have coached the all-stars.

If the dispute between the clubs and players is settled before the game, both Johnson and Gilbert will remain with the two teams.

The Riders will be without linemen Rudy Sims and Tom Lapuka and running back Art Green for the game. The three, involved in a dispute between the Riders and Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League, have said they will not play.

Bob McKeown, player representative from the Riders, said the veterans are trying to replace Sims and Lapuka and have talked to a few Montreal Alouette linemen.

"Some of them are interested, but they have to wait for sure for a couple of days," he said.

McKeown said the team is working with 29 players. The Grey Cup team usually uses 38 players in the all-star game.

"We'd love to pull off a win with just Dan (Gilbert) and short of players."

While the dispute between the clubs and the players isn't helping either side, ticket sales also have been affected by dispute, says a game organizer.

About 5,000 tickets have been sold in the 27,000-seat park, but officials expect sales to increase rapidly when the all-stars begin circulating around the community.

"We've got the all-star parade Saturday, the CFLPA players' award dinner Monday and the all-star clinic for the kids," said one official. "This will get the people interested."

There will be a television of the game and only a handful of radio stations are broadcasting it.

CTV, which owns the rights to the game, refused to say its broadcast because of sponsor indifference. The CBC has a sponsorship commitment with Expo baseball.

Proceeds from the game will go towards the players' pension fund.

Stricter Eligibility For College Basketball

MONTREAL (CP) — Stricter rules governing eligibility of players competing in Canadian intercollegiate basketball were adopted at the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union's annual meeting which ended Friday.

Under the new regulations, a CIAU member basketball team will be permitted to dress 13 players, but only three of them can be non-Canadians. A non-Canadian is classified as a player that has received basket ball training or has played a basketball game outside of Canada for a non-Canadian team.

Some teams in the country still have more than three non-Canadians on their rosters and they will be permitted to play. However, once those students graduate or leave the institution, no new imports can be added to that team's roster unless the number of non-Canadians falls under the maximum limit.

A major difference between the coming year's regulation and the one in effect last season is the compulsory training camp outside of the country.

Last season, Acadia University of Wolfville, N.S., ran into trouble when its team violated the rule governing use of non-Canadians. Acadia had six United States players but they played in 1972-73, but used three new Americans in an early-season game against Dalhousie.

The CIAU expelled Acadia from the national playoffs and threatened the same fate for any team playing against them. The ban was lifted after Acadia agreed not to use its new imports.

Acadia said the rule was discriminatory and the case was presented to the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission, but has been dropped since Acadia agreed to abide by the rules.

The CIAU also voted to establish a three-member committee to study present CIAU hockey league structure and to make concrete proposals regarding new and different types of competition.

The committee will be comprised of Bob Pugh, the CIAU's executive director, a member of the administrative committee and a member of the Canadian Hockey Coaches Association (CHCA).

The CHCA presented a proposal to the meeting on new hockey structures, including a plan that would see the top hockey institutions in the country play each other on a limited scheduled basis, interposed on the regular schedules of member associations.

Last season, the hockey coaches presented a proposal to have the top 10 teams in the country compete in a "super league. The proposal was defeated.

The CIAU decided to make the national hockey final a best two-of-three series instead of a sudden-death game and endorsed the principle of the formation of a Canadian student national team for 1976-77.

A disciplinary board to examine violations of eligibility rules was also established and the CIAU and the Canadian Intercollegiate Women's Athletic Union have agreed to implement a program to integrate their associations into one governing body for intercollegiate sport in Canada.

Record For Palmer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Sandra Palmer set a women's course record 66, seven under par, in charging into the halfway lead Friday in the rain-splashed $50,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Miss Palmer fired a 34-32 on Pleasant Valley's 6,190-yard course for a 36-hole total of 140 and a two-stroke lead over Sandra Haynie, who had a 73 and a 68 in the opening-round lead with a 69.

"To break 70 on this course is a thrill, but to shoot 66 is almost unbelievable," Mrs. Palmer said. "This is probably the best round I've ever shot."

The starting field of 88 players in the tournament played cautiously and then was reduced even more by the cut which interrupted play for 17 minutes in mid-afternoon. It took nearly six hours for Miss Haynie to complete her round.

Miss Palmer birdied the sixth and eighth holes, making the turn in two-under par 36, then she rattled off birdies on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th and added another on the 16th.

The previous competitive course record of 68 was shared by Kathy Whitworth, Althea Gibson, Sandra Post, Penney of Oakville, Ont., and Debbie Austin.

Defending champion Mary Mills, who shared the first-round lead with Miss Haynie, slipped to a 74 and a tie for third place at 142. JoAnne Carner, winner of three of the five previous events on the LPGA tour, tied Miss Mills with a 74.

Miss Post shot a 73 for a 36-hole total of 140, nine strokes off the pace.

WCHL Stays At Ten Teams

VICTORIA (CP) — The Western Canada Hockey League will remain at 10 teams for the 1974-75 season, after a group from Thunder Bay, Ont., withdrew its application for a franchise.

The Thunder Bay group withdrew Friday after learning that league governors had set a $100,000 fee for entry into the Tier 1 junior league.

The governors made their annual meeting also made some minor rule changes, came up with a rule for selecting players to the team which will represent Canada at the World Junior Hockey Championships at Winnipeg Dec. 26-Jan. 5 and awarded the 1975 all-star game to Victoria.

Rule changes include imposition of a two-minute penalty instead of a five on a team which requests a measurement of an opponent's stick, which is then found to be illegal.

Players also won't be permitted to skate around the ice between the first and second and second and third periods. The starting lineups will be permitted on the ice.

A total of 286 players, two from each WCHL team, will be selected for the Canadian team for the world junior championships. Scotty Munro of Calgary will be the team's coach. The team will train at Calgary for six days, beginning Dec. 26.

Floyd Leads Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ray Floyd, first-round leader in the $170,000 American Golf Classic, scored a one-over-par 71 in the second round Friday to share top spot with Jerry McGee.

Floyd, who shot an opening round 66, was tied with McGee at 138 going into today's match.

Despite his first-place tie, McGee wasn't happy with the way things went Friday.

"I hit the irons so many times they were starting to call me 'lumberjack'," McGee said with a grin, "but I don't mind. I'll take a 69 on this course any way I can get it."

Jim Colbert was another shot back in the chase for the $34,000 first prize. Colbert had the best round, a three-under-par 67, for a total of 137.

Buddy Allin, already a two-time winner this season, and Dwight Nevil followed at 138. Allin went to a 72 on the 7,139-yard, par 70 course and Nevil had a 68.

Hale Irwin, newly-crowned U.S. Open champion, insisted he was still in contention at 145. He improved from a 75 in the opening round to a 68 that, he said, "involved some personal, professional pride."

Arnold Palmer had to birdie the last two holes for a 73-145.

George Knudson of Toronto matched his first round with a 71 for a two-round total of 142-six strokes off the pace, while Ben Kern of London, Ont., carded a 74 for 146.

Floyd got only one birdie on the first nine holes, a five-foot putt on the fifth. He missed two others from six feet and three more from the 15-foot range. "And every one of them hit the hole," he said.

McGee, a non-winner in seven years on the tour, got a second's exemption into this event. He had five birdies and four bogeys.

U.S. Agricultural Department Studies Possible Beef Ban Retaliatory Moves

WASHINGTON (CP) — United States agriculture department officials discussed against Canada in return for its refusal to accept U.S. beef that has been treated with a growth-promoting hormone.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said officials discussed the scope and legal aspects of actions that could be taken.

Canada imposed a ban in April on all U.S. beef that was not certified free of the growth-promoting hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES). Laboratory tests have shown a link between DES and cancer in animals. The U.S. recently lifted a regulation against feeding DES to cattle, but the hormone is still banned in Canada.

Canadian Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said in Windsor, Ont., Friday that threats of retaliation by the U.S. "make me more firm in my stand against backing down."

In Saskatoon, Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, called on the federal government to reject U.S. demands to allow treated beef into Canada.

The dispute centres around the method of certifying beef as being free from DES.

Whelan said that a proposal by the U.S. that farmers themselves certify that their cattle have not received DES, and that a veterinarian certify the meat at a slaughterhouse is not a sufficient guarantee.

"I won't accept a 'honeyin' this thing where Ally John Doe signs a certificate," Whelan said.

He said many countries have completely banned U.S. beef. Canada is the only country to agree to accept it if certified free of DES.

Whelan said the Consumers Association of Canada supports the ban on DES-treated beef.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told a congressional committee Thursday he is ready to recommend "more drastic action" if early agreement on shipping the U.S. cattle to Canada is not forthcoming.

His assistant, Yeutter, said the most likely areas for retaliation would be imposition of tight quotas on imports of Canadian eggs, beef, pork and feeder cattle.

Whelan said Canada has not broken any international trade agreements by banning DES-treated beef and he said the U.S. will be expected to remain within the rules of world trade also.

U.S. farmers normally sell about $140 million worth of beef to Canada a year.

Rain Dashes Hope For Cheaper Fruit

TORONTO (CP) — Heavy rain has dashed hopes that Ontario-grown fruit prices might come down from last year's record highs, a spokesman for the provincial marketing board said Friday.

Only strawberries and peaches, among Ontario's major fruit crops, appear to be producing even average-sized crops, the spokesman said.

Other major fruit yields are expected to be down in quantity and quality because of the weather.

This year, the crop of sweet cherries was light to start with due to poor pollination, but the wet weather also has caused splitting.

And in many orchards, qualities through a series of valuations, among other things.

Finally they are given artificial color, flavor and smell.

Beef Check-off Ceiling Increased by Stewart

CHATHAM (CP) — Walter Miller, National Farmers' Union vice-president, said Friday that Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart's "honeying" in enacting legislation this week that increased the check-off ceiling on cattle.

In an interview, Mr. Miller said that the minister deliberately waited until legislators were anxious for a summer holiday to "railroad" the legislation through.

The legislature is expected to adjourn for the summer shortly.

An amendment to the Beef Cattle Marketing Act increases the ceiling on check-offs to 6 cents from 15 cents.

"The check-off, the amount charged producers for every head of cattle they sell, finances the operation of the Ontario Beef Improvement Association which conducts marketing campaigns for Ontario products.

Food for Needy

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international agreement providing for continued food for development assistance for co-operation in the production and sale of wheat was ratified by the United States Senate Friday. The 79-to-0 Senate vote gave U.S. assent to continue the 1971 International Wheat Agreement for one year, to June 30, 1975. Forty seven countries, including the nine in the European Common Market, are parties to the wheat-trade agreement.

Soviet Union Makes Artificial Caviar

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union has set up a peculiar assembly line to manufacture artificial caviar, the fish eggs long associated exclusively with the super-rich.

The Novosti news service reports that the world's first automatic plant to produce artificial caviar has begun operating in Moscow with a capacity of 100 pounds an hour.

The product, the Soviet Union's answer to the mealiest hamsburger, is based on casein, a by-product of milk processing. A conveyor belt carries the pellets to a so-poor it is not worth harvesting them, Ted Wilson of the Ontario Tender Fruit Growers Marketing Board in St. Catharines said.

The crop of sour cherries also is expected to be smaller than average this year, as are crops of plums and pears.

Apples are likely to reach 5.5 million bushels this year, down from the six million bushels produced in an average year.

Apples, which retailed for 8 to 99 cents a three-pound bag in the last crop year, are likely to stay around that price.

"I really don't see any downward trend," said Judy Parkdis, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Apple Marketing Commission.

Rates Rise

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Rising interest rates and news of a sharp jump in the cost of living in May coincided Friday to add to the plight of the United States consumer.

Two major New York banks, Morgan Guaranty and First National City Bank, raised to 11½ per cent from 11¼ per cent the prime interest rate charged on loans made to their biggest customers.

At the same time, the U.S. labor department reported the consumer price index in May rose 1.1 per cent compared with 0.4 per cent in April.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said the increases in the cost of living and interest rates "are the direct result of the Republican administration's refusal to accept the reality of inflation."

Too Busy

KINGSTON (CP) — Judge Edward Shortt of Lanark County says a busy schedule is delaying work on his report of last year's inquiry into Kingston Township political affairs.

Judge Shortt said Thursday in a telephone interview from Perth, Ont., that he won't be able to finish the report until August.

Polluted

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Dr. Joseph Burkholer, medical officer of health for the Niagara region, said Friday that Lake Ontario beaches here are unfit for swimming because of water pollution.

Tests on the water revealed an unacceptably high level of bacteria as a direct result of human waste in the water, he said.

"Public beach areas all show readings beyond maximum acceptable levels and all tests confirm the human origins of many of the organisms," he said.

Dairy Farmers Disappointed By Delay in Price Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Dairy Farmers of Canada, pressure group for the dairy industry, expressed disappointment Friday about a government decision to postpone until after the July 8 election increases in manufacturing milk prices.

Roland Pigeon, president of the organization, said in a statement that the country's 110,000 industrial milk producers "will be deeply disappointed that the federal government has not taken immediate action to meet our request for an increase to $10 a hundredweight in the price."

The farmers currently are guaranteed $8.50 for every 100 pounds of milk they sell, but they argue that they need at least $10 to cover rising production costs.

Thursday, a group of cabinet ministers approved the farmers' group that a re-elected Liberal government would move immediately after the election to its guaranteed prices to dairy production costs, a step that could increase the cost of powdered skim milk, butter, cheese and ice cream.

Mr. Pigeon said present milk prices are hopelessly inadequate and that a government formed after July 8 "will have an urgent and immediate responsibility to take action to increase producer returns for industrial milk to the level necessary to balance costs and return."

Undercover Mounties Looked Like Toughs

OTTAWA (CP) — Undercover RCMP officers who fired 16 bullets into the car of a young man they suspected of possessing drugs — and who looked "tough" — a witness said Friday in provincial court.

Michael Krauss, a university student, testified during the second day of the trial of RCMP Constable Randy Dennis. He is accused of criminal negligence arising from injuries suffered by Rustin Kennedy of the Kingston area.

Mr. Krauss testified that he heard a number of gunshots outside his residence. When he looked out the window, he said he saw between five and seven men with guns drawn.

The men, later identified as Mounties, "were dressed like street toughs," Mr. Krauss said.

Rustin Kennedy, who was 21, committed suicide May 24 rather than face a charge of drug possession related to the shooting.

Police said they found about 225 g drugs under the passenger seat of the Kennedy car.

However his brother, George, said it was impossible for the Mounties to have found drugs in his brother's car.

George Kennedy told the court that Ontario Provincial Police had thoroughly searched the car just before his brother left for Ottawa.

The trial is to continue July 2.

Nixon Prods Birch Into Day-care Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon prodded Margaret Birch Friday into launching another investigation into Mini-Schools Ltd. which operates seven day-care centres in Ontario for about 450 children.

The issues came up earlier this week in the legislature when Mr. Nixon charged that Canada West Life Insurance Co. had acquired a financial interest in Mini-Schools.

Mrs. Birch, provincial secretary for social development, said Thursday her own ministry's investigation showed no connection between Mini-Schools and Great West.

Returning to the attack Friday in the legislature, Mr. Nixon said the 1973 annual report of Mini-Schools indicates that in 1973 Great West, with headquarters in Winnipeg, acquired 20 per cent of the common shares and a large number of preferred shares in the centres.

Mrs. Birch promised to make another check.

Nurses Negotiate With 50 Boards

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between representatives of 18,000 Ontario registered nurses and about 50 hospital boards were to continue today after breaking off Friday night, officials for both sides said.

The nurses, members of the newly-formed Ontario Nurses Association (ONA), a collective bargaining unit, requested the meeting in an attempt to reach a negotiated agreement which would apply to registered nurses in all Ontario hospitals.

Nurses at each hospital currently negotiate their own wage settlements, a condition which the nurses say prompts hospital boards to hold back wage increases on the basis that sound hospitals pay less.

Between 50 and 100 nurses from several Ontario hospitals waited outside the room where a 14-member committee of hospital and nurses' representatives met in closed talks. The committee agreed at the start of its negotiations on a news blackout.

Friday was the first time the ONA officially was recognized by hospital officials as a legitimate bargaining unit for its members.

The nurses are seeking province-wide minimum starting salaries of $650 a month retroactive to Jan. 1, 1974, and a minimum of $1,050 starting Jan. 1, 1975.

Starting salaries currently vary — sometimes within the same city — from $635 a month at St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough to $827 a month at McKellar General in Thunder Bay.

OUR REVOLUTIONARY WOODSTAIN.

IT SHEDS WATER THAT ROTS WOOD.

Look at the walls of a wood-sided home or cottage after a cloudburst.

You'll usually see blotches on the siding where water has penetrated into the actual wall. Water that may take days to dry out. Water that eventually rots the wood.

But the problem isn't so much the average wood wall. It's the average woodstain. So we gave our laboratories a special challenge.

We asked them for a woodstain that would breathe, to allow moisture trapped inside the wood to escape. (To prevent blistering and cracking.)

"But", we said, "give it a tough, water-resistant surface that'll actually bead a drop of rainwater."

Because soaked-in moisture is the number one enemy of wood.

And now, we proudly present our Color Your World Premium Woodstains.

Stains that breathe. Stains that bead water droplets like quicksilver. Stains that'll help wood last years longer than conventional products. Color Your World's Solid Hide Woodstain is ideal for outdoor applications — shingles, sidings, and fences. Indoors, outdoors, Color Your World's Semi-Transparent Stain can be used to give a beautiful natural finish to floors, decking, furniture, doors. (They are lead free, so they're safe for children.)

And all 40 shades, solid-hide and semi-transparent, are priced at only $9.98 a gallon. A remarkable price for a remarkable product.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Puzzle Predictions Right

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

In a 1668 book titled Prophecies of World Events by Nostradamus, U.S. writer Stewart Robb predicted that in 1973 a Middle East war would break out between Israel and the Arab states and prove to be the first act in an apocalyptic 27-year conflict, leading to the biblical battle of Armageddon.

Well, the Yom Kippur War ared in October, 1973. But he rest remains unfulfilled , yet.

It's not surprising in this ge of turmoil and anxiety that end-of-the-world doomsters are flourishing, or that they cite Nostradamus. This French astrologer and seer, dead more than 400 years, is the most renowned prognosticator of all time — credited with feats that put every other prophet in the shade.

Nostradamus is credited not only with fixing the dates of events that occurred long, even centuries, after his death — the great fire of London, for example, and the proclamation of the French Republic — but also with giving the names of people not yet born when he wrote.

He is said to have described the rise and fall of Bonaparte, the convulsion of the French revolution including the execution of the king and queen — and Drake's defeat of the Spanish Armada. Among modern events, of this 16th prophet is credited with foreseeing air warfare and the submarine, the collapse of the Magiot Line and France's partition by the occupying Germans, the Nazi blockade of Britain, and the overthrow of Hitler, whom he " said to have mentioned by name.

The skeptics retort that Nostradamus wrote in puzzles which each reader finds in the cryptic prophecies exactly what he wants to find. Appraised him, say the sceptics, are sheer coincidence.

Here's a look at history's most celebrated prophet and a few of his most notable predictions — some allegedly fulfilled, some yet to be.

Nostradamus is the Latin form of the name of Michel Notredame, who was born at St. Remy, France, on Dec. 14, 1503. He took a medical degree, then attracted considerable fame by his skill at casting horoscopes, eventually becoming court astrologer to King Henry II and his Queen, Catherine de Medici.

In 1558, Nostradamus published the first edition of his " scon-to-be-famous "Oracles" — 364 rhymed quatrains containing veiled pictures of what was to be. In the foreword he described how the oracles came to him while he sat with a magic wand waving into a fire. Apparently some sort of angelic being appeared to him and imparted the prophecies. He died in 1566.

Interpreting Nostradamus' prophecies before the event is exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, since they are replete with coded meanings, symbols, and word plays. It's said that the prophet had to be prudent about making his meaning too clear lest he anger supernatural authority.

An example is a prophecy of Nostradamus that his followers claim was fulfilled during his lifetime. It is said to have predicted the death of King Henry II. Here are Nostradamus' words:

The young lion shall overcome the old on the field of war in single combat. He will pierce his eyes in a cage of gold. This is the first of two leggings, then he dies a cruel death."

Historians and that Nostradamus applied this particular oracle to the King and had no spoken of it to Henry himself.

In 1559, the French King, wearing his emblem, the lion, and a gold helmet, jousted with a young nobleman named Montgomery to a friendly joust.

Montgomery, whose emblem was also a lion, accidentally pierced the king in his eye through the visor of his gilt helmet. After lingering in great pain for several days, the king died.

Nostradamus' supporters then decided the symbolic for "old lion" was the King; the "cage of gold"—in which his eyes were pierced was the gilt helmet he wore, the "first of two leggings" was later accepted as referring to the untimely death of King Henry III, who fell by the hand of an assassin.

Since Nostradamus was French, and close to the royal family, it would not be surprising if he related events figured prominently in his oracles. One such prophecy proved to contain an obscure proper name.

Nostradamus spoke of somebody called "the Great Monkmonger" who through rebellion against " Dauphin" would be delivered to " Germanic confederates. These last two words are in French also.

On Oct. 30, 1632, the second Duke of Montmorency, who styled himself "the Great", was beheaded for treason against the King. Louis XIII, who had been as it happened, the first man since Nostradamus' death to bear the title "Dauphin" (or crown-rated heir to the throne of France).

The most striking thing, however, is that Montmorency's executioner was a common soldier, whose by whose name was Chevignon.

This is either one silly of a coincidence or something else. Could somebody have changed the prophecy after the event and attributed it to Nostradamus?

A British researcher, Rupert Gould, subjected the prophecies to a long and fascinating exacting scrutiny. He concluded that, incredible as it seems, the oracle Nostradamus Montmorency to "clere Germanic confederates" to the point some 75 years before the event.

Critics are driven to distraction by Nostradamus' habit of hiding names in wavy plays and anagrams. The French finds Napoleon Bonaparte, when rendering whether claimed correspondences between a particular prophecy and event really exist or are merely figments of the mind which starts seeing what it's told to see. It is all some odd series of coincidences?

In several quatrains which seem to pertain to the French revolution, Nostradamus, writing 200 years before the events, cites proper names. In one, he speaks of the King being betrayed by "Varhon and Sanlos".

Now it happens that Louis XVI's wife's name was Marie Antoinette, were arrested while trying to flee the country; was judged not for a special group of the republicans for having suppressed the royal coup. The name is Sanlis.

In another dated prophecy, Nostradamus of Caen, a "great persecution of the Catholic Church is calculated in the year 1792 which people will think to be the reinvention of the age."

This is said to have been fulfilled when the Church of all-churches in France by the republicans and the proclamation of Year I was in supreme control of France from 1793 until the abdication in 1804, and died in exile on St. Helena, a cockpit in the Atlantic.

It's claimed that anagram for Napoleon's name when he wrote of "Pen.nep.leron." (The pearlcis are in the original.) Take out the letters "nep" instruct the Nostradamus buffs (because this means "king"), and you're left with Pau.se.lon. reverse it and you have Napoleon.

What the ordinarily sceptical person is likely to ask is: Why, if the prophet could foresee Napoleon's name, didn't he simply write it correctly? Wouldn't that have been infinitely more convincing? And how could it possibly have endangered him, more than a century after his death? The rest is that the prophet sometimes saw through a glass darkly.

Coming to modern times, Nostradamus is credited with anticipating the horrors of modern warfare:

"Fire from fire and death hidden in globes will be hurled. Invisible, terrible.

"By night, enemy forces will reduce cities to powder."

But is this more than poetic imagination of a sort shown by science-fiction writers with no special prophetic powers?

More intriguing are three quatrains in which Nostradamus refers to "Hister", then end his days on a chalky island in the sea". Napoleon was born on Corsica which is near Italy was in supreme control of France from 1799 until his abdication in 1814, and died in exile on St. Helena, a rockpile

Canine Corps

LONDON (CP) — A "dog warden" with the job of stopping canines from misbehaving in the colorful open spaces of London's Camden municipality has been proposed by officials. But they found they couldn't call the projected functionary a "dog-catcher" since English law doesn't allow a municipal council employee with a net to impound dogs.

Salvation Army Commander Injected Hard-sell Approach

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Commissioner Arnold Brown, the new territorial commander of the Salvation Army in Canada, is perhaps best known as the man who injected a "hard-sell" style into the movement's appeals for extra support in Britain.

Despite some initial doubts about such techniques, Brown followed up his bold appointment as public relations chief at the army's international headquarters here by drafting plans for fund-raising based on the graphic slogan, "For God's sake, care."

The slogan was backed by vivid photographs of deathly pale—deprived children, poverty-stricken old people, homeless drunks, lonely men and women in bedrooms.

The campaign, aimed at raising 3 million ($7 million) for the Salvation Army, improved a success through the sheer shock of its disclosure about the tragic degree of poverty in this generally affluent Western society.

Recalling the impact of the stark pictures and typographic, Brown declared: "It was an effort to use methods which had proved successful for to army fund-raisers in Canada.

They have since become a standard part of the army's publicity techniques, and by shortly the 60-year-old Brown's most conspicuous legacy as he returns to Toronto for his new job.

His successor, General-elect Clarence Wiseman, the New-foundland publicist who takes over supreme command of the Salvation Army.

For five years since the end of his period as head of public relations, Brown has been second-in-command of the army's Canada-chief of staff.

Among other things, this has meant much world travel with his wife, the former Jean Barclay, who was born in Montreal. She is a speech coach of her youth in Montreal.

Commissioner and Mrs. Brown have inspected army activities in the Asian and Western cities in tropical Nigeria and military-haunted Calcutta.

Brown, a native Londoner who moved to Belleville, Ont., says his globe-trotting will give him an extra edge in his duties as Canadian commander, which officially begin July 12.

He has seen how various techniques of evangelism and social service work in varying conditions and he will be able to impress on Canadians from first-hand observation the extent of human suffering in many parts of the world.

A compact, sandy-haired figure, the commissioner expresses himself with a style which immediately marks him as an experienced broadcaster.

In fact, after 18 years as assistant editor of the Canadian edition of The War Cry in the 1930s and 1940s, Brown—appointed the army's publicity officer for Canada in 1967—instigated the radio series, "This Is My Story," and later "The Living Word," an internationally used television program.

Just as he subsequently utilized top photographers such as Sidney Smith, Brown recorded Bailey as unpaid contributors to the fund-raising crusade in Britain. Brown, chairman of the voluntary services of Barry Moore, Toby Robins and theater performers for his broadcast productions in Canada.

In the early days, however, things were more awkward. For instance, Brown recorded hers having to arrange radio recording sessions, complete with a 25-piece band and a 30-voice choir, on an all-night basis in a Toronto hotel, penthouse for lack of daytime accommodation.

In Britain too he has done broadcasting work, speaking on both radio and TV.

As commander of the Canada he will seek to ensure practice of what he believes to be the Salvation Army principle. "spirituality issuing in compassion."

"I think it's necessary that the army should always be in the front line of the world's agony," Brown said in an interview.

After seeing Canadian doctors and social workers helping out in deprived regions around the world, Brown said he feels that Canada "has really given of its substance" in the struggle to aid underdeveloped countries.

"This I hope to encourage and increase."

First, he will try to gauge the changes that have occurred in Canada since his departure a decade ago.

"I want to (re)acquaint myself in the total Canadian ethos," said Brown in reference to his country-wide tour during which he will meet many of the army's 130,000 Canadian members.

The Salvation Army has been active in Canada since 1882. With an institution as well established as that, a new commander is not likely to bring about startling changes or sudden improvements, Brown said.

What he wants from his spiritual soldiers is an even greater exercise of compassion.

He and Mrs. Brown were married in 1938. They have two daughters—Heather who, as Mrs. Harold Hetherington of Toronto, is a nurse, and Beverley, now Mrs. Phil Davies and, like her husband, a student at Oxford.

Brown said he and his wife look forward their return to Canada as "a new challenge and an exercise in joy."

He has given much of his time in the past to promoting the army's celebrated musical life.

And he will probably reserve a special place for youth in his Canadian plans, since he served as territorial youth secretary for Canada and Bermuda in 1952-54.

Mrs. Brown, will be deeply involved in the army's Canadian activities for women as well as supporting her husband on his national trips.

Eventually they will also visit Bermuda—preferably in February, Brown said with a smile. His territory includes that vacation island.

He is all the happier about the formula trip because the island's governor, Canadian-born Sir Richard Sharples, himself a solid friend of the Salvation Army in Britain during Brown's decade of work here.

To Know Goal of Life Ability to Wait Vital

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

A jet pilot was offered fifty dollars a second to test a new plane unbelievably swift and almost equally dangerous. He accepted the offer and the risk. He said, "This is a civilization where only fools keep ahead of others or they keep ahead of you."

Why do we hurry? We have the appearance of people pursued. By whom or what? By the demonism that fills all life? Could be! By a materialistic fever to start marriage with possessions that previous generations would have been content to regard as juicy fruit from years of toil? Could be! .....

Or are we hunted by conscience? Could be! The world as a whole, too, loudly proclaims judgment on our blundering and plundering of his natural and human resources. Meanwhile, we have little idea, despite our intensity, of the way we should go.

Well, to know the goal of life we must carry. This fact holds true of men of automobile journey. We pull up by the side of the road and consult a map if we wish to reach some far off destination in time.

The proverbs of human experience confirm this fact. "Haste makes waste." "Don't hurry, less speed." As for Bible wisdom, few words are so characteristic as the word "wait". For instance, "I waited patiently for the Lord; he inclined to me and heard my cry" (Psalm 40:1). Again, "Even youths shall faint and be weary, and young men shall fall exhausted: but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength" (Isaiah 40:30-31).

Here is the therapy that our age needs. No wonder mutual respect is developing between religion and medicine. The spirit in man goes deeper than body or mind. It goes deeper than history and time. Nothing but an eternal salvation can deliver him.

Malcolm Muggeridge, delivering the sermon in the annual University of Edinburgh Service in the High Kirk of St. Giles', 1968. He said, "Even though, as may well be the case, our civilization like others before it is soon finally bickers out, and institutional Christianity with it, the light Christ shed shines as brightly at ever for those who seek an escape from darkness."

The testimony of two thousand years supports what Muggeridge said. Indeed, always the Christian faith story dying, yet it lives. Culture after culture with which this faith has been associated has passed into oblivion, but the faith carries inside it a divine germ to its renewal. Take heart from that truth.

And take heart from this: None of us will ever have to face a situation which was not faced by those who knew Christ. Therefore, just face each day's challenge with persevering patience, having responsibility to God. Keep looking up to Jesus, "the pioneer and perfecter" of our faith" (Hebrews 12:1-2), and pray that you will not let him down.

Sister Elizabeth Reshaping Image

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sister Elizabeth's eyes flash fire when someone says nuns should be meek and obedient and live in a convent.

"The public image of women in religious vocations is a very bad shape," she says.

Like many nuns, Sister Elizabeth, 30, doesn't wear religious garb or live in a convent. She believes the strictest is an "attractive, viable lifestyle in which a young person can use her creativity and talents to serve God in society."

Nuns—whether thought of as teachers or nurses—can work in politics, prison reform or help the aged, she said.

"Sisters are usually unemployed—a la Audrey Hepburn in Honesty Pays?

LONDON (AP) — Anthony Bado told customers men he was a professional smuggler. They smiled indulgently. An accomplice followed him off the Dover ferry in a truck containing more than $500,000 worth of marijuana and was waved along. But the customs men became suspicious, followed the truck and arrested both men.

Golan Pullback Almost Finished

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement in the Golan Heights neared completion today, leaving only the ruins of the town of Quneitra to be given up.

Israeli troops on the Golan Heights handed a one-mile-wide strip of captured Syrian territory over to United Nations forces, and retreated to positions west of the 1967 ceasefire line.

The strip of land was the last part of the 300-square-mile Syrian bulge captured during last October's Arab-Israeli war. The Israeli withdrawal from it was the third phase to the disengagement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

The disengagement is to be completed by Wednesday, with the Israeli evacuation of Quneitra, the war-ravaged Golan Heights town captured by Israel in the 1967 war.

Israeli's semi-official state radio reported the withdrawal from southern Lebanon of Syrian soldiers who acted as spotters for artillery batteries that attacked Israeli positions on Mount Hermon during and after the October war. Israel had said that the Syrian spotters disguised themselves as Palestinian guerrillas.

In Jerusalem, Premier Yitshak Rabin said Israel's only chance for survival is to strengthen its defences while searching for peace. He told a group of Zionist leaders that Israel will continue to attack Arab guerrillas in Lebanon "in every place and at every time it seems necessary."

Yosef Tekoah, Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, said that if the UN Security Council meets to discuss Israel's air attacks last week on Palestinian strongholds in Lebanon, he will call for sanctions against countries that allow terrorists to operate from their territory.

The U.S. Navy announced that a navy landing craft, the 322-foot LST Barnstable County, has moved halfway down the Suez canal and anchored off Ismailia to serve as a base for U.S. units helping to clear the waterway of wrecks and explosives.

The Barnstable County was the first U.S. ship in the canal since the 1967 war closed it.

Britain Conducts A-test

LONDON (AP) — Britain conducted a nuclear test a few weeks ago, Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House of Commons today.

Wilson said the experiment took place within the framework of the partial test-ban treaty of 1963 and the non-proliferation treaty of 1968.

Palestinians Plan To Continue Fight

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) said today disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces was a step toward peace, but that it will continue to "fight until the Palestinian problem is settled."

The guerrilla position was given by Farouk al Kaddumi, leader of the PLO delegation to the Islamic foreign ministers' meeting in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, who also said his group will get modern weapons if Israel gets them.

"Nuclear weapons are a matter of time," he said. "Make sure we will do it. The Israelis are discussing this."

But when reporters pressed him on this subject, and asked whether the PLO is planning to equip itself with nuclear weapons, he said: "No."

The Palestinian news agency WAFA reported earlier that Syria has agreed to supply Palestinian camps in Lebanon with missile defences against Israeli air attacks.

The agency did not specify the type of weapons, but informed sources in Beirut said PLO leader Yasir Arafat asked for the portable, shoulder-fired SAM-7 anti-aircraft missiles when he met with Syrian President Hafez Assad last Friday.

Car Bomb Is Defused By IRA Man

CLONES, Republic of Ireland (Reuter) — A car bomb planted by Protestant extremists in this border town was defused today by a man said to be a member of the Provisional Irish Republican army.

Hundreds of persons fled their homes before dawn when the car, packed with about 200 pounds of explosives, was parked in a main street. A van driven close by a farmer who was ambushed by gunmen and told his wife and family were being held hostage.

Police said the bomb was defused by a man who disappeared before Irish army bomb experts reached the scene.

A statement from the IRA provisionals said the man was a member of their organization.

A breakaway faction of the Protestant Ulster Defence Association called the Young Militants' Association later claimed responsibility for planting the bomb in the mainly Catholic town.

A telephone caller to the Irish Radio and Television Authority said the bomb was in retaliation for IRA car bombs planted in Northern Ireland.

Hospitals Ask Job Evaluation

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Association (OHA) wants a province-wide evaluation of jobs in all public hospitals, psychiatric institutions and health agencies in Ontario.

In a brief to be presented today to a hospital inquiry commission currently investigating pay scales in Ontario hospitals, the association urges formation of a "joint management-labor-public advisory committee to launch the job evaluation program to "restore appropriate wage differentials."

The association, which is the representative organization of about 227 public hospitals in Ontario, made a bid, in favor of joint bargaining.

Watergate Terms Called Too Light

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — Attorney-General William Saxbe said today it's unfair for Watergate convicts to receive short prison sentences while "thieves serve years behind bars."

"It is hardly reassuring when one man goes to prison for years for theft while another man involved in a conspiracy to steal our freedoms is in and out of jail in a wink of an eye," Saxbe said.

Saxbe's comments were in a speech for the annual convention of the National Association of Attorneys-General.

"No one is suggesting that the thief should not go to jail," the attorney-general said. "He should—and so should the man who is convicted of failing in his public trust."

The remarks expanded on Saxbe's earlier criticism of the extensive plea-bargaining involved in the Watergate prosecution. Critics have complained that some defendants have been treated too leniently after pleading guilty to reduced charges and promising to co-operate with the prosecution.

Saxbe mentioned no specific cases which he considers unfair.

"As we have seen in Watergate, men who held positions of great power have defrauded on

Court Delays Ruling on Nixon Plea for Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court postponed today a decision on President Nixon's request for the evidence which led a federal grand jury to name him as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate political espionage scandal.

The court deferred action until July 8.

Aussie Vote Proves Close

CANBERRA (AP) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia, who called a general election May 18 when a hostile Senate blocked his legislative program, again faces a split Parliament.

The final election results, released today after a five-week delay due to a complicated counting formula for the Senate, gave Labor and the Liberal-Country party opposition 29 Senate seats each with two Liberal-leaning independents holding the balance of power.

Labor controls the House of Representatives with a majority of five, having won 66 seats in the opposition's 61.

Shoes Fell Off So Nurse Slain

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Ethiopian guerrillas killed a British nurse they kidnapped because one of her shoes kept falling off and she couldn't keep up as they ran through the bush, said her companion.

Deborah Dorzbach, a pregnant, 34-year-old missionary nurse from Freehold, N.J., was napped May 27 with the Dutch nurse Anne Slickweide, and the guerrillas of the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) asked her to relay their apologies for the killing.

The guerrilla bent down and shot her in the head.

There was speculation that the guerrilla might have been frightened into shooting by the appearance overhead of a helicopter. But the helicopter was piloted by Grant Wyatt, a Canadian, instead of by Ethiopian soldiers, and the guerrilla, wounded, Wyatt when he landed nearby.

Law of Sea Parley Deadlocked

CARACAS (CP) — Less than a week after starting, the third United Nations Law of the Sea conference is gripped in deadlock.

Sources say unless drastically-opposed positions on methods for proceedings are resolved before a deadline set for Thursday, there is little or no hope any of the substantial issues to be considered will be dealt with satisfactorily.

At the moment, delegates' attention is fastened mainly on a compromise solution submitted by the relatively-small Canadian delegation at the conference in this Venezuelan city of rolling hills 2,000 feet above the Caribbean.

But the conference now also faces an unexpected demand from Arab states that the Palestine Liberation Organization be accorded representation, a move staunchly opposed by Israel.

However, the Canadians' main concern now is in finding a way out of the procedural hassle which has brought the conference, attended by all countries of the world except North Vietnam and Taiwan, to a virtual standstill.

The dispute centres mainly on the desire of the big powers and landlocked states to avoid any voting procedure in later stages of the meeting which would make it relatively simple for the resulting majority to pass resolutions contrary to their vital interests.

These countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, France, West Germany, Britain and Japan, want to concentrate on developing consensus decisions as far as possible and stay clear of snap votes in which they might easily be outnumbered.

Clashes Reported In Kiangsi

PEKING (Reuter) — New wall posters appeared in Peking today saying that more than 500 persons have died in massacres in recent years in China's southeastern Kiangsi province.

The posters also reported fresh clashes between feuding factions and referred to "two [illegible] incidents" in Kiangsi province June 10 and 18.

Observers said it is possible some statements in the wall posters, put up by workers in the strife-torn province, are exaggerated but they left little doubt that the situation there is specially explosive.

'Speed' Plant Found

HARLOWE, Ont. (CP) — An illegal laboratory for producing the drug speed was found in a raid Saturday night on a cottage near this community, 80 miles northwest of Kingston, an RCMP spokesman said.

William Charles McAllister, 33, Charles Morley Lansdowne, 30, both of Trenton, and Donald Wayne Harvey, 28, of Ottawa, were charged with conspiring to traffic in a controlled drug.

The spokesman said six RCMP officers, from Tyrrell, Ottawa and Kingston and a provincial police special enforcement officer took part in the raid.

He declined to say whether any drugs had been seized but did say experts were "debugging" the laboratory to prevent danger of explosion which may occur at a certain point in the production of speed.

Those arrested had been under surveillance for some time and the cottage laboratory was discovered Friday night, said the RCMP.

The spokesman said such an illegal lab rarely is found by police because usually such operations "float" from one location to another.

Planeload, Of 'Pot' Is Seized

CHESTER, S.C. (AP) — Six men were arrested and marijuana with a street value of about $3.7 million was seized at the Chester Airport Sunday by federal agents and the Chester County sheriff's department, police said.

The men were taken to Columbia and jailed but their identities were not released.

Sheriff Clarence Morgan said 471 cases of marijuana were taken from a four-engine plane at the airport. The police also confiscated the plane and a tractor trailer. About 200 pounds of marijuana weighed 35 to 40 pounds each.

The plane was flown from a South American country, Morgan said.

India Said Planning Test Of H-bomb

NEW DELHI (AP) — An Indian news agency reported Sunday that the Indian Atomic Energy Commission plans to detonate a hydrogen explosive device as a successor to its underground atomic test last month.

Arson Charged Following Fire

Belleville police have charged a 19-year-old Belleville man, Darl Albert Dore, formerly of 126 James Street, with arson following a mid-afternoon fire Saturday that completely destroyed the James Street home of Diana Dale LaRue.

Shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday, fire swept through the LaRue home at 126 James Street, and sent thick clouds of smoke billowing through the centre of the city.

When firemen arrived at the scene at 3:18 p.m. flames were jumping through the living room window in the centre of the front wall of the building and had eaten their way up the front of the house in a wide V.

As the firefighters set about trying to extinguish the fire, they discovered that the interior of the home was completely engulfed in flames and the fire had spread to the rear stairs rooms, the walls and the roof of the building.

Flames had burnt their way through a hydro line that ran from a pole on the southeast corner of the building's lot and the live power line had fallen across the house driveway.

PUC officials were called in disconnect the power running to the house and a short time later police detectives arrived at the scene to launch an investigation.

Mrs. LaRue and her three children were away from their home when the fire started. They were visiting at a friend's house on Octavia Street and were notified that their house was on fire approximately one hour after they had left it.

One of Mrs. LaRue's next door neighbors, John Wilbanks, of 130 James Street, turned in the fire alarm after another neighbor had called his attention to the smoke coming from the building.

Mr. Wilbanks told The Intelligencer that he had seen smoke coming from the upstairs windows of the building when he looked out his side door.

After phoning the fire department he and his daughter rushed outside to move two cars and a pickup truck that were parked in their driveway, right next to the north wall of the LaRue house.

Mr. Wilbanks said that after he and his daughter had moved a car and the pickup truck the heat from the burning house made it impossible to move the third vehicle out safely.

Captain L. W. Wannamaker, of the Belleville fire department and the men under his command from the West Moira Street fire hall managed to contain the fire to the LaRue home only, but said that the house and its contents were a total loss.

Belleville fire inspector Paul Stephenson and an official from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office launched an investigation into the exact cause of the fire ear, Monday morning.

Dore, who also used the alias Darl Campell, had lived at the James Street home until late Friday night when police were called in to end a domestic dispute. He was arrested by police in Kingston late Saturday evening.

City Police detectives brought Dore back to Belleville early Sunday morning and charged him with wilfully setting fire to a dwelling house.

Dore is being held in custody at the Quinte Regional Detention Centre in Napanee and will appear in court here Tuesday for a bail hearing.

Injuries Minor

Two Cars, House Accident Victims

A 17-year-old student driver and his instructor were treated for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital Saturday, after the car he was driving spun out of control and hit another car and a house causing an estimated $4,250 damage.

Police say that Willy Chow, 17, of 711 Haig Drive, and his instructor, Patrick Lawrence, were injured when the car Chow was driving spun out of control as he was making a left hand turn onto Yeomans Street from Catharine Street.

Chow swerved to miss hitting a pole as he made his turn and crossed into the southbound lane on Yeomans Street where he hit a car driven by Brenda J. Cora, 21, of 46 Maple Drive.

After hitting the front left end of the Cora vehicle, the Chow auto ran into the front of the house at 47 Yeomans Street.

Both Chow and Patricia Lawrence were treated for minor cuts and bruises and released from hospital.

Police estimated damage to the house at $3,500, while the Chow vehicle received an estimated $1,000 damage. The Cora auto sustained $30 damage.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the weekend:

Saturday, June 22, 3.18 p.m. house fire at 126 James Street arson suspected house a complete loss.

House Destroyed by Fire

Fire destroyed a two-storey wood-frame house on a large street corner lot on Saturday. Belleville firefighters were at the scene for nearly two-and-a-half hours fighting the blaze which police and fire officials believe may have been deliberately set. A Belleville man, Darl Elbert Dore, 19, who lived in the house until late Friday night has been charged with arson in connection with the incident. When firefighters arrived at the scene, they had to cut a hole in the roof of the building to let the smoke and heat out.

Ameliasburgh Firemen Tops

More than 80 firefighters from eight volunteer fire departments and one professional department spent their Sunday afternoon running around the Ameliasburgh Fairgrounds at Roblin Lake spraying each other with hoses this weekend.

Then wasn't a fire at the fairgrounds and - even though it looked somewhat like a Mac Sennett movie, the firefighters had a purpose behind their antics.

The wet display was part of the Hardings and Prince Edward Firefighters Mutual Aid Association's field day.

Designed to improve the firefighters skills while at the same time allowing them to indulge in some friendly competition, the field day attracted approximately 250 spectators to the fairgrounds.

The Ameliasburgh volunteers walked away with the majority of the day's prizes as they won five first place trophies for their performances in the 1-foot ladder race, the 28-foot ladder race, the hose coupling race, the hose replacement race and the hose cart race.

The Marmora fire department came in second with a first place finish in the efficiency race. They also won a second and a third place prize.

The Thurlow volunteers won third place with two second and two third place finishes.

Sidney volunteers won the equipment race, while the Frankford volunteers won the seven-man bucket race.

Boy 'Serious' After Fall

A seven-year-old Belleville boy, Stafford Williams, of 18 Prince of Wales Drive, is listed in "serious" condition with skull fracture in Kingston General Hospital this morning after he fell 12 feet from the roof of Holy Rosary Separate School while trying to retrieve a ball around 2 p.m. Saturday.

The Williams boy was playing with four other friends near the west side of the school when he fell from the building.

City Ambulance attendants rushed the boy to Belleville General Hospital where he was treated prior to being rushed to hospital in Kingston.

With the help of the Kinsmen, Belleville became a part of Scotland over the weekend. More than 100 pipers and approximately 50 drummers marched their way through the city on Saturday night as crowds gathered on the sidewalks to watch the CFB Trenton Pipes and Drums and the CFB Trenton Brass and Reed Band perform a ceremonial retreat in front of the armory on Bridge Street East. Old men danced in the street to the tune of Scotland the Brave, as children sat on the curbstones, hugging their knees, and watched the parade go by.

Marmora Mine's Life Extended

By RUBY MCCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — A change in the economic position that will allow continued mining of low grade minerals will result in an additional two years of life for Marmoraton Mining Company at Marmora.

This was the good news the Marmora district received at the mine on Friday and announced over the weekend by mines general superintendent George Wistl.

In making the announcement Mr. Wistl said he was pleased the life of the Marmora mine had been extended.

"It will be good for the employees and for the people of Marmora" he said.

The extended life of the Marmora mine means that the operation will continue until 1977 instead of closing in 1975 as had previously been announced.

Marmora Take 2

Mr. Wistl said that a year ago the market was not conducive to the continuation of mining low grade minerals but officials of the parent organization, Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Pennsylvania, had taken a fresh look at figures provided by Marmoraton Mines and had decided that it was feasible to extend the pit and continue operations for another two years.

There are 200 employees at the Marmoraton Mines, including 22 students hired for the summer.

Mr. Wistl said the two-year extension in the life of the mine would give employees more time to make adjustments and find other employment.

Although the mine operation would now be continued for another two years, Mr. Wistl said it would be foolish for people to hope for further extensions.

"The ore resources are just not there," he said.

Roy Fox, president of Local 4954 of the United Steel Workers of America at Marmora said the union executive and members were "very happy" to hear that the life of the mine had been extended, if only for two years.

He said it would be an additional economic boost for everyone in the general Marmora area, for members of Local 4954 and staff members at the mines.

"Also, he said, "we welcome the news as we go to negotiations with the company on local issues because we now can bargain from strength whereas before the announcement we were trying to bargain with a company who told us they were closing in 1975."

This, said, would have made the union's bargaining position very weak.

Municipal reeves of Marmora village and Marmora and Lake townships, also were pleased with the announcement, the mine's life would be extended until 1977.

Village Reeve Jack Reynolds said the extension would be of considerable benefit to the area and would provide additional time for the community to make plans for the eventual mine closing.

Township Reeve Graham Bell welcomed the mines operation extension for two reasons.

He said the extension would mean continued employment for between 80 and 90 mine employees who live in the township.

Also, the extension would mean another two years of full face bubella for the township from the mines owners.

Mr. Bell noted that 14 per cent of the municipality's total tax revenue now comes from Marmoraton Mines.

Draw Winners Announced

The Ontario Humane Society has announced the results of a lottery held earlier this month.

The $10,000 winner was Roger Wolfe of Oshawa and the $1,000 winner was Patrick O'Reilly of Newmarket. Joan Lester of Brockville won $1,000 and Mrs. R. Klaas of Thunder Bay won $500.

Pipes and Drums Capture City

When the people of Belleville speak today, they will probably have a burr in their speech.

It shouldn't surprise anyone though, since, with the aid of the Belleville Kinsmen, the city became a part of Scotland over the weekend.

The Kinsmen sponsored the Fifth Annual Quinte Highland Weekend here on Saturday and Sunday as the city throbbed to the beat of close to 80 drummers and the trill of more than 100 pipers.

The weekend got under way at 7:30 p.m. Saturday as 10 Highland pipe and drum bands marched down front and Bridge Streets on their way to the Armory for a special military ceremonial retreat.

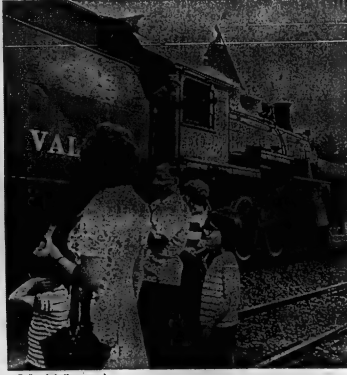
As the bands marched by to the tune of Scotland the Brave, grid Road to the Isles, crowds who gathered on the sidewalk, gazed at and clapped for the men and women who wore the tartans of 15 different clans.

In front or the armory the CFB Trenton Pipes and Drums and the CFB Trenton Brass and Reed Band entertained the city with a presentation of the ceremonial retreat.

Old men danced at the side of the roadway as the pipers marched by and children, who sat on the curbstones hugging their knees, let the magic of the bag pipes fill their dreams with the heroic deeds of bravery kilted men.

If the parade and the retreat were not enough for the Scottish heart on Saturday, the Kinsmen had more to offer. From 1 p.m. until well past 5 a.m. Sunday some 600 people danced the Gay Gordons at the Tartan Ball inside the armory.

On Sunday afternoon, more than 3,000 people showed up at the fairgrounds to watch nine pipe and drum bands swing across the race track and the infield. The Rob Roy Highland Dancers, from Kingston, and the Mississauga Scottish Country Dancers also entertained the appreciative audience.



The Fort Henry Guard, from the Old Fort Henry, Kingston, put on a 45 minute display of 1867 military drills, battle tactics and artillery manoeuvers as their fife and drum band led by David Hill, the Guards' billy-goat mascot, marched the troops off the field to make way for Belleville Quinte Loyalist Association Pipe Band.

Led by Pipe Major Douglas McCluskey, the Quinte Loyalist band marched and played their way through a 15-minute performance that ended with a rendition of Amazing Grace.

After a brief competition to select the best Drum Major, the massed pipes and drums paraded past the grandstand.

The Highland Weekend, which was organized by Bob Lafferty and 16 other Kinsmen, ended with the presentation of five trophies to the four best bands and the best drum major.

The winners were; Canadian General Electric Pipe Band, Peterborough, — Best Performing Band; Ajax Ladies Pipe Band, Ajax, — Best Women's Band; Oshawa Legion Pipe Band, Oshawa — Legion Pipe Band, Coburg, — Best Veteran's Band, and the 500 Gordon Pipers, from Indianapolis, Indiana — the Best Dressed Band. Drum Major John Neill, of the Rob Roy Pipe Band, Kingston was selected the best drum major.

Railroad buffs were delighted to watch an old coal burning steam locomotive rush along the CPR tracks on its way to Ottawa Saturday at noon. Steam Engine 1057 made the run from Toronto to Ottawa this weekend and thin crowds of railroad enthusiasts lined the track in Belleville and Trenton to watch the old girl make her run. The train did not stop in either Belleville or Trenton.

Medical Men Discuss A Question of Life And Death

This is the second of three instalments of a UNESCO-sponsored discussion between a panel of eminent medical men concerning responsibility in the medical profession. The point at death and the use of healthy organs from dying persons is debated.

The conclusion of the first instalment had Dr. Joan Jacobers of the World Health Organization saying that a survey of 418 doctors in the State of Washington in 1970 showed that more than half were prepared to practise passive euthanasia (a withheld emergency) at the request of incurable patients or their families. If the validity of such a request is not legally recognized.

He added that since 1964 the Swedes had considered it both legitimate and justifiable in certain circumstances for doctors to stop the life of incurable patients.

"The physician's raison d'etre is to care not to kill. But does prolongation of the life of the incurably ill by unnatural means necessarily fit by universal humanitarian standards the patient's wishes, or rather the refusal of the physician to accept defeat."

The discussion continues from the first part.

CRONKITE: It's an almost impossible problem. How do you call a doctor go? Where does reasonable therapy and and unreasonable therapy become broke. I have that it's impossible to lay down rules and says you whether I was really trying to save the life or to obtain a painless victory . and, from time to time, I wondered myself. Well, we're in 1974, the girl is married, she has children and she's perfectly healthy. But what if she had died? I surely would have been accused of being relentless.

Very often the family consider the doctors' persistence unreasonable and say: "You should let him die." And it would often be easy to commit such sins of therapeutic omission. Yet if you were to commit them, thousands of people whom we are able to save would not be alive today. The doctor must be able to hold out against the family, and even against the nursing staff, who sometimes find it difficult to understand his stubbornness to fight to the end.

BERKOWITZ: Yes, the family of the patient very often want to end their agonizing death watch. Even those who have an interest in organ transplantation are not free from reproach of what constitutes death so the organ sought may be taken while circulation continues.

The hospital and society in general have a vested interest in preserving life. Enormous economy and useless procedure in hopeless cases. Occupancy of a bed jeopardizes other salvageable patients.

Is this correct, the presence of vested interests raises the possibility of selfish rationalization and is a warning of the dangers to society.

JONCHEERE: Euthanasia must not be permitted, but the economists trying to solve the problem of the increasing cost of public health services and holding expensive treatment and protection from certain disabled or bed-ridden or mentally ill people. Even in Canada it is assessed that their life is not worth living and can to all intents and purposes be said to be condemned as relentless cases of incurable illness.

Dr. Jean de Grouchy in his book "L'Avenir Pygmalion" (The New Pygmalions), published in France last year, quotes the Nobel prize-winner Dr. Francis Crick, as suggesting that registration of births should be delayed for two days to allow time for new-born babies to be examined and, if they are abnormal, suppressed. This position is certainly utterly unacceptable. As is the other proposal from the same source, quoted by de Grouchy: "Dr. Crick also suggests that people over 65 should no longer be entitled to medical care."

CRONKITE: That's ridiculous. It's against all that we've been taught in medicine all our lives. We are meant to believe. It's an absurdity.

JONCHEERE: Under no circumstances must the state have the right to decide life or death matters. If we were to allow it we would be on the most active slipping back into ideocore current among the Anglo-Saxon and Germanic racial states." Finely wrote in 1920 Three of the Republic, "every individual, as an occupation to which he must attend, and his therefore on leisure to spend in continuing being ill. This is the sort of law which you will sanction in your state. They will minister to better inducements, giving health both of soul and of body; but those who are disposed to their bodies they will leave to die..."

CN's Year

We learn from the annual report of Canadian National that despite the railway strike of July-September and an industry-wide shortage of railway equipment, CN last year increased the productivity of its rail operations and moved the largest volume of revenue freight traffic in the company's history.

Income from all operations (railway, hotels, telecommunications, trucking etc.) reached a record level and the company's operating profit — net income before interest on long-term debt — was $48.5 million. This is described as a slight improvement over the previous year.

From the novel cover design by Claire Dorset Redmo artist Nilenoak to the color pictures of trains in various legendary settings — from the soporific swaying of the restaurant car to diesels plowing through snow against a backdrop of mountains, the company's image is one of stability.

This is not to say that everything in the marshalling yards is rosy. For instance, there is that $100 million paid out in subsidies annually to keep both CN and CP going. And aren't we all aware of the less desirable failings of the Government-owned rail system; trains that don't arrive on time, cars that are not shiny or well-scrubbed as depicted in those glossy pictures of the beautiful people being served coffee and all. And haven't we heard from top transport man in the Government, Jean Marchand, express dismay at the general state of public transportation in Canada?

Improvements there must be, and we may expect the next government to tackle them. Meanwhile, our railways remain a fascinating and reasonably efficient element in the big sky country, amid the vastness and yes, the often unsung greatness that is Canada.

Propaganda Flurry

Suddenly, from out there somewhere, the proponents of the far left have decided to conduct a flurry of propaganda activity. And from right here in our midst at that, or at least from no farther away than Gravenhurst.

Gravenhurst is the home of Northern Neighbors — the "magazine of socialism in action . . . Canada's authentic alternative current magazine reporting the USNR." That's the way editor Dyson Carter and his publishers see their journal which, stripped of its heavy-handed left-wing rhetoric, is fascinating. For here, especially through its pictorial work, is a glimpse of the Soviet Union and its satellites which the average Canadian is not afforded. A copy has come to this office and it is also available, incidentally, at the Corby Library.

Then there is Gramma, the official organ of the central committee of the Communist party of Cuba, which a member of this staff informs us arrives in bulk at his home. Something of a mystery to him — all the more so since it was mailed in Belleville. Accompanied in the same bundle by another left wing sheet entitled Vietnam Courier, it was marched on the outside wrapper: Information Cuba.

Are we to conclude that Fidel Castro has his man in Belleville? An interesting thought indeed? Or was it just dropped in the mail by some Bellevillian who is a subscriber — and a fellow-traveller?

Lastly there was an anonymous piece containing a "Preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World." The text, framed circularly, informs us that "the working class and the employing class have nothing in common," and it offers us the old line about the evils of capitalism, concluding with the ditty to the effect that politically, we "ig-nore time's stubborn trend." Come the revolution and all that!

This last gem shows no identification either and it is a sharp reminder of the faceless, personal-liberty-hating nature of Communism. It is apparently comes to us from some local source. Well, let it be . . . this is a free country.

Inflation Bites Still Deeper Into Car Ownership

Sherbrooke La Tribune:. The life of an automobile owner is becoming more and more expensive. Inflation is like a plague. It affects everybody.

The announcement by the Canadian Insurance Association about the next increase in automobile insurance premiums is, in itself, no more surprising than the financial charges accompanies lightning. But it still makes us jump.

Auto insurance companies foresee an increase, on July 1st of 15 per cent in the cost of premiums in Quebec. Increases will vary from province to province, from 8.5 per cent in Ontario to 19.3 per cent in New Brunswick. We in Quebec, then, will be neither the most lightly nor the hardest hit.

The insurance companies cite inflationary effects on indemnities, medical costs, vehicle replacement parts and salaries of employees. These factors cause considerable profit losses that justify the next increase in premiums.

In Quebec, the government has received the report of a committee studying automobile insurance reform. The report, made public in mid-May, says implementation of a no-fault system would mean a reduction of 15 per cent in the cost of insurance because of lower administrative charges, elimination of the middleman and abolition of the responsibility factor in accidents.

The report's promise risks the fate of ice in the sun. We will see in October what the Quebec government intends to do. It must it can do is suggest strongly to the companies that they implement only a reasonable increase.

The announcement of premium increases should make the Quebec government reconsider confirming the report's recommendation in favor of an insurance system based on private companies. The companies as well as individuals should confront inflation and take appropriate steps against it.

The Quebec government has the right to the fight to hide behind claims of powerlessness if it truly wants to minimize the harmful effects of inflation on citizens.

Restrictions on Smoking in Hospital Wards

Kingston Whig-Standard
Committees at both the Hotel Dieu and Kingston General Hospital have been established to consider smoking restrictions in the two institutions.

The medical advisory board at HDH already made the recommendation last January that all smoking be banned in the hospital.

The Ontario Medical Association took a slightly more mild approach than HDH in recommending smoking areas banned in patient-care areas and the sale of tobacco products at outlets in hospitals prohibited. It also took a harsh view of doctors who smoke in patient-care areas.

KGH took what is perhaps the most reasonable approach to the problem. It says that a ban on smoking in hospitals is not a problem exists — in suggesting that doctors, staff and visitors be allowed to smoke only in specified areas and private rooms in the hospital.

It is proper for the hospitals to consider the rights of nonsmoking patients and visitors, but they needn't go overboard in supporting fanatics and smokers who often are more concerned about what smoking may be doing to themselves than they are genuinely bothered by the smoke. Those who are discomforted by tobacco smoke should feel free to make their invitation known to smokers who, in turn, should have the courtesy to desist.

The suggestion that doctors, ambulance drivers and other medical staff be prohibited from putting around patients is laudable. Unfortunately, it would lend an element of credibility to their proposals by less of a do-as-I-say attitude and more of a do-as-I-do example.

There is a place in hospitals as in other public areas for social pressure to be brought against smokers, but not stiff prohibitions against smoking. Smokers do have their rights, and they should suffer from restrictions in buses and such sections of airplanes; stiff penalties besides; and warnings everywhere they turn that the last puff may be their last.

If smoking is worth putting up with all that, then, within reason, smokers should be left to their own folly without quite so much paternalistic interference from others.

Rape Victims Face Legal Pitfalls

Letter in The Ottawa Journal

If ever there was a condemnation of our modern society, it appeared in the articles on rape (Journal, May 22). This offence is one of the fastest growing crimes in North America, and yet the attitude of lawyers and police in Ottawa, is just go home and be glad they weren't beaten, and leaves one that it is easier for the women just to try to get over the thing by herself without pressing charges, it is easy to see why the number of completed and attempted rapes, and 156 charges of indecent assault in Ottawa during 1973, apparently no convictions resulted. If I were a rapist, my next move would be towards Ottawa where I could get quite secure.

I urge that something be done about the present situation. Why don't the police, for example, recruit more women officers to deal with rape cases? Surely it is obvious that when a woman has been raped, the last thing she wants to do is to tell her story immediately after is another man. Any defence counsel for women could be hilisted by the police. Lawyers, too, should be working on having rape laws changed instead of condemning the fact that they are impossible.

The major charge, of course, needs to come from society. A raped women is the victim of a particularly degrading crime, but too often instead of receiving sympathy, support and guidance she needs, she is further humiliated by the suspicion or unsympathetic attitude of the people who know about it.

The myths about rape must disappear. For instance, the myth that women enjoy rape. Why don't Some cannot suicide after it; many are emotionally scarred for life. Judging by the police and lawyers, the change is not going to come from them. Only the Lord, that God whom women really need to support each other.

Cobourg.

In the past nine years, 16,000 miles of American railroad have been abandoned, says The Christian Science Monitor. Including this figure there have been almost no new construction. The prime cause, statistics show, is highway competition, affecting 58 percent of the mileage abandoned. Trucks have cut under the impetus to find scrap steel, railroads were able to dispose of 1,000 miles of track for which they had previously been unable to secure authority to abandon.

Exhaust Pollution

Regina Leader

The Saskatchewan Government has decided to enforce tough restrictions on automobile exhaust fumes as of the beginning of the new fiscal year which starts in April 1975. Japan is the first country to take this major step in the fight against air pollution.

On January 31, the Environment Agency announced the standard figures for existing automobile emissions. The standards center on the reduction of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions to one-tenth of present levels. In line with the new requirements, the Transport Ministry announced a partial revision of safety standards under the Road Transport Vehicles Law.

The automobile emission controls will be carried out in two stages — in 1975 and 1976.

Controls for 1975 will cover passenger cars seating 10 persons or less, and light buses and trucks with a designated tonnage of 2.5 or less. This includes both gasoline and liquefied petroleum gas automobiles. Large-sized buses and trucks and diesel vehicles will be excluded.

Terrorism

The Economist (UK)

Northern Ireland has suffered much longer than Ne Zeta has his often outside its own heads, among people who have been too prejudiced to see it. In the thought and understanding it needs. The Irish Republic has many people of various latent Northern Ireland sympathies.

Nothing has happened that could not be foreseen. No mistake has been made. Much had not been forecast. These are the direct consequences of the politicians and people in the British Isles.

Many more people will die in the British Isles because of human ineptitude. The British reckoning will inevitably not befall those in the United States and Canada who have contributed to sustain terrorism in Ireland. The terrorists are financed by financial backing, with arguments by little thought for the men and women their crimes and arms will kill or mutilate.

This is one reason why could, and should, be cut down drastically. Ireland and British people can triumph troubles without such friends.

PC Campaign

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Conservative campaign trail is beginning to look rough water. Tory crew members are demonstrating a decided lack of harmony whenever questions come up about Mr. Stanfield's policy on wage freeze.

There is nothing new about Tory campaigns. For the most part they are a combination of indecision and arrogance. This one is no different.

Mr. Stanfield, some, effervescent George Hees and self-appointed PMO critic, Mike Ellis, are both floundering when it comes to questions about the Liberal imposed wage and price freeze.

Mr. Hees, in his inimitable fashion, will revert to it as an electric shock lasting 60 to 90 days to be followed by other "appropriate" steps.

Mr. Ellis, is sufficiently vague on the whole thing to indicate that he either does not believe "appropriate" steps or he does not understand it.

The thing grows daily more apparent, the average Canadian is not going to understand it, but certainly is not buying it.

And, when you come to think of it, why should Canadians buy it? Canadians are not investors unless formula to satisfy the political ambitions of a party that has showed itself incapable and unfit to govern ready for the reins of government.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY,

Courtroom Costumes Curtailed

The Globe and Mail

We sympathize entirely with the sentiments expressed by Mr. Justice M. A. MacPherson of Saskatchewan's Court of Queen's Bench who recently turned down a request that dressing in a distracting way — gaudy garb, he called it, would no longer be allowed.

By all means, a sedate air should be maintained in the courts. However, the Judge admonished, Obscheerd pants and colored shoes would not be permitted, he said. But there would be no objection to the shirts worn by lady barristers.

Now that is very interesting. We assume all judges are gallant, so he couldn't have meant that Saskatchewan ladies in miniskirts posed absolutely no distraction. But he suggested that some distractions are more valuable than other? Or that there is a certain somethings lacking among Westerners?

Or did he simply want to stress that male lawyers were not to turn up in court in miniskirts!

Smithfield Community Has itself a Heyday

SMITHFIELD — An estimated 700 people sat down for Heyday, chicken dinners Saturday — double the population of this little community west of Trenton.

The outdoor chicken dinner, a highlight of the Smithfield Heyday, brought hour-long lineups wandering to the open-pit fireplace.

Heyday has its roots in Canada's Centennial, year when local folk decided they'd like to get into the country's bi-hoary celebrations.

Since then the event has expanded, now drawing close to 2,500 people from surrounding communities.

Charles Buchanan, this year's heyday chairman, told organizers had a ball getting the show ready. The event is sponsored largely by the Smithfield United Church Heyday proceeds provide the following year's operating funds for the church.

Heyday this year included a tour by the horse-drawn buggy and buying freshly-baked pastries, prepared by church women.

For city types, Heyday was a chance to hear Trenton Citizens Band, attired an authentic children's pet show or try log-sawing.

SOPHIASBURGH — The survey for the new Sophiasburgh township cemetery, in Prince Edward County, is expected to be completed this week. Although there is still considerable red tape involved, the project is rapidly becoming a reality

Mrs Wayne Lindsay, Northport, says once the survey is completed, a provincial government cemeteries inspector will inspect the site and determine a cairn, commemorating the pioneers already buried here, will be placed

The survey will then be forwarded for government approval On its return, location of plots, cemetery prices and cemetery bylaws will be established There in turn will need government approval

She chosen in the old Presbyterian cemetery located just east of Sophiasburgh central school between the communities of Northport and Demorestville. Due to lack of funds this site was chosen because there were only 13 existing stones to be repaired and only the remainder of the one-acre site was available for further development

Although additional land is not immediately required, the cemetery board decided to purchase another three acres adjacent to the existing property for future use

Mrs Lindsay says the board foresees no problems Once initial work is completed, maintenance of the property and hiring of a backhoe to dig graves are the only expenses expected in future

July 13 is the date set to get existing stones in order, says Mrs Lindsay The existing graves, dating back to the mid-1800's, are located in the vicinity of a hickory tree It is planned to place the cairn in this location

Other plans for the cemetery include planting of flowers and a blue spruce hedge

Once the Sophiasburgh cemetery is well under way, the board hopes to take an active interest in some of the 21 remaining cemeteries scattered throughout the township.

"We hope we can get enough working capital to tackle one cemetery every year and get it cleaned up," commented Mrs. Lindsay,

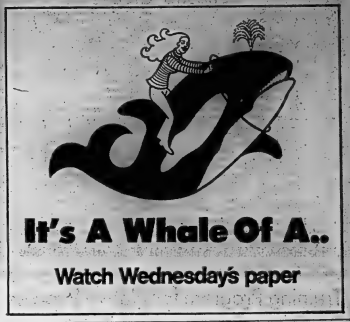
Trenton Prepares Big Canada Day

TRENTON — Canada Day, his town's annual July 1 weekend spectacle, wears a 16-hour, non-stop smorgasbord of free entertainment.

Jerry Goldberg, co-ordinator, looks at Canada Day as a chance for a family to get out for a whole day and not have to spend anything.

"Bring a lunch, the rest is free," he says.

Beginning at about 7 a.m., crews will begin constructing the dozens of booths around Trenton's Centennial Park that, by 9 a.m., will be filled with everything from food to handicrafts.



There's something for almost everyone, indicates the program, which starts with a tennis tournament, followed by tyke baseball. Then comes a thoroughbred dog show.

Traditional picnic competitions like potato-sack and three-legged races are scheduled with track and field events.

There are booths arranged by the Greek and Dutch communities, a bake booth and art show sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council.

Sightseers can relax to music of the Trenton Citizen Band, watch kilted CFB Trenton pipers and see performances by local actors.

Climax of the day will be the fireworks display beginning at dusk.

Quinte Cuisine

Sumptuous but simple might be the best way to describe Rachael Brady's lobster crepes. Mrs. Brady, who lives with husband Ian and sons Luke, 6, and Samuel, 7 months, on Bridge Street, likes the recipe because she can prepare the batter in the morning and store it all day in the refrigerator or make the crepes themselves and refrigerator or freeze them or even complete the whole dish for freezing and reheating. Mrs. Brady crochets and plays bridge and she pair are members of a gourmet group.

Lobster Crepes

Crepe Batter
¾ cup flour
pinch salt
1¼ cup milk
one egg yolk
one egg
one tbsp. melted butter

Sift flour into mixing bowl. Add salt, egg yolk, whole egg and half of milk. Stir with a whisk until smooth.

Add remaining milk and melted butter. Let stand one hour. (Alternately you can mix in a blender for 10 seconds. Sieving flour is unnecessary if blender is used.) Heat a five inch black iron skillet with shallow sides. Pour in just enough batter to cover bottom of pan and roll around quickly until it is covered. Flip crepe with spatula or knife when brown and brown. Cook second side and remove to clean towel.

Lobster Filling

5 ozs. sharp cheddar
8 oz. cream cheese
2 small tins lobster
½ tsp. worcestershire
¼ cup cream
¼ tsp. garlic
½ tsp. pepper
½ cup white wine

Combine cheeses in top of a double boiler. Stir until blended. Drain lobster. Add to cheese and add remaining ingredients. Cook until smooth. Place about two tbsp. of lobster on each crepe and fold crepe in half, pinching edges together. Crepes can be stored in the refrigerator and reheated in an ovenproof dish. Dot with butter and place in 400 oven for 15 minutes.

Sex After Sixty Healthy Exercise'

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Sex after 60? Ad least twice a week for longer, happier marriages, says Dr. Ethel Person, leader of a seminar on the sexual behavior of the elderly.

"It is completely normal for people in their 70s and 80s to be capable of normal, pleasurable sexual relations and for their partners to respond equally well," said Helen Person, a social worker who leads a series of seminars on the concerns of senior citizens.

Most elderly people repress their instincts because of the "puritanical attitudes of society which makes the public think that older people lack sexual desires," Mrs. Parsons said.

About 30 persons attended a recent seminar that was advertised throughout the city. Many senior citizen clubs refused to listen to "such dirty things" she said.

"It is terribly wrong what society has done," said Mrs. Parsons. "Of course sexual desires and ability for sexual intercourse live in every man and woman, regardless of their age."

One elderly woman blushed and left the room when she discovered the topic was sex.

Society's ashielden of youth, dirty-old-men jokes and the snickers that accompany news that an elderly man has wed a woman less than half his age reinforce gold older people have toward sex, Mrs. Person said.

Sexual inhibitions in older people were strengthened by other impediments to an active sex life.

There aren't enough elderly men to go around, because men tend to marry women younger than themselves. She said 57 per cent of those over 65 are women and two-thirds of the women are widows.

Many of those widows never had sex after their husbands died because they felt guilty about pursuing a man.

A lack of privacy also hampers sexuality, Mrs. Parsons said. Nursing home patients can't visit privately with their spouses. And many older couples live with their children or grandchildren and have few chances to be alone.

Pension and United States social security regulations also discourage remarriage because payments then are adjusted downward. Mrs. Parsons said many older people soon get around those problems by not bothering to get married and living in "social security sin."

A geriatrics nurse, Dorothy Saltman, said even patients who are told by their doctors to "take it easy" can indulge in sex—and it can help some of them.

"Sexual intercourse is good, healthy exercise, comparable to a brisk walk around the block or climbing a flight of stairs. In fact it is quite beneficial."

Mrs. Saltman said the arthritis and cortisone released by the body during sex often eases pain from arthritis.

"Enjoying sex is evidence that one is living. It is an affirmation of life and a denial of death."

Dear Readers: Out comes the wet noodle. This time I deserve 20 lashes because that's the number of stries I've heard from as a result of my most recent gaffe.

Although I was led down the garden path by a woman who signed her letter, "A fellow Legal Secretary," I am not blaming her. It was incredibly stupid of me to accept her statement without checking. She said, "The key to 'Broke In' can serve to expedite the transfer of the estate and reduce fees and expenses. In larger estates, however, joint tenancy not only can create unexpected problems, but can in fact increase the death tax burden in such estates.

Within 24 hours after that column appeared in print, I received a phone call from the Internal Revenue Service and letters from nine Chicago lawyers, two legal secretaries and Rev. Mark Brammel of the Claretian Fathers. Boxes of phone calls came in, followed by another load of letters.

Brookline's problem became quite clear when she referred to IRS insurance policies, IRS securities, property, etc. Had this man been smart enough to put all his assets in joint tenancy, the properties, securities, bank accounts, etc., would have passed to the wife without becoming part of his estate and therefore they would not have been taxed."

The correct advice is as follows: In modest estates when there are no death tax considerations, joint tenancy ownership can serve to expedite the transfer of the estate and reduce fees and expenses. In larger estates, however, joint tenancy not only can create unexpected problems, but can in fact increase the death tax burden in such estates.

Within 24 hours after that column appeared in print, I received a phone call from the Internal Revenue Service and letters from nine Chicago lawyers, two legal secretaries and Rev. Mark Brammel of the Claretian Fathers. Boxes of phone calls came in, followed by another load of letters.

Training Program for Native Peoples

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Catholic Family and Children's Services has established a pilot program for registered status and non-status Indians to train as welfare aides.

The project was set up after agency workers began to realize that for all the help they field trips have given her an insight into the facilities available to social workers.

"We also have slight duty with the social workers on calls from people with problems they can't handle," she said. "Night duty encompasses all facets of social work and we are involved with whatever the staff is involved with—child abuse and neglect, medical problems and child care with people of every racial origin."

Teresa Herring, a mother of two from Squamish, B.C., and a practical nurse, said the biggest problem with families in trouble appears to be alcoholism of one or both parents.

"The main thing we try to do is keep the family together and when things get completely beyond the parents, we send in a home-maker to help out," she said.

The other trainees are Barbara Bobb of Lillooet, B.C., Ruby Dennis of Prince George, B.C., and Jerry Seymour of Kamloops, B.C.

May Rodriques, 22, a Katchen Indian from the Yukon, said she is willing to offer Indian eight into the facilities available

WI Rose

Adelaide Hunter Hoodless, 1857-1910, founded the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. A rose named in her honor was developed by Agriculture Canada and is on the market for the first time this year.

Women's Institute Has Rose

They've come a long way.

Gone are the days when they had to fight to get household science courses established in Ontario schools, when their energetic founder and leader, Adelaide Hunter Hoodless, conducted a fund-raising campaign to establish MacDonald Institute, now part of the University of Guelph.

They've the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, just as concerned about the quality of life today as they were in 1897 when the organization was founded. They submitted a brief to the Royal Commission on the Status of Women dealing with marriage and divorce, women in the labor force, and taxation as it pertains to married women. They have sent submissions and resolutions to various governmental departments dealing with health services, the aged, water pollution, agricultural retraining programs and educational television.

They've set up a Northern Canada Women's Institute Fund to continue adult education for women of the north. Another of their ongoing and continuous projects carries the motto 'Make and keep Canada beautiful'.

And it all started when Adelaide Hunter Hoodless of Hamilton, Ont., recognized a need for education among rural women. The first meeting of the F.W.I.C. was held in Stoney Creek, Ont., on February 19,1897.

The F.W.I.C. is now established in all 10 provinces, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Recently, a new Canadian rose was named in honor of Mrs. Hoodless.

Developed by plant breeder Dr. Henry H. Marshall of Agriculture Canada's Morden, Man., Research Station, the Adelaide Hoodless rose was released to the Canadian Ornamental Plant Foundation in 1972, the year of the F.W.I.C.'s 75th anniversary.

The Adelaide Hoodless rose is hardier than other red rose cultivars of the floribunda class. A vigorous, upright, open shrub, it grows about four feet tall, and has only a few spines. Its glossy, semi-double, medium red flowers are produced with seven leaflets per leaf and is moderately resistant to blackspot and mildew.

The rose blooms continuously and profusely from June right through to the end of frosts. Its flowers are in clusters of up to 25 blooms, semi-double to double with about 25 petals measuring 2.5 inches in diameter when fully open, medium red in color, faintly fragrant and long-lasting as a cut flower.

Only one Canadian nursery is selling the Adelaide Hoodless rose this year, although demand is expected to be strong, especially from the approximately 25,000 F.W.I.C. members. It is expected that more nurseries will carry the rose next year.

The Experts Say

Gardening Indoors

EDMONTON (CP) — When Gordon Holmes' geraniums fade in September, he plants them in the basement and has a new, luxurious growth for Christmas.

With a little ingenuity, he has devised a miniature indoor greenhouse from an extra fireplace where he grows all his plants for outdoor use in the warm months.

But even for those without the ability to design their own indoor gardens, keeping a little green alive through formidable Canadian winters isn't difficult.

Terrariums, windowsill planters and prefabricated units attached in a house or garage are among the numerous alternatives to a full-scale greenhouse.

Mr. Holmes has a system that is inexpensive, yet as effective as a commercially built unit. Taking the space originally meant for a fireplace, he built a two-shelf greenhouse fitted with hinged glass doors.

The fireplace vents are used for air, and heat comes from furnace pipes. Humidity is controlled by the amount of water in gravel-filled trays under the plants and growth is stimulated by a suspended fluorescent light.

Any nook can be converted into a miniature garden with a few cuttings and a flowerpot light. But for those who want to grow a potted mum, a terrarium is the answer.

A terrarium is a transparent container, such as a bottle, fish bowl or brandy snifter, containing a variety of hardy foliage.

"It's pretty hard to kill these plants, they grow so well on their own," said Rush Walker, florist at a local import shop. "As long as there is enough light, the plants will be hardy."

A terrarium is started by placing broken brick material in the bottom of the container and covering it with gravel or shredded foam, a little peat moss and soil.

Plants must be selected for their compatibility and arranged in a miniature landscape leaving plenty of room for new growth.

"At first it may seem like it's almost bare," said Miss Walker, "but in no time those plants will shoot up."

The plants should be watered before they are put in the terrarium and afterwards with a fine spray. The top opening is covered and the plants are left until there is a noticeable difference in the water condensation inside the container, which may take up to a month.

Terrariums have a definite life span but careful pruning can prolong growth.

A more sophisticated garden was devised by a retired Edmonton physician and his wife, who decided to add a 10-by-14-foot prefabricated greenhouse to their dining-room.

"Greenhouses you can live in—that's really the idea, in this country anyway," said the physician.

Rose Commemorates IODE Anniversary

Doris Whitemore and Loreen Ellis are trying to get their first roses hats finished as Dalsa Bonnyman tries hers on for size. The IODE women will wear their hats when they sell IODE roses at the Rose Show at Centennial Secondary School June 29 and 30.

To commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire in Canada next year, that group has developed and will sell the IODE rose, ared floribunda.

The national organization hopes to sell 75,000 of these roses for 1975, with proceeds going to various charitable purposes. In Ontario, proceeds will aid genetic research and counselling.

The rose, propogated by Ellsmere Nurseries, Brooklin, Ont., will be sold locally at the Belleville Garden Club rose show to be held June 29 and 30 at Centennial Secondary School. A booth will be operated by members of Belleville's two chapters of the IODE, Argyll and St. Julien.

The three-and-one-half-inch roses with 22 to 24 petals, will bloom from late June to November. The bushes cost $3.50 or three for $10 and will be available for planting this fall. The bushes are guaranteed for one year and will be shipped directly to the purchaser.

Books By And About Women

NOAH'S ARK

By Marie-Madeleine Fourcade

There have been many books about Intelligence and Underground forces operating during World War II and here is a remarkable addition to the list: the memoirs of Marie-Madeleine Fourcade.

In 1940 she became the leader of an intelligence group called "Noah's Ark" by the German Gestapo because they used animal names in their code. The citation for her Legion of Honor award read: "By her daring, her courage, and her coolness she obtained remarkable results, always succeeding in repairing the most critical situations, and knowing how to communicate to those whom she directed the ardent faith that inspired her."

With its re-creation of scenes and conversations, acts of sacrifice and treachery, arrests and escapes, her book forms a breathtaking and moving drama.

In fact, some of the events chronicled are more akin to fiction than to fact. Here are such adventures as the author's escape from the Vichy government just before being turned over to the Germans; her painful trip, cramped in a diplomatic mailbag, across the Pyrenees; the spiriting of General Giraud out of occupied France by submarine; the betrayal of the Alliance network by a double agent and Marie-Madeleine's escape from a Nazi prison by squeezing, naked, through the bars of her cell window and fleeing through the city. A unique record of courage, sacrifice, and devotion.

Demorest — Casselman

Christ Church was the setting for the May wedding of Lisa Doreen Casselman and Charles Dennis Demorest in a ceremony conducted by Rev. John Usher.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Casselman and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Demorest.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer over taffeta with a front bodice of guipure lace, long sleeves, and a scoop neckline. The full skirt had an apron-type front edged with lace, as was the train. Her headpiece of lace flowers held a tiered veil and she carried a cascade of red roses. She wore an heirloom cameo necklace.

Terence Welch was bridesmaid in a gown like the maid of honor's but in yellow. She carried white daisy mums.

Stewart Foster was the groom's best man, and the ushers were David Casselman, the bride's brother and Rod Demorest, the groom's brother.

They now live at 28 McColl Street in Trenton.

Lindsey Revill

Bridge Street United Church was the setting for the May 25 wedding of Patricia Clare Revill and Ronald Keith Lindsey. Rev. George Ward and Rev. George Hall, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Revill, RR 7 Belleville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F.E. Lindsey of Pointe Claire, Quebec.

The maid of honor, Barbara Revill, sister of the bride, wore a gown of green polyester dotted with tiny orange and white flowers. The dress featured a square neckline, long full skirt, and long sleeves gathered by an elastic at the wrist. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies and orange mums.

The bridesmaid, Sean Hart was attired similarly to the maid of honor and also carried an identical nosegay.

Cathy Guier, niece of the groom, was the flower girl, she wore a dress similar to the maid of honor and carried a basket of yellow daisies and orange mums.

The best man was David Brown and the ushers were Alan Revill and Tim Hurley.

The soloist was Lorraine Ball and the organist Dawn Ball, both cousins of the bride.

The buffet dinner reception took place at the Four Season's Hotel.

After a motor trip to Southwestern Ontario the couple will reside in Ottawa, Ontario.

People and Events

More than 100 United Church Women assembled at St. Andrew's United Church Marmora on June 12 to study in some detail the "Plan of Union" of Anglican, United Church and Disciples of Christ.

Evelyn Redpath, Oshawa was chairman; Grizzly Curtis, Cobourg conducted the worship.

Margaret Fallis, Peterborough, a member of the committee gave a chief outline of the event leading to the talks between the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada. Later the Christian (Disciples of Christ) expressed a desire to participate in the talks. The next three years will be crucial as the groups vote to accept or reject it.

A filmstrip "That all the World May Believe" followed. The gathering was then divided into six groups with each being given a particular section for a more detailed study.

A short food-back concluded the day, and each group was challenged to urge the women in their area to study the plan and thus be able to vote intelligently when the time comes.

Sister Joan Whittingham, Religious Education Consultant for the Separate School board described, with the help of slides, her mission experiences with Indian children at Armstrong in Northern Ontario for the Marmora C.W.L. Sister Joan was introduced by Marilyn Maloney and thanked by Beverly Maloney.

Members and guests were welcomed by president, Leona Brady, who gave an informative account of the recent C.W.L. Convention in Brockville.

Pitching Key to Golden Bat

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

July 5, Belleville Minor Baseball Association will once again host one of the elite baseball tournaments in the province.

The 35th Annual Belleville Golden Bat Bantam Tournament will commence Friday July 5 and last through to Sunday.

Teams from across Ontario, including representative squads from Toronto, Windsor, Hamilton and Guelph—to name a few — will contest for the coveted Golden Bat. All in all the tourney roster has 20 teams.

Along with the prestige of winning the Bat, the Grand Champions will also receive warmup jackets.

The A and 'B' Champions of the three-day affair will receive individual keeper trophies before playing off for the Grand Championship.

Most of the awards are made possible thanks to the sponsorship of Belleville Legion 39.

One of the favored teams in the tourney is last year's 'B' Champion, Legion 31 from Toronto.

"Our club is stronger this year than it was last season," commented Legion coach Tom Carter. "We're really getting some great pitching from our bullpen and as a result we're in first place in our division."

The Legion hurlers, led by lefty Mark Zwolinski, have so earned run average of under one a game.

Zwolinski, a first year batsman, pitched the Legion powers to the Grand Championship last season.

"The Golden Bat is just about the best bantam tournament in the province," added coach Carter. "Every team in it since it started and we wouldn't miss it for the world."

Toronto Legion isn't the only team with some pitching howitzer, they'll be facing great tough pitcher from the Belleville area.

Trenton Sate Farm insurance is one club that's known to be a threat to the tournament record.

This is our first year in the Golden Bat," said State Farm coach Ron Bowerman. "we don't know what the other teams are like but we'll be in there fighting."

Behind the strong pitching of young Chris Walsh, the State Farm club has compiled a respectable 10-3 won-lost record.

With Walsh on the mound and the tight Trenton defence behind him, the club appears to be a strong contender.

Belleville's own, Legion 99, appear to be an early favorite for one of the Championship

Dan Hamilton (8) motions frantically for Trenton State Farm Insurance teammate Brian Hansen (3) to hit the dirt at home plate. Hansen was tagged out by Belleville Legion 99 catcher Steve Badgley on the play. The umpire was attempting to steal home from second base.

on a throwing error that had the ball travel to left-field. Belleville won the game 7-2 with a five run surge in the eighth inning. Both teams will be appearing in the Belleville Golden Bat Bantam Tournament, July 5, 6 and 7.

Olympics Battle Back for Tie

The Belleville Olympics picked up their seventh point out of a possible 10 on the weekend, tying Oshawa Ballerina 3-3 in a game played at OSD field. The tie gave the local team in the Premier Soccer League a record of three wins and a draw against only one loss.

The Olympics were outplayed in the first half of the contest as the visitors made good use of the wind.

Oshawa opened the scoring with a header by their centre forward with about 30 minutes elapsed in the half.

Dave Fundic replied with the prettiest goal of the day when he netted a beauty from a solo effort. The Olympic's centre forward carried the ball from centre field, beating two Oshawa defenders before tucking the ball in the upper left hand corner past the goalkeeper.

Although the Belleville team took over the wind and the ball control in the second half, Oshawa reared out with a pair of goals to set the score at 3-1.

However outstanding passing by Belleville forwards kept the Oshawa goalie hopping and the locals came back to tie the contest.

Peter Hillier fed Fundic a pass on a cross, with Fundic's shot on goal coming right back at him from the net's minder. He made no mistake on the second try, narrowing the count to 3-2.

Hillier tied the score with only five minutes to go on a direct free kick. After an Oshawa defender had touched the ball with his hand inside the penalty area, Hillier curved a shot around a wall of Oshawa bodies into the upper corner of the net for the tying score.

Fundic and Hillier were the outstanding forwards for the local team, with Mike D'Orazio the top performer in a defensive role for Belleville.

MATCHES RECORDED

LONDON (AP) Andrea Lynch, a 21-year-old English bank clerk, equalled the world 66-metre record for women Saturday with a time of 7.3 seconds in a track meet here. The record is already shared by Australia's Betsy Cuthbert and Irina Bochkaryova of the Soviet Union.

Devolin Tops

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Quinte Pinfield League teams based in Belleville captured championships in the annual tournament here on the weekend.

Devolin Motors roared to the A title on the strength of three consecutive wins.

Hollies Construction dropped its first game but bounced back to take the honors on the B side.

Strong relief pitching by Jim Holoway featured Devolin's championship win as the team topped Kingston Verona 5-2. Holoway took over from starter Jamie Hunter in the fifth inning and proceeded to bandcuff the Kingston squad.

Kinsmen Champs

The Belleville Kinsmen Sqmirs won their first tournament title of the year on the weekend, capturing the B Division crown in the 16-team Scarborough Tourney.

The local crew won three out of four games in taking the title, losing only their first game of the day, to Exigente. The Exigente Youth organized out the Kinsmen by a tight 4-3 score to send Belleville to the B side.

Bradley Gray's three singles in the game were enough to give the Kinsmen the win.

Belleville dumped West Hill in their second game of the day 14-11 to advance to the semi-final round, with Sean Monaghan and Allan Thompson each striking three singles and Stephen Gough a triple to pace the attack.

In the third game, the Belleville crew came up with its biggest output of the day, with a 20-5 victory over Glenfair.

Greg Denard connected for four singles in the contest with Brad Gray adding a home run, Doug Haley, Monaghan, and Gough Carey each contributed a three-base hit.

Thompson struck out eight batters in picking up the win.

In the championship game, Keswick fell to the Belleville team by a 5-3 count, with Monaghan firing the win. He struck out 10 Glenfair batters.

Greg Denard had a double and a single for the winners with Peter Wood contributing three singles.

Holoway Handcuffs O'Brien's

Sonny Holoway and company blasted O'Brien's Glass Service 9-8 Sunday in Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play. In the only other weekend game Consecon upended Bayview Construction 7-2.

Holoway, the stalky pitcher for the Gems, was the nemesis of all but one O'Brien's batter as he fanned 19, walked none and gave up one hit a single to Jim McCormack.

Reg Bennett led the way for the Gems with three singles while Neil Goyer and Holoway added a double. Harold Babcock, Tom Hiddelston, Jim Cassidy, Wayne Fowler and Carl Yates each singled.

Gary Mateer and Pete Scott were on the mound for O'Brien's but it was the Gems

Wayne Clarke fired a five-hitter, but Consecon batters held Bayview to just one run. Clarke threw third - strikeout pitch to Bayview batter to end the game.

Consecon got a double and a single from Stan Clarke, a triple from Bob Hall and a single each from Lionel Adair, George Phillips and Ted Hall to down Bayview. Larry Harrington and Bill Fraser each singled.

Mitch Yost and Wayne Craig doubled for Bayview, while John Allison, Gary Mason and Gerry Inglis singled.

George Poste and Coles each had a single for the Independents and Ken Bertrand added three doubles.

For Canadian Tire, Alec Reich and McCoy led the way with a triple and a single each.

Masteron Leads Latta

John Masteron's no-hitter highlighted South Hastings Baseball League action Saturday, with the Latta pitcher's gem pacing the team to a 7-1 win over Marmora.

The lanky right-hander left 11 men standing at the plate in the win, issuing seven bases on balls.

Ron McTaggart was tagged with the loss, giving up all seven Latta hits, in the five and two-thirds innings he pitched. He allowed nine hits, walking four and striking out nine.

John Pepper came on in relief, allowing no runs, hits, or walks in the final frame and one-third. He fanned one batter.

Masteron also helped his own cause at the plate, contributing a double and single to the Latta attack, as did Reg Ackerman. Donald Smith cranked his fourth home run of the year, with singles, going to Damion Richardson and Dale Tumnon.

Terry Mudge, McTaggart threw a steady nine innings of ball Sunday afternoon to lead Melrose to a 7-4 victory over Camelton Plate's Corners.

McTaggart scattered eight hits gave up three walks and fanned five Plate's batters.

For the Camelton crew it was Bob Robb going eight and one-third innings before giving way to Ken Abrams. Robb gave up 13 hits all-seven runs issued two walks and struck out eight. Abrams came out to retire the side fanning two.

Robb and Abrams were the only two Camelton players to get wood to the ball. They punched two singles each.

Melrose was led by Bruce Pascoe and Dan McTaggart with three singles each Glen McKechan with a triple and a single and Scott McLaren with a pair of singles.

Perez Finds a Way To Corral Knuckler

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Perez was standing at home plate, waiting for a knuckleball from Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro.

It was the second game of Sunday's doubleheader against Atlanta Braves.

Catcher Johnny Oates was crouching with mitt ready as Niekro's knuckleball — Perez laughed.

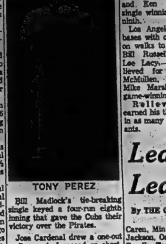
"You're having trouble catching it," he said, "and I'm supposed to hit it?"

Then the Reds' slugger did exactly that, sending a Niekro pitch into the center field seat for a 2-1 Cincinnati victory and a sweep of the doubleheader against Atlanta.

In the opener, Roger Nelson won his first game since May 7 with Joe Morgan contributing three hits, including a two-run homer in a 4-3 victory.

The sweep returned the Reds to second place in the National League's West Division 6½ games behind Los Angeles Dodgers.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Montreal Expos trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-3, Chicago Cubs topped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3, Houston Astros defeated San Diego Padres 10-7 and Los Angeles topped San Francisco Giants 4-3. New York's game at Philadelphia was rained out.



In Saturday games, Pittsburgh beat Chicago 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies swept a double-header from New York Mets 3-2 and 8-3, Cincinnati topped Atlanta 3-2, San Diego defeated Houston 6-2, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 3-2 and St. Louis downed Montreal 4-3.

Home runs by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson and pitcher Claude Osteen's two-run double led Houston to its rout of the Padres.

The Dodgers batted from behind to defeat the Giants with Manny Mota's bunt single tying the score in the seventh inning and Ken McMullen's pinch single winning the game in the ninth.

Los Angeles had loaded the bases with one out in the ninth on walks to Joe Ferguson and Bill Russell and single by Lee Lacy. Don Sutton was relieved for the Giants and McMullen, batting for winner Mike Marshall, delivered the game-winning single.

Reliever Mike Marshall earned his third straight victory in as many days against the Giants.

TONY PEREZ

Bill Madlock's tie-breaking single keyed a four-run eighth inning that gave the Cubs their victory over the Pirates.

Jose Cardenal drew a one-out walk, reached second on Andy Thornton's error, then stole third and scored on Madlock's single to left.

Oshawa is One Down

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Tonys proved Sunday that softball games can be won by various means.

The Tonys got a clutch double from winning pitcher Barry Timbers in the 12th inning of the opener and then took full advantage of eight London errors to defeat the Dukes twice, 3-1 and 5-4, and move to within one game of first place in the West Division of the Ontario Fastball League.

In other games Sunday, Toronto Globals took two from Woodstock Warriors, 3-1 and 3-1, and Burlington Spinners blanked St. Catharines 3-0. The Kitchener at Niagara Falls contest was postponed because of a power failure.

Saturday games saw Hamilton Wesmen and St. Catharines Jerseys split a doubleheader. The Jerseys won the nightcap 5-1 after losing the opener 3-0. Niagara Falls McRaes blanked Toronto 5-0 and Newmarket Rays dumped London 6-1.

Timbers went the distance for his fourth win against two losses, allowing seven hits and striking out 13. His winning double followed a bunt single by Bob Young.

Dick Hames suffered the defeat. He also went the route, giving up 10 hits while striking out nine.

Paul Wawrzaszek got credit for the victory in the first game with relief help from Wayne Conley. Wawrzaszek (6-0) registered four strikeouts.

Bob Sloveigkid was the loser, his fourth setback in as many decisions. He struck out two before being replaced in the seventh by Joe Adam.

Globals 3-2 Warriors 1-1

Pete Landers won both games for Toronto, going the distance in the first and relieving starter Mike Mobun in the seventh inning of the second. Don Reeder and Bill Fiddis suffered the losses for Woodstock.

The Globals were led offensively by Stu Aiken who had a home run and triple in the first game and knocked in the winning run in the second contest.

Provisioners 3 Jerseys 0

Al Few threw a two-hitter, striking out 11 St. Catharines batters in recording the victory. Losing pitcher Don Cole gave up five hits.

Hal Kemp had a two-run homer in the ninth to accept for two of Burlington's runs.

Wesmen 9-1 Jerseys 8-4

Wally Dick fired a one-hitter in the Hamilton victory as the Wesmen took advantage of St. Catharines miscues to score three unearned runs in the third. The loser was Dick Balint.

However, Balint came back in the nightcap holding the Wesmen to three hits. Reg Martin was the loser.

In the second game, Al Beckman hit a two-run homer for St. Catharines which took advantage of seven Hamilton errors to register the victory.

Millers 5 Globals 0

Ed Neudorf clubbed two-run homers in the first and fifth innings to give Niagara Falls the victory.

Jake Neufeld picked up the mound victory, striking out eight while limiting the Globals to four hits. Mike Mobun was the loser.

Rays 6 Dukes 1

Les Dowdall paced Newmarket with three singles, a double and two RBIs. Ken Lagace added three singles for the winners.

Bill Linney went the route for Newmarket, allowing seven hits and striking out eight. Joe Adam took the loss—his fourth in six decisions.

League action resumes tonight with Kitchener in Woodstock.

Rick-and-Rico Team Does Job for Boston

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rico Petrocelli, hobbled by a pulled hamstring muscle that has knocked him off third base and left him as Boston Red Sox' designated hitter, belted a pair of solo home runs Sunday.

And Rick Wise, recovering from a broken finger, pitched five solid innings in his first start in a month. The Rick-and-Rico combination, plus some healthy hitting, powered Boston to a 9-6 victory over Cleveland Indians and enabled the Red Sox to widen their American League lead to 5½ games over Detroit Tigers.

In Sunday's other games, New York Yankees beat the Tigers 4-1, Milwaukee Brewers walloped Baltimore Orioles 9-4, Kansas City Royals defeated Oakland A's 4-1, California Angels crushed Texas Rangers 10-2, and in a doubleheader, Chicago Cubs edged Minnesota White Sox 2-1 before the Twins tripped the White Sox 6-3.

In Saturday's games, Detroit beat New York 6-1, Chicago defeated Minnesota 3-1, Cleveland beat Boston 11-8 and 3-8, Baltimore defeated Milwaukee 7-2, Oakland edged Kansas City 3-2 and California beat Texas 7-4.

Petrocelli unloaded his eighth homer of the year into Fenway Park's left field screen in the second inning to give Boston a 1-0 lead.

The Red Sox added three more runs in the third on a double by Tommy Harper, a single by Dick McAuliffe, two walks and a two-run single by Rick Miller.

Petrocelli hit his second homer in the fifth. Boston wrapped up the romp with runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

Wise gave up only two hits and a walk in five innings before giving way to Bob Drago.

WRIST INJURED

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Steve Busby, who pitched a no-hitter for Kansas City Royals in his last start Wednesday, was returned to Kansas City Saturday for treatment of a sore wrist. The American League Royals requested an examination of Busby by an Oakland Athletics doctor Friday night. He developed the ailment as tendonitis in the right wrist.

Rico Petrocelli Tim Foli

Newly-acquired Rudy May pitched a four-hitter and Bobby Mercer doubled home the tie-breaking run during a sixth-inning downpour in the Yankees' victory, which spoiled the postponement of the second game.

Darrell Porter belted a first-inning grand-slam homer off southpaw Dave McNally that started the Brewers' rout of easy over Baltimore.

Lindy McDaniel, making a rare start, retired the first 12 Oakland batters he faced, and Cookie Rojas drove in three runs with a pair of three-hit triumps over the A's.

The Royals scored all their runs off rookie Glenn Abbott in the third inning.

Frank Robinson and Lee Stanton made it easy for California's Nolan Ryan to gain his first major league victory. They hit two-run homers in the first inning and drove in three runs apiece in the stampede against Texas.

The loss kept the Rangers 1½ games back of first-place Oakland in the West Division.

Jim Bibby pitched a four-hitter while Carlos May singled home the winning run in the 10th inning of a wild pitch in Chicago's first-game victory.

In the eighteen, the Twins' Danny Thompson tripled in the seventh and scored on Steve Braun's tie-breaking single. Bob Darwin had hit a three-run homer to put Minnesota into a 3-3 tie in the ninth.

Panasiuk Tops Norman In Quebec Open Playoff

HUDSON HEIGHTS, Que. (CP) — Golfer Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., says he thinks for more about hitting a good shot these days than the consequences of striking a bad one.

"I don't get tense and nervous now," Panasiuk said Sunday after he won the Quebec Open championship following a three-hole sudden-death playoff with Moe Norman of Clinton, Ont.

"When you can make mistakes and still finish two under par after 54 holes, something must be working right."

Panasiuk and Norman had finished the regulation three rounds with 214 scores over the par-72, 6,660-yard Whitlock Golf and Country Club course.

They began their playoff at the 18th tee and Panasiuk won it on the 12th hole when Norman's eight-foot putt for a par four rimmed the cup and slid beyond the hole. Panasiuk had two-putted from 35 feet for his par.

Panasiuk won $3,800 and Norman $2,850. Panasiuk had rounds of 69, 72 and 73, while Norman shot 72-69-73. The pair had started the final round tied with three-under par 141 totals at 36. But Norman's three-stroke lead after nine holes proved to be the end of the course.

He ran a disastrous streak of bogeys on 13, 13 and 14 and then took a double bogey on 15 for a 43, while Panasiuk came home in 37.

Steve Groves of Lancaster, Ohio, Russel Fischer of Mexico, and John Boyd of Victoria, B.C., finished one stroke over par at 217 and each won $975.

Dave Graham of Calgary and Mike Ford of New York equalled the competitive course record 68 in Sunday's final round. Unfortunately for both, their charge came too late.

Graham wound up tied for 5th with Bob Smith of Montreal, Leon Decarie of Toronto, and John Khoriel of Sarasota, Fla., at 218, worth $307 to each man.

Ford, son of U.S. pro Doug Ford who was twice Canadian Open champion, was alone at 219 and won $250.

Four golfers, including first round co-leader Doug Robb of Chilliwack, B.C., carried 221 for their 229 totals.

Defending champion Ray Hoot of Sorel, Que., fired a five over-par 231 worth $150, with Gary Bowerman of Toronto and Oscar Cerda of Mexico.

Richard Marsh of Montreal was top amateur in the event, Marsh, Greg Pidlisaki of Southville, Ont., Adrien Bigras of Rosemere, Que., and Mike Veilleux of Montreal finished at 222. The three put in the group picked up $150 each.

Griffins Bounce Back

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Griffins bounced back from a 6-1 deficit after the first period to down Toronto Tomahawks 13-12 in overtime last night in one of two National Lacrosse League games.

The win increased the Griffins' first-place margin in the league to 3 points, since second-place Tomahawks who still have a game in hand on the Griffins.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Wings drew a three-way tie for third place by defeating Maryland Arrows 11-6.

At Rochester, Paul Warden, Glen Neuman, Rick Dudley and Jimmy Henderson each scored twice for Rochester while Al Gordanier, Jim Bilson, Brian Langhorst, Barry Bartlett and Brian Bowman added the others.

Jack Chisholm scored two goals for Toronto with singles going to Jim Quigg, Duffy McCarthy, Joe McCrea, Stan Jones, Jim Dunning and Bob Lynch, Charlie Marlowe and Ron Wilson.

At Landover, Md., Larry Lloyd and his younger brother Jeff scored for Philadelphia in the victory with Larry scoring four times and Terry adding three others.

Carm Collins and John Grants scored two each for the winners with Tom. O'Grady, Joe Krabal, Doug Maynard, Jim Waghorn, Bob Goulding and Mike Collins getting the others.

WTT TO FILE SUIT

LONDON (CP) — The World Team Tennis will file a $10-million lawsuit following the signing of Australian Jimmy Connors and Australian Evonne Goolagong respectively. ...ropean tournaments because they were under contract to WTT, it was announced Sunday. WTT commissioner George McCall told a news conference the league had decided to sue promoter Jack Kramer, owner Donald Dell and Commercial Union, a major tournament sponsor. Connors and Goolagong were banned from the French and Italian championships because they were members of WTT.

Time Didn't Stand Still For West German Team

FRANKFURT (AP) — The ticking is on the wall for West Germany, one of the world's top soccer teams over the last decade.

At the halfway point in the World Cup, West German fans are seriously worried about captain Franz Beckenbauer and his men. They started the tournament as favorites for the trophy, but now are struggling.

The initiative has been seized by two teams from Eastern Europe—Poland, 100 per cent improved after three games, and East Germany, which upset the highly-rated West German squad.

The German press is saying rude things about Helmut Schoen, the manager who took the West German team to the finals.

His once-brilliant team has begun to slow down. Wolfgang Overath, Gerd Mueller, Bertie Vogts, Juergen Grabowski, all stars of the 1970 World Cup in Mexico, have failed to make the impact for which German fans had hoped.

West Germany has found its way into the second round, but only very convincingly. Saturday's defeat by East Germany in Hamburg, in the first full international match between the two countries, was a severe blow to national pride, according to Schoen.

The team manager, now 58, came from East Germany and formerly starred for SC Dresden. He has been under fire and above all to win this one.

England, Yugoslavia, The Netherlands and Sweden have all looked more penetrating in attack than West Germany. These four go into the second round along with the two Germanys, Brazil and Argentina.

A Routine Par Shot Does it for Colbert

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It was a routine shot for a par five, but Jim Colbert couldn't have asked for a better shot with a hole in one.

Four-man, sudden-death playoff Sunday had been reduced to Colbert and Ray Floyd after Floyd's bold bid for a birdie turned into a bogey instead, that routine par shot was enough to give Colbert the title in the American Golf Classic, the fourth victory of his career, and $34,000.

Floyd and the other two playoff losers, Forrest Fezler and veteran Gay Brewer, each got $13,100.

George Knudson of Toronto tied for fourth with a four-round total of 293. He earned $236. Ben Kern of London, Ont., had 77 for a 296 total, good for 20th.

Bert Yancey, Jim Jamieson, Dwight Nevil and J. C. Snead shared the prize for the best stroke at 282.

Arnold Palmer matched the day's best round, a 69, and finished with 287 and 11th. Open champ Hale Irwin had 73 for a 290 total.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and Johnny Miller did not compete.

Kelley Expects Problems

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — General manager Jack Kelley expects the World Hockey Association New England Whalers says a WHA squad will be ready when it faces the Soviet national hockey team in September.

The Soviet team is scheduled to begin intensified practice Aug. 1 for the eight-game series with the WHA players which will take up Team Canada. The Canadians are not scheduled to start workouts until Aug. 15, which will give them 17 days to get used to one another and develop team timing.

In Theory, West Germany deserves to be the favorite. The West Germans are playing in times of their own supporters. They have seven players from Bayern Munich, reigning European club champions, who are accustomed to playing together.

Beckenbauer, at 26, is still probably the best defender in the World Cup. He commands his forces from the back line and seems to see two moves ahead like a good chess player.

But for all Beckenbauer's inspiring leadership, West Germany simply isn't clicking as it used to.

Overath, 30, has played his heart out in midfield these last 10 days but has not penetrated the holes in the packaged defenses which have been a feature of the tournament.

Grabowski, 30, no longer has the speed that demoralized the tiring English team when he went on as substitute in the boiling heat of Leone, Mexico, in 1970.

Mueller, 28, top scorer in the 1970 tournament with 10 goals, has managed only one in three matches so far.

"We can no longer play open attacking football," Schoen said.

But his comments came after The Netherlands had given an all-out attacking display to crush Bulgaria 4-1 and Sweden, attacking on the wings in the old-fashioned style, had crushed Uruguay 3-0.

Roberto Porta resigned as Uruguay's manager after the defeat by Sweden, saying: "I went to apologize for the sad and disgraceful role the Uruguayan team has played in this Cup."

Despite a 1-1 tie with Yugoslavia Scotland was eliminated from World Cup play Saturday as a result of Brazil's 3-0 win over Zaire.

Brazil, the defending champions, moved into a second round match with Yugoslavia.

In other play Saturday, Chile played to a scoreless draw against Australia and did not reach the second round.

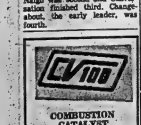
Move Over, Police Car

TORONTO (CP) — Amber Herrod and Native Aid joined Police Car as favorites to win next Sunday's running of the 115th Queen's Plate after victories Sunday in the two divisions of the Plate Trial Stakes at Woodbine racetrack.



Native Aid, ridden by Sandy Hawley, won by 1¼ lengths over Noble Answer. Doctor McKay finished third and Frank Romeo was fourth.

In the second division, Amber Herod came from off the pace at the head of the stretch and ran well to end Connaught Lass' bid for a second consecutive victory. Police Car, unbeaten in four starts, was scratched from the second division of the trial. He will work Monday morning.

Saturday's card was highlighted by the running of the Canadian Oaks Stakes—Canada's top race for three-year-old fillies.

Trudie Tudor gained the victory by 3¼ lengths with Sandy Hawley aboard for his fifth successive Oaks winner.

Trudie Tudor took the lead shortly after the start, spotted it up to three lengths in the stretch and held on to outdistance Snow Game and take home the winner's portion of the $71,690 purse for owner Doug Beskin.

Top Floor Built First

NEW YORK (AP) — What the neighbors call the "upside down building" is rapidly going up or coming down—depending on your grammatical point of view—in a wooded section of the northwest Bronx.

It's the new 26-storey apartment, entertainment and shopping centre for 366 families constructed with the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

What's so different about it is that the pre-fabricated 26th storey was lashed into place first. The lower floors are being added underneath and the first floor will be the last in place.

Last January two pillars of concrete, each containing stairs and elevators, were erected in the conventional manner, from the ground up.

The individual floors, complete with plumbing, electrical wiring, windows and enamelled steel exterior sheathing, are assembled on the ground and raised into place on eight hydraulic jacks.

Police Battle Students

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP) — Squads of club-wielding police battled with about 200 teenagers Saturday when a high school graduation party turned into an hour-long melee in this Detroit suburb.

Several minor injuries to both police and party-goers were reported. Two arrests were made.

Hostess Mrs. Al Lukic called for police help in dispersing the crowd after she said the party got out of hand. Her daughters was among the Friday graduates at nearby Franklin High School.

Phil Winkler, 18, said he had to use half of his $100 graduation present to bail his father, by 18 per cent.

Paul, out on bail. The older Winkler was attending a party for adults across the street and was charged with interfering with police officers.

CHAMPAGNE SALES OFF

The Champagne Council says champagne sales in France have dropped 2.5 per cent this year and in the United States by 18 per cent.

Seaway Blocked

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (AP) — A 612-foot freighter ran aground Sunday in the St. Lawrence Seaway, blocking a section of the seaway for more than 16 hours before it was freed, the United States Coast Guard said.

The Ivory Star, a Singapore registered vessel en route from Duluth to Montreal, was freed by tugboats shortly before 6 p.m. The vessel had blocked the downbound and eight upbound ships after its main engine malfunctioned, the coast guard said.

Gallup Poll Finds Liberals Have Increased Their Margin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Liberals found some encouragement in the results of a public opinion poll released Saturday but a Progressive Conservatives and New Democratic Party spokesmen were skeptical that it was an accurate prediction of the result of the July 8 vote.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., NDP Leader David Lewis was asked at a news conference about the lot of a Gallup Poll indicating preference for the NDP had dropped to 18 per cent in mid-June from 21 per cent in early May.

"I wish we had shown higher, but so much for the results on July 8, as for the results of the thing," said Mr. Lewis.

He said the poll, too much faith has been put in public opinion polls.

And, Mr. Lewis said, he is not discouraged.

Similar views was also sought from Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield who said in Halifax he has no reason to believe the poll figure which indicates the percentage of, undecided voters has dropped to 14 per cent from 21 in mid-May.

Mr. Stanfield said in the past polls have consistently underrated his party and that is probably true this time.

When told the poll indicated the Liberals have increased their preference percentage to 43 from 40 in mid-May and the Conservatives had gained one point to 34 per cent, Mr. Stanfield commented that if he had listened to the polls in 1972, "I would have dropped out midway through the campaign."

"The election battle is a battle for the mind of the voter until the final day," he said.

Prime Minister Trudeau was asked about the poll when he reached Summerside, P.E.I., on his way home to Ottawa for a rest after campaigning in Newfoundland.

He said he is encouraged by the results but he noted that no one really knows what the results will be in the July 8 election.

Stanfield Defends Pay, Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Stanfield returned late Saturday for a two-day campaign break after winding up a five-day, cross-country tour with a defence of his party's proposed income and price controls.

The Progressive Conservative leader capped his 6,000-mile campaign trek in Sydney, N.S., with the declaration that Canadians are "fed up with slithy and apologies and misrepresentation and outright dishonesty" in politics.

Arguments by the Liberals that Canada's inflation rate is lower than the U.S. rate are false as are the Liberal and New Democratic Party arguments that the Conservative 90-day income and price freeze would hurt wage earners, Mr. Stanfield told about 500 people at a Sydney party rally.

The freeze period, leading to up to two years of income and price controls, would, in fact, put wage earners in "a no-lose position."

The 14 months of minority Liberal government prior to the calling of the July 8 election saw wage increases eaten up by higher prices, interest rates and rents, Mr. Stanfield said. The Conservative freeze and controls would halt this process.

"The only thing that will happen to those who have wage controls will be that their wages will mean something rather than they do today . . ."

He said the Liberal proposal for an anti-profiteering law—the bill died at dissolution of Parliament—would be complicated and time-consuming to administer. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau was "not taking questions" about the proposal which Mr. Stanfield said would entail the records of every company in the country being examined.

Arguments by Liberal supporters that Conservative action against rising prices would be taken out on farmers were "a kind of blackmail that never bothered me and I know it won't bother the farmer."

Voting Commences

OTTAWA (CP) — About 15,000 Canadians are expected to cast their ballots today for the July 8 federal election.

The Election Act provides that public servants abroad, such as embassy staffs and members of the armed forces, may cast ballots on special voting days—one is June 24.

Of these the largest number is from the armed forces—about 8,000 in Europe, 500 in Cyprus and 100 in the Middle East. Election officials say dependents of troops overseas and in the United States eligible to vote will number about 12,000.

About 2,000 foreign service officials plus another 1,000 dependents also will be eligible to vote. Employees of external affairs, trade, immigration and other departments also are among the groups.

The votes will be sent to returning centres in Ottawa, Halifax, Edmonton and London, England.

Arguments by Liberal supporters that Conservative action against rising prices would be taken out on farmers were "a kind of blackmail that never bothered me and I know it won't bother the farmer."

Corporate profits and farm production costs are rising while 50 farm product prices are down, Mr. Lewis said.

"We have said that farm prices cannot be stabilized until farm production input costs are under control. And I have said to the farmers of this country that a freeze on consumer food prices will not mean a squeeze on farm prices."

Mr. Stanfield said the premiers of all provinces except Quebec, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia are on record as being prepared to support price and income controls.

"I don't say they're supporting us in this election, but I do say they support controls."

Legality Of Outlay Questioned

OTTAWA (CP)—Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday spending by the Liberal government on programs announced during the election campaign is "very dubious constitutionality."

Appearing on the CTV television network program Question Period, Mr. Stanfield said implementation of some of the programs during the campaign "is being very high-handed."

"What disturbs me even more are the announcements and commitments they are making . . . It seems to me off the top of their heads," he said.

Asked about spending or funds on programs announced during the campaign for the July 8 election, Mr. Stanfield replied:

"I think it's very, very dubious constitutionality in terms of propriety.

"In the situation the country is in now with the existence of runaway inflation, I think it's totally irresponsible what Mr. Trudeau is doing now with these handouts and contributions that are clearly not thought out."

Can't Explain

HAMILTON (CP) — Speaking at an all-candidates meeting in Hamilton West riding Sunday, Progressive Conservative candidate Lincoln Alexander said it would be difficult to explain how his party would set up its proposed wage and price freeze to tackle inflation.

"A number of Progressive Conservatives within your own party have spoken out against it," one man called from the audience. "It's unfair to ask us to vote for it if you can't explain it."

ANGMERING, England (CP) — Barber Don Mockford was almost forced into early retirement by an old war wound that caused him increasing leg pains. PM Goes to Quebec For Jean Baptiste Day

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will go to Quebec tonight for a quiet finish of St. Jean Baptiste Day, the feast day of the patron saint of Quebec and a day often marked with nationalist expressions.

The prime minister will fly late in the day to Quebec City to attend a reception and to meet members of the St. Jean Baptiste Society and of the Canada Committee.

The latter group supports federalism while the former still is known as a nationalist group.

On Tuesday he resumes his July 8 federal election campaign.

It was no fun at the start of electioneering Saturday as the prime minister in one helicopter, Mrs. Trudeau in another and reporters in a third attempted to reach Carbonear on the coast from inland Gander.

The small machines of the prime minister and Mrs. Trudeau flew to within only a few feet of the water as they sought a hole in the fog over Trinity Bay.

Half way across, they gave up and turned back. Suddenly they were confronted with rising land before them and the pilots turned sharply.

"It was a bit scary," said Mrs. Trudeau afterwards as the helicopters refuelled. "There was that great mountain suddenly before us."

Later the party stood on a fish truck at Bonavista and a pickup truck at Fogo Island to communicate with fishermen kept ashore by ice from the Arctic that is hugging the shore for much longer than usual this year.

Lewis Marks 65th Birthday But Present May Come Later

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — David Lewis, 65, Sunday but Cape Breton Island New Democrats said they cheerfully give him his present until two weeks from today—election day.

So confident are they that Andy Hogan, a Roman Catholic priest, will retake Cape Breton-East Richmond riding that the Cape Breton labor leader will lecture them on the pitfalls of overconfidence.

But their confidence would not be contained as they gave Mr. Lewis one of the most enthusiastic receptions yet in his campaign for the July 8 vote.

After a high-absolute birthday party on Dauy Air on the way from Montreal, Mr. Lewis was greeted by a crowd of about 200 sign-wavers at nearby Sidney airport. They sang Happy Birthday and carried him away in a 75-car motorcade which noisily toured the Sydney-Glace Bay district for more than an hour.

In the evening, more than 400 persons gave him a resounding birthday ovation and showered him with ballons as he arrived at a campaign rally which he accused Prime Minister Trudeau of misleading the people.

The Liberal government's claim that its budget would have helped people cope with inflation and take from corporations an additional $600 million in taxes was not true, he said.

Of the $900 million from corporations, $300 million formerly would have been taxed paid one month earlier, another $175 million would have applied for one year only and the remaining $425 million would be new.

Mr. Lewis said the Liberal housing plan for the early 1980s, and the party's forerunner, the CCF, held it for more than a decade during the 1940s and 1950s.

Donald MacInnis, who held the seat in the last House, is retiring.

Caouette Says Source To Hold Balance of Power

ST. GEORGES OUEST, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit leader, told an enthusiastic crowd Sunday night that his colleagues will hold the balance of power after the July 8 federal election.

He spoke to more than 800 persons gathered in a church hall. It was described as the largest group he had addressed during the campaign.

Vacations Now Denied Ailing

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller said in an interview Saturday he will study a health ministry rule that prevents many elderly residents from being sent to rest nursing homes for more than three days.

The rule applies to an estimated 30,000 persons who are covered by the provincial extended health care program. It pays up to 70 per cent of costs for nursing home residents requiring more than 1.5 hours of nursing care daily.

Because of the rule, a number of the elderly people have said they cannot get away for summer holidays with families.

Donald Scarlett, executive assistant to the health minister, said in an interview the situation will be examined Tuesday.

"If the individual were to pay for his own room during the period of absence of the former given permission, it should be possible arrange for some form of extended outing," he said.

Bodies Found

PETROLIA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police are investigating the death of Robert William Witty, 62, and his 58-year-old wife, whose bodies were found Sunday in their home in this community 25 miles southeast of Sarnia. Police said no cause of death has been determined.

Pests Abound

ALONSA, Man. (CP)—Forest tent caterpillars have blanketed this farming region 100 miles northwest of Winnipeg, destroying gardens, stripping poplar trees on thousands of acres and leaving many area residents feeling nauseous and near despair.

In the last two weeks, the caterpillars have hit the region in such number that it is impossible to take a step without hearing the sickening pop of a fat caterpillar bursting under foot.

Drivers Checked

TORONTO (CP) — A breathtest survey designed to isolate high-hazard groups so that programs to counteract drinking and driving may be better directed is nearing completion, a survey member said during the weekend.

More than 7,000 motorist at 288 different locations agreed to take the test, and more than one in every 10 had blood-alcohol levels of at least .05 per cent.

Beaver Drown

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — A convention of the British Columbia Registered Trappers Association has been told the Aluminum Company of Canada wiped out beaver and muskrat populations on the Nechako River when it was flooded last March.

Trapper Mel Laroque said Friday, beaver and muskrat were harvested under the ice as the river and drowned when Alcan flooded the river to lessen the storage of its Nechako reservoir in north-central B.C. and ease the threat of flooding in the lower mainland later in the year.

Bishop Named

OTTAWA (CP)—The apostolic nunciature Sunday announced appointment of , Rev. Eugene Philippe LaRocque as bishop of Alexandria in Ontario.

Rev. LaRocque has been priest in St. Anne parish in Tecumseh, Ont., in the London diocese.

OTISVILLE, Mich. (AP) — A skydiving instructor was sucked out of an airplane and fell 3,000 feet to his death Saturday, state police said.

Nixon Prepares For Summit Trip

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon is ending a secluded weekend of preparations for his European summit trip to return to the White House for talks with his top economic advisers.

Aides said the president planned to take up a few domestic matters today before his Tuesday departure for Brussels and a 14-day trip that will include talks in the Soviet Union with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

An 11 a.m. White House meeting was called to get a report on the U.S. economy from Kenneth Rush, chief administration's new economic policy co-ordinator, Treasury Secretary William Simon, budget director Roy Ash; Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Arthur Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman.

The president will meet with representatives of the 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries in Brussels and sign a declaration on Atlantic relations, pledge wider and more intimate consultations among the NATO allies.

He goes to Moscow Thursday for a third summit meeting with Brezhnev.

In Moscow, the Communist party newspaper Pravda quotes Brezhnev as saying he wants stable relations with the United States that are not dependent on temporary considerations.

Reports from Moscow suggested the Communist party newspaper was saying that Nixon's Watergate difficulties should not be allowed to disrupt a developing understanding between the two countries.

The case of Lithuanian sailor forced back to his Soviet vessel with the permission of the U.S. Coast Guard was among topics on which Nixon was briefed in preparing for his Moscow summit trip.

Simas Kudirka, 45—said to be a United States citizen—is in a Soviet labor camp in the Urals serving a 10-year prison term for treason.

Kudirka jumped from his Soviet ship to the cutter Vigilant Nov. 23, 1970, but the coast guard allowed the Russian crew to take him back.

Since then, Lithuanian groups in the United States have said they can prove Kudirka is a U.S. citizen. Part of their claim is supported by the fact his mother was born in the U.S.

Nixon was briefed on the case at Camp David. Representative Robert Hazraban, (Rep., Ill.) said Friday. But Hazraban said there is no assurance that Nixon will bring the matter up in his talk with Communist leaders.

Russia Allowed More Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger appears headed for a dispute over reported secret changes in United States-Soviet missile levels allowed under the 1972 strategic arms limitation treaty.

Kissinger will be questioned about the matter today when he briefs the arms control subcommittee of the Senate armed services committee about President Nixon's Moscow mission late this week. He also scheduled an 11 a.m. news conference.

The question was raised publicly by Senator Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.), the subcommittee chairman, after resigned disarmament adviser Paul Nitze gave the subcommittee some details about it last Thursday.

Jackson said that the Nixon administration has revised the agreement with the Soviets and did not fully inform Congress.

Kissinger, however, told reporters after a session Friday with the Senate armed services committee "that view must be based on a misapprehension of the negotiations."

Sources reported that two things are involved in the dispute: a reported decision to permit the Soviets additional sea-based missiles, while lowering the U.S. level, and a separate one to permit the Soviet Union additional missile silos, tabbed for command posts but considered potential launchers.

Under the changes, Jackson said, "the ceilings are higher for the Soviets and lower for the Americans."

Jackson, who has been a leading critic of the administration's detente policy with the Soviet Union, called "rather startling" both the information about the changes and the way in which it was discovered.

"I don't think it is going to upset the balance of power in the world," he said, but it represents "a substantial alteration of an agreement that was represented to the Congress."

As far as submarine-based missiles are concerned, Jackson said the original agreement called for the Soviet Union to increase its total to 950 from 740 while the United States was reducing its number to 710 from 656. Both sides, in turn, would begin some new land-based missiles.

Under the revision, the sources said, the Soviet Union gained an additional 70 missiles while the United States agreed to keep its total at 656.

Canadians Toil On Golan Heights

KUNEITRA (CP) — High in the scarred Golan Heights, the overworked 128-man Canadian contingent is struggling to maintain supplies to the newest United Nations force, while also keeping an uneasy eye on this ravaged town that might soon be a new threat to ultra-sensitive Israeli-Syrian relations.

In their last few days of occupation of the town proper, Israeli troops were busy wrecking what they left town in behalf of the new buffer zone, about 50 yards down the road from the Canadian Roofless, part of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) facilities.

Although the Israeli troops Sunday evacuated a mile-wide strip of Golan Heights and returned to the October war, they still were in possession of Kuneitra and were load aircraft Refid. both taken in 1967, and two positions at the peak of Mount Hermon seized in October.

When the Syrians finally start moving in at 9 a.m. local time Tuesday, after the Israelis withdraw in the fourth and final phase of the disengagement agreement, it seems likely that hardly a stone will be left on stone in Kuneitra.

The consensus here is that the Syrians have had no idea what they have going on and are going to be dismayed and angry to inherit what one officer termed "a four-foot-high town."

Some officers here meanwhile privately that the Syrians are going to be so furious they might want to cause trouble to seek retribution. But under terms of the agreement, only 6,

College Grads Told Their 'Legacy' Lousy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Young graduates have been left "a lousy legacy" Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, told the seventh annual convocation at St. Clair College Saturday.

"You've been left in a neurotic world not yet recovered from the insanity of massive war, in a world still involved in the absurdities of mini-wars over many areas of the planet," Mr. McDermott told the more than 770 community college graduates.

"And now, as July 8 approaches," he said, "you have the spectacle of competing politicians, performing their seemingly impromptu ... ballet ... sounding their platitudes and their public policies. The federal election takes place July 8.

"If you're going to tell them anything," Mr. McDermott said, "tell them in powerful unsophisticated views of 1974 will not cure the complex problems of the second half-world of 1974."

Mr. McDermott said he considered community-college graduates better able to cope with contemporary problems than those who graduate from more academic institutions.

"Most of you will be going into the real-work world," he said. "Fortunately, community colleges are oriented to the real world. ..."

"The experience and resulting education out there is the real world is worth more than all the sheepskins bestowed by any elite academic factory," Mr. McDermott said.

Nurses, Hospitals Reach No Accord

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between representatives of 19,000 Ontario registered nurses and about 80 hospital boards broke up early Sunday morning, 1954 a spokesman for the Ontario Nurses Association (ONA).

ONA president Jean Lowery said a 6-member negotiating committee of nurses' and hospital representatives agreed to certain disclosures which met the nurses' demand for a uniform salary scale.

The closed talks began Friday morning. Mrs. Lowery said the 1, 1975.

nurses' spokesman will use the two-day break to discuss the issue with nurses in their own hospitals.

The ONA is a newly-formed collective bargaining unit. Friday was the first time it was recognized by hospital boards as an official voice for the province's registered nurses who previously bargained with individual hospitals for their wages.

Mrs. Lowery said the news blackout which the committee agreed on at the start of negotiations will continue until the negotiations are completed.

The nurses are seeking a province-wide minimum starting salary of $920 a month re-active to Jan. 1, 1974, and a minimum of $1,000 starting Jan.

Starting "salaries" currently vary—sometimes within the same city—from $625 a month at St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough to $944 a month at McKellar General Hospital in Thunder Bay.

Montreal to Windsor Are to Benefit Most

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — Herb Gray, consumer and corporate affairs minister, said during the weekend that Canada's industrial corridor between Montreal and Windsor, Ont., might benefit most from Prime Minister Trudeau's promised national passenger transport corporation.

Mr. Gray said Saturday that the proposed corporation, which would include the takeover of passenger services of Canadian National Railways and CP Rail, is the forerunner of a new emphasis on people and not freight.

The prime minister's proposal, announced last week, would introduce rapid rail service between Windsor and Quebec City with trains likely operating at 120 miles an hour.

Mr. Gray, who represented Windsor West in the last Parliament, was here in support of Oxford Liberal candidate Charles Tatham.

No Shirt for Linda

A case, top hat and tails, and a bow tie, but no shirt, for Linda Lovelace, American Star of the controversial sex film Deep Throat, as she saves her hotel last Thursday enroute to Axcot Racecourse where she has been in the news for the past two days for wearing see-through dresses. Big Weekend in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — For stay-at-home travellers, Toronto's sixth annual Caravan began 10 days of international celebrations during the weekend.

Described by one United States travel writer as "Mardi Gras without the drunks," Caravan this year features 97 ethnic centres where visitors can drop in for food, drink and music of different countries.

Five weekenders not up to 27 ethnos Greek dancing or hoisting enormous Austrian beer steins, the 16th annual Mariposa Folk Festival held a gentler celebration on Toronto Island. For three days, 7,000 folk music fans wandered casually through eight performance areas, soaking up the sounds of the famous, including Bruce Cockburn and Pete Seeger, and the unknown.

While hundreds of people were turned away from Mariposa—tickets were sold out more than a week ago—Caravan's crowds had been far more the merrier.

The annual celebration has become an institution in this city and other North American cities are beginning to recognize their own cultural diversity with similar events.

Caravan's founder, Zena Kosar, and her husband Leon, say that with some 1,000 ethnic organizations in Toronto, it's hard to find a country which isn't represented at Caravan. The Ukrainian have five pavilions and newcomers this year include the Danube-Swabians, the Chinese, and the Americans with a Mississippi Riverboat theme.

Africans are also taking part for the first time in Caravan and aged pavilion but have had to utilize their normally busy streamed fertility dancers in lieu kinds.

Leon Kosar calls Caravan "tourism in reverse . . . instead of your going to the country, it comes to you."

"It's got to where as soon as Caravan packs up for one year, plans are started by the organizations for the next: that's how much pride people take in it."

Showbiz Shorts

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Redd Foxx, the comic who portrays junkman Fred Sanford on television, went to Bill Friday to make prisoners laugh and honor the memory of a dead brother who spent most of his life behind bars.

Accompanied by musicians, singers, dancers and other comedians, Foxx performed shows at the city jail and he Maryland penitentiary.

Foxx, whose real name is John Sanford, said he began the prison shows 12 years ago following the death of his brother, Fred, who provided the name for the Foxx character in the TV series Sanford and Son.

Foxx, 51, said the prison shows keep his brother's memory alive for him.

An x-rated comedian was free from television, Foxx said the penal system which he said represents a form of "genocide" for his race.

"It seems like a way to keep the black numbers limited," Foxx said. "People can't reproduce when they're locked up doing five-to-10, for something minor."

Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, Tandem Productions announced that Foxx would return to work on Sanford and Son July 8.

FOXX walked out of the NBC series early this year.

Three shows for next season have been taped without Foxx. Six shows were taped without him at the end of last season.

Details of the agreement between Foxx and Tandem Productions, owners of the show, were not available.

No date has been set for the marriage.

Jones Tops Record

TORONTO (CP) — In a one-week engagement at O'Keefe's Centre that ended Saturday night, singer Tom Jones broke all box office records for the O'Keefe. Paying to standing room-only audiences, Jones grossed more than $178,000 and played to more than 25,000 people, beating the previous record set in 1971 by Katharine Hepburn in Coco.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

The idea that an object such as a comb, a pipe, or a watch has "memories" may seem absurd. But . . .

Dr. J. B. Emerson, professor of archeology at the University of Toronto, says he has scientific evidence that either objects do have some sort of memory (for want of a better word) or something even more bizarre is going on. At any rate, he says, investigators can, merely by handling an object, discover facts about its history which they could not possibly know by normal means.

Dr. Emerson describes the process as a "psychic information" which widens to be known only as George.

"I presented George with a fragment of an Indian artifact excavated from a site looking near Toronto," said the professor.

"He held the fragment in his hand, contemplated it, fondled it. He meditated upon it at length.

He then correctly told me that it was a pipe stem, told me the age of the site where it was found, the location of the site, described how the pipe was manufactured, described the pipe bowl and provided details about the community and the living conditions. He then took a piece of paper in hand and drew a picture of the pipe bowl, which he said belonged to the broken stem.

"I was fascinated and impressed. He had drawn a picture of a typical Iroquois ceremonial pipe bowl pipe, as it's called by archeologists."

Could George simply have guessed?

Dr. Emerson doesn't think so. He describes George as a man with a "minimum of formal education" who rarely read anything and appears to know virtually nothing about the culture of the North American Indian except what he has seen on television.

Well, does George read the archeologist's mind?

Dr. Emerson remarks that this would be quite a feat in itself, but it doesn't explain George's power because sometimes he correctly picks up information unknown to the researchers.

In one case, Dr. Emerson involved a letter from a woman containing an old coin. The woman asked if George could tell her anything about the coins. She had mailed it h... today, a small community west which Dr. Emerson was unfamiliar. He had no idea where Markstay was located in the province.

However, after George had handled the coin (it was one of George III' vintage and could have come from anywhere) Dr. Emerson asked him where it was found.

"Sudbury," he said immediately. "North Bay, Callander."

These are the names of three towns in the same approximate area of Northern Ontario. When Dr. Emerson checked the atlas, he found that Markstay was located 20 miles east of Sudbury and 60 miles west of North Bay and Callander.

There was another case in which George couldn't have been reading his mind, said Dr. Emerson, since they disagreed on the material being.

George and the archeologist visited a prehistoric Iroquois village in the near Peterborough, Ontario, and the psychic said emphatically that the villagers there had not cultivated corn, beans or squash. Dr. Emerson disagreed, since these three crops were traditional to Iroquois farming. Moreover, digging at the site had turned up plenty of evidence of beans, squash and corn seeds.

It looked as though George was proved wrong but he still insisted the villagers had not cultivated those crops.

However, a very careful study of the site showed no evidence of pollen belonging to the vegetables George had specified. It appeared that the villagers had obtained these vegetables by trade with their neighbors and had not themselves grown them — exactly as George said.

George is not infallible. Dr. Emerson is quick to note. He has hit and days.

"But on an archeological site he almost quivers—and comes alive like a sensitive bird dog scenting the prey," the scientist adds.

And, strangest of all, the "scent" George picks up comes not from the present, but from the past . . .

Samuels Hired

Maxine Samuels, one of Canada's best-known filmmakers is the latest addition to the army of talent and experience contracted by CBC-TV drama head John Hirsch to work on CBC productions for the 1974-75 season.

Maxine Samuels will start work for CBC-TV drama on July 15. Assignment includes development and production of two half-hour dramas.

At 17, Miss Samuels quit school to assist her ailing mother in the millinery business. Following an attack of spinal meningitis and a lengthy convalescence later in her teens, she entered the university degree after five years of night classes and enjoyed several varied careers in Canada, Mexico, the U.S. and Europe.

She burst on the Canadian TV scene in the early 1960s with the immensely popular, prize-winning children's adventure series The Forest Rangers (which is still being telecast in various parts of the world) and followed this with the ambitious prime time series, Seaway.

She was executive producer of the recent Canadian-made feature film, The Pyx, starring Christopher Plummer and Karen Black.

Paper Chase Student Story

The Paper Chase is now playing at Cinema 1 at Quinte Mall.

The movie isn't a thriller, but an account of the pursuit of a law degree at Harvard. The film concentrates on the difficulties involved in maintaining academic standing in the impersonal world of institutions of higher learning.

John Houseman, in a rare acting part, plays the role of a cold but brilliant law professor. Timothy Bottoms and Lindsay Wagner star as students engaged in the race for a diploma.

The 20th Century Fox film was shot mainly in Toronto, with the university sequences filmed at Harvard.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, June 25

Aries (March 21-April 19) It will be difficult for you to please someone you will be performing a service for. The problem is, this person doesn't know what he wants.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Too much emphasis will be placed on the pursuit of pleasure today and not enough on your real responsibilities. A reckoning will come.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Pretending to be something you are not could prove costly for you. Forget about impressing another.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You will not gain the ally you are hoping for if you don't level with him. Be honest, even if it hurts.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You are looking for others to be more tolerant of your needs than you are of theirs. They won't be.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are not careful, the signals you are going to get crossed regarding an understanding with a friend which you think is clearly spelled out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You still tend to be too dependent upon others to do things for you that you are capable of doing.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It won't take much selling by a friend to get you to drop something useful you planned to do in order to do something that is less important.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep an extra-watchful eye on one you have dealings with, but aren't completely sure you have learned from someone today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A plan that is important to you is going to run into some serious opposition due to conditions beyond your control. The problem is temporary.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be very careful with any items you have borrowed from someone. They may get broken or stolen and have to be replaced.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Your decisions leave much to be desired today. You will fail to take into consideration all the small factors you should.

Cartoonist Learned Lesson

TORONTO (CP) — During the last 40 years, Wally Macdonald has drawn at least 60,000 caricatures but he still remembers a confrontation with the angry wife of one of his early subjects.

Mr. Macdonald had slightly exaggerated the fact that one of the man's eyebrows was higher than the other and the result seemed, to him, entirely inoffensive.

"How could you be so cruel?" the woman asked. "My husband was injured in a car accident. There is no reason to poke fun at his effect."

Mr. Macdonald was horrified and the lesson has remained.

"Some caricaturists delight in being vitriolic, but I don't think you have to show the warts."

In the 38 years he worked for The Telegram, until its demise in 1971, Wally created a fascinating array of caricatures of Toronto citizenry and visitors.

Among the celebrities are Lord Mountbatten, Aldous Huxley, Danny Kaye, Bob Hope and Louis St. Laurent.

His most memorable subject?

"John Diefenbaker, beyond question. There is a great face to which you can genuinely apply the most misused word in the English language—unique."

Argentina May Join Nuclear Arms 'Club'

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — A question, causing speculation among Argentine nationalists is whether the government of President Juan Peron will produce an atomic bomb.

There seems to be no doubt that Argentina could make the bomb and join the world's nuclear club.

The speculation over Argentina's nuclear future has been spurred by India's explosion of an underground atomic device.

India's minister of state for foreign affairs, Surendra Pal Singh, signed a treaty with the Argentine government on joint nuclear research, when he visited here recently.

The declared aim of the government is to turn Argentina into a great power. During Peron's previous rule from 1946 to 1955, research on atomic bombs was started, but later abandoned.

Argentina, like India, is developing its nuclear power stations with reactors that use natural uranium, a byproduct of which is plutonium, one of the two possible new materials used in atom bombs. The other is enriched uranium.

India's atomic blast made it the sixth of the nuclear club, after the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China.

Singh and Argentine officials denied that their accord is concerned only with peaceful use of the atom.

The next day, the semi-official Argentine news agency, Telam, published an article by its editor, Sergio Cerón, entitled:

Argentina can build the atomic bomb.

One source said:

"If Argentina's technology progresses, there is nothing to stop it from having an atom bomb."

Other officials denied that Argentina intends to build the bomb.

Cerón wrote: "An act of political decision would facilitate in a relatively short period the entry of Argentina to the nuclear club.

The Telam article said all the conditions had been met for Argentina to enter "the limited circle of nations endowed with nuclear arsenals."

It concluded that the government's policy was to keep the peace.

Medical Council Is Being Sued

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Sigwin Raska, a native of Yugoslavia who took his medical degree at the University of Illinois, is suing the Medical Council of Canada for what he says is its discrimination against foreign doctors.

His suit, for $180,000, now is before the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Plan for Conference

WINNIPEG (CP) — The executive committee of the National Native Women's Association of Canada has completed the first phase of planning for its annual conference, scheduled for Thunder Bay, Ont., in August. An official of the organization said the tentative agenda focuses on the law—native women and the law, the RCMP, native court workers—and will include representatives from the federal justice department.

Anti-crime Hints

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver police are attempting to ignite public interest in crime prevention. A total of 35,000 books of matches covered with the words Stop Crime have been distributed in hotels, cigarette machines and other public outlets. Also written on the match books are hints on how members of the public can protect themselves against criminals.

B.C. Archivist Prowled From Basement to Attic

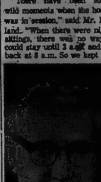
VICTORIA (CP) — When the government gave a knock-on, I sort of went along with it," says Willard Ireland, British Columbia's archivist-librarian for 34 years.

In his long career, Mr. Ireland, 68, enlivened many after-dinner speaking engagements with tales of the province's past and supplied facts and opinions, both historic and contemporary, to five premiers, eight lieutenant-governors and hundreds of MLAs.

Mr. Ireland said enthusiasm for B.C.'s history has been growing.

"The 1958 centennial—the hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Crown colony of B.C., did something to the people of the province, that's the famous point," he said.

Mr. Ireland recently retired, five years early, and wants to do some writing. He said he probably knows "where a lot of bodies are buried" but doesn't plan to exhume them, not even for a book.



His job has been split up. The provincial library, which Mr. Ireland took on in 1946, is to be separated from the archives.

"I'm concerned enough to think they'd never get another idiot to do both."

As an archivist, Mr. Ireland has known the thrill of the hunt for bits and pieces of the province's history, prowling from basement to attic of old mansions. He has sought out old textbooks and purchased Emily Carr paintings. He has attended auctions and rummage sales in the country, church basements.

Then there was the provincial library.

"There have been some wild moments when the house was in session," said Mr. Ireland. "When there were night sittings, there was no way I could stay until 2 a.m. and be back at 8 a.m. So we kept the library open only until 11 p.m."

Once Mr. Ireland prepared a history of competitive walking from Plato to the present for a minister who wanted it for the following evening. He put all the staff on the assignment. They murdered the literature, leaving alps at the pertinent pages.

"That night, I came back and did the reading. I had taken courses in geology."

"I lived in horror that during that 34 by 35 hours someone on the other side of the house would come and ask for the same paper in reverse."

Mr. Ireland said the discussion lasted about two minutes in caucus and "they voted on the single transferable vote." The decision paved the way for the idea of Social Credit in the province.

Once in power, Premier W. A. C. Bennett quickly killed the single transferable ballot which required voters to list all candidates in order of preference.

Mr. Ireland said it is part of the function of the library to stay out of politics.

"The library has to be completely non-political. It takes time for this to happen—you have to build up confidence among all the members. Both sides of the house can be asking for the same information.

But in no way can you reveal the query or interest of one member to another. We have had our material used in lawsuits."

Guerrillas Slay Four

Israeli Retaliation For New Raid Likely

TEL AVIV (AP) — More Israeli air attacks on Palestinian positions in Lebanon are expected soon in retaliation for another raid by Arab guerrillas who killed four Israelis in the seaside town of Nahariya.

The three guerrillas invaded an apartment house in the town seven miles south of the Lebanese border and killed a 29-year-old woman; her two small children, and an Israeli soldier before Israeli troops moved them down. Eight Israelis were wounded, including the dead woman's husband and five troops.

It was the fourth major terrorist attack in Israel in 1½ months. The raiders have killed 23 persons, including 23 children, and 160 have been wounded. In that period, 28 guerrillas have been killed in Israel, while 43 Palestinian guerrillas and civilians have been reported killed and more than 120 wounded by Israeli air strikes in Lebanon.

"We will not tolerate these attacks," Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said after rushing to Nahariyya before dawn. "We will do everything possible to prevent them and punish those responsible."

The three terrorists slipped into Israel from Lebanon by motorboat Monday night and made their way through the streets of the quiet seaside resort—a favorite of honeymooners—until they came to a three-storey apartment house at 19 Balfour Street.

Firing their weapons and throwing hand grenades, the three Arabs rushed past two elderly civilian guards about 11:30 p.m. and raced through the corridors shooting at every door, residents reported.

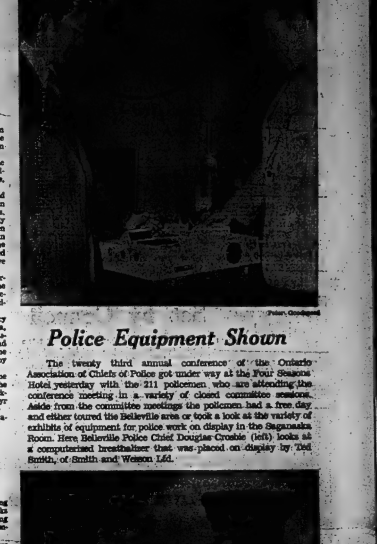
The occupants barricaded themselves in their apartments, pushing furniture against the doors. But the Arabs shot their way into the apartment occupied by Mordechai Zarankin, his wife Irene and their five-year-old boy and 10-year-old girl.

Israeli soldiers surrounded the building and by loudspeaker warned the residents to lie on the floor and under their beds until they could be rescued. A helicopter dropped flares, and police trained floodlights on the building.

For three hours gunfire and explosions pierced the night. A marksman shot and killed one of the guerrillas as he tried to enter the building. Then army officials, shouting through loudspeakers, told the two remaining gunmen to free their hostages or die.

The Arabs answered with bursts of fire. Then an army combat team scaled the wall of the building and went in through the door where the dead guerrilla had been perched.

They advanced inside the building behind a screen of bullets. After the 20-minute battle, the two guerrillas were dead.



Seventeen men, women and children were rescued. But in the Zarankin apartment, Mrs. Zarankin was fatally critically wounded and her two children dead. A doctor performed an emergency operation on the woman in the blood-spattered apartment but could not save her.

Security officers said the terrorists shot the woman and the children before the soldiers began their assault on the building.

The Palestinian news agency WAFA said in Damascus, Syria, the attack was carried by Palestinians based in Israel instead of Lebanon and denied that the terrorists entered Israel by boat.

The statement did not name the group responsible for the operation, but the attacks are believed to be the "Martyr Kamal Adwan Squad."

Adwan belonged to Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah.

Police Equipment Shown

The twenty third annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police got under way at the Four Seasons Hotel yesterday with the 211 policemen who are attending the conference meeting in a variety of closed committee sessions. Lang's Extradition Move Vetoed

Trudeau Doesn't Want FLQ Kidnappers Here

PARIS (CP) — Two of the Quebec cell who kidnapped a British diplomat in 1970, touching off Canada's October crisis, have applied there for asylum after flying to Paris, And it appears they will be able to stay.

"We don't want them back," Prime Minister Trudeau said in Ottawa following the report Monday that Jacques Lanctot and Jean-Marc Carbonneau had arrived in Paris from Prague last week with Lanctot's wife and two other Quebecers.

The prime minister's statement that Canada would not seek their extradition contradicted that of Justice Minister Otto Lang, who had said earlier in Saskatoon that the attempt would be made.

Also at odds with Lang was a spokesman for the external affairs department in Ottawa, who said the decision on whether to seek extradition rests with the Quebec government in whose jurisdiction diplomat James Cross was kidnapped in October, 1970.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said in Montreal that in return for releasing Cross two months later, the two men, along with Jacques Cassette-Trudel and Jacques Langlois, "have been promised safe conduct so long as they do not try to cross Canadian borders."

As far as the Quebec government is concerned, "it is as if they were still in Cuba."

Choquette said there are still warrants out against the kidnappers, but his government does not intend to ask that they be executed. A French police spokesman had said in Paris, however, that the pair are in no danger of arrest in Paris because "we have no international arrests warrant concerning them."

Another French official said any extradition request would be denied because France does not send persons there to face trial in politically-connected cases.

Trudeau said it is the federal government's attitude that "we wanted them out of the country." If they ever return to Canada, however, they will face "the severity of the law."

Canadian officials said it was known the exiles were unhappy in Cuba. They had asked the Canadian Embassy in Havana some time ago for the return of their passports, confiscated when they were flown to Cuba. The request was denied, although they were told the two women could have passports if they applied. A government spokesman said no applications were received.

Commonwealth Lands Break Sea Deadlock

CARACAS, Venezuela (CP) — Canada's delegates to the International Law of the Sea conference have combined with Indians and Australians to score what looks like a major breakthrough in a deadlock which has been crippling one of the biggest world gatherings in history.

Although some issues of procedure remain in question, the greatest problems appear to have been solved and the conference now may be able to begin discussion of substantial questions of sea law before the end of the week, sources say.

Commenting on Canadian efforts to promote a compromise, a British delegate said Monday: "They acquitted themselves admirably. Of course, they had help from many others, but it is only fair to say the Canadians played the major part."

The problems with which delegates have been wrestling was how to resolve widely differing positions on how the talks should be held and how voting on specific issues should be conducted.

Most of the big powers wanted to avoid voting as far as possible and rely instead on developing a general consensus, while many of the smaller states favored voting exclusively to decide the issues.

The larger states then insisted that only resolutions which commanded a two-thirds majority of all delegates be passed as opposed to the traditional United Nations requirement of only two-thirds of those present voting in plenary session.

The compromise, which combines elements of Australian and Indian proposals and was put together mainly by the Canadians, brings together both positions in a way that seems generally acceptable here.

Its general outlines:

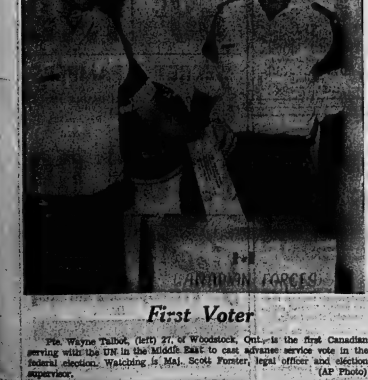
Two-thirds of all delegates would be required for a quorum before a vote in a plenary session. Out of this, two-thirds of those present and voting would have to support a resolution before it passed and this two-thirds would have to represent at least 50 per cent of all the states attending.

Britain and France have already accepted the proposal. Japan has expressed general approval but asked for time to consult Tokyo. Russia and the United States have withheld comment but both privately expressed sympathy with the plan.

Queen Mother, 73 Flies to Toronto

LONDON (CP) — The Queen Mother left here today for Toronto at the start of a seven-day visit to Canada—her first trip overseas since her 1967 centennial tour of Canada's Atlantic provinces.

Her aircraft, a Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707, which was also understood to be carrying 94 Canadian servicemen and their families, took off from London's Heathrow Airport at 12:15 p.m. London time. Scheduled arrival time at Toronto is 3:15 p.m. EDT.



Security precautions were ultra-tight at Heathrow as the Queen Mother, 73, was seen off by High Commissioner J. H. Warren and Commodore Noel Creelon, commander of the Canadian defence liaison staff in London.

This will be the sixth visit to Canada for the Queen Mother, now completely fit again after a period when she did little travelling because of poor health.

Her health now is "absolutely fine, 100 per cent," said a spokesman at her residence, Clarence House.

The trip is not an official state function, being made at the invitation of Canadian regiments in Toronto and Montreal to which the Queen Mother will present new colors. She also will attend Saturday's running of the Queen's Plate at Toronto's Woodbine race track.

Various civic and provincial receptions make up a crowded schedule for the Queen Mother, who also will be guest of honor at a huge garden party with about 1,100 guests.

Dief Opposes Wage Freeze

KENSINGTON, P.E.I. (CP) — It was a John Diefenbaker crowd and the former Progressive Conservative Monday night offered his own version of wage and price controls.

About 2,000 persons crowded into the community arena in Kensington, 30 miles west of Charlottetown, heard Mr. Diefenbaker say he would not institute controls until wages rose to the same level as prices.

This brief declaration by the former prime minister left party officials in Ottawa virtually speechless and Mr. Stanfield, having a day off at home, was not immediately available for comment on the spokesmen's policy contradiction.

In a later interview, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"In view of the fact prices are rising faster than wages and, month by month, the gap is widening, wages should be allowed to rise to the same level as prices before a freeze of 60 or 90 days is brought in."

He said he supports, in principle, the proposal of his party leader, Robert Stanfield, for a freeze of not more than 90 days, followed by two years of selective controls.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said that while the Liberals offer no program, "Stanfield may not have the solution for inflation, but he is going to do something about it."

He would not amplify this statement.

Jean Baptiste Crowds Riot In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The gaiety and celebrations of St. Jean Baptiste Day erupted into violence Monday when police were called to squash a disturbance in Old Montreal.

About 100 police, wielding three-foot sticks and wearing helmets with visors, arrived in the tourist section southeast of the downtown area shortly after 9 p.m. and had the area cleared by 10:30.

A police spokesman said the men were called in after merchants complained that arson among the crowd, estimated at, 10,000, were breaking windows.

Police, riding in motorcycles with sidecars, waded into the crowds throughout the cobblestoned area, herding them north out of the area.

Mint Declines Belleville Coin

The Royal Canadian Mint at Ottawa will not consider issuing a commemorative coin to mark the city in the celebration of its 1968 birthday in 1978.

This was learned Monday by city council in a letter from the deputy master of the mint stating that commemorative coin issues were authorized only for events of national interest with the policy this year having been modified to include recognition of centennials and bi-centennials of provincial capitals and "principal cities".

But, to qualify as a "principal" city a municipality must have a population of at least 100,000.

Minting of a commemorative coin for Belleville may be out at Ottawa, but it was noted a private firm in Western Ontario minted such coins. The matter was referred to the city manager for investigation.

Train Whistling Bylaw Stalled

Belleville's anti - train whistling bylaw had struck another procedural delay.

At last week's traffic and light committee meeting, it was recommended that the bylaw be do away with whistling at protected crossings be brought before council.

The bylaw would have applied only to the Canadian National Railways as the CPR still had unprotected crossings east of the river.

When the bylaw was presented Mayor Robin Jeffrey asked that it be held up until it could be applied to both railways.

She said a former railroader had informed her that the city was aggravating the train whistling problem from the wrong direction.

She said the ex-railroader assured her that all the city had to do was pass the bylaw outlawing whistling and the railroads were compelled to install automatic crossing protection.

Docking Charges Set by Council

City council has set a time limit for boaters tieing up at the visitors' dock in the Bellville harbour.

The time limit is 72 hours but in extenuating circumstances the limit could be extended. Rental for tieing up at a visitor's dock was set at $3 a day plus an additional $1 for hydro use.

Also approved by council was another harbour improvement; committee recommendation to set rental of a full side of the new floating docks on the west side of Victoria Park at $100 a year and $50 for a one-half dock section. The rental would include hydro if and when service is installed.

To a question raised by another councillor that a large boat could conceivably use more than the 72 hours or a day per day, Alderman Stu Meeks, city commissioner chairman said this was not the case.

He said only 30 amp services would be installed and fuses would blow if overloads were connected.

Audience Sparse

By EUGENE LANG

A recital of unusual interest was provided the very sparse audience that was present at Centennial Secondary School Auditorium last evening as Chamber Music Canada, a group of approximately 12 young instrumental performers from various Canadian universities were on hand to exhibit their collective musical talents in a program of chamber music compositions from the past three centuries. Stephen Pottier was the master-of-ceremonies in bringing this highly trained ensemble to the local audience, which we hope will make future presentations in this type more of our local musical community will be in attendance.

Six selections were performed by various members of the troupe, who are making a concert tour of Ontario and the eastern provinces this summer.

A trio for flute, viola and cello by Joseph Haydn was given an exemplary rendition with the liquid tones of the flute shining forth over a semi-obbligato by the violin and viola's drone from the cello. Gabriel Faure's Elegy in D Minor for cello and piano was given a sombre, yet intense realization as the bow and strings of the baritone-voiced instrument combined with the piano to complete rapport to produce a sinuous yet serpentine performance of this melancholy opus.

Pianist Michael Krolovsky brought from the keys a charged and dramatic interpretation of Liszt's tortuous Mephisto Waltz, which he accompanied with agility throughout.

The final movement of Brahm's Horn Trio Op. 40 came through with verve and spontaneity with the clear tones of the horn supplemented with guest by violin and piano. Delightful works were the three short pieces by Berio scored for flute, clarinet, oboe, bassoon and French horn in which all five instruments shared wholly in their fleeting fulfillment of composer's intent.

Canadian Composer Harry Freedman's Quintet was also envisioned with insight in the brisk score of harmonic clashes and rhythmic mishes.

Following the one - hour concert a workshop was held for those interested local musicians who were on hand to augment their knowledge of their respective instruments and to further develop their skills in ensemble playing. All seemed to enjoy this part of the evening with relish and respect.

It was most disconcerting that so few attended this attraction, and it is to be hoped that in future sessions of this type more of our local musical community will be in attendance.

Self-serve Gas Outlets Protested by Dealers

The Quinte Planning Board will be asked to consider a brief from the Ontario Retail Gasoline Association protesting the increasing prevalence of self-serve gasoline stations.

The brief, included on the agenda of Monday evening's city council session was said by Mayor Robin Jeffrey to have a "lot of meat" and was passed along to the planning board.

The brief objects to the self-serve stations on a number of grounds, including safety, appearance and commodity value, pollution and energy and mechanical fitness of cars.

It is noted that gasoline is one of the most dangerous products on the market and must be handled carefully by responsible people.

Also it is noted self-service stations are nothing more than a control booth and pumps. Facilities are inexpensive, laid on prime locations owners are not contributing the maximum tax dollar to the municipality.

The self-serve stations do not provide such services such as safety checking of auto equipment with the result that unsafe vehicles continue to operate on the highways.

For several years the province granted permits to self-serve stations but this trolled basis but now the responsibility is on the governing municipality and provincial permits will be issued provided the municipality has approved the installation.

City Downtown Film Background

Scenes along Belleville's downtown area will form background for a film production planned by a young Bayside resident who hopes to sell his work to the National Film Boards.

Council Monday evening approved the request for authority to use Front Street as the "set" for he film production which would tell the story of a young man who becomes a leader in the community.

The script for the production, which would take approximately two weeks to film will be made available to Mayor Robin Jeffrey for perusal.

The young producer assured that the use of Belleville streets in the production was merely incidental and that the city would no be harmed by any undesirable content.

REAL ESTATE:
GOING THE LIMIT

Pat McKinney Broker Quinte Realty Ltd.

It's not unusual to find that the amount of money needed to finance the purchase of a home and the amount of cash in the bank account are too close for comfort. When does it make sense to pull back your horns and when would propriety say — "Go the limit"?

It's better not to spend every last cent available for a home if you customarily buy big ticket items, such as cars and appliances on time; if the local property taxes are likely to go higher; or if you have any unusual financial obligations, such as medical care for a member of the family.

On the other hand, you might justify going the limit if you can make a big down payment; if the home is unlikely to need maintenance or repairs which are above and beyond your personal capability; if your outlook for financial advancement is bright, and if your family have proven that it can tighten belts if they really have to.

School Running Short of Water

The lack of pure rural dweller's life — water supply — has hit Hastings county's only suburban high school — Bayside Secondary.

Bayside Secondary and the elementary schools adjacent to it use treated Bay of Quinte water, provided by a plant on school land south of Highway 2. As the school's population has increased, it has become apparent that the school could not be served by the present water treatment plant. As the secondary school's inception, it had been hoped its treatment plant's output could be supplemented by a well. The well proved to be collecting surface water instead of discharging underground water.

Cost of enlarging the treatment plant is $35,000. To find the money, priorities in other maintenance projects will have to be readjusted, said plant operator Keith Hawkins.

The 1969 designer of the treatment plant, Yost Mew and Associates have been retained to design and supervise construction of water and sewer treatment at the school.

Change Requested In Tax Payment

Hastings county board of education will attempt to change the scheduling of municipal tax levies, a move it calculates will save $40,000 a year in interest charges.

At present the board calls for 50 per cent of a municipality's educational requisition on June 30. While awaiting the money the board incurs heavy expenses on money borrowed to keep the schools operating. This year, it is estimated the board will pay about $5 a year in interest for every elementary school pupil and $8 a year for every high school pupil.

The new schedule, agreed upon by trustees at their board meeting Monday night, must be ratified by a majority of municipalities representing at least two-thirds of the equalized assessment in the county.

The proposed schedule calls for each municipality paying 25 per cent of its requisition by March 31, and another 25 per cent by each of three other dates: June 30 Sept. 30 and Dec. 15.

Trenton Tries Four-day Week

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton's Department of Public Works has been granted permission to test the feasibility of a four-day work week, beginning with a three-week period in July.

Public Works outside workers met last Friday to discuss the proposal between themselves. The majority then voted to approach council, works commissioner, Arelle Hoornweg, said Monday night.

Mr. Hoornweg told council he believed more work could be done in a four-day week, particularly on cement and sewer construction jobs.

Councillors Ed Todd and Bob Warmington were opposed to the move calling it "contract-breaking."

"We're opening a can of worms if we start this," said Councillor Todd. He explained he was "leery" of the proposal saying other unions in town would follow suit.

Mayor Robert Patrick replied: "It's not necessarily bad to be a leader."

Councillors Todd and Warmington voted to defeat the motion while councillors Ron Price and Peter De Bono supported it. Councillors John Bonn and George Greer were absent.

Mayor Patrick in voting to try the idea, remarked he would be agreeable only if men were available in an emergency and that if this availability would not mean standby pay.

"I can't see it myself until it becomes a more established thing," said Councillor Todd.

"But, if we don't try these things how will we know if they work," said the mayor.

The scheme will mean workers will be on the job between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. and having Friday off. If the three-week test project in July is satisfactory, the mayor and commissioner said there was some chance it could be carried on in August.

Prince Edward County council last week voted against a four-day work week.

"The reason county roads department starts, other county employees will want to try it," said Reeve Robert Boyce, of Wellington.

New School Building Nears Completion at Tyendinaga

End of Term Closes One-room Schoolhouses

TYENDINAGA — School's out — and that also means the end of an era on this Quinte Mohawk reserve.

Now in the finishing phases of construction is a new building which will centralize education resources for elementary school students here.

The building will replace four schools on the reserve — three of them one-room schoolhouses.

Dating back a half-century or more, the one-roomers once were core units in the education system on the reserve. The small, frame buildings remained in operation even after a central school was built 17 years ago by the federal government and which, in turn, became overcrowded.

There are now about 230 students attending elementary school here. For secondary education, young Mohawks enter the Hastings County school system.

The old one-roomers won't be discarded, however. They'll become centres for community activities. One schoolhouse will be converted for use by senior citizens. There are plans to turn a second into a reserve library. The larger, central school, which has served upper elementary grades, will become the Mohawk band office, centre of reserve administration.

The first sod on the new Quinte Indian Mohawk School was turned less than a year ago — at the end of August. But contractors have moved speedily to complete the project which should be finished by the middle or end of July, says Councillor Carl Brant, the reserve council's representative on the Tyendinaga school committee.

This will give a month for installation of equipment, plenty of time before the new school year begins in September, he says.

Federal authorities are responsible for education although the local committee now handles school maintenance while the council operates the reserve's school bus-ing.

The new school project is on the York Road — the reserve's main road — on a 20-acre site and was estimated to cost $860,000. It facilities include 15 classrooms, a learning resource centre and an auditorium-gymnasium.

There are plans to turn a recreation area over to the Department of Northern Affairs and Indian Development for construction of Araprior and Kingston.

One-room Schools Await Community Use

Town Hall Bookkeeping Will Be Streamlined

TRENTON — Council was told Monday night that town hall's bookkeeping system was outdated and a money-saving proposition for town auditors.

The chartered accountancy firm of Wilkinson and Co. became town bookkeepings last winter. The firm which previously handled Trenton's books closed its business office here, signing over its clientele to the Wilkinson firm.

Will Wilkinson, company head, said the previous firm had been issuing thousands of dollars in 1971 and 1972 in processing town books. His firm "stood to lose" $2,800 in the auditing of the 1972 accounts."

Mr. Wilkinson's company is committed to a $5,300 agreement between council and the previous accounting firm.

To streamline the accounting system at town offices, Mr. Wilkinson proposed a $2,000 special report that would update paperwork procedures.

He described the proposed new system as "a more sophisticated procedure, equipped with more checks and safeguards."

Town Hall Take $ Bad

Town council had earlier decided the financial proposal was unacceptable, and called Mr. Wilkinson for further explanation.

"You left council a little confused," said Mayor Robert Patrick. "We thought you wanted the $2,000 for a survey of how much it will cost you. It will have to do."

Council reversed the decision last night.

Budget Housing In Trenton

TRENTON — "Firm plans for a geared-to-income Ontario Housing Corporation subdivision are expected to be in town, council's hands in mid-July, following a session with OHC officials Monday night.

OHC representatives met with council for preliminary discussions, offering a number of general proposals and asking for council's opinion.

The subdivision will include 36 units ranging from one to five bedrooms and will be rented at 25 per cent of the

Candidates Agree

Inflation: Farms Hit Much Harder

BLOOMFIELD — Candidates of all parties contesting federal riding seats agreed on at least one thing Monday night: Farmers are more vulnerable to inflation than other groups.

"Farmers suffer more because they are squeezed between rising costs and fixed — and even lower-selling prices," said George Hees, Conservative candidate) seeking re-election as MP in Prince Edward — Hastings.

Inflation was the major problem which any government must face after the July 8 election, all candidates seemed agreed at a farmer-sponsored meeting.

Opposing "Mr. Hees" did not mean to imply he office any less capable, said Liberal Harvey Outhwaite. New Democratic Party and Independent Gordon Hargrave.

Targets of criticism included Conservative program for price and income controls.

Mr. Hees ran into persistent questioning from one man in the audience who described the Conservative party platform proposals as "not good for the country, or the country."

"If you want what you've got today, then go ahead and vote Liberal. That's your privilege in a democracy," Mr. Hees replied to the questioner.

Mr. Outhwaite said the Liberal government, while in power, had acted to "protect those who could look after themselves".

He said the candidates were unanimous in praise of the Canadian Wheat Board's low price policy.

"The farmer has benefitted [illegible] the speculator has had his hands tied since the system started to work," said Mr. Hees.

Mr. Gottfried said he agreed with the two-price system, but suggested that Canada's share of the world wheat should be increased.

Mr. Hargrave concluded the meeting, sponsored by Prince Edward County Farmers' Union.

Indian Bloc Could Affect 20 Ridings

VICTORIA (CP) — A spokesman for the National Indian Brotherhood said Monday if Indians voted in a bloc in the July 8 federal election they could affect the results in about 20 ridings.

William Scott, president of the Union of Ontario Indians, hinted in an interview that Brotherhood members holding a two-day conference here will try to arrange such a bloc vote for the party that offers the Indians the best deal.

"We've been negotiating and discussing, but it seems to me we are going to have to do a bargaining at the ballot box," Mr. Sault said on the eve of planned Brotherhood and B.C. Indians protesting a lack of federal and provincial action on the needs of Indian communities.

The brotherhood has studied ridings across Canada and discovered there are about 20 where Indians constitute a total of voters greater than the margin by which the riding was won in the last election, he said.

Mr. Sault said that in Ontario there are seven ridings where Indians hold the balance of power if they vote en masse. He added he is completely confident he can organize that vote to go to one party in at least four of those ridings.

Recreation Is Set For a New Season

Belleville's recreation department is getting in trim for another summer.

Recently department organizers ended a four-day course at Ben Bleecker Auditorium for the young people who will supervise the city's 26 playgrounds, until mid-August.

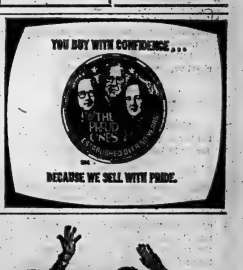
They will provide a playtime facility for city youngsters from five to 11 years. Registration day has been set for July 2.

But the playgrounds are

Service, Farewell

TWEED — Captain Diane May, who has been in charge of the Salvation Army here for the past six years, preached her farewell service Sunday.

The Salvationist citadel was built during the time Capt. May had served in Tweed. It replaced a former frame building on the same site that had become too small to serve the needs of the community. Captain May is being posted to Orillia, where she will serve as assistant in a Sunset lodge.



New officers coming to Tweed will be Lt. and Mrs. Roger Marsh from Montgomery, Ala. They have two children, a girl and a boy.

Other Issues Too

It's the root of Liberal party policy is a complete disregard for balancing the public purse and the the consequences of unbridled spending.

It is the old C.D. Howe technique of "tax and spend and . . . what's a million?"

As for inflation. Oh, it's international, they say. There is nothing in effect that we can do about it.

A balanced budget? What a laugh. Let's eat, drink and be merry . . . for tomorrow we die.

But aside from inflation — and there is no doubt that materially-inflated Canada is completely hung up on this issue, to the point that little else matters or can be identified as an issue — there are indeed other matters of concern.

On these the Liberals are notably silent. And the public, many of whom make their ballot decision for reasons other than issues (they have always voted that way, or "I like the look of A, or the look of B's wife), could not care less.

What matter for example that this Government, in concert with politicized groups such as the World Council of Churches, is giving aid and comfort to so-called liberation groups in Africa. Or what matter that 10 per cent of Government budgeting goes toward "junk" art and potted plants for the environmental embellishment of new ministerial establishments? Or what matter that Prime Minister Trudeau has spent a pretty penny on his Ottawa and vacation homes, on an official car, and on flights by Government aircraft?

Again, since Government spending has been shown by the Auditor General to be so extravagant, and since the P.M. and Cabinet ministers and bureaucrats make such high salaries, contributing to the overall problem of inflation, should these people miss a thousand or two off their take, to plow back into the national coffers, or to alleviate poverty and distress among less well-endowed Canadians?

Is Prime Minister Trudeau aware of the sequalor of Indians in places such as Moosonee, Attawapiskat, and Indian ghetto on the fringe of Red Lake in Northwestern Ontario, or of the increase in diphtheria, for the same reasons, among Indians in Alberta.

Enough in fact to think about, in addition to whatever else is raised in the closing weeks of the election. Inflation is serious indeed, but to be so deeply absorbed in it, and to the superficialities of charisma, to the exclusion of all else, is indicative of the vacuous type of thinking that occurs among the populace.

Let's wake up and think some more about what this election is all about.

Politics and Wives

There is an interesting observation on the impact of politics on the wives of politicians in the U.S. magazine, People Weekly.

Writer Liz Smith is talking about the strain on Joan Kennedy. She quotes her as saying to a friend that if her husband, Senator Edward Kennedy, ran for the presidency the campaign would be a "pure nightmare." And this, largely in light of the fact the senator receives more death threats than any other man in public life.

Ms. Smith says Joan Kennedy's experience supports a thesis currently being explored by Washington reporter Myra MacPherson for a book on the family life of politicians.

"Politics," she writes, "is consummately anti-wife — she (the wife) is to say little, to think less. And yet in no other profession are wives so used — all in the name of publicity."

There is a parallel here with the election campaign, in which the party leaders have their wives along with them — and playing a fairly active role.

Stock Market Reflects a Loss of Confidence in Oil

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The cost of the gasoline and heating oil you use has gone up six times as fast as the cost since early 1973.

We know from numbers (or steak knives, either).

But instead of restoring confidence in the future of the oil industry, the events of the past year have created serious doubts about its prospects. Those doubts are starkly illustrated in the stock market.

Share prices (as measured by the Toronto Stock Exchange's index of western oils) dropped more than 45 per cent from the 1973 high to their 1974 low. Join since the federal budget was introduced May 6 — propose a whopping tax increase for the industry — the decline has been almost 25 per cent.

What this means is that there has been a climate unprecedented loss of investor confidence in Canadian oil, despite almost unprecedented increases in the industry's selling price and net profits.

A significant aspect of the market decline is that stocks, believe say, in the U.S. investors have been selling Canadian oil, but Canadian investors have not been coming into the market to buy.

The fire-breathing nationalists would say that's fine. Who needs the American investor anyway?

The answer is that the U.S. investor has long been an important and dependable source of risk capital for an industry that needs a steady inflow of such funds.

It stirs that the oil industry has been chalking up big profits, and big year-to-year increases, since 1971.

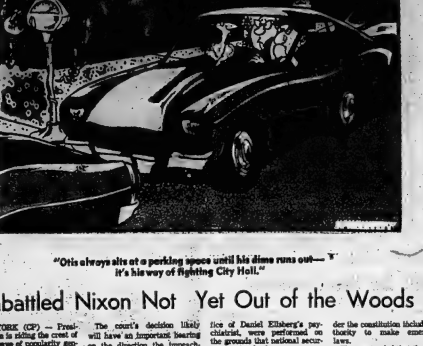
The industry contends, however, that these profits are generated from low-cost reserves and from exploration-and-development expenditures made many years ago.

It costs much more to replace those conventional reserves, as they run dry, with new reserves from the high-cost frontiers of today's exploration. Between now and 1985, at least $60 billion will have to be spent to find, and supply energy to Canada.

If investors turn away from the oil industry, Canada faces the alternatives over the next decade:

A shortage of hydrocarbons, with gasoline rationing and cold homes and public buildings.

Massive government investment, control and nationalization.



The latter course has a strong appeal to socialists, who can point to successful state-owned oil ventures in a number of countries.

But let's not forget that governments have a record of acting only when a crisis or immediate crisis forces them to act (all warnings of the oil crisis were ignored until it arrived in 1973) and that it takes many years to bring a new hydrocarbon discovery into production.

(Imperial Oil Ltd. started exploring Arctic islands in 1961, has now spent more than $130 million there, and won't earn anything from that area in this decade at least).

To this threat of shortages within a few years, the response of federal Conservative and Liberal governments alike, the political left, centre and right, has already been to try to out-do each other in increasing taxes and royalties.

Canada urgently needs a return to political common sense and to the principle of balance. There's a lesson in the ancient fable about killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

"Otis always sits at a parking space until his dime runs out— but it's his way of fighting City Hall."

Embattled Nixon Not Yet Out of the Woods

NEW YORK (CP) — President Nixon is riding the crest of a small wave of popularity generated by his triumphant tour of the Middle East and the successful conclusion of the Israeli-Syrian ceasefire worked out by his secretary of state.

He still has a long way to go to regain the public approval he once enjoyed but his rating in the public opinion polls has reached ahead in the last couple of weeks. It may well be only other boost when the president visits Moscow next week to negotiate new trade and arms agreements.

But the Watergate scandal is far from being behind him and Nixon faces several formidable hurdles if he is to avoid impeachment and hang on to office until his term ends in 1976.

The year 1976 is a key date because the 200th anniversary of the founding of the American republic will be marked that year with huge celebrations throughout the country. There is a general belief among observers that the White House goal is to keep the president in office as he can have the honor of presiding over the bicentennial celebrations.

The House of Representatives is scheduled in the next month or so to decide whether to vote for impeachment. Perhaps ever more important, the U.S. Supreme Court is to rule early in July whether the president can continue to withhold White House tapes which the special Watergate prosecutor feels are essential to his prosecution of a number of alleged Watergate conspirators.

The court's decision likely will have an important bearing on the direction the impeachment vote takes in Congress.

Four of the nine members of the high court are Nixon appointees but there is no way the president can assume that the court will tend to lean in his favor on this issue alone. One of the four appointees already has disqualified himself and withdrawn from the case because he was associated with Nixon as a former member of the justice department.

One of the fundamental issues before the court will be whether the president alone can define national security. Some acts of the Watergate conspirators, including the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, were performed on the grounds that national security was involved.

The court, in one celebrated case in the 1950s, ruled that the president has no such power to invoke national security. That case involved the seizure by the government of the country's steel mills. The country was at war in Korea, a steel strike was threatened and the mills were taken under government control on the ground that national security was involved.

The court ruled that the president's constitutional power to see that the laws were faithfully executed "refutes the idea that he is to be the lawmaker." His function in the lawmaking process, the court held, was to recommend laws he thought necessary wise and to veto laws he thought were bad.

In a quick response to the court's decision, Truman ordered the mills returned to their owners.

Nixon has said that he would obey a "definitive" Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate case but the White House now has said just what was meant by the word "definitive."

Nixon's aides note different reactions produced by different people.

When he talked to the plant, the philodendron was less than enthusiastic about getting back but when Mrs. Kurylyw talked, the plant suddenly became a conversationalist.

Most plants don't need the help of experts to understand themselves perfectly clear. They grow lush green leaves if they are happy and go brown if they dislike their human companions.

Science can now confirm what once gardeners have known for centuries. Plants are sensitive, moody and emotional.

Which all boils down to one simple piece of advice. If your parsley don't thrive give it fertilizer. It's probably those nasty thoughts you had last week that are making the poor flowers feel unloved and unwanted.

Bible Digest

Here is a message from the Spirit of God. It says simply: "don't make the mistake of thinking that God is always going to be standing by." The Spirit will not always strive with man.

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing wherein I sent it." Isaiah 55:11

Plants: Are They All That Human?

Peterborough Examiner

As every good gardener known, plants are sensitive creatures. A wrong word, a harsh glance, even a fleeting gesture of impatience can turn the happiest specimen into a wilted shadow of its former self.

The opposite is true when gardeners turn everyone else on the compost heap. Plants are stirred by a person with more than the average skill in the art of flower diplomacy. A Henry Mitchell, author of the flower beds, we might say.

It should come as no surprise, then, to hear from a Michigan detective that plants talk.

Adam Kuryliw, a polygraph operator in the Wayne County sheriff's office, attached one of his lie detectors to his wife's philodendron. The plants give off water, he said, that produces readings similar to those obtained from human beings. The amount of water emitted through the leaves varies as the emotions of humans change. By reading the needle on the lie detector, Kuryliw was able to listen to his plants and judge their reactions to different situations.

A philodendron borrowed from a florist's shop was left alone in a sunny spot. The needle on the lie detector hardly moved. When the plant was pinched — ha, ha, however, the needle acted as if it was recording human pain.

The philodendron was so sensitive that it produced a reaction on the lie detector when someone merely thought consciously about hurting it.

Kuryliw also noted different reactions produced by different people.

When he talked to the plant, the philodendron was less than enthusiastic about getting back but when Mrs. Kuryliw talked, the plant suddenly became a conversationalist.

Most plants don't need the help of experts to understand themselves perfectly clear. They grow lush green leaves if they are happy and go brown if they dislike their human companions.

Science can now confirm what once gardeners have known for centuries. Plants are sensitive, moody and emotional.

Which all boils down to one simple piece of advice. If your parsley don't thrive give it fertilizer. It's probably those nasty thoughts you had last week that are making the poor flowers feel unloved and unwanted.

Atomic Fallout Danger Is Renewed

By CY FOX
LONDON (CP) — China's fifth nuclear test, viewed in the context of renewed atmospheric experiments by France and Britain's first nuclear explosion, has heightened world concern about radioactive fallout and the possible future threat of atomic warfare.

Some observers suggest the situation is particularly worrisome in the light of China's continuing rivalry with the Soviet Union.

The latest Chinese test, apparently part of a Peking program of developing nuclear weapons for long-range missiles, may also be designed as a warning to Moscow that China cannot be attacked with impunity.

The Chinese seem genuinely concerned over Soviet military intentions.

This is reflected in the huge military and civil defence projects reported currently under the two world super-powers."

The Chinese test may, however, diminish the effectiveness of Peking's portrayal as an advocate of peace.

The Australians, whose prime minister Gough Whitlam has a symbol of reconciliation, feel strongly about the Chinese test—although they have made more pilgrimages against the latest French atmospheric explosion over the Pacific.

Whitlam has had discussions with the nuclear policies of Peking may be intensified with the prediction by a prominent Australian scientist that eventually the fallout effects of the Chinese test will be 10 times greater than those from the French experiment.

The Chinese, "Indian and French tests have other implications. They dramatize the concern felt by the increasing numbers of countries which try to equip themselves with nuclear weapons.

Mr. Ford Does It His Way

The Christian Science Monitor

"A day in the Ride of David Ford" is the way London's Observer headlines an article about the American Vice - President. And that has a sense of a strange condition of betwixt and between — as the Democrats challenge Mr. Ford is confronted with every day.

In the delicate task of being both the President's man and his own man, Mr. Ford has been charged with sigging and sagging. Yet, given his extraordinary position, the only alternative would seem to be just the sigging — to a White House tune — without the sagging.

Has any previous vice-president gone even as far as Mr. Ford in separating himself from presidential policies? In recent history Hubert Humphrey belatedly tried to free himself from Johnsonian policies when Mr. Humphrey himself was campaigning for the presidency. In the only previous presidential impeachment case, Andrew Johnson had succeeded the president from that post. As scandal began to be investigated in the Harding administration, Vice-President Coolidge apparently did not criticize President Harding but went so far as to say things like: "The principle . . . that there is no power which is above the authority of the law is absolutely sound."

Mr. Ford by and large seems to be trying to respond with his own views to questions as they come up. The results have caused speculation that Mr. Nixon is cooling toward the man he nominated so effectively last fall.

Whatever the net impression finally left by Mr. Ford's efforts to remain both loyal and candid, he is offering a useful example in his attempt to keep criticism of presidential tactics separate from pro-lapsing presidential involvement in Watergate. He has never implied the latter. He rightly wants Watergate questions decided on the facts, not on procedural matters.

Alcohol and Younger Driver

St. Catharines Standard

While sentencing a 20-year-old driving driver to a three-month jail term for causing two deaths by criminal negligence, an Ontario Supreme Court judge recently criticized the provincial government for having lowered the legal drinking age to 18. Instead of reducing the age of majority — and with it the legal drinking age — to 18, the government should have increased it to 21, the judge suggested.

According to testimony presented in court, the young man, a university student, was driving home after drinking at a student party when his car skidded and hit an oncoming car, killing its two occupants.

Obviously, the student's drinking was responsible for the accident. But does the good judge really believe that the legal drinking age had anything to do with it? Does the judge really believe the young driver would have remained sober, and where do one draw the line? If the legal age had been kept at 21 or had been raised to 24?

The young man ignored the law about drinking and driving. Why would he obey the law about drinking under age?

UCS and Y Membership

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Come off it Mr. Pepper. Can you really be serious when you are concerned about the YMCA and the UCS who would be allowed to "join clubs" and "get a job" handpicked by the organizations themselves?

I offered myself to the YMCA years ago when I was a member for five consecutive years. The only stipulation I made then was that I be elected by the directors democratically and stood on their own two feet. I was offered a job on the basis of being a director of the "Y" and there my offer ended.

I turned it down, as I chose to be "elected" by the rank and file — not appointed to keep my mouth shut.

Same thing with the UCS. I have offered myself there too. But you are not going to let the castoffs from the city unsuccessful candidates list that's when the ball ends up when they have taken their pick of the cream — to serve on local committees and boards.

To serve on these boards it seems one must be a "Yes" man. Even the board on the "inner Belleville" circle. Thank heaven I'm neither.

Also I am not a Liberal. Perhaps I'm not a Conservative either. I'm not a member of any of this. What I am is a taxpayer who is concerned about the waste and extravagance of the professionals have proved to be by big chunks.

There is nothing inconsistent with being a critic of the above things and with the whole of my five-year membership. There were years of the things that were wrong but it was convenient and expedient to look the other way. Why was $70,000 going in wages to those two "volunteers" when I was told to say its time somebody made a fuss.

And with regard to "beating down" the organizations there aren't you the chap who resigned as Treasurer of the UCS when the kitchen got a bit hot?

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

Doctors Find Smoking Ban Hard

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors resolved Monday not to smoke during meetings this week of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA), then came close to rescinding the pledge as cocktime withdrawal took its toll.

The doctors agreed at the start of the morning session to refrain from smoking, but after the noon luncheon one doctor complained that so many of his colleagues were sneaking out for cigarettes that he couldn't concentrate on the business at hand.

His plea to take down the no-ban was hypocritical.

smoking signs was supported by Dr. Patrick Bruce-Lockhart of Sudbury, Ont., who told the meeting "we look goddamn stupid" with a self-righteous attitude about smoking.

Dr. Bruce-Lockhart said he'd heard overweight doctors—like him—complaining about their hangovers from the previous night.

"We know what health problems are created by being overweight and drinking too much alcohol," he said. The smoking

However, the motion to remove the no-smoking signs was defeated by a margin of about 1 to 1 by the 200 or so members of the CMA's general council.

The council then passed a formal resolution prohibiting smoking during the meeting because "physicians should be examples of life styles promoting good health."

The doctors also discussed proposals to get more alcoholics into hospitals and increase the number of alcoholic treatment centres.

Doctors Take Stand
No-resuscitation Order Often Right

TORONTO (CP) — It is ethically acceptable in some cases for physicians to refrain from reviving patients who lapse into a coma that will inevitably lead to death, delegates to the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) annual meeting agreed Monday.

Heart-lung machines, respirators, catheters, intravenous tubes and other equipment should not necessarily be used to resuscitate patients who are terminally ill, the physician delegates agreed by a vote of 73 to 66.

The resolution said the CMA recognizes "that there are conditions of ill-health and impending inevitable death where an order on the order sheet by the attending doctor of 'non resuscitation' is appropriate and ethically acceptable."

It was stressed, however, that the liberty to permit patients to die must be restricted to patients whose chances of recovery are considered hopeless.

Dr. Dr. L. Rippon of Winnipeg old the meeting a no-resuscitation policy is already commonplace in hospitals.

However, the delegates unanimously opposed another resolution which would have endorsed the concept of a request form whereby a patient asks formally for death with dignity.

The proposed form was to request that a patient's dying not be unreasonably extended, and that he not be kept alive by heroic measures or unusual means.

The patient could also have requested in the form that any terminal suffering be relieved by drugs, even if the drugs advance the time of death.

On another issue, delegates agreed to establish a special committee to study the medical, legal and ethical problems of experimentation on humans and of genetic engineering.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE—AUDITOR'S REPORT AND FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR 1973

To: The Members of Council, Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

We have examined the 1973 financial statement of the Corporation of the City of Belleville and the local boards listed on the attached index. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

Our appointment as auditors for the CITY for 1973 included the audit of the Belleville General Hospital. Therefore our report does not cover the operations of that local Board.

In our opinion subject to the above, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the City of Belleville and its local Boards as of December 31, 1973, and the results of their operations for the year then ended, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted for Ontario municipalities applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Trudeau Proposes Loan Insurance

BEAUSEVILLE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau pledged Monday to shield average Canadians from what he called the jungle of lending and credit provisions that favor the fortunate few.

At an airport news conference at Ottawa, the prime minister said a re-elected Liberal government would introduce a loan-insurance plan to give "low-income, steadily-employed wage earners" access to credit they otherwise would not receive.

It also would require federal registration and licensing of all money lenders and would give borrowers the right to pay off mortgages at any time if they felt they could refinance their homes at better terms.

As well, he vowed to introduce legislation that would require complete disclosure of the effective rate of interest in all transactions involving interest payments.

He added that his government has drafted legislation that would ensure the wages of employees up to $2,000 would get priority over all other payments in a bankruptcy case.

In a statement released before the news conference, Mr. Trudeau said none of the consumer protection steps should be interpreted as election promises. He made the statement two weeks to the day before the July 8 federal election.

Neither Mr. Trudeau nor his aides could give any estimates of the costs involved in the proposals or how many people they would affect.

Mr. Trudeau talked to reporters shortly before boarding his aircraft for a hot dog-and-milk shake supper with his wife Margaret, who has accompanied him on many of his campaign travels. They then flew to Quebec City to take part in a St. Jean Baptiste Day reception on two travelling here, about 100 miles southeast of Quebec City.

His comments made it plain government would bring in legislation to protect investors in mutual funds; regulations to ensure the safety of electrical products and a labelling program to provide shoppers with clear descriptions of the way such things as refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and air conditioners perform.

At a briefing prior to the news conference, Liberal officials said the loan insurance program would work much like the 10-year-old Canada student loans program, under which loans are insured jointly by the government and the lending establishment.

The program was aimed at providing people not now considered good risks by banks with credit opportunities similar to those available to people who are better off.

The mortgage plan would set a limit—not disclosed—over which buyers could refinance mortgages without "excessively high prepayment penalties."

The licensing program would apply to all money lenders, including pawn brokers and "marginal institutions" who buy, tax refunds or old-age security cheques at a discount. Chartered banks and trust companies already are required to register with the Federal Government.

President James Madison's wife Dolly presided at the first inaugural ball in 1809, participated in the Washington Monument dedication and sent the first personal message over S. F. B. Morse's telegraph wire.

Indians Wait for Party Stands

OTTAWA (CP) — With less than two weeks to go in the federal election campaign, Indian leaders say they are growing impatient waiting for the various parties to outline their policies on Indian rights.

The silence on Indian rights is so complete that George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, said this week he is considering challenging the political leaders to say where they stand on such important Indian issues as recognition of aboriginal rights.

At the national headquarters of the 250,000 registered Indians, the feeling is that the leaders should not be allowed to get away with more on issue that resulted in several angry debates in Parliament and which took up so much of the time of the Commons Indian affairs committee.

Lewis Wants Tough Action Against Housing Speculators

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis proposed tough federal action Monday to chase speculators and developers out of the housing field.

He told about 1,200 persons at an election rally that such action could end blatant profiteering and be a major weapon in the war against inflation.

Mr. Lewis said incredibly high profits are being made by real estate speculators while 20 per cent of Canadian families are unable to afford their own homes. Re-election of a Liberal government July 8 would be returning an administration that has taken no effective action because it is "committed to speculators, money-lenders and developers."

His speech concluded a half day of campaigning in this southwestern Ontario industrial city, where housing costs are among the highest in the country.

Mr. Lewis said many people separate the issue of high housing costs from the rising cost of living. But the cost of shelter was the largest single element in the consumer price index, 32 per cent of the total.

He said his party would curb land speculation by promoting establishment of publicly owned municipal land banks, with federal aid where necessary.

"Every major municipality is fully capable of fulfilling the role of developer."

Mr. Lewis cited cases in Vancouver and Toronto, in which he said speculators had purchased homes simply to make a quick profit through resale.

"The only answer to these never-ending horror stories is to drive the speculator right out of the housing field."

Mr. Lewis described Liberal housing policies announced by Prime Minister Trudeau during the campaign as a "mish-mash" that has been ridiculed justifiably by knowledgeable commentators.

The NDP leader was joined at the rally by his eldest son Stephen, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, and Mayor Jane Bigelow of London as well as local candidates.

Party officials say the NDP hopes to pick up one of the London-area seats, and have set their sights on Loudon East, held in the last Parliament by Liberal Charles Turner.

Mr. Lewis opened his stay here with a live televised news conference, during which he said he did not take seriously U.S. threats to retaliate if Canada insists on maintaining a ban on importation of cattle fed with the growth stimulant diethylstilbestrol DES.

Liberals 15 Years Late

MONTMAGNY, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, told 300 supporters Monday in this community 50 miles east of Quebec City that his party is the only one offering a solution to the problem of inflation.

Mr. Caouette said that while Liberal party leader Pierre Trudeau is offering pensions at 55 years of age for one spouse when the other reaches 65, the Social Credit party proposed this 15 years ago.

Canadians 'Not Ready' for Communism

OTTAWA (CP) — Communist party Leader William Kashtan said Monday Canadians are not ready for full implementation of his party's policies and this is why the Communist election platform does not call for abolition of private capitalism.

Mr. Kashtan said in an interview however he feels the party has a realistic approach to nationalization as a means of breaking what he called monopolistic and foreign control of the Canadian economy.

It calls for nationalization of resource and energy industries, public utilities such as Bell Canada and CP Rail, CP Investments, and multinational corporations in Canada.

"We disagree the fact that the issue of Canadian control is not being debated in the election," Mr. Kashtan said.

"The Communist leader, whose party only once elected a member to Parliament—as a Labor Progressive in 1945—criticized the news media for "blacking out" coverage of his party.

Lee and Tara Burgess

Baby-Raising Keeps Her Busy

Baby-raising is Lee Burgess's current interest and she spends most of her day looking after and playing with five-month-old Tara.

Wife of Independent candidate in Prince Edward Hastings, Bryan Burgess, Lee Burgess is busy acclimating to country life rather than campaigning.

"I'm very much a city person she came with her husband from Toronto more than a year ago "who decided she wanted to live in the country," she says.

The couple now live on a 75-acre Colbourne area farm.

While she doesn't travel with her husband to meetings, Lee Burgess hastens to add that she really believes in what her husband is saying and doing.

"It's a new step, it's really exciting," she says.

For herself, Mrs. Burgess is "struggling" with a first time garden she hopes to expand and planning a farm life that will include goats and cows — "just enough to be self-sufficient".

Sewing and crocheting, guitar and painting are some of her creative outlets and she describes herself as "jack of all trades and master of none".

In the past she has worked as a receptionist days and spent most evenings involved in theatre workshops.

"Right now, though, I see my function as that of wife and mother with a personal ideal of becoming more and more self-sufficient," Lee Burgess says.

Vacation

LONDON (CP) — Fewer Britons are going abroad for their holidays this year. The head of one major company specializing in package holidays said the market is down by 20 per cent and some firms are likely to suffer a 50-per-cent drop this summer.

Lyons — Masterson

Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church was the scene for the June 1 wedding of Mary Lois Masterson and Karl Henry Lyons.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Masterson of Sioco and the groom is the son of Mrs. Douglas Shaw of Corbyville and the late Karl H. Lyons.

Rev. Father George Mullin officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother Jerry, the bride wore a floor length gown of nylon organza over taffeta with empire waistline. The de colle neckline with stand-up collar was edged with scalloped lace. The long bishop sleeves ending with a tight wrist were trimmed with Chantilly lace. Her chapel length train edged in Chantilly lace was caught with a large bow. Her waist length veil with a Juliette cap was trimmed with pearls and Chantilly lace. The bride carried a trailing bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley.

Helen Mullin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and she wore a floor length flowered gown of pale yellow, matching picture hat and carried a basket of daisies and baby's breath. Joanne Mack, sister of the groom, and Mona Murdoch, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids and their gowns were identical to the matron of honors, in shades of pale blue flowered and pale pink flowered.

Roy Mack, brother-in-law of the groom was the best man. Joseph Masterson and Tom Lyons were ushers.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front Street, Belleville. The couple took a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points north.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Lyons will reside at 11 Albion Street, Apartment 8, Belleville.

Remembers His Youth

LONDON (AP) — Dennis Flanders, council member for Camelford, Cornwall, wants a special board erected in a local park so young lovers can carve messages on it. He introduced the idea at council was considering putting wire mesh over a park shelter to protect it from carvers. "We were all young once and probably all did a bit of carving our initials. We should not go out of our way to stop something which is virtually a tradition."

Seek Shorter Hours

LONDON (CP) — Maureen Colquhoun and five other MPs have signed a motion urging establishment of regular office hours for House of Commons sessions. Mrs. Colquhoun, a Labor member, said she wants to get home in time to cook her husband's dinner. One MP suggested that if Mrs. Colquhoun couldn't stand the Commons pace she should return to the kitchen.

School Closes

VANCOUVER (CP) — St. Paul's Hospital has closed its school of nursing following graduation of its last class of nurses. It becomes the first Vancouver-area hospital to hand over nurse training to universities and colleges.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Vivian, Shannonville will be at home to friends, relatives and neighbors, on the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary on June 30, afternoon and evening.

Best wishes only please.

Quinte Women

Marg Bakay

Marg. Bakay makes her living at telling people how to talk on the telephone.

Six years a service advisor with Bell Canada, Mrs. Bakay covers a territory from Bancroft to Brighton and Napanee. She visits companies and schools, talking about telephone manner in business, trains switchboard operators for companies, and makes sure firms are using their communications equipment to the best advantage.

Recently, she's begun evaluating communications systems for private companies.

She stresses that she doesn't sell equipment but merely makes recommendations for putting in or taking out communications equipment.

Mrs. Bakay, who says she can train people on anything Bell sells, often spends days with a company, teaching everyone to use a new system or retraining people whose "telephone manner gets shoddy".

A Bell employee for 22 years, 16 of them as long distance operator and later supervisor, Mrs. Bakay says the most common mistakes persons make on the telephone is that they don't identify themselves when they answer the phone, presenting a bad image.

"When you answer the phone, you are the company as far as the caller is concerned."

For all of her services, Bell customers don't pay a thing.

As Mrs. Bakay puts it, "I'm the only thing that comes free from the Bell."

Princess of Many Talents

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Princess Alanis Obomsawin is many things — singer, artist, educationist and, lately, filmmaker.

For 18 years she has toured the country singing in Indian schools, children's camps, prisons and old people's homes, using primitive instruments to accompany her traditional songs of the Abenaki Indians, Alanis, taking their story.

She says she began singing as a child on her reserve at Odanak, about 75 miles northeast of Montreal. When she was 24 she was asked to join a group of singers in an all-Canadian show at New York's Radio Hall. That was her professional debut.

"I was so scared when they asked me," she laughingly remembers. "I didn't even want to sing about it. I was very nervous and shy and hardly spoke English. But finally I said yes."

After her first appearance she backed out of the limelight for a while. "I thought, I've done it once; I'm never doing it again."

But she did begin to sing again — at children's camps and schools. Even today, she does relatively few adult shows and says she feels more secure with children.

"I feel they're more honest," she said in an interview during a two 1½-week appearance at the National Arts Centre.

"They love for children, and a strong concern that Indian youngsters often do not learn enough about their own culture and people, led her to develop her 'primitive' kit" for schools. The kits contain maps, films and recorded stories about Indian life, usually narrated by an old person or a singer.

She began making the kits while working as a consultant for the National Film Board. She then went on to make her own films about Indian life.

About six years ago she directed her first film about Indian children, Mother Earth, filmed at Northern Ontario.

She says she hopes her films and kits used in the schools will teach white children first hand feelings and help to eliminate some of the prejudice against her people.

Now 41, with many achievements in her busy life, she believes that before a person can become anything he must know who he is.

"You can do many things, you can stand very straight and very proud and walk in the world so long as you know who you are," she says slowly and softly. But young people are losing their identity.

"The reason there is so much trouble with teen agers today, especially in the city, is because they've lost. They don't know what their roots are. Everything is pressure and new things.

"How can they be good at anything when they don't even know who they are?"

Alanis says her own life has not been easy and that it took her years to develop the quiet confidence she now seems to radiate.

At the age of nine she left the reserve with her parents to attend school in Trois-Rivieres, Que. As the only Indian child in her class, she had to endure taunts and beatings from her classmates.

They hailed her a wild Indian, she remembers, and stared and jeered at her when history classes turned to stories of Indian massacres.

"It was not a happy time. The kids hated me for some reason, probably because they were afraid. But I was never ashamed of being an Indian."

She doesn't blame the children. She says she feels their hatred was learned from their parents.

Today Alanis has few problems with the children she sings for, usually in Indian but sometimes in French. She always explains the meaning of a song and the story behind it, so that audiences who don't understand the language won't be bored.

And we have a lot of work to do ourselves. I don't want to shirk my responsibility on the outsider."

She thinks that despite the prejudice she encountered as a child she was able to grow up proud and without bitterness toward the white man because she was surrounded as a youngster by wise old people and "allowered by many beautiful things."

She was given the title of princess by the old people of her reserve as a compliment, but also on the understanding that she would bring something to her people.

The presence of old people is very important to a child's development, she says, and it is sad to see the spread of family breakdown and white people especially, seeming to ignore the elderly.

They were putting them in old people's homes "younger and younger."

Old people are important to Indians. "The older you are the more precious you are, the wiser you are and the more we need you," she says.

"Society is losing an awful lot by not having old people active in it."

Alanis is slim with long dark hair framing her face. She describes herself as a sad person. But she says she has lots of hope, hope that things will work out for her people.

Progress was being made in eliminate prejudice towards Indians that "there's so much to be done. I put very discouraged sometimes.

They're More Honest

New Look at Women Who Didn't Marry

NEW YORK (AP) — Norma Bauer, 53 years old and never married, would never call herself a spinster. She is a voice teacher in Springfield, Ohio—a groups-born woman by choice.

During the years, Miss Bauer has turned down marriage proposals from "a milkman, two lawyers, a music teacher, and most recently, a married minister."

"Men were fun to be with," she said in an interview in her apartment, but not for the rest of my life."

Miss Bauer is one of 55-year-old Margaret Kuhn how she escaped marriage, she usually considered.

"Sheer luck. My goals in life and those of the men I dated one simply did not coincide, I could not have done all I have done in my life if I had been married."

Miss Kuhn is an activist for rights of old people through her organization she founded called the Grey Panthers.

Miss Bauer and Miss Kuhn are among the more than two million never married women over the age of 35 in the United States. They make up a silent, unorganized minority group stereotyped—not always kindly—as the maiden aunt, the old maid, the spinster teachers.

The women are of special interest today as a growing number of young women decide not to marry, or to marry late. And the unmarried single life is coming to be studied by sociologists and psychiatrists.

Many married, in her book, The Future of Marriage, quotes Margaret Mead as observing that unmarried women are "a more independent, less neurotic, less passive" and in some psychical and mental ways "more adult" than married counterparts.

"Women single before then men to the single state because over the years it has been a more acceptable role for them," said Dr. Norman Bradburn of the University of Chicago. "Affectional ties in those later years that are a source of comfort are easier for women to achieve."

Interviews with women then a dozen single women over 50 confirmed some of the generalizations. Free of those interviewed made a conscious decision never to marry.

For some, their great love was taken away by tragedy or because he never met with an authoritarian father's approval. For others, there were sick and aging parents who had to be looked after. Some women admitted to a fear of sex or lifetime commitment to a man. Some declared themselves to a cause or career.

Some regretted not having had the depth of intimacy with a man that comes from years of living together. Another regret is not having children.

One woman past her childbearing years confessed that she would have a baby without marriage today if she could. "But back then, 'oh, the scandal it would have caused."

Given the strict moral upbringing of most of these women had and the sexual taboos of their times, it is likely that many still feel that guilt. As one woman delicately put it:

"I don't think I was physically suited to be a wife.

Several women had her first affair in her mid-30s but says now: "Sex is too expensive for me. I can't afford a sexual relationship emotionally. Maybe if I had been married I could handle that kind of intimacy later."

Most scoff at the possibility that in their old age they could encounter sex.

"How many men are looking for a 55-year-old virgin bride?" asked one woman.

Drug Nightmare for Parents

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When I found a huge supply of pills and some letters in your column from teen-agers who do baby-sitting, but I've never read a letter from a "career-girl."

I've "raised" more than 50 children, from newborns to 11 years of age. Some mothers insist on calling me "the baby-sitter." (Say hello to the baby-sitter.) I have no use for and the kids use it, so why can't they call me that?

Staying with youngsters has been my only source of income for many years. I pay taxes on my earnings. Yet, I've had mothers call and ask me two hours before I was due to leave me, "Mary Lou doesn't feel well and we've decided to stay home." Frequently I've been down other jobs and saved the evening for them. But they never think to pay me when they cancel.

Most of the people I work for are sophisticated, yet they act as if they're never heard of contract. When they say they'll be home at midnight, and arrive at two a.m., I get the same "I'm sorry" look.

In spite of my complaints, I've been happy with my children. They've kept me active and never me from loneliness. I guess I just wish people would be more considerate and I figured your column was a good place to tell them.—Granny

Dear Granny: Your complaints could be easily remedied if you would furnish them with your employers instead of Ann Landers.

Why can't you expect to be paid if they cancel without giving you proper notice. Charge by the hour instead of the job if you prefer. Establish the meaning of "overtime." And when they refer to you as "the baby-sitter," remind them that you have a name. Simple, isn't it?

Dear Ann Landers: I've seen a sister, 34, has changed from a happy-go-lucky person to a very unhappy one, seldom goes out except for groceries.

I happened to mention that a certain guy got married; this made her surprisingly angry. It seems she went out with him last summer, and now she declares a neighbor has designs on her husband.

Successful Living

Get Rid of Hang-ups

Sometimes you hear it said, "You have to like yourself before you can like anybody else."

Well, I must say! Like myself? Isn't that pretty self-centered? No, that's not the big kind of self-liking that is meant.

It is the kind which reflects your feelings of guilt, an indirectly. It is a kind of self-understanding which gives you the right to be human, to make mistakes, and to forgive yourself as quickly as you would forgive the other fellow.

Having achieved this kind of poise, you can start looking outwards, understanding and liking someone else. You are not open free to make an effort to understand, until you clear up your own mad tangles. Until you like yourself.

When a person has a bad bout of temper, his main anger is basically and deeply self-directed. That doesn't mean that the person on whom the fury is cruelly blasted should take it meekly. The recipient should react — not with another bad temper but with a firm enough stand that the first person will have received a little insight, enough to start a self-discipline.

Once he has gained ascendency over the frustration that caused his hostility, he is free to care about another human being.

Dear Dr. Lamb: My mother lives on my sister's farm. My brother brought her last from town.

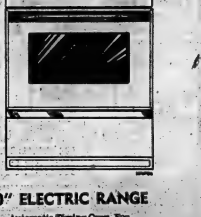
My sister, at 34, has changed from a happy-go-lucky person to a very unhappy one, seldom goes out except for groceries.

I happened to mention that a certain guy got married; this made her surprisingly angry. It seems she went out with him last summer, and now she declares a neighbor used her signature to write him saying she didn't want to see him any more.

When I doubted that the neighbor would do such a thing she turned on me and said I didn't care about her. I told my sister she should get a change away from home for a while and maybe could stay with us. How can I help her?

Hate To Be Looking On.

Dear Looking On: If an unhappy love affair is at the bottom of all this, your sister has to be rescued from her bitter withdrawal. Right now it seems to her that life isn't worth the effort.



You may be able to break down her resistance by inviting her to your home occasionally when you are having three or four people in. The main thing is for you to continue trying to see her. Let her know it by getting to see her, by sending little gets or brief notes.

In her age her isolation could turn into a biter mental illness.

Confidential to Bachelor Girl: No man is perfect. If you wait for a fellow who has no faults you will never get married. But this man has been a bachelor for a good long time and the older you get the harder it is to adjust to married life.

Think of it: He has to get used to the idea of having everything, including his thoughts, he is going to have to give in at least part of the time. Marriage is only successful when both partners go 100 per cent of the way. You may find that the habits which anger you now could seem even worse if you are married to him day after day, at close range.

TORONTO (CP) — Health province's hospitals and the Minister Frank Miller said Monday he is encouraged by the current state of negotiations between representatives of the wage dispute and said he feels both sides are talking in good faith and are eager for a settlement.

He added that he has heard no overt strike threats from the nurses.

They were a responsible group and such strikes were illegal.

Mr. Miller said his ministry is not involved in the discussions.

The minister also brushed off suggestions that there is a critical shortage of nurses in the province.

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Park. Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, was accused in the legislature Monday of "twisting figures to his advantage" in connection with logging operations in Algonquin

Mr. Lewis made the claim in a party policy statement last week and asked Mr. Bernier about it Monday in the house.

Ottawa Seeks Land For Army

TORONTO (CP) — A confrontation may be brewing between the province and the federal government over the proposed use of a large tract of Ontario Crown land near Petawawa for military purposes.

The issue emerged in the legislature Monday when Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) said the federal government was seeking to take over 40,000 acres of prime recreational land near the Petawawa armed forces base for military training.

National Resources Minister Lee Bernier, responding for Mr. Sargent, said Ottawa officials had approached a member of his ministry in Fernbrook about using the land.

Mr. Bernier said he wrote federal Defence Minister James Richardson in April and Ottawa was "not anxious" that the land be used for military training.

He said he had not yet received a reply, but assured Mr. Sargent the province was not happy with the federal proposal.

He also said he would continue to press Ottawa to turn back to the province the right to provincial Crown land at Manford. The Manford land was acquired by Ottawa during the Second World War for a tank training ground.

In an interview, Mr. Bernier said one of the reasons Ottawa has been reluctant to return the Manford site to the province was that "there may still be live shells lying around."

Mr. Bernier said he does not accept this explanation because Britain has proven that areas can be cleared of potentially explosive objects.

Ratepayers Ask Council to Quit

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A four-member ratepayer group has called for the resignation of Kingston Township Reeve J. Earl McEwan and his council after the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) rejected the council's $3.9-million water service proposal.

The OMB said the proposal, which would have extended the existing water service line and installed building a new water plant, did not represent "a sound or good policy."

The board criticized the township council for "not giving serious consideration to a suggestion by the ratepayers that a buy water from the city of Kingston. The OMB agreed the alternative would be cheaper.

Reeve McEwan and his councillors have refused to comment.

CIA Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Howard Baker says he has been trying for months to have the secrecy stamp lifted from documents on which Charles Colson apparently bases a theory of deep CIA involvement in Watergate and related cases.

"I doubt that this will become a dead issue," the Tennessee Republican said. "I don't expect it to."

Because the CIA refuses to declassify the documents, Baker said he cannot confirm or deny the accounts given Monday by a private investigator consulted by Colson last month.

The investigator, Richard Bast, said Colson told him President Nixon personally agrees with his theory of CIA conspiracy. If is Colson's belief, Bast said, that the CIA helped carry out the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and that the agency knew in advance of the Watergate.

Tough Ordeal

CALGARY (CP) — Dave Schiedel climbed down from Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.'s 200-foot water tower Monday night, saying he couldn't take another lightning storm such as he experienced Sunday night.

Mr. Schiedel, 27, climbed the tower Friday to protest the company's treatment of its 240 workers here. He was taken to hospital after his descent and was reported a bit shaken and suffering from sunburn, but otherwise in good condition.

Strike Continues

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Eighty members of Local 4135, United Steelworkers of America, voted Monday in favor of continuing a strike which began June 8 at Canadian Brass Ltd. here.

The union executive had made an effort to talk the men into going back to their jobs in order to stave off legal action by the company.

No Backing

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — City council refused Monday to support the idea of a provincial "levy" on all municipalities damaged by natural disasters.

Soldier-voters Have Complaints

OTTAWA (CP) — Monday's election day for $1,150 Canadians and some complained that they have been ignored by those they were supposed to be voting for.

The rest of Canada casts its federal election ballots July 8 or in the advance poll on the Dominion Day weekend.

But for 82,100 men and women of the Canadian Armed Forces, some of their dependents and 2,100 public servants overseas and their dependents, Monday was the day to vote.

In Tel Aviv some Canadian Forces members complained they were voting for persons whose platforms were unknown to them.

Pte. Wayne Talbot, 27, said he did not know the name of the candidates in his constituency of Huron-Middlesex.

"I don't have any information at all about what is going on and I made up my mind when I saw the ballot," he said.

Others made similar remarks.

Election officials in Ottawa said that not all candidates registered the overseas voters. Some displayed considerable anxiety to get names so they could send their literature over in time.

A spokesman in the chief electoral office refused to give the names of constituencies or candidates who took the trouble to reach overseas voters.

But he did not disagree when it was suggested that these were people having near military or naval bases where the military vote is important.

Legislature Starts Rush to Adjourn

TORONTO (CP) — Despite threats or an extended night sitting Monday, the legislature rose at 10:25 p.m.—25 minutes past the usual adjournment hour—with both sides apparently pleased with results.

Earlier in the day, the government had quashed opposition objections and pushed through a motion extending the sitting hours. The legislature was to meet at 10 a.m. today, instead of the usual 2 p.m. and sittings were to be allowed to go on past the usual midnight adjournment.

The action was taken as the government eyed the lengthy order-paper and the fast-approaching summer recess.

Land Sales Scrutiny To Be Made Tighter

TORONTO (CP) — The government plans to tighten its scrutiny of land sales under the terms of the Land Speculation Tax Act Revenue Minister Arthur Meen said Monday.

Mr. Meen told the legislature his ministry soon will be taking a closer look at statements filed by sellers testifying to the value of their property.

The speculation tax is charged against increases in value after April 9 of this year.

Mr. Meen said that now most statements of property value are accepted, but the ministry's own evaluators will be looking at future sales to determine whether vendors' assessments are valid.

He told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that about 80 per cent of the officials of value now being filed with the ministry are unnecessary, because the sales they cover are exempt under the act.

Sales of primary residences, except cottages, are exempt.

The ministry said his assessment branch will be looking into future sales, although recent trends in the housing market show that values are beginning to stabilize.

The branch would scrutinize values claimed in affidavits and if they disagreed, some type of adjudication might be necessary.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) asked why there are long delays in getting clearance certificates.

Mr. Meen said his department is swamped by requests, most of which are unnecessary.

Control Blocked

TORONTO (CP) — A proposed bylaw which would have regulated the working hours of virtually all business establishments in the borough of Etobicoke, was blocked Monday by a court order issued by Mr. Justice R. E. Holland of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The order came after objections were filed by a group of dissenting gasoline station operators, and the Ontario Petroleum Association, which speaks for seven oil companies with outlets in the area.

The order paper lists more than 20 bills, but only a handful are considered priority items.

Normally, the house sits from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. It does not normally sit on Wednesdays, but will do so this week.

The opposition's anger was reflected in a plea by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) who called for a return to 10:30 p.m. to adjourn and "we'll all go home and let the bells ring."

Mr. Nixon, outside the legislature, Opposition Leader Robert Nixon threw cold water on Dr. Shulman's idea. He said the Liberals feel they have to be on hand to debate bills when the legislature is in session, even if the government forces late sittings.

He called Dr. Shulman's proposal "a bunch of crap."

The opposition was objecting to what has become a tradition in the legislature—extended sittings near the end or a session to clean up a backlog of bills.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) said the government had introduced 23 new bills in the last 10 days and "suddenly we're in a great rush to get them through."

James Foulds (NDP—Port Arthur) said the house sat less than 40 hours in March, and up to two weeks ago had brought forth less than 25 bills.

"It's not just bad management," he said. "It's a deliberate, obvious attempt to render the opposition powerless."

Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) said the NDP has no objection to sitting in the morning but "we do object to sitting around the clock."

No Study

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Minister John MacBeth refused Monday to allow his bill to increase Workmen's Compensation Act benefits to undergo committee study, saying there is not enough time left before the summer recess.

Component Pricing Suggested for Milk

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A component-content testing and pricing system for milk producers and processors might result in substantial benefits to consumers, delegates to the 68th annual American Dairy Science Association conference were told Monday.

A paper presented by Dr. J. C. Rennie of the Ontario College of Agriculture, University of Guelph, said that research now available from the development of new dairy feeds with results in solids and protein content.

He outlined the results of a 15-month study on component pricing established by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board (OMMB).

Dr. Rennie, as chairman of the Ontario Component Pricing Study, said the 35 processors, farmers, consumers and government employees involved in the study would present a completed report to the OMMB this fall, recommending means of the past."

Food Prices Not Inflated

REGINA (CP) — Minister of State Bryce Mackasey said Monday that Canadians should be willing to pay more for their food and that farmers have been supporting the bulk of the population without adequate payment for many years.

"I don't consider higher food prices 'inflationary,'" he said in an interview. "I consider them a rectification of injustices of

Rhodes Explains Need For Transit Development

CALGARY (CP) — Ontario Transport Minister John Rhodes said Monday Canada does not yet have an industry capable of producing the equipment necessary to meet the growing transit needs of its cities and towns, the Ontario Transportation Development Corp. to develop new transit equipment through research and act as a catalyst for the promotion of a Canadian industry.

The Ontario Crown firm has already licensed the manufacture of a small bus and sold 100 of them since last October.

Sales volume indicated these buses will find markets throughout Canada and the United States.

He said in a speech to the Canadian Urban Transit Association that Canada cannot afford to leave itself at the mercy of foreign suppliers.

Strike Ban Is Seen As Cause of Walkout

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) says Ontario legislation banning strikes by hospital workers does more to cause strikes than to prevent them.

In a brief to be presented today to a provincial inquiry into hospital wages and working conditions, CUPE says it is time for the government to realize that strikes in hospitals cannot be legislated away.

It says legislation requiring unresolved contract differences to be submitted to arbitration is "the main factor responsible for soaring labor costs in hospitals, and as it is more a force in creating strikes than preventing them."

Hospital employees will go on strike only after years of frustration and lack of hope for the future, the brief says.

Workers Back on Job

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — The first shift of 1,100 production workers at International Harvester of Canada Ltd. here was to return to work this morning, ending a three-day walkout.

The workers, members of Local 127, United Auto Workers, began the walkout last Friday night when about 400 employees left their jobs. Their last three-year contract with the firm, Chatham's largest industrial employer, expired June 1.

Contract negotiations began last March and resumed during the weekend. They reopened Monday and following a union-management meeting, Ronald Moon, local president, said all plant employees would be returning to work on regular schedule today.

New Canadians

Ivo Mokros and his wife Vera will receive their Canadian citizenship tomorrow in a ceremony at the County Court House. Here they sit at home with their two sons, Ivo, 13 and Paul, 11, and discuss some of their future plans.

Czech Family Canuck Tomorrow

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

Ivo Mokros and his wife Vera are Czechoslovakians today. Tomorrow they will be Canadians.

Five years ago the Mokros and their two sons, Ivo, 13, and Paul, 11, were away from their home in the industrial city of Decine, situated near the Polish-Czechoslovakian border. They were on vacation in Austria.

On the fourth day of their holidays, August 21, 1968, the Mokros awoke to find themselves homeless. Czechoslovakia had been invaded, overnight, by Russian, Polish, Bulgarian, Hungarian and East German troops.

Upset by the program of political reforms proposed by the government of Alexander Dubcek, the Soviet Union and four other members of the Warsaw Pact had seized control of Czechoslovakia.

Angered, bewildered and frightened, the Mokros and other Czechoslovakians on leave vacationing in Austria, watched the Russian tanks rumble through the streets of Prague on television.

"Everyone cried," Mrs. Mokros explained last week as she groped for words to explain the bitter feelings she had in August 1968. "It was just terrible. It was really a shock, if you see. It was really a nice country and then on TV you see tanks and planes and soldiers and nobody wanted. Everybody just stay home. Everybody cry."

The Mokros stayed in Austria for two weeks and carefully watched the situation in Czechoslovakia. Their future hung on a thin thread of hope that the Russians would leave the Czechs alone and they could return to the life they knew.

Hope died waiting and the Mokros moved to Switzerland.

A month later, a plane brought the Mokros to Canada and the Toronto International Airport.

With $20 in his pocket, a few clothes he had purchased in Switzerland and a family of three, Ivo Mokros started a new life in a new country.

Trained in Czechoslovakia as a technical draftsman for a firm of toolmakers, Mr. Mokros cold not speak English. He knew no one. He did not know Canada.

Tomorrow, nearly five years after they lost their home, their country and their relatives, Ivo and Vera Mokros will take an oath of allegiance to Canada and the Queen. In a quiet ceremony in the Hastings County Court House they, and 54 other people, will become Canadians.

The ceremony at the citizenship court is simple and moving, but it hides the trials, the toil and the joys that made the five years it summarizes.

It hides the night the Mokros arrived at the Belleville train station to be met by a Canada Manpower representative who was charged with finding Mr. Mokros a job and an apartment for his family.

It hides the new home on Dundas Street West that Mr. Mokros bought for his family after working for three and a half years on the assembly line at Northern Electric. And it hides the favors, the friendship and the encouragement the Mokros received from Canadians.

Sitting in their new home, surrounded by the furniture Mr. Mokros made by hand in his basement, simply because he could not afford to go out and buy it, the Mokros discussed their past and their future.

Mr. Mokros is now self-employed. He owns and operates Ivo's Tobacco Service Station, at the intersection of Coleman Street and West Moira.

He has never worked as a draftsman since he left Czechoslovakia, because he says his English was too poor to work in an office.

Speaking with a slight trace of an accent he explained that he only took English language lessons for a few months and then had to drop them because he was too busy working.

"I did not have too much time to learn English and go to school," he said. "So I just learn to talk to people and read papers. That's all. It hurt me a little bit now, because I have to talk to people when I run a service station."

Mrs. Mokros worked as a chemical technician in Czechoslovakia. When she came to Canada in 1968 she spent a year taking care of her children. Once they started school at St. Michael's Academy, she worked at a number of jobs and now has a position at Deloro Stellite similar to the one she had when she worked in Czechoslovakia.

Summarizing the five years that led to their becoming Canadians tomorrow, Mr. Mokros said:

"Sometimes we doubted if we could make it. But we got us worried and just saved money and bought everything little by little. I've been lucky. I got the right job. Some people take maybe 10 years before they get the right style. We had really good friends who helped us very much when we come to Canada. It was really something. Now Canada is our next homeland."

Driver Injured As Car Rolls

An RR 2, Wentworth man, Richard Wayne Martin, 19, is listed in "serious" condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital this morning after the car he was driving spun out of control and rolled five times along Highway 401 early this morning.

PC Garney Brown of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reports that the Martin vehicle was westbound along Highway 401 shortly after 1 a.m. when it crossed the roadway onto the median and rolled five times for a distance of 377 feet.

Mr. Martin car, a 1968 Thunderbird was a complete writeoff. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

Martin is being treated in hospital for multiple head and chest injuries and for an injured left leg and right elbow.

Yardmen Corps Going on Tour

The Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps are going through their final rehearsals this week before leaving for their first tour of the U.S.

A rehearsal starts at 7 p.m. tonight at Zwick's Island. On Friday, June 30, the Corps leaves for Dunkirk, N.Y., where they will compete.

Other stops on the tour, which will take up most of the summer, will include an appearance in Chicago and an exhibition in Milwaukee. Affluell, they will take part in the Big New York Pageant on July 7.

The corps' local appearances will be August 14, when they will compete, September and October are given over to parades in Western Ontario.

Beer Garden Is Vetoed

Downtown merchants will stage their annual sidewalk sale July 15-16-20 and although it will have a greater festival atmosphere, city council has drawn the line against beer gardens.

The decision against allowing beer gardens was taken at Monday's council meeting following a spirited discussion led by Alderman Jos Cox who said the proposed beer outlets were just temporary and could be a detriment to the city.

The alderman noted that alcohol was involved in three of the five traffic fatalities in the city last year.

Alderman Cox's motion to disallow beer gardens was seconded by Alderman Arthur Keegan but for different reasons.

He said that there already were enough beer outlets in the city's downtown area. And Alderman Ben Corke noted that the permit outlets pay taxes.

The specific request was for permission allowing a local service club to operate a beer garden in a tent facility.

Alderman John Stock said the proposed beer outlet on Front Street would create a situation on Front Street which could get out of hand and might do a disfavor to merchants.

But Alderman Stu Meeks took a different view, noting that he had closely watched the beer garden at last year's Quinte Exhibition and had seen no rowdyism.

He said such a facility would create a novelty for the annual sidewalk sale that might attract more people.

Council approved the closing of Front Street between Victoria and Campbell for all but emergency vehicles and to have no parking on the east side of Front Street during the sidewalk sale between Campbell and Bridge Street.

Alderman Cox's motion to disallow beer gardens during the sidewalk sale was carried by a 9-3 recorded vote.

Aldermen in the decision were Mayor Robert Jeffrey, and Aldermen Corke, Cox, Holland, Keegan, Smith, Stock and Zeagman. Dissenting negative votes were Aldermen Meeks, Porter and Russell.

Flags Disappear As Police Gather

Belleville harbors a thief with a sense of humor.

Three Injured

A Belleville woman is listed in "fair" condition at Belleville General Hospital this morning following a two-car collision at the intersection of Victoria Ave. and Bertram Street that sent three persons to hospital around 6.35 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. O'Neill, 54, of 31 Plaza Square, was admitted to hospital suffering facial injuries when the car she was driving northbound along Bertram Street collided with a car driven east along Victoria Ave. by Nola Wilson, 24, of 9 Sherwood Dr.

Also injured in the accident were Iris Wilson, 18, of 9 Applewood Dr., a passenger in the Wilson car; and Richard Kidd, 54, a passenger in the O'Neill vehicle. Both were treated and released from hospital.

Some time Sunday, while 211 policemen were checking into the Four Seasons Motor Hotel for the Twenty-third Annual Conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, a thief stole three nine-by-five-foot flags from three flagpoles on the flagpoles in front of the hotel.

Police reported the theft late Monday, saying that a thief had stolen two Canadian flags and a Union Jack, valued at approximately $180.

The flags had been seen flying from their poles at the southeast entrance to the building, near the Bay Bridge Road, about 9 a.m. Sunday.

The theft was discovered at 9:10 p.m. Monday.

The 211 policemen, ranging from the rank of inspector to chief of police, began to check into the hotel at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The police chiefs conference will last until Thursday afternoon.

Computer Contract Awarded

Quinte Computer Services Ltd. has been awarded the contract to set up a data centre in the Hastings county board of education's new headquarters.

The board has used Loyalist College's computer for its financial system.

Cost of the new service will be $24,000 a year for the first five years of the contract. At the end of the five years, the board has the option to renew the contract for an additional one to five years at a cost of $13,800 annually. The rates are fixed, and will not increase as the result of higher demands on the computer or inflation.

A bonus with the Quinte Computer contract is the provision for teaching time on the computer. It will be available two hours a week, to high school students learning computer operations.

Promotions, Resignations Official at City Hall

Promotions were in order Monday for two members of the city hall engineering staff as council moved to fill positions left vacant in an earlier administrative shuffle.

Some weeks ago City Engineer Wilmer Purcell was named city manager with duties to commence July 1.

Yesterday council named present deputy city engineer Joseph Kaplar to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Purcell's departure, while Rafique M. Khan, now assistant engineer will step up to the deputy engineer post of the city.

Also, at Monday's meeting, council lost City Solicitor Dougal C. Miller who is leaving city hall to set up a private practice in the city.

And also at last night's meeting, the engineering staff of the week" were recognized by gifts from the city. The boys received key chains bearing the city crest, while the girls were presented with charms to add to their charm bracelets.

Last Class Graduates

The last nurses to register at Belleville General Hospital's Edith Cavell School of Nursing, graduated Saturday.

There were 64 students in the class of 1974, who enrolled at BGH before nursing education was taken over by community colleges last year.

They received their diplomas and pins from Mrs. R.M. Pinkard, head of nursing education at Loyalist College and nursing program coordinator Mrs. June Rickard.

Strange Goings on at Hell

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

If you wonder around the Sagonaska Resort in the Four Seasons Hotel this week, you will meet some strange people.

Tedd Smith stands in the northeast corner of the room talking about his little strapped wonder belt with 62 bullets facing inside it.

Michael A. Lee is a respectable looking gentleman with a pleasant smile standing at a large table in the opposite corner from Ted. He talks of ballistic clip boards that are guaranteed to stop a nine millimeter shell or a shot from a .38 special.

Lloyd Mellor, dressed in a conservative looking grey suit, stand to the right of Michael and chats about robber proof vests that couldn't hurt a flea, if they were thrown back at the man who first used them.

Hidden away in the southwest corner of the room is a small table draped with a red velvet cloth that carries the name Gerard Smith. On top of the table there are displayed a number of leather holsters, badges, and a club that carries an intimidating label.

The label reads: "Lifetime Police Club ... gives reasonable care it will give you a lifetime of normal service ... tested in the field and laboratory to withstand hard use."

Taken out of context, these men and the merchandise they are displaying would frighten most people.

The men they are talking to, however, are well acquainted with lifetime members of clubs and small bones crammed full of faces.

Tedd, Michael, Lloyd and George are just four of the sales representatives from a variety of companies who have joined the 211 police officers attending he Twenty-Third Annual Conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police.

The goods they are displaying are just samples of the equipment used by police departments to combat crime.

Tedd Smith isn't the creator of Pandora's Box. He is the sales representative for Smith and Wesson Canada Ltd. and the box with 62 billion faces is simply an Identi-Kit that is used by police departments to make composite drawings of unidentified police suspects.

Smith and Wesson lease the kit to police departments for $15 to $18 a month and offer yearly departments a three-day training session each year for the officers who will use the kit.

By simply using seven plastic sheets or foil that have special facial features traced on them, the police can recreate any one of 52 billion faces.

Michael Lee's ballistic clip board is a new invention that is designed to protect the police officer who unknowingly is shot at armed and dangerous motorist.

The clear Lexan plastic shield, molded into the shape of a large clipboard that protects the policeman's chest area, is made for the traffic policeman who, when approach a driver who is acting in his car.

Mr. Lee's company, Marmade Inc., sells a wide line of unusual merchandise. Their display includes: a Pepper-Fog Tear-Smoke Generator, sets of ten plastic lungs called PlexChest, that are used in emergency handcuffs and can be hidden in the brim of your hat, gun grips, a small metal gadget called a Quick Loader, that can fully load a revolver in less than five seconds, and a portable, Handelector, metal detector.

Lloyd Mellor represents Stokes Cop and Regalia Ltd. and, aside from selling rubber "fingerprint kits that sell for $150, handcuffs that sell for $40 and, for the ladies, a special selection of women's police hats.

For security reasons, the display is not open to the public.

The Ontario police chiefs will meet in the Four Seasons for three more days.

Unique Artform

The art of Eddy Drumm isn't your average run of the mill art. Eddy is on a brief stopover in the Belleville area and his specialty is "etchings" on marble for tombstones. Most of his work deals with religious themes. He has been doing this work for 16 years and is the only one in Germany doing this particular artform. Eddy comes from a small village in Germany called St. Nicholas and is spending six weeks travelling around Ontario displaying his unique skills to monument companies. In Belleville, he offered his work at Campbell Monument Co. Ltd.

Last Taxpayers May Get Rapped

Delinquent city taxpayers who delay payment of their taxes could be in for higher penalty payments if a resolution concurred in by city council gets approval by the Ontario Government.

The resolution from the township of Pittsburgh outside Kingston asks that the provincial government give consideration to amending present legislation to increase the penalty for non-payment of taxes from the present one per cent per month, to two per cent per month.

Council concurred in the Pittsburgh resolution by the narrowest of margins — on the vote of Jean Smith acting as chairman of the committee of the whole — but several members suggested approval could mean the city would be contributing to the never ending debate.

It seems that some taxpayers with investment money on hand take advantage of up to 14 per cent interest rates, while delaying mortgages while leaving their own city taxes unpaid.

The present regulations the maximum penalty municipalities may charge is one per cent per month or 12 per cent per year.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey noted that if the city has to borrow money at higher than 12 per cent because of non-payment of taxes, then all taxpayers suffer.

Alderman Paul Russell said concurrence in the resolution would not mean the city would charge two per cent per month penalty on unpaid taxes but would allow flexibility should the city decide to increase its present rate.

Fuel For A City

The tanker, Bay Transport, pumped 415,000 gallons of oil into waterfront storage system of local distributor.

Lonborg and Gibson Shake Off Miseries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two former Cy Young award-winners have seemingly shed the boot to their knee troubles.

Jim Lonborg, 1967 Cy Young award-winner while pitching Boston Red Sox into the World Series, tossed a six-hitter and slugged a grand-slam homer as the leading Philadelphia Phillies over Montreal Expos 5-2.

And Bob Gibson, Cy Young winner in 1968, 1969 and 1970, struck out 11 batters and became the most successful active major league pitcher in hurling St. Louis Cardinals over 6-4 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

"The boomer helped—it was nice to get a load like that," said Lonborg, whose record now stands at 13-5 after six straight victories.

"I felt fairly good," said Gibson, 4-8, after stifling the Pirates on four hits. "But I've been feeling good for the last two or three weeks."

It was a doubleheader sweep for St. Louis, who won the first game 2-1.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros tripped Cincinnati Reds 6-1 New York Mets trimmed Chicago Cubs 4-3, Atlanta Braves edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and San Diego Padres nipped San Francisco Giants 3-1.

"When I hit that ball, I got my head down and started running; trying to get as many bases as I could," said Lonborg of his third-inning grand slam.

He kept his head down almost too long, jogging up behind catcher Bob Boone as they rounded the bases. Passing him would have negated the first grand slam in the pitcher's career.

"I slowed up just in time," said Lonborg, who had been struggling since a skiing accident in 1968 wrecked his knee.

The 32-year-old Gibson, battling to regain his form since a knee operation last August, walked only three to record his first victory since May 19.

The triumph was his 161st in 14 seasons, pushing him past Boston's Jim Marichal, who has 240 wins.

Tom Griffin stymied the Reds on five hits while Doug Rader and Cesar Cedeno blasted home runs for Astros.

Pitcher Buzz Capra's sparcese bust drove in the deciding run in a four-run seventh inning that carried Atlanta past Los Angeles, snapping the Dodgers' three-game winning streak.

The victory moved the Braves into a tie with Cincinnati for second place in the NL West. 6½ games behind Los Angeles.

Rookie San Diego righthander Dan Spillner, who pitched a one-hitter in his last outing, needed ninth-inning help but the Padres held on to beat the Giants.

Spillner, who shut out the Chicago Cubs 1-0 last Wednesday, gave up Pete Rose's leadoff hit, yielding to Dave Tomlin in the ninth.

Ninth-inning errors by Dave Rosello and Jose Cardenal gave New York a pair of runs and the Mets went on to beat the Cubs.

With the Mets trailing 2-1 in the ninth and two on with one out, Ed Kranepool grounded to Rosello, but the second baseman let the ball go through his legs, permitting pinch-runner Dave Schneck to score. And when right fielder Jose Cardenal's throwing sailed past Bill Madlock at third, another run scored. Jerry Hahn capped the inning with a double that scored Kranepool.

Busby – Bid Ends in Defeat

Second Straight No-hit Effort Hard to Come By

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For more than five innings Kansas City's Steve Busby toyed with a no-hitter and the record books, then lost a ball game.

Kansas City's young right-hander had American League baseball fans thinking back to Johnny Vander Meer as he appeared on his way to his second consecutive no-hitter.

But Texas ended when Pat Kelly of Chicago White Sox smashed a one-out single in the fifth and the game went down the drain in the seventh when Ron Santo hit a two-run homer that gave the Sox a 3-1 victory over the Royals.

In other American League games, Cleveland Indians walloped New York Yankees 10-3, Boston Red Sox bombed Milwaukee Brewers 9-6, Oakland Athletics defied California Angels 11-3, Minnesota Twins pummelled Texas Rangers 8-4 and Baltimore Orioles beat Detroit Tigers 3-1.

The pressure and the ballyhoo from the first no-hitter didn't bother me," said Busby.

"I made some bad pitches — "

But until he served up Santo's game-breaker, there hadn't been many. He walked only one batter last Wednesday night in no-hitting Milwaukee 2-0. And he walked only two before Kelly hit a grounder that barely eluded second baseman Cookie Rojas.

Vander Meer remains the only major league pitcher with two in a row no-hitters, in 1938 against Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves.

Almost lost in all the excitement Monday was Wilbur Wood's 12th victory of the season. He gave up only four hits in 8 1-3 innings and was nicked for the "loss" after Chicago got a sixth on a walk to George Brett, a bunt by Jim Wohlford and a fly by Rich Allen.

Busby did make one new entry in the record books. He retired 33 batters in success on over a two-game span, eclipsed the mark of 32 by Vic Raschi of the 1950 New York Yankees and Mike McCormick of the 1960 Yanks.

John Lowenstein knocked in five runs on three hits, including the first grand-slam of his major league career, to power the Indians over New York.

The base-loaded blast capped a five-run explosion in the fourth inning for Cleveland.

Rico Petrocelli drilled the fourth basse-loaded home run of his career to lead Boston's rout of the Brewers.

The Red Sox, first in the East Division, jumped to a quick first-inning lead, and after Petrocelli's homer in the fifth added three in the seventh.

Sal Bando slammed a grand-slammer, too, the sixth of his career, and Angel Mangual drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to lead Oakland's stomping of the Angels.

Bando's bases-loaded blast capped a six-run eighth that established the A's to widen their West Division lead to 2½ games over Texas. Thompson cracked four hits, including a two-run inside-the-park home run, and Larry Hisle hit a three-run homer in the Twins' triumph over Rangers.

Doyle Alexander pitched a five-hitter and Bobby Grich hit his 1-two-run homer in the Orioles' victory over Detroit.

Emphasis on Defence

World Cup scoring spree may be over with several managers, including West German Helmut Schon, looking for more defence.

Twenty-two goals in eight matches during the weekend was the sort of entertainment fans were looking for.

But those 22 were one too many for Schon. His team, though already qualified for the second round and still a favorite for the final, went down 1-0 to East Germany.

When second-round play opens Wednesday, the Netherlands meets Argentina and Brazil plays East Germany in A group, while Yugoslavia meets West Germany and Sweden faces Scotland in the B group.

In his post-match analysis Schoen told reporters: "We can no longer play open attacking football. Our tactics must now require full-time defence efforts from every player."

Similar strategy was expected from the Yugoslavs, who meet West Germany at Dusseldorf. Yugoslavia qualified with its draw against Scotland.

Sweden and Poland, who make up the rest of the group, are proponents of open attacking football.

If they can be contained, two ties and a victory would be enough to put the Yugoslavs in the last four.

But containing Poland, in particular, will take some doing. If they continue to play as they did in piling up an unde-

All in the Wrist

Picton's Terren Scott tries his hand at the javelin while practising for the Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials being held June 29 and 30 at OSD. Teaching Terren the technique of the javelin throw is the Trials' co-ordinator, Roger LaMorre.

Wheelchair Trials

Quinte Area Entries Favored in Events

The ball is rolling at the provincial level and everything is coming together on the local scene for the 1974 Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials.

"Everything is out of the planning stages now," says the co-ordinator of the Sport Trials, Roger LaMorre, "and I'm sure it'll go fine."

This weekend, June 29 and 30, Roger and Joanne Muckell will be the chief supervisory factors in the provincial trials being held at OSD on Dundas Street.

"I just want to see this thing run off properly," commented LaMorre.

"We've been working on it for quite a while now, but I'm sure the support we receive from the residents of Belleville will make all the work worthwhile," he added.

Provincially there are 46 participants heading to Belleville this weekend.

Locally there are four athletes training for the Trials.

Also on the local scene, City Council, through the awareness of Alderman Jean Smith, has proclaimed June 24-30 "Handicapped in Action Week".

LaMorre has great expectations for his athletes.

"I expect we'll be able to place in several events," said the co-ordinator. "The guys will be entering quite a few events, but they each have their specialty."

Terran Scott, a Picton resident, is considered a well rounded swimmer and a good table tennis player. He is expected to do well in those particular events.

Larry Van Normand, even though he is entering several events, is expected to be best in archery. Larry is a one-time junior champion of Belleville.

Gary Edgecomb, the third local participant, is expected to do well in the Billiards events.

Bruce Bean, of Trenton, a real marksman, is expected to do very well in the small bore rifle competion.

In any event, come Saturday at 9 a.m. The Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials will commence at OSD.

Winners in No Hurry

Late inning rallies continue to be the everyday thing in the Quinte Fastball League with both of last night's games not decided until the seventh inning, at least.

In the opener of the double-header, Rollins Constructors scored the only two runs of the game in the top of the seventh to whitewash Deveau Motors. The win was the 11th straight for the Constructors men against no losses, while the loss dropped Deveau's record to five wins and six losses.

Wayne McTaggart got the ball rolling for Rollins in their winning frame, stroking a single to right field with one out. Glen Carleton then flied a triple down the right field line.

Rick Watt, the Deveau right fielder made a good play to get to the ball, relaying it to second baseman Ray Lumsden, but the throw to the plate was high, with McTaggart narrowly missing the tag by catcher John Burnside.

Winning pitcher Ken Denville added an insurance run for his own cause, driving in Carleton from third with a base hit on the next pitch thrown by Ron Hill.

Both teams had ample opportunity to score in the game, with Rollins stranding five men on base and Deveau six.

Denille picked up his seventh win of the season, tops in the league, leaving 11 batters watching third strikes. He walked only one Deveau batsman.

Hill was charged with his second loss of the season against one win. He gave up seven Rollins' hits, striking out five and walking none.

McTaggart and Carl Boonhower each had a pair of singles for the winners, with Glen Carleton stroking a triple. Paul Goodfellow and Denille rounded it the hitting with singles.

Five different players collected singles for Deveau, with Jim Horwood, Rick Rosebush, Burnside, Lumsden, and Hill each supplying one.

Bavaon Supplies collected 15 runs, the highest total by any team this season, in taking an 8-5 decision over Ellis Juniors in the extra frame affair.

The Supplymen put three base hits and a walk together in the ninth to break a five-all deadlock, with all the runs coming with two out.

The Juniors had to do a little come from behind work themselves in the bottom of the seventh, going into the inning down by a 5-4 margin.

Sprackett started the rally off with a base hit, with Ken Campbell following suit moving Sprackett to third.

He scored on a long fly ball to center field by Dave Horwood.

Barbon had gone ahead with three of their own in the top of the sixth, having already tallied once in each of the forth and fifth frames.

The Juniors got three runs across in the first inning, and added one in the sixth.

Jamie Hunter started on the Barb.n rubber, lasting until the seventh inning with none out. He was charged with all the Juniors' runs allowing ten hits. He fanned seven Ellis batters, walking none.

Bill Harrison came on in relief, picking up the win, throwing three innings of hitless ball. He struck out two and walked none.

Sprackett went the distance for the Juniors, with the loss evening his record at three and three. He was touched for 15 hits, while fanning five. He was plagued with six walks.

At the plate, Wayne McConnell was tops for the winners, with three base hits. Bill Deway had a triple and single, with two hits each for Hunter, Gorsline, Wallsworth, Mark Coates, Harrison, Davies and Gorsline had one safey a piece.

Mark Sheridan Is Sharp

The Quinte Hotel Leaders rolled to their ninth win in Industrial Softball League play last night, dumping Public Utilities 41 in a game that lasted only one hour and 20 minutes to play.

Mark Sheridan fired a two hitter on the Quinte Hotel rubber, striking out six and walking only one.

Ron Wallie allowed four hits and two walks in taking the loss. He struck out two.

Sheridan was tops at the plate as well - for the Hotelmen, stroking a double and single. John Kincaid rapped a triple, with Bob Lloyd adding a single to round out the hitting.

Ron Archer had both hits for the Utilities, a triple and a single.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission kept right behind the Leaders with a 3-2 win over the Post Office.

The UIC scored two runs in the fourth and an insurance run in the sixth for the win, aided by four errors in the Post Office field.

Rick Sullivan picked up the win for the UIC, allowing six hits. He fanned four and walked two.

Norm Lockhart absorbed the loss, giving up six hit. He recorded six whiffs and walked three.

Melrose Nips Shannonville

A pitchers' duel shaped up in a rescheduled South Hastings Baseball League game last night in Shannonville, with Melrose edging the home team 3-1.

John Pepper was the winner. He gave up only two hits, walking two and fanning 14 batters.

Bob Reid took the loss on the Shannonville mound, ouched for only for hits, walking five and leaving 15 watching third strikes.

Bruce Pascoe had two of the four Melrose hits, both singles, with Rick Meagher and Glenn Richardson each stroking one. Meagher scored all three Melrose runs.

Bill Barberstock and Reid were the only Shannonville hitters to reach Pepper, both bagging singles.

Sandra Fleming In Stingy Mood

A five inning no-hitter by Purinasettes' Sandra Fleming highlighted the only game scheduled last night in the Bellville and District Ladies Softball League. The right hander fired third strikes past nine and walked only one in leading the team to a 17-6 win over hapless Simpsons-Sears.

The win was the tenth in 11 games for the Purinasettes, while the loss was the 11th straight for the Sears crew in as many starts.

Claus had two singles to lead BYDH, with Joyce McFarlane adding a double and Alexander a base hit.

In the second quarter, the Alouettes added a 21-1 lead as Wigg dashed in from four yards out, and Sanford scored on a one-yard plunge.

Logan hit Petrie for a 56-yard pass-and-run effort in the third quarter, and Archibald converted to give the Alouettes a commanding 38-1 lead going into the final 15 minutes of play.

The Alouettes had 418 yards in total offence while the Argos managed 288. The Argos gained 25 first downs to only 18 for Montreal.

The game was played before 2,800 fans.

Players Choose McGowan, Harvey

OTTAWA (CP) — George McGowan of Edmonton Eskimos and John Harvey of Montreal Alouettes have been selected as the top players in the Canadian Football League by their fellow players.

The CFL Players' Association day and split end McGowan and running back Harvey were selected as the most valuable players in the West and East conferences respectively.

In a gala affair set in the same glitter of a local hotel ballroom, the players milled and talked with about 700 persons who paid $12 each to see their favorite stars.

All-stars and members of the 1973 Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders quaffed and quipped for almost two hours before the presentations were made.

The dinner was a warm-up for the 1974 all-star game here on July 6 between the Canadian Football League all-stars and the Montreal Alouettes, Grey Cup champions.

Ed George of Montreal received the offensive lineman of the year award for the East while Charlie Turner of Edmonton picked up the honor for the West.

Jim Sullivan-son of Toronto Argonauts was voted the defensive lineman of the year in the East and John Helton of Calgary Stampeders was the Western counterpart.

Linebackers Ray Nettles of Toronto Argonauts Lions and Jerry Campbell of Ottawa took top honors for their positions.

In the offensive-defensive back voting, George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders and Harvey took the honors in the offensive ranks while Lorne Richardson of Saskatchewan and Al Bruno of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ron Woodward of Ottawa — were the players' choices in the defensive ranks.

Hull Wants NHL Players on Team

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hull wants National Hockey League players on Team Canada 1974 with the World Hockey Association choices, and he doesn't think the NHL should be allowed to say no.

"I feel if certain individuals want to stand up and represent Canada, I don't see how they could be forced from participating," Hull said during a trip here to promote the Team Canada series in Moscow against the Russians.

"This is Team Canada, remember. I would like any Canadian who qualifies on that team."

Hull, playing coach with Winnipeg Jets of the WHA, was in Toronto with Jets' owner Ben Hatskin seeking assistance and support for the Russian trip in September.

Hull said he still wants in particular Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers, who he said each expressed interest in the series before the NHL owners and the NHL Players Association last week barred their players.

"This should be above either the WHA or the NHL," said Hatskin. "Perhaps some public pressure will pay them."

"We definitely have the players in our league, but we would like the others because we want to beat the Russians eight to nothing."

Hull, who missed out on the 1972 Canada-Russian series when WHA players were excluded, said he thinks it is the NHL establishment and Al Eagleson (director of the NHL players' league), but we would like the others because we want to beat the Russians eight to nothing."

Hull, who missed out on the 1972 Canada-Russian series when WHA players were excluded, said he thinks it is the NHL establishment and Al Eagleson (director of the NHL players' league), but we would cause of this.".

"If I like to do something, I don't want to be told I can't do it," he said. "They're big boys now."

The Team Canada uniform unveiled by Hull and Hatskin has an all-white jersey with red piping, implanted with seven small maple leaves down the arms.

Ladies' Day at Wimbledon

Billie Jean Aims for Six

LONDON (AP — Today is ladies day at Wimbledon, and defending champion Billy Jean King opens her bid to win a sixth singles crown.

Mrs. King, who meets Kathy May, 18, of Beverly Hills, Calif., in a second round match, said: "I would like to win more titles at Wimbledon than anyone else.

The Long Beach, Calif., resident has a chance this year to equal the performance of Suzanne Lenglen, who won the women's singles trophy six times about 50 years ago. Helen Wills-Moody holds the record-eight titles, the last won in 1938.

"The official seedings list Mrs. King No. 1 and Chris Evert, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., No. 2. Miss Ewert, who like Mrs. King had a first-round bye, enters the fray Wednesday against Australian Lesley Hunt.

In men's play Monday, top seeded John Newcombe of Australia moved into the second round as did eight other seeds—Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Australian Ken Rosewall, Ilie Nastase of Romania, Manuel Orantes of Spain, defending champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, Tom Okker of the Netherlands, Stan Smith and Tom Gorman of the United States.

Monday evening Mini Ewert watched her fiance, Jim Connors of Belleville, Ill., against Per Bungstam of Sweden. The match was stopped in fading light with Connors, the No. 2 seed, leading 6-1, 7-6, 5-2.

Two other seeds, Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union never got on court at all.

PLAYER DIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former British Columbia Lions player Ken Phillips died Monday at 25 after a lengthy illness.

Meetings Resume

OTTAWA (CP — Meetings between the Canadian Football League clubs and the CFL Players' Association will resume an attempt to resolve the lingering monetary dispute today.

George Reed, players' association president, said Monday night the meetings would resume today but it was hard to say whether a settlement was near.

All veteran CFL players have retired to back demands which include an $11,000 annual pay minimum and additional money for playoff games.

League Commissioner Jake Gaudaur moved his staff into town Monday for all-star festivities and any help they can give to settle the players-management dispute.

In addition, both Ottawa Rough Riders and the CFL All-Stars continued their two-a-day workouts in preparation for Wednesday's all-star game at Lansdowne Park.

The players learned Monday that the advance sale of tickets has picked up considerably and all-star committee chairman Andy Shaw was predicting a turnout of at least 15,000. Lansdowne Park holds more than 27,609 spectators.

Meanwhile, Ottawa Rough Riders announced they will play their scheduled exhibition game against Calgary Stampeders next week even if they have failed an all-rookie lineup.

Three Staging Battle For Red Cap Award

By CECIL S. PAUL

The big battle for points for the Red Cap Award for the $2,500 in cash plus over 20 annual awards is in full swing at Brighton Speedway after 16 race meets in the 1974 season.

Wayne Foster of Newcastle, who has a very large lead a few weeks ago has a couple of fellows hot on his tail, Ron Herrington of Brighton is only 15 points behind him followed closely by Doug Davis of Brighton, trailing by 70 points.

Howard Moore, the top eight driver last season and also the top man in his class all season so far now has to share his position with Danny Reid, After Saturday's meet, Reid is tied with Moore, with both drivers having 200 points each — 20 in back of Foster for the overall Championship Award which is now known as the Electrohome Gold Award which is donated by Fredrickson's RV of Trenton.

Ten drivers met their fate at the bottom turn on the weekend and Winston Webber of Trenton holds the record of the most rolls, by going over the number one end two end of the track and rolling his car at least four times. A slight delay followed while Winston had to be taken to the Hospital in Trenton for a check-up but he was later released and is none the worse for for ride but his car suffered major damage.

Greg Anderson of Trenton chalked up his fourth win in a row in the six cylinder stock cadillas as he took his qualifier but had to drop out of the feature with motor trouble. Greg came out late but is moving up very quickly in the point standing and has a total of five wins to his credit for the season.

Rene Lalonde and his 23 car took the Stock Feature after taking over the top spot from Ken Fraser. Four of the 10 cars that went off the track did it during the running of this event.

Bob Mathew of Campbellford continues to lead in the point standing with Bill Mc-Fberson of Carrying Place only seven points behind him.

Doug Davis of Brighton finally got his big win as he took the six feature which was worth $200. on Saturday night. He had to settle for a second place finish behind Ron Herrington in the qualifier but turned the tables on the man from Brighton and outran the field in what was one of the best contests of the night. Both drivers made a substantial gain on the leader, Wayne Foster, who had to settle for a third in his qualifier and lost a wheel in the, Feature as he came out of number four turn. Doug managed a fourth place finish in the super to end up with his best night of the season.

Ron Herrington took his qualifier and ran a close second in the Feature to add 63 points to his score while Foster only picked up 15 small ones. Davis earned 60 points plus the big prize money in the feature.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, June 26

Aries (March 21-April 19) Neither you nor your mate will be very tolerant over domestic issues. The least irregularity could bring about unnecessary discord.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It doesn't look like you'll be able to dodge certain obligations you've been neglecting lately. Face them today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't spend money on anything today unless you're positive it's the best buy you can make for your dollar.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) A conflict of aims is developing in an important personal relationship. Talk things over before it gets out-of hand.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful what you put your signature on at this time. It may obligate you more than you realize.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your outside interests should be modified a bit for the present or they will prove to be more of a liability than a fun outlet.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) For the next few days, avoid arrogant individuals who like to throw their weight around and give you orders.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll suffer considerable embarrassment if you get involved in an argument with another over a subject he knows more about than you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Continue to stay on guard and proceed cautiously in a venture in which you share wealth with another or you'll be taken advantage of.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Co-operation from others you're now hoping for will be slow in coming. Do as much as you can on your own.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do more than spot-check work or service you're having done at this time in order to avoid the possibility of serious mistakes.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extra-patient and considerate toward one you're emotionally involved with. This person is harboring a secret hurt.

To Your Good Health

Gallstones Show Defect in Organ

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is your opinion of gallstone surgery? I have never had any trouble, but after a complete physical, it was discovered I have a cluster of small stones. Is it best to have the gall bladder removed even though I have had no trouble—M.H.

No trouble, but a few gallstones, eh?

Gall bladder problems can produce symptoms similar to those of hiatal hernia along with others.

Is it best to have surgery? I can't make any specific yes or no answer, because this is obviously a matter for your doctor and you to decide. But I'd say this: If your physician WANTS it done, have it done.

The x-rays told him a lot about your gall bladder. That cluster of small stones could mask clusters of even smaller ones. Stones range from poppy-seed to golf-ball sizes. The smaller ones can quickly find their way to a duct where they can cause painful colic attacks. And I mean painful. They could also lead ultimately to infection or malignancy.

The point is that you have a defective gall bladder or else the stones wouldn't be there. Now the decision is whether you want the condition remedied by surgery now or wait until later when it might be a matter of immediate necessity but one might not be enjoying the good health you now have.

"About 16 per cent of adults suffer some form of gall bladder disorder, from stones to infection. Operation for the removal of the bladder, while still considered major in the sense that any abdominal surgery is, is major, is becoming more and more common. The risks are negligible and you can expect only a temporary period, if any, of diet restriction afterward.

In short, if you and your doctor agree to it, the surgery can be a powerful ounce of prevention to forego the need for emergency care later on.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 58 and still having my periods regularly. I have always had a problem with hair on my upper lip and chin, but lately it is getting excessive and I am getting panicky. My friends tell me the doctor can give me a hormone to stop this growth. Is this correct?—Mrs. J.S.

Sorry, but I'd advise you not to let your friends get your hopes up in that direction. Since your periods are still regular, it is an indication that your production of hormones has not declined to any appreciable extent.

Actually, such hair growth is not uncommon at your age and my suggestion is that you consider methods of removal. Electrolysis is one answer. Bleaching, removal with a depilatory (if your skin is not irritated by it) or even shaving are others.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 13 years old and have a habit of cracking my knuckles. I annoy many people. Do you have any ideas that will help me stop?—B.R.

One is just to remember that it does annoy people. Another that might help is this: when you think of it, take hold of the knuckle as though you are going to crack it—but then don't.

"I don't really mind your 15-point notrump," replied North. "What I do object to is the way you misplay them."

South won the diamond lead with his ace and led his four of clubs. West played the seven and South went right up with dummy's king. East showed out and try as he might South had no way to avoid the loss of two club tricks.

Where had South gone wrong? There was a perfect safety play available to him.

He should simply have covered West's seven of clubs with dummy's nine sp

IN MEMORIAM

MITCHELL — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who died one year ago, June 25, 1962.
One year has passed since we lost dad,
When one we loved was called above,
God took him home — it was His will,
But memories of him we'll always keep,
Within our hearts he lovely still.
Sadly missed and mourned by Donald, Aileen and daughter.

BRADY, Percy — In loving memory of my husband who died suddenly one year ago today, June 25, 1962.
In midst of my many friends,
I am lonely and blue,
God only knows how much I miss you,
So I'm sadly missed by your loving wife Pearlella.

ANDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband William Anderson who died June 25, 1961.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss him more,
And long to hear his tone.
— Lovingly remembered by his wife LILY.

MOONEY/WEIR — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Fred Garfield Mooney who died June 25, 1972.
The time we greet, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near;
God's will be done, we must not mourn,
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
— Sadly missed by husband, daughter-in-law Vera and family.

ANDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather William (Bill) Anderson who died one year ago, June 25, 1972.
Memory drifts to days gone by,
Time rolls on, but memories last,
Those we love can never die.
— Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife Jessie, daughter Lorna and Mildred.

Giant Incinerator Will Ease Chemical Pollution of Caribbean

GELSENKIRCHEN, West Germany (Reuter) — A West German company hopes to build a giant incinerator for chemical waste on a small uninhabited island in the Caribbean.

Company officials say that between 100,000 and 200,000 tons of chlorinated hydrocarbon, a byproduct of the plastics, pharmaceutical and other petrochemical industries, is produced in the area annually and dumped into the sea.

The waste is so poisonous that fish and other aquatic life die almost instantly when coming into contact with it, even if it is diluted 20,000 times.

The Stahl-und Hüchhen Co. of Gelsenkirchen has applied to the Netherlands Antilles government for permission to rent the island on a long-term basis.

The island, Small Curacao, measures 3,000 yards by 874 yards.

The Gelsenkirchen company, which is planning to undertake the Small Curacao venture jointly with the Dutch Metsela concern, already has successfully launched a system of incinerating waste in Europe.

Company manager Dieter Sobinger said:

"If we prevent the contamination of the Caribbean, nobody should mind if we make a few marks.

"Some people cannot close their eyes to the fact that every year 200,000 to 400,000 tons of chemical waste is dumped into the sea. They should be interested even if the problem is not tackled over the Caribbean, which is dead in five years."

Sobinger acknowledged that there was some strong opposition in Europe and the Caribbean even to the idea of incinerating chemical waste.

The plan is to put up an incinerating plant in Small Curacao at a cost of between 2.4 million and 3.1 million within eight months.

The initial disposal capacity of 150,000 to 180,000 tons annually may be expanded by up to 100 per cent, depending on what the company calls the political consciousness of chemical firms in the Caribbean and the southern United States.

A company representative has been touring the United States to discuss the plan with chemical firms. Sobinger said the reaction has been "truly excellent, because these firms see a real solution. The pollution problem is the gradually frightening them."

Stahl-und Hüchhen said they chose Small Curacao because it is uninhabited and located in the monsoon area with a constant wind direction.

Company plans envisage tankers specially constructed to guard against leakage calling on various ports in the southern United States and the Caribbean, to pick up chemical waste for transport to a central tank on the island.

There, the company said, a system will reduce the waste to little more than harmless smoke.

The system has been applied for five years on two specially built ships off the coast of Holland which dispose of some 100,000 tons of chemical waste annually. The waste, coming from chemical companies in Belgium, West Germany, France, Holland, Norway and Switzerland, is taken out to sea and burned.

This is done by injecting the poisonous liquid into boiler shaped furnaces which heat it to a temperature that starts it burning on its own accord.

The company said what comes out of the chimney is a water vapor composed of carbon dioxide, hydrogen and chloride. The latter two elements combine to produce hydrochloric acid, dangerous if it falls on vegetation, buildings or people.

At sea, however, the hydrochloric acid condenses quickly, drops into the water after a few seconds and is absorbed without danger to fish or plant life, the company said.

Big Grain Sale Made to China

SASKATOON (CP) — Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, announced today that 75 million bushels of grain, valued at $350 million, will be shipped to China between July and December of this year.

Mr. Lang told a news conference the sale "comes at a difficult time" because the Canadian wheat board has been attempting to hold prices at a constant level.

He said the shipment of grain to China will be "very rapid" and "we'll have to go all out in our grain handling operations to get the grain in position to ship to China."

The price and volumes involved in the Chinese sale would require sustained movement and sustained prices for producers.

Kidnappers' Status Puzzles Stanfield

SASKATOON (CP) — Canada will not attempt to extradite from France two kidnappers of British diplomat James Cross who are reported to be in that country, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday.

The Justice minister said Monday Canada would attempt to seek the extradition of Jean-Marc Carbonneau and Jacques Lanctot.

Mr. Lang said he reversed his decision after learning full details of the agreement that allowed the kidnappers to leave Canada in exchange for the release of Mr. Cross. The kidnappers were promised safe conduct so long as they did not try to cross Canadian boundaries.

Mr. Lang was also critical minister at the time of the kidnapping in 1970.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday that Prime Minister Trudeau "owes an explanation to the Canadian people" as to why two kidnappers, sent to Cuba four years ago, should not be brought back for trial.

The kidnappers of British diplomat James Cross are reported in Paris and Mr. Trudeau has said the Canadian government will not attempt to extradite them from France.

Mr. Stanfield, on his arrival here for a day of campaigning in Newfoundland for the July 8 federal election said Mr. Trudeau owes the Canadian people an explanation on the agreement under which the kidnappers were sent to Cuba.

He said a Conservative government would intend to bring them back to Canada to face trial unless this is precluded by an agreement reached at that time to serve the life of Mr. Cross.

The Canadian people now are entitled to know what that agreement was. He also said that External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp should ensure the two kidnappers are not released from prison.

"The general heart" always been free of errors in this regard."
